U. S. BARS CANADIAN AMATEUR HOCKEY PLAYERS

A.A.A.U. Not to Renew Agreement with Canada Which Expires April 1st

American Hockey Union to Stand on Own Feet

75 PLAYERS AFFECTED

Frederick Rubien Announces Suspension of Baltimore Club

New York, March 1 (CP)—Canadian amateur hockey players will not be allowed to play in United States as the consequence of the present season, Frederick Rubien, Chairman of the United States Amateur Athletic Union Hockey Committee, said today. The American A.A.U., will not renew its agreement with the Canadian Hockey Association permitting exchange of players between the two countries, Rubien further announced.

The agreement between the two leading hockey organizations of the respective countries terminates April 1. Under the terms at least 75 players in the United States who compete for Hornell, N.Y., Islanlic City, Baltimore, Pittsburgh and New York clubs will be affected by the ruling.

The players come from all over Canada, and are generally under the eyes of scouts from the National League to which a number will graduate next season. Other Canadian pacemakers are to be found in many border and New England cities.

"We are old enough now to stand on our own feet," said Rubien. "After April 1 we will not permit Canadian amateurs to play in this country."

Previously Rubien had revealed suspension of Baltimore Orioles a powerful aggregation of Ontario and Maritime players—men, ranking third in the U.S.E.A.H.A. standing.

The South Atlantic group companied about Baltimore and wasn't satisfied with the amateur status of the players or their means of livelihood and wouldn't approve their registration with the A.A.U." said Rubien.

"So we decided to take a firm hand and they are now ineligible for league competition. Any league team, or, for that matter, any amateur team at all, that plays Baltimore now will lose its amateur standing."

JAP GEISHA GIRLS GO ON SIT-DOWN STRIKE IN TEMPLE

Demand Recognition of Their Guild Before Return to Duty

LIKELY TO SPREAD

Tokyo, March 1 (AP)—Japanese Geisha girls and Kabuki Theatre officers were out on strike today in Japan's two largest cities, Tokyo and Osaka, with diverse aims.

The men sought honor for, the Emperor; the girls asked recognition of the Geisha Guild.

Seven singer officers, not common seamen, charged today Emperor Hirohito when they failed to order flags hoisted at the Emperor's review of the Japanese grand fleet last October.

The girls, entertainers, perched in a Buddhist Temple near Osaka on Honshu Island, the modern nation demanded recognition of their Guild before they would return to a return to Osaka's fashionable cafes and Geisha houses.

The flashily-gowned Geisha declined police requests to come down from their mountain retreat, and scornfully rejected their employers' pleas to go back to work, Mobile Osaka's tired business men.

The girls, their leaders said, were catching up on their long-neglected prayers and sleep.

The strike indications the sitdown strike might be joined by others of Osaka's 2,000 Geisha, while newspapers reported all Japan's 20,000 Kabuki theatre watchers their sisters' strike with breathless interest.

OPPOSITION MAY ASK CONTRACTS

Dionne Quintuplets May Become Subject of Debate

Toronto March 1 (CP)— The Globe and Mail today says the Conservative opposition in the Ontario legislature is expected to ask for tabling of all "big money contracts" negotiated on behalf of the Dionne quintuplets by the Board of Guardians.

The paper adds:

"The opposition, it is understood, may confine its course of action simply to demanding that the contracts be tabled, or all correspondence in regard thereto be brought down, so that they can actually press for some form of inquiry. In any event they are said to feel that more than the bare facts of the contracts should be built up a fortune of more than half a million dollars for the family before the surrender should be made public."

Exactly what or procedure will be determined, it is understood, before Monday afternoon, the session's reading of the special bill by means of which Hon. Mr. Croll (Minister of Labour) relinquishes his guardianship over the youngsters to the official guardian of the Province", the paper adds.

Brockville, Ont., March 1.—(CP)—Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Singleton of nearby Lyndhurst today observed their golden wedding anniversary. Highly respected residents, they have lived there for many years.

M. P. Duff Named First Chairman of Utilities Com.

Show Goes On

New York, March 1.—(AP)— The curtain line for the entrance scene in the set of "Tobacco Road" of the tragically twisted "Sister Bessie Rice" met unanswered Saturday night by Maud Odell, a veteran of twenty years' service upon Broadway. While the play went on she lay dead in her dressing room. She was 65.

A hastily designated understudy, Miss Anita Derr, read Odlage the somber lines of the eccentric Sister Bessie, fa middle-aged poor white alternating between religious fervor and an infatuation that led to a wedding with "Jester Lester's" half wit, son.

While Miss Barton, the play's star, "Ad Libbed" upon Miss Odell's failure to take her cue, the stage manager went to her dressing room. He found her lying upon the floor. A priest arrived to administer the last sacrament and in a moment she died, still dressed in Sister Bessie's ugly cotton gown and pumps.

Very, if any, in the audience suspected what had happened.

44 Hour Week And Increase in Wages Asked by Workers

Stratford, Ont., March 1.—(CP)— Failure to reach a new wage and working agreement between factory heads and employees sent 1,50 furniture workers from their jobs in Ontario today. While workers quit their posts union officials prepared to meet employers in Toronto Tuesday when conciliation talks end the walk-out.

The cold agreement ended last August and since then negotiations were underway with Hon. David A. DECISION LEFT WITH ELECTORATE

Aberhart Admits He is Unable to Carry Out Pledge in Time

By J. F. SANDERSON

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Calgary, March 1.—(CP)—Alberta women dotting the wide expanse of the province will decide whether William Aberhart, the Calgary school teacher who became leader of the first Social Credit Government in the world in 1935, will continue to lead the province.

The Premier frankly told his supporters yesterday that the people of the Calgary Prophetic Bible Institute he has been unable to redeem his election promises to establish Social Credit in Alberta in 18 months. He asked them to pass resolutions at constituency Associations meetings advising whether they wish him to resign or continue his job of governing a new economic order for Alberta.

In the meantime, the Aberhart administration will carry on and push through the Legislature the final reforms for further action.

"May I assure you we are not throwing up our hands" Mr. Aberhart cautioned his supporters. He told them he had no intention of resigning today, Sept. or October, as a change, either in leadership or policy.

The Premier suggested no Associations would be called for the first week in June, after the roads are open and the people have studied the legislation passed at the last session. In the meantime, of course, he would welcome suggestions and opinion.

He desired no advice from political opponents to whom his election promises was not directed.

BROWNLEE LOSES DAMAGE SUIT IN SUPREME COURT

Miss MacMillan Wins Appeal For $10,000 Against Former Premier

AWARDED COSTS ALSO

Case Began in 1933 Over Alleged Acts of Seduction by Defendant

Ottawa, March 1.—(CP)—Vivian MacMillan is entitled to the $10,000 awarded her by a jury in her action for seduction against Edson Brownlee, former Premier of Alberta, the Supreme Court of Canada today ruled.

Reversing the findings of Mr. Justice W. C. Ives who presided at the trial in Edmonton and the Appeal Court, which upheld the majority of the highest court in the Dominion directed that the jury's verdict be restored.

The majority judgment, written by Chief Justice Sir Lyman P. Duff held firstly that a woman suing for seduction under the Alberta Seduction Act need not prove acts of service or loss of ability to serve as in the case of a parents or master suing and, secondly, there was no evidence to support the facts as found by the jury or the reason-ableness of the damages awarded.

Appeal Argued on Two Points

The appeal to the Supreme Court was argued last December upon these two points, one of law and one of fact. One was that Seduction Act gives a woman seduced a right of action whereas under the common law such a right belonged only to the parent or master on the ground of loss of service of the woman.

For Mr. Brownlee it was argued the basis of the action was the same and loss of service or at least loss of ability to serve had to be proved. This was not proved as Miss MacMillan had left Brownlee's home and was not performing services for him.

On this point after reviewing authorities the Chief Justice said: "It is plain that the gist of the action [illegible] the woman the right to sue) should continue to be based on the old ordinary meaning of the words and the damage of the special character mentioned damages could not be presumptively entailing some loss of service for the seduction. The service is not the gist of the action under the statute."

Mr. Justice Davis dissented from the Chief Justice and the majority. Miss MacMillan was awarded costs of the litigation throughout.

History of Case

The case began in 1933 while Mr. Brownlee was still Premier of Alberta and the alleged acts of seduction took place, from October 1929 onward.

Miss MacMillan was the daughter

Takes Lead Over Yvonne by Three-quarters of a Pound

Callander, Ont., March 1 (CP)— Annette with 29 1-2 pounds is the heaviest baby, when she failed to gain weight, while Annette gained three-quarters of a pound, it was announced today at the Dionne Hospital for the famed sisters.

The quintuplets were two years and nine months old yesterday. Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe who returned after a three weeks' visit to the Toronto General Hospital, where he was ill with pneumonia, did not visit them for fear of communicating the germs to them.

During February each baby except Marie gained one-quarter inch in height, with Annette and Yvonne "top" with 34 1-2 inches, Emilie and Cecile with 34 inches and Marie the shortest failing to increase her height of 33 1-2 inches.

Yvonne was the heaviest quintuplets a month ago but she failed to increase her weight of 29 1-2 pounds during February. Annette gained three-quarters of a pound to take the heavyweight honors from her sister.

There is a difference of two pounds between Emilie and Cecile who are tied for height. Cecile failed to increase during February, is now the same weight as Emilie, 27 pounds, Emilie gained a half-pound and now tips the scales at 27 1-2 pounds.

Although Marie the shortest of the five girls gained three-quarters of a pound during the month, she remained the "light-weight" and her weight is 25 1-2 pounds, four pounds less than the 29 1-2 pound record of "heavyweight" Annette.

LAMB WINS OUT AS MARCH ENTERS

Comparatively Mild Day Gives No Hint of Stormy Weather in Offing

Flash: The Lamb Wins.

The annual duel between the Lamb and the Lion for the privilege of ushering the fickle Miss March into a winterlocked unsuspecting world ended in a clean-cut victory for the Lamb early today. Sunshine at first which later was hidden by clouds tempered by a cool breeze from the west greeted Belleville citizens when they awakened this morning. Spring-like haze hung over the distant horizons. In the trees the twittering of birds added a touch of springlike atmosphere. On the streets school children revelled in the mild temperature as their way to school.

While it was hard to ascertain the reaction of the majority of Belleville citizens as regarding their belief in the various weather signs and what they portend, the smiles and general cheery disposition of early Monday morning workers would indicate that a large number of them put some faith in the Lion and Lamb adage.

But, coal dealers warn don't take too much for granted. This spring in March as shorn of its spring fleece without warning. The Lion, is still in the offing, and smarting from the Lamb's defeat, may yet counter-attack in a whirling rage of snow, ice and sere weather. Weather pessimists this morning issued a warning to keep the heavy clothing in view, pay up the coalman, and don't pack the snow shovels away for a while yet.

The floristic proclivities of the fickle Miss' known as 'March' may also assert themselves before the advent of robins woodchucks, tender young flowers, straw hats and new clothes announce that spring is here to stay.

POLICE COURT

One of the quietest week ends in many weeks in police circles was reported by the desk Sergeant when the reporter called this morning. There were no arrests and few infractions of the law. A total of six at the Dominion Match Factory plant at Deseronto was received by the local police but no trace of the missing articles could be found. In the city after an intensive search Seven copper kettles 18 by 20 inches four copper kettles 16 by 20 inches and nine aluminum pans 12 by 1-2 by 1-2 by seven and one four inch bench vice were taken by the night prowlers.

In police court Gordon Stanley was remanded another week, when he appeared on a charge of theft.

A second charge of theft of coal and rings from a motor car owned by A. Munns was laid and a remand also asked, which was granted. A local resident paid $100 and costs for having liquor in his possession on an individual permit.

Wilbert Schneider, on remand for a number of weeks on a charge of theft appeared today and was remanded to a psychiatric hospital for examination. John Mowell, a fifteen-year-old youth was charged with assault against his step mother Mrs. Andrew Hazell of Tyendinaga Township but after some evidence had been taken, the case was adjourned for one week

BRIDGE STREET SUNDAY SCHOOL 115 YEARS OLD

Pews in Bridge Street Church Been Declared Free

NEW MEMBERS

The one hundred and fifteenth anniversary of the foundation of the Bridge Street United Sunday School was celebrated on Sunday with appropriate services in the Bridge School services. At the service in the morning, Rev. Roy Rickard preached on the subject of "The Light of the World". His sermon was an object lesson to the scholars and adults as well. He recalled the place the late William Johnson held in Sunday School circles in Ontario when he was superintendent at Bridge Street. Rev. Mr. Rickard used the modern relay race as the basis of his talk along with the torch race run by the Greek youths, the condition of which meant the running with the torch and handling it still lighted to the next runner, the race being won by the team first bringing the lighted torch to the goal. The handing on of the torch symbolizes the passing on of traditions from generation to generation.

"The Light of the World"

Christ, he said, left the world a torch which has been handed on ever since His coming nearly two thousand years ago, and which has been passed on from generation to generation. Mr. Rickard emphasized the obligation of one generation to pass the torch on to another saying, "Just think what a tragedy it would be if there were a generation which did not pass on these blessings."

Using a chart the preacher took the word "Light" and made an acrostic, Love, Industry, Gratitude, Helpfulness, Truth the meaning of each of which he defined.

A copy of Holman Hunt's "The Light of the World", hung on an easel before the pulpit.

At the close of the sermon, Rev. Mr. Rickard had a boy of the school representing the boys and a girl representing the girls, light candles from the larger lighted candle he himself held, to symbolize the handing on of the light of Christ's life to the next young generation.

Junior and senior choirs took part in the service, the former singing one number.

New Members from John Street

At this service there were present many former members of John Street congregation which has disbanded as a consequence of the destruction by fire of their church some months ago. There were also new children in the school and the superintendent, Mr. C. Burr, Rev. Dr. Semple, the minister of Bridge Street Church, welcomed them on behalf of the congregation and Mr. Burr spoke for the school.

In his welcome to the coming of these new members who will be associated with Bridge Street Church, Dr. Semple said that the future would show how great was the welcome Bridge Street Church offered them. There would be no stated, an official welcome to the new members at a meeting held when these through their leaders had decided on the date.

Pews Declared Free

With the coming of the new members from the other congregation which had not the pew rental system, a change in the pew rental policy at Bridge Street Church was decided upon. Announcement of this was made by Mr. Fred R. Deacon, secretary of the Quarterly Official Board, who stated that for years this question had been under discussion but no radical system had still remained, until the present situation developed bringing members from a church where the seats were not rented. It had therefore been decided that the pews in Bridge Street Church will hereafter be free. This did not mean that those who had been accustomed to pews would be asked to give them up, but if desired to retain them if they wished, he said, without interference.

The minister, Rev. Dr. Semple, spoke in reference to the decision that this arrangement would not affect the accommodation of those who had become accustomed to pews. They may occupy their pews in future just as in the past, but if it happened that others were in them and the seat filled, the minister asked them to give the seat vacated for all were free.

Sometime ago the pewholders were canvassed on the question of the abolition of the rental system. It was upon the results of this survey the decision to declare all pews free was made.

School's Special Service

In the afternoon, the Sunday School met in large numbers, the superintendent, Mr. Burr, presiding. Among those taking part in the special service were Rev. Roy Rickard and the Rev. Dr. Semple and others. One of the features was the presentation of volumes the gift of the Rev. Archer Wallace, one of the United Church publications' editors, for perfect attendance. Twenty-five qualified for the gift, which were presented by Mrs. Herd, daughter of Rev. Mr. Wallace and a member of the congregation.

Last evening Rev. Dr. Semple preached a special sermon of interest to parents in the manner of the christening of their families. The Jubilee Singers presented a program of sacred music and sang selections at the Fireside Hour meeting.

Child's Life Saved

Five years ago a crippled child was being treated for disabilities which rendered her incapable of helping herself—the mother had to lift the child and do everything possible for her—the child could not help herself.

The case seemed hopeless, just a matter of days, weeks, months, at the most, before Death would step in.

Today that child, as the result of specialist treatment is up and about, lively as a cricket, albeit on crutches, but able to help herself and as active as most children of her age.

Treatment goes on with the hope of complete cure.

There are children in Belleville and district doomed to lives of pain and sorrow unless given specialist treatment. The outlook seems gloomy for them unless some Fairy Prince comes along and touches them with the mystic wand of healing—which nowadays means for most children a sojourn in the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, and the loving care of great Medical Specialists, like Dr. Robertson, who nearly perished in the Moose River mine disaster.

Sunshine can replace shadow in the lives of these crippled children, if we all give them our sympathy and practical assistance. This is a work in which all can take part.

Mr. S. J. Cornell of Furnace Falls visited in town on Wednesday.

Miss Jessie Anderson and Mr. William Anderson of Campbellford, visited Mr. and Mrs. W. Gould.

Misses Jean and Elizabeth Gladney are visiting relatives and friends in Marmora over the week-end.

Circle I of the Ladies' Aid held a very successful afternoon tea at the home of Mrs. E. C. Prentice on Thursday.

BROWNLEE LOSES

of Allan D. MacMillan of Exeter, Alta., and assistant locomotive foreman. At the trial evidence was adduced to show that Premier Brownlee met Miss MacMillan on a visit to Exeter and persuaded her to go to Edmonton where she took a business course and accepted a position with the Alberta Government.

From time to time according to Miss MacMillan's story the Premier took her motoring on country roads and seduced her. Further intimate relations took place in the Premier's home in which she was mastervisited relatives there, while Lieutenant Minnes intended taking his wife to Trenton for a visit.

Gave Up Position

She claimed she became ill as a result of the alleged relations and the physical strain and worry caused by them, had to give up her position and return to Exeter.

At the trial Miss MacMillan and her father sued jointly, claiming unstated damages. The hearing lasted from June 25 to 30, 1934 and the jury returned a verdict awarding $10,000 to Miss MacMillan and $5,000 to her father.

highway, and finally crashed into one of them as Minnes, the driver, apparently was endeavoring to bring the car back to the highway. The accident occurred at a slight turn in the road, which for some distance connects two straight level stretches. No other cars were in the vicinity and no one saw the crash. Heard Crash in House.

Word of the tragedy was first received here when medical assistance was summoned from the residence of William Magill, near by. Magill heard the crash in his house and upon investigation, found Black's body had been thrown out the right door and was lying on some slush. Minnes, still unconscious and still in the driver's seat, had terribly crushed. Two young women nurses, who happened along in a car, made an improvised stretcher of two ropes and a sweater and with others carried the still breathing man to Magill's home.

Dr. D. B. Code of Brockville who had been summoned, gave first aid and ordered the immediate ambulance to carry Minnes to the General Hospital here. Dr. Code accompanied him and just as he entered the hospital, Minnes breathed his last. He had a fractured left arm, lacerations above the left eye, a compound fracture of the right leg, concussion, bruises on the foot and four broken ribs over the heart. Black sustained three ribs broken and fractured skull, six broken ribs over the heart, lacerations of the right leg.

Will Not Hold Inquest

Dr. C. F. Robertson, Prescott, coroner, was notified, but due to his illness, Dr. Code, associate coroner, another Coroner, was summoned. After learning the facts of the case and making a preliminary investigation, he issued burial permits and decided, following a conference with Chief Constable Dr. T. F. Robertson of Leeds County, and Provincial Police, that an inquest would not be held, both of the principals in the accident having lost their lives, and no eye-witnesses.

Carl John of Prescott, Provincial Constable, also made an investigation without being able to determine why or how the car got out of control. It was apparent, however, that it was travelling at a fast rate of speed as it careened off the highway and later pitched into the tree.

Remains of sandwiches found at the rest of the two men in the car led to the belief that they had been eating them when the car left the highway.

The bodies were taken to Ottawa last night. Wing Commander A. E. Godfrey of the Trenton Station came here on receipt of word of the accident, accompanied the remains.

Left Trenton.

Captain Black and Flight Lieut. Minnes left the R.C.A.F. Station at Trenton Saturday morning with the intention of visiting friends and relatives in Ottawa where their homes were situated. Captain Black had relatives there, while Lieutenant Minnes intended taking his wife to Trenton for a visit.

Black was a son of Mrs. George Black, Lot 12, P. Q. Yukon. He was born Jan. 31, 1898, and took out a commission in the militia in 1917, serving overseas in the war and winning the Military Cross for gallantry in action. After the war he entered the Permanent Force, being gazetted to the Royal Canadian Machine Gun Battalion and later transferring to the P.P.C.L.I., now Strathcona Light Horse, in 1922. Subsequently he was promoted to a captaincy in that unit, and since June, 1936, he had been attached to the Army Co-operation School of the Air Force. He was married, but had no children.

Flight Lieutenant Minnes was a son of the late Dr. Robert S. Minnes, in his time a well-known Ottawa yre, ear, nose and throat specialist. He attended Ottawa schools and the Royal Military College, Kingston, before proceeding to McGill University, from which he graduated in engineering in 1928. Interested in aviation from his boyhood, he soon joined the Air Force, being attached to headquarters in Ottawa until his appointment to Trenton Air Station as flight lieutenant in September, 1932, he was married to Ann Elizabeth, daughter of Dr. George S. MacTaggart, Ottawa, and is survived by his wife, a son and a daughter, a year old by his mother, two brothers and one sister, Mrs. Elmore Davis, Ottawa.

HER KNEES SWELLED WITH RHEUMATISM

To Go Upstairs Was Agony

There is nothing in which rheumatism is a greater handicap than in doing ordinary household duties —kneeling, stooping, running up and down stairs. How to overcome the handicap of these things and the static aches and pains, is the subject of the following letter:—

"I have been taking Kruschen Salts for three months. When I started, I had rheumatism in both knees. They were very swollen. I could not rise from a chair without assistance, I could not kneel, and to go upstairs was agony. Now I can run upstairs and kneel as much as I like. Since I have taken Kruschen I can work like a horse."—(Mrs.) H. S.

Two of the ingredients of Kruschen Salts are effective solvents of uric acid. Another ingredient of these Salts have a stimulating effect upon the internal organs and assist them to expel the dissolved uric acid from the system.

Fine Weather Boon to Citizens Over Week-End

The weather-man and Old Sol have been very generous to us by virtue of pooling their best winter assets provided the citizens of Belleville and district with one of the most enjoyable week-ends experienced this winter.

Brilliant sunshine streaming out on a cloudless sky, and cold, sparkling frosty weather, brought out the usual Sunday shut-ins in great numbers. Many took to the ice-locked Bay of Quinte with skates and hockey sticks, while others travelled with gliding lovers of the blades to Trenton and through the city, over the frozen surface of the Bay near the County Home by the afternoon. A couple of optimistic anglers taking advantage of ideal conditions, ventured out over deep ice cut holes in the ice, and indulged in a little fishing during the mild, warm sunshine of the afternoon.

Throughout the day a long line of motorists passed through the city.

On the streets a large number of pedestrians enjoyed the crisp and winter air. Young girls, with practically the first real winter weather of the season, blossomed forth in colorful ski suits. Young men, in sweaters and sport clothes, wended their way to their favorite "watering hole". Old Folks warmly wrapped, strolled slowly along the thoroughfares and interesting streets, the cool wind bringing spots of pink to wrinkled cheeks, and a sparkle to otherwise lusterless eyes.

Dog sleds, published amusement to a gathering of spectators on the ice at the Bay. Dog fanciers undertook to decide the canine championship of the Bay of Quinte. Prizes were to be awarded after efforts to keep their feet, on the slippery surface, and a source of much merriment to the onlookers The result was a foregone conclusion as sufficient to "call off" the battle after many strenuous attempts to decide the winner.

Churches of the city report a vastly increased attendance yesterday at both morning and evening services.

1,500 WORKERS

would be resumed here. It is expected no government statement will be forthcoming until Mr. Mitchell confers with Mr. Croll today.

11 Centres Affected

Twenty nine plants in 11 different centres are affected by the strike order. Seven plants will witness the walk-out while men employed in eight fire plants will be in Hanover, three in Wingham, three in Hespeler and Preston area, two in Owen Sound, two in Simcoe, one in Listowel, and one in Stratford.

Frank M. Wright, president of the District Council of the Union, said the workers were unable to agree to Mr. Marsh's request the Union delay the strike until the new conference between manufacturers and Union representatives in Toronto Tuesday. He said plans made for the strike this morning could not be altered.

Union demands are:

1. A 44-hour week with an eight-hour day and fours on Saturday for all employees.

2. Fifty cents an hour for skilled men, 42 cents for semi-skilled and 35 for unskilled. These are minimum rates.

3. Boys under 21 to start at 20 cents an hour and receive an increase of three cents an hour each year; there shall not be more than 20 per cent of boys in the entire factory staff.

4. All the time worked outside of regular hours to be paid for at time and a half.

Want Same System Out

During the Toronto conference manufacturers were reported to have offered 42 cents an hour as a minimum and an average wage of 44 cents an hour covering the entire payroll for the zone including Stratford. A minimum of 31 cents as an average of 37 were offered for the northern zone, including Owen Sound and small centres in that district.

Union officials want the zone system eliminated and refuse to accept an average rate. They demanded the workers be graded as skilled, semi-skilled and unskilled.

It was stated by the union heads that McLaughlin Motors Company in Stratford was the only plant where the strike has been called regarding the code level of wages. The average wage in this firm is slightly above 44 cents an hour, and since the men decided to delay action pending further conferences between workers and employers.

Pop sits there and I knock knock, fumble, pop said. Fumble got black, pop said. I can't see it with a hammer. By golles it's a blessing that that cerse cyred out, pop said, and ma said Well please keep quiet about it. It used to keep pop awake nights, but let it sleep among the bygones.

Knock knock, pop said. Par be it from me to bring back a time when a maniac would grow your cellar. Knock knock, damack. Damack be some fire where there's a fire, pop said. Knock knock, damack. The dog weighed more than 200 pounds.

THE DAY OF THE WELSH

Welshmen the world over, whether at home or in this part of Canada, today celebrate their national day, the anniversary of their patron saint, David. Welshmen are clannish just as some other portions of the British race and they have spread over the earth besides leaving a good portion to represent their land at home.

Wales has a history, associated with its neighbor, England, that naturally which the British race cannot but appreciate, for this little land braved the might of early England in the days of the predecessors of King Edward first, who conquered the Welsh and made his son, who was to become Edward the Second, their first Prince of Wales.

Before the conquest by the first Edward, Wales put up a gallant fight and between them and the Scots, England often had her hands full, warding off these peoples, who have since become so vital a portion of the race to which the Welsh have contributed in a very large measure.

Canadians, at least those living in this district, do not know the Welsh as well as they know the English, the Irish, and the Scotch, but there are Welshmen in these parts who carry on the tradition. Of course they are not so numerous as their great kindred folk, the Scotch and the Irish. One admires the Welsh who come here at times with their choirs and who at home hold their great national festivals. They preserve their old music, their harmonies and their songs and are to be praised for this for while they do so they even enrich that one language which they all speak, English. Their tongue has been spoken for far back in the ages. They received a translation of the Bible in Welsh in 1562 and it is well known how religious the people are. It is said that the Bible in Welsh has been one of the factors keeping the language alive to the present day. It is interesting that the Welsh teach their own tongue in the schools and universities even today.

Wales is a love of country which abides. They love their mountains and their valleys, every spot is enriched with historic interest and legend, which makes them better citizens. They have a proud past and are called upon to make a valuable contribution to the present.

They have had leaders in every walk of life who have brought glory to Great Britain as well as to the portion of that island which has become the greatest force in the world today, Great Britain.

St. David was a native of Wales and of the people, what one might expect from such a source.

By one of the greatest turns of destiny, Great Britain and Ireland are a union of races which are able to offer a peculiar balance to national aspiration and achievement. Wales has had no small part in this.

HIDDEN MINES

On Thursday the British liner Llandovery Castle struck a submerged mine off Cape Queens and it was necessary to land her passengers hurriedly at Port Vendres, in France. This the Spanish conflict, which has already threatened to disrupt western Europe, assumes a new and sinister significance.

All who remember the Great War know that havoc was created as a result of the mine fields which were sown within the danger zone by all belligerents. Special nets were devised for the protection of shipping; mine sweepers patrolled the high seas; vessels were sunk, promiscuously, by mines sown by one side or the other. The trouble with a mine is that it is politically ambiguous. It is difficult for the foreign office of one country to make a diplomatic protest to the foreign office of another country because a ship flying its flag has been sunk by a mine. Who is to say which country put that deadly weapon in the water? Even if the strongest suspicions exist as to the mine's origin, where can definite proof be obtained?

If is obvious, therefore, that if the Spanish conflict continues and both loyalist and insurgent forces spread mine fields over the seas bordering Spain, the ships of neutral countries will have to sail under conditions comparable to those which obtained when the world was officially at war.

It is difficult to see what steps can be taken to avert the development of this situation. It is true that mine layers may be apprehended and their allegiance determined, but mines can be laid without any one discovering what ship is responsible. Furthermore, once the navies of non-belligerent powers start making suspect vessels drive to, the whole vexed question of the right of search comes into acute prominence. Hamilton Times.

LIFE'S TAPESTRY

Its appeal has soothed my heart-throb
Through full years of Life's rich way;
And its subtle, rare perfection
Bursts afresh each care-crest'd day.

Inspiration's gentle fingers,
Touched with Love's exalted dream,
Gathered hues from out the rainbow
And the crescent moon's soft beam.

Blent with thistledown and raindrops—
Fair, alluring, warmly snug—
They Life's tapestry have woven
In my Oriental rug!

PREMIER HEPBURN TOLD THE GOOD ROADS CONVENTION DELEGATES that the leader of the Opposition in Hon. George Henry had spoken two and a half hours in the Legislature, and he, the Premier, took three hours to answer him. Now he was going to reverse the procedure and permit Hon. Mr. Henry three hours to answer him. Needless to say neither legislator took anywhere near the time mentioned to entertain and instruct the Good Roads advocates. To Hon. Leopold Macaulay, who fought a sharp verbal duel with the Premier in the House the day previous, the Premier referred as "My very good friend, Macaulay," and told a story of the Hon. Leopold coming courting on a bicycle to the daughter of the Premier's. The roads were very bad then and the bumping the sulter received when dropped in perspiration and loss of weight, and the neighbor's daughter took pity on him and married him—one case of bad roads proving a blessing to one individual at least. Incidentally the neighbor who lost his daughter was a Liberal. Conservatives gain one, by the way—assuming that Mrs. Macaulay was converted.

HAREEM TO YOU, THE HISTORY OF THE HAREM is embodied in a book just published for N. M. Penzer by Lippincott, New York, in which much of the hooey and mystery surrounding harems are dispelled. Harems are now past tense, having been abolished, officially. "The harem was not a man's paradise but a woman's world, governed with the utmost deliberation and care—not by a man at all, but a woman, the Sultan's mother," explains the author. The Sultan's mother was assisted by the Kislar Agha, the Chief Black Eunuch, the most powerful and consequently the most bribed official in the whole of the Ottoman Empire." The Chief Black Unuch in the harem's boom days (16th. Century) bossed 600 (by black kind, while the Sultan headed 1,200 wonten. One hundred and three children were born to Sultan Murad III, with twenty sons living, which the question of succession rather complicated. The brothers were given three others to death, besides sewing seven expectant mothers up in sacks and throwing them into the sea. That was the last great blood purge of the line. Thereafter possible rivals for the throne were imprisoned and some of these after lapse of many years and the help of death in the succession succeeded to the throne after a lifetime "where they had all but lost the power of speech, and their minds and bodies were like vegetables." With the disappearance of the harem there is no longer any demand for eunuchs, and author Penzer presumes the last of them died in Cairo and found only two or three of these strange beings.

THEY KEEP PA POOR

The greatest thinker of the age (modesty, of course, will not allow us to publish his name) has been inquiring for the thirty-second time:.. "Do the girls of today make good mothers?"

This profound thought—which will certainly make you all sit down and write angry grouse letters to the editor—seems to have no satisfactory answer.

But from my own sad experience, and jangling the twenty cents which is all I have left in my pocket after financing parties, I can tell you one thing without fear of contradiction. The girls of today may or may not make good mothers, but they certainly make poor fathers.

Jungle Shadows

A journey through the jungle country of the Cape York Peninsula, Australia, is a fascinating experience, remarks Ewen K. Pallot-Owen, in The Empire Review for it contains a most amazing variety of plant, bird, animal, reptile and insect life, many forms of which are dangerous to human beings. In the jungle the shadows fall on the eyes like a curtain. High overhead the dense, black, almost impenetrable canopy of treetops, that extend for miles with scarcely a break, shut out the sun, so that one travels in twilight. The trees also shut out all the breeze and in the jungle the air is humid and muggy and filled with the scent of rotting leaves. One's feet sink deep in leaf mould, as if in the pile of a carpet. There is very little undergrowth, for everything in the jungle has one great objective— to reach the light above. Trees stretch upward without a leaf or branch for 70 and 80 feet, festooned with creepers and hanging layer cakes, that hang in loops like great snakes—weird and bizarre in the dim light.

These lawyer canes have long, curved razor-sharp barbs that cut through the stoutest leather like paper, and many a man has gone off the beaten track in these parts has been fatally cut by the barb—often seen by him only by an overhanging barb when blundering through the dim light.

There are some very dangerous trees in the jungle—giant stinging trees, the leaves of which cause a maddening itch when they come in contact with the skin, and rough bushes which are covered with a fine, yellow, poisonous dust. This dust is displaced by the slightest movement of the bush, and when inhaled is very poisonous, causing severe coughing and choking and sometimes temporary blindness.

This jungle is also the home of Australia's largest snakes and some of the largest in the world. One of the carpet snakes upwards of 30 feet long, and mighty pythons, the one hanging head downwards from trees alert for prey. I saw one of these pythons drag its slippery, slimy coils around a huge kangaroo. There was a terrible crunch as the bands tightened, and in less than fifteen minutes the snake had engulfed the animal whole, and then it curled itself up to sleep off the meal. At one prospectors camp in the jungle I found a python that had caught itself in a novel manner. One night the prospector and his dog chained to a sapling outside the tent. In the night something, when he went outside, he was amazed to find the dog missing, and in its place a python. To the serpent the dog was a huge python! The reptile had coiled itself round the dog and with it, of course, the chain, and thus unable to escape. The reptile was killed and it measured 23 feet in length. These pythons could kill a full-grown man with ease by constriction, and there has been at least one tragedy of a child being dragged from a camp and swallowed by a python . . . . .

The boars are the most dangerous animals in Australia, the tortures attain tremendous size. I accompanied a party of natives on a pig hunt, and the "bag" was one of the biggest boars ever killed in Australia, and it weighed approximately 500 pounds; was five feet long and about three feet four inches high at the shoulder. His razor-edged tusks were eight inches long, and his hide was three-quarters of an inch thick. It took fifteen native spears to kill the monster before, when at bay, it charged the hunters, and toward the end he became so infuriated that members of our party had to seek shelter in trees. The pigs live in herds, which sometimes contain as many as 100 of the animals, and the creatures prowl through the jungle chiefly at night.

Animal life of the jungle also includes unique tree-climbing kangaroos, monkey-like opossums, and flying-foxes, while in many of the rivers is found an amazing fish, known as the mudfish or archer-fish—which obtains its food by squirting insects with jets of water. The bird life includes some of the most beautiful birds in the world, and rare orchids and other plants grow in abundance. Resmarkable pitcher plants, which catch insects and small birds in a pitcher at the end of their leaves, are also seen in the swampy country. The Peninula is, indeed, a naturalist's paradise. . . . .

Grizzly Bears

Some things a grizzly bear will do, and some he will not do, are told by Jim Brewster, veteran bear hunter of Revelstoke, the medium of E. H. Eaton, an entertaining writer on the subject in Toronto, says the Winnipeg Evening Tribune.

The main idea of the grizzly when wounded by a bullet, says Brewster, is "to get you." He can't climb a tree, but he will do his dingdest to shake a hunter out of that refuge as a come-back for a shot which does not hit a vital spot. The bear will even dig at the roots of a good big tree in his effort to upset it,

Most eating grizzlies are not very common, according to Brewster. Jim tells of some that are cannibalistic in the matter of black bears, when of the flesh-eating breed. To instance: "I saw a track bear of 400 or 500 pounds feeding in a pass near Banff. Soon I saw another object moving. It was a grizzly bear, creeping up on the black bear. This was a meat-eater and weighed 900 pounds. He rushed from the stump of brush, seized the black bear by the neck and killed him by one mighty blow on the head. Then he dragged him away to the bushes. I saw a fine chance to get two skins at one coup, moved up with in range and killed the grizzly with one shot. He had already eaten pounds of flesh from the black bear's neck."

It is stated that the idea a grizzly will attack a man at sight is all wrong. If the grizzly is not wounded, he will run away. But when wounded he flies into an awful rage and even commits harikari. If shot in the stomach he will tear at the wound with his claws.

Prodigious Strength.

"His strength is well-nigh incredible. He knocks big rocks around and uproots small trees. His big forearm is like a man's, but so tough that when you are skinning him you cannot stick your knife into it. I have seen a grizzly in search of grubs turn over with one paw a big rock or log that several men could move only with difficulty. I have seen grizzly claws eleven or twelve inches long," said Brewster.

Having killed over fifty grizzlies, Brewster denies that they stand up when they charge. They come on all fours. Nor is the rush confined to going down hill. "Old Ursus Horribilis charges down hill, up hill and on the level—any old way when he is hurt. And that's the time you want to be somewhere else."

Gus Cook, an Illinois hunter, according to Mr. Eaton, when hunted in British Columbia, by grizzlies, was charged by a wounded 900-pounder, and stopped it with his fifth shot when it was only ten feet distant. It was coming at him on all fours.

One of his guides was not so fortunate. He tried to kill a big one with a gun which he mistakenly thought was loaded. The grizzly knocked him down, lacerated both arms and his face and desisted only when the guide fainted and the bear thought, apparently, that he was dead and harmless.

Fred Marsell, hunter, of Vancouver, says he shot a grizzly that measured 11 feet, 2 inches from tip to tip, and weighed about 1,500 pounds. A stream had dried up, saving some dead salmon in the channel and the big grizzly was doing scavenger work when he shot it.

Trailing a grizzly in Paradise Valley, Brewster's scent was detected. The bear hid, and "jumped" him. He dropped his rifle after a couple of shots and took to a tree. At the height of six feet the grizzly reared on end and gashed his thigh. He drove Brewster up the tree all night, but finally got disgusted, and probably not feeling any too good as a result of the shots, went away.

But Mary—and her mother—are wise. They're going to cut shopping time in half. Already Mary has started to study advertisements in the newspaper. She's finding out who sells what—and for how much. She's making up her mind which are the most important items—and which can wait until after the wedding. She's learning brand names, new and old . . . following trends in furnishings and fashions.

In short, Mary is developing a real knowledge of buying.

Learn to read the advertisements in this newspaper. Year-in, year-out, you'll find that they simplify your shopping . . . make your dollars go farther . . . give you better values and greater satisfaction with all your purchases.

ALBERTA MAY SET UP TRADE BUREAU

Would Give Govt. a Monopoly of Import and Export Business

Edmonton, Feb. 27 (CP)—Legislation to establish an import-export bureau to handle the farm products of Alberta will be introduced at the present session of the legislature, it was learned today, in circles close to the Aberhart government.

The bureau would be a pivotal point in a Social Credit system for Alberta and eventually might reach the point where it had practically a monopoly on the import and export business of the province.

It appeared unlikely the bureau would begin to function until the wheat crop of Alberta started to move to world markets next August or September. It might also mean that Social Credit dividends would be delayed long.

The government plan for the bureau, it was reported, consisted of voluntary co-operation by Alberta farmers. In a general way this is the way the bureau would work: a farmer would agree to sell his wheat to the bureau, being paid in Alberta credit at a fixed price higher than the Winnipeg quotation. The bureau would sell the wheat for Canadian money, depositing the cash in the provincial treasury. The cash so would be used to buy goods not made in Alberta, retailers and wholesalers placing their orders with the bureau and selling them only for Alberta credit, not Canadian currency.

It was expected the government would establish a retail price discount by which in conjunction with dividends and the import-export bureau, if that were done, in the end, said only in Alberta, credit could be exchanged at retail stores for goods or imported goods at a discount which perhaps would be ten per cent. to start. The discount would be designed for two purposes—to protect against inflation and to act as a stimulant to circulation of Alberta credit.

Quinte Skating Club Program Delights Tweed Audience

Excellent Performance Given by Thirty Club Members

Tweed—A fine exhibition of figure skating was given on Friday night at the local arena by thirty members of the Quinte Skating Club of Belleville. Those who were privileged to witness the clever members were loud in their praises of the excellence of the programme. The members of the club, training under particularly difficult conditions this year on an open air rink, have reached a degree of excellence which does them credit. The crowd was not slow to recognise and appreciate this fact as was evident from the applause which greeted every number.

The junior members of the Club, who visited Tweed two years ago, have shown marked improvement since that time. Of these Elmer Finnegan, a nephew of Mrs. Hubert Wagar, a former resident of Tweed, instantly captivated the audience with the finish with which he executed his solo numbers. Mr. Gordon Davies and his sister Miss Olivia Davies, two senior members were splendid in their solo and double numbers and all other performers acquitted themselves most creditably. The beautiful costumes of the lady members of the club and their graceful movements were very much admired.

Tweed- Sulphide Band under the direction of Mr. Walter E. Dow provided the music for the entire performance with Mr. J. O'Connor as Master of Ceremonies and they contributed in no small measure to the success of the performance.

The following members of the Quinte Skating Club took part in the programme:

Ladies—Miss Olivia Davies, Mrs. Georgina Smith, Mrs. Stanley Wilson, Mrs. Ruth Smith, Mrs. Judy Scott, Miss Barbara Leslie, Miss Ardel Smith, Miss Georgina Scott, Miss Evelyn Licence, Miss Dorothy Licence, Miss Evelyn Jones and Miss Margaret Hodges, and Miss Gladys Meens.

Mr. Jack Finnegan, president, accompanied the Club to Tweed.

The following is the programme of the evening: 1—Club Selection—Elmer Finnigan. 2—Club Trio—Military Drill. 3—Tango—Comic Waltz. 4—Lancers—Solo—Miss Clare Ridley. 7—Waltz, Club. 8—Senior Doubles — Gordon Davies, Olivia Davies.

Quinte Skating Club will certainly receive a royal welcome when they return to Tweed on some future occasion.

Dr. J. A. Thompson was elected as chairman of the High School Board at the regular meeting held on Tuesday evening. The other officers for the year are: Chairman, Pells Sage; Secretary-Treasurer, D. H. Morrison; Finance Committee—T. E. Sealey, J. A. Thompson, Jas. Fyke; Property Committee—Paul Rashotte, W. E. Bryan; Out of Town Students' Management Committee—F. LeSage, W. L. Ketchabaw, C. N. Beatty.

Several items of business were dealt with. The question of removing the grant given Mrs. Denyes' students to another point was discussed at length and it was decided that as it did not add to the appearance of the grounds, to remove it to a point further distant from the school would be advisable. The question of the new school grant was also considered. Surface water runs into the well at certain times of the year and renders the water unfit for drinking. The necessary improvements will be effected at a later date.

Mr. James' W. A. met on Thursday at the home of Mrs. (Dr.) W. H. Hall. The meeting was presided over by Mrs. M. Wallace, who opened with a Scripture reading and prayer. A letter from the Matron of Elkhorn School giving interesting news of a little Indian student was read by the Secretary, Mrs. J. J. Luffman and a paper entitled "What Missionary Work Means to a Christian". An interesting paper on Missions was read by Mrs. A. Baker. A chapter of the study book was discussed by Mrs. Wallace. At the conclusion of the meeting a delicious lunch was served by the ladies, who moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Paul for her kindness.

Two of Tweed's most prominent and highly respected residents in the persons of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Rollins celebrated their fortieth wedding anniversary on Wednesday, February 24th. They have resided in Tweed since their marriage. Three children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Rollins, two girls, who died in their early teens and a son, Reuben, now a chemist with an important paint firm in Montreal.

Mr. Rollins lived in Tweed for several years prior to his marriage in 1897 and engaged in the bakery business until a few years ago when he sold his business and opened a flour and feed shop. He has always been deeply interested in the affairs of Tweed village and served in a number of public offices. He was a member of the village council for nineteen years, four as councillor and fifteen as Reeve, during which time he was honoured by his fellow members of the County Council who elected him as Warden. For six years Mr. Rollins served on the School Board.

Mr. and Mrs. Rollins are members of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, where the former has been one of the elders for a long period of years. Mrs. Rollins is a member of various women's organizations of the church and has served as president of the W.M.S. and the W.A.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Rollins join in congratulating them on this happy occasion and in wishing them added years of health and happiness.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH VERDICT OF JURY

William Collins, Transient, Run Over by Train on C.N.R. Property

"That William Collins came to his death on the 20th day of February, 1937, at the Canadian National Railway station, in the City of Belleville, from injuries received from being run over by passenger train No. 4 at Belleville at 4.05 p.m." was the verdict rendered by the jury empanelled to enquire into the death of William Collins, a transient, whose terribly mangled body was found by railroad officials lying near the tracks on Saturday last.

Sergeant Arthur Harman, who conducted the inquest in lieu of Crown Attorney H. C. Deroan, who was conducting a similar affair in Trenton, stated to Chief Coroner Dr. F. G. Wallbridge, that identification had been established through the co-operation of the finger-print department of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police at Ottawa. Finger-prints of the dead man taken here and forwarded to Ottawa had proven that the deceased was one William Cowan, who had given his birthplace as Ottawa, and who possessed a lengthy police record.

C. D. Ferguson, flagman on the train, and A. Munroe, C.N.R. inspector testified to finding the mangled remains approximately four hundred feet west of the railway station. Munro stated that he saw men riding between the engine tender and the first coach as the train passed him, and also noted three men leave the train after it had stopped.

Thomas Crosier, engineer, and Thomas Hall, conductor of the train, testified that they had seen no men riding on the train at any time, nor did they see any leave the train after it had stopped in Belleville.

Sergeant Harman stated to the jury that three transients who claimed they had ridden on the tender of the train, had been brought in to headquarters. The men had stated that they had seen two men leave the train after it had stopped, and disappear in a westerly direction. They had lost touch with Kingston and Napanee in an effort to locate the men, but with no results to date.

After a few minutes' deliberation the jury returned a unanimous verdict as before stated.

Mr. A. D. Lamorey, of the legal department of the Canadian National Railway Toronto, represented the railway company.

The coroner's jury empanelled by Sergeant Harman was composed of W. A. Woodley, foreman; W. Sherry, Chas. Corbett, Wm. M. Spafford, Chas. Walters, W. Harden and L. Purdon.

These Homes Depend on Each Other

TAKE a row of homes in any street — your own, for instance. You chat across the hedge about roses or tomatoes, but it probably doesn't occur to you that each of your neighbors helps to pay your rent or taxes, and to buy the food, furniture, clothing and other things that make life worth living.

The man next door may work in an automobile plant. On the other side of you live men employed in paint and rubber factories. Across the street are a baker, a railwayman, the foreman of a textile mill, a steel plant superintendent, a shoe salesman and a theatre employee.

What affects one, affects all. Should the automobile plant shut down or curtail production, the steel, rubber, paint, glass, textile and numerous other industries would suffer, too. The railways will have less freight to haul. Stores, restaurants, theatres will feel the pinch. There will be less money in circulation.

A thriving automotive industry is therefore vital to the welfare of all. The security of any one man's job depends not only on the industry of which he is a part, but on the prosperity. of industry as a whole.

We Again Remind You

. . . that the automotive industry not only in itself is an important unit in the business life of Canada, but that the manufacturing of cars and trucks entails the purchase of finished and raw materials from other industries. Anything that would retard orders from automobile manufacturers would seriously affect many other important company payrolls.

A FEW FACTS
By Science Service

As rare as a thunderstorm in winter! This is quite true over the land but not over the ocean. As a matter of fact, thunderstorms are more frequent over the ocean in wintertime than at any other season. A necessary condition for a thunderstorm may occur any time during the summer, a week or a month of drought, and so on. What is the cause? These diversities are no doubt due to the persistent variations in the general circulation of the atmosphere. For example during one period our storms may come in from the extreme northwest, and at another time from the Hudson Bay region. This would make the major difference for the different parts of the country. But what is the ultimate cause? No one knows—yet.

• London, Ont., March 1 (CP)—Complaints are made by the Bell Telephone Company that before in the past few months bullet holes have been shot through long distance wire cables. The holes allow seepage of water through the broken insulation and disrupt service.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE CAPITOL

"Second Wife" and "Back to Nature"

Dealing in a sympathetic and realistic fashion with the problems involved in a widower's second venture into matrimony, "Second Wife" starring Pauline Frederick at the Capitol Monday, is a grand double feature bill until Tuesday nite.

Gertrude Michael, in the title role, gives a flawless performance in a part that calls for extraordinarily delicate handling, and Walter Abel, who shares leading honors with her, matches her work with a brilliant portrayal of the lawyer-husband about whose actions most of the drama revolves.

Miss Michael's marriage to the widowed Abel is made against the pleas of her ex-convict admirer, Eric Rhodes, who gives a finely sketched characterization of the "other man." Feeling that his new bride will be less embarrassed if his twelve-year-old son is out of the way for the first few months, Abel puts the boy in a farm in Switzerland, but later Miss Michael, who is once to again a happy wife, sends for him and decides to send for him.

Just at this interrupted where word is received that the boy is dangerously ill. Torn between his desire to hasten to the lad's bedside and his concern for his wife's impending maternal ordeal, Abel is forced to a decision which shifts the dramatic interest of the story into high, and from this point the emotional conflict becomes frequent and gripping.

Added Attraction

Merrily rolling along on a vacation on wheels, the happy-scraggy Bohlin family find the wide open spaces with fun and hilarity in "Back to Nature," second best—all "Back to Nature," seen as bit No. 2.

Featuring Dorothy, Shirley Deane, Dixie Dunbar, Tony Martin, Spring Byington, Kenneth Howell, Irving Bacon and Charles Sellon, Florence Roberts and Billy Mahan, the picture is a hilarious narrative of the Jones' vacation—which they take in the open road in an automobile trailer.

The film opens with Dad Jones beamingly announcing to his family that he is going to Tranquil Lake while they spend their vacation at a backwoods farm. At the concerted roar of protest which greets this announcement Dad gives in weakly and agrees to buy a new automobile trailer and take the family along to the convention.

Their adventures in just one hilarious mixup after another to make a brilliant portrayal of two comedies seen here in some time.

Deanna Durbin

Millions have heard the glorious soprano voice of Deanna Durbin singing in Eddie Cantor's radio show. Now everybody in this city can see how beautiful she is—on the movies and hear her golden tones at the same time.

Dainty Miss Durbin has been selected by the screen in "Three Smart Girls," which begins its 4-day run at the Capitol theatre on Wednesday.

Possessing a lyric soprano voice that electrified all who hear it, little Miss Durbin makes her movie debut as one of three young comedy dramas ever to come out of Hollywood.

It deals with the madcap adventures of three lovely daughters of an New York millionaire, who join in a conspiracy to break up their father's romance with a fortune-hunting beauty.

The leads played by Binnie Barnes and her scheming mother are portrayed by Alice Brady, put up a spirited fight for their matrimonial prize, but are outwitted by the three girls and their father's manager, as the millionaire, Ray Milland, Mischa Auer are prominently cast.

You will be enchanted by the music, thrilled by the romance and convulsed by the humor of "Three Smart Girls" when it is at the Capitol theatre starting Wednesday.

HARVARD PROUD OF ITS RECORD

Finish Second to McGill by Defeating Princeton 7-6

(By The Canadian Press)

Though they didn't win the championship Harvard University can be proud of its record in its first season of the International Intercollegiate Hockey League.

The Crimson, rated fourth in the pre-season books, have assured themselves of second place behind the championship McGill squad at Montreal The John Harvards piled up a great record lasting only one of its nine games, a 7-6 win over McGill in a game, that decided the title.

Harvard ran up its 32nd victory in 33 starts by trouncing the cellar-ly Yale Bulldogs 8-5 in a scheduled college clash at New Haven. They were easily the better of the Blues, holders of second-last place with Dartmouth. Indians who scored their second victory of the season, 7-6, over Princeton Tigers.

Playing before the home fans, Buddy Powers won the game for the Indians with a last minute goal. Earlier Foster had brought Dartmouth from behind to a 5-5 tie.

Only two games remain on the Yale schedule with both being games however, on Princeton's and Harvard's home ice.

O. S. D. MIDGETS GROUP TITLISTS

Defeat St. Michael's Squad in Sudden-Death Game by 5-2

The "half-pint" pucksters of the Ontario School for the Deaf added more laurels to the imposing array they have already won by defeating the school when they annexed the championship of the Midget O.H.A. series in a sudden death game by defeating St. Michael's Academy midgets in a sudden death game by a 5-2 score.

The O.S.D. midgets played a consistent brand of hockey throughout the game and clinched victory by virtue of sustained attacks and an outstanding defence. The game was evenly contested during the first period with each squad dentting the twine for single markers. In the second chukker the O.S.D. boys forged ahead when they notched a brace of goals with their back-checking and defence tactics holding the diminutive St. Mikes scoreless.

Two goals in the final period put the game and the title in the bag for the winners with St. Mikes retaliating with a single goal. The losers fought gamely but were outplayed by the smart aggregation from the O.S.D.

The teams:
O.S.D.—Goal, May; defence, Robertson and Smith; centre, Mericki; wings, Ort and Donovan; subs, Hood, Best, Bosinari, Rogers, Moore and McLaughlin.

St. Michael's: Goal, Donovan; defence, Pleis and Hunter; centre, Powers; wings, Burkitt and Healy; subs, R. Pleis, B. Donovan and Connors.

Referee: D. Blackburn.

HOCKEY GAMES TUESDAY

DYNAMITERS WIN HOCKEY TOURNEY WITHOUT A LOSS

Defeat Switzerland 2-1 in Overtime on Saturday Night

ENGLAND SECOND

"Puffy" Kemp And "Red" Gable Marksmen For Winners

London, March 1 (CP)—Kimberly Dynamiters added another trophy to the Allan Cup they won a year ago.

They took the world's amateur hockey championship on Saturday night by defeating Switzerland 3-1 in overtime, the closest Kimberley came to defeat in the series.

Previously the Dynamiters had not been threatened as they rang up eight victories six of them shutouts. Kenny Campbell's shot-out record included the strong England team that was defending the honors won by England at the Olympic games last winter.

Canada defeated Germany 5-0 Saturday to take the runner-up position in the tournament, that started with 11 nations represented and ended with Canada, England, Switzerland and Germany as the final round where each played the other once.

Bill Burnett and the other defencemen stood out as the Canadians fought off the stubborn Switzerland attack.

Goble Scores Winning Goal

"Puffy" Kemp of Canada ahead in the second period and H. Lohrer equalized within a few minutes of the end, then with the crowd of everything else Alberta Hirs of high-scoring Canadians threw at him.

Goalie George "Red" Goble broke through for the winning goal in the clamorous finish of the crowd of 10,000 at Harringay stadium, who booed for a draw verdict. They would have put Canada, England and Switzerland in a three-way tie for first place.

Canada scored 40 goals in the tournament, 5 more than did the Canadian-trained boys wearing England's colors.

Definitely, the Canadians let in two goals, while Jimmy Foster was beaten but three times for England's nets. But the goals on Foster were also scored by the vital Canada-England game Friday, the only meeting of the Empire teams in the tournament.

Ralph Hedding took high scoring honors for Kimberley with 12. Kemp followed with 7, Botterill and Jack Forsey, eight each.

Third Period Free-for-All Climaxes Evening of Bumping, Butt - Ending and Roughness

Toronto Defeats Maroons 3-2 to Draw Nearer to Second Slot

CANADIENS SMART

Defeat Amerks in Overtime After Draw With Rangers

By A. E. FULFORD

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Overtaking the National Hockey League will please stand in a body and take a bow. The old boys certainly deserve it. For to-night is a means of keeping teams sure of a playoff place fighting in the schedule's stretch drive.

In other years there always was a bit of sailing. Teams that were sure of making a second or third spot sometimes weren't very particular which it was and they played that way for the last three games on the schedule. Inevitably, for a financial premium has been put on finishing second and there's no-one-play-ing game.

Montreal Maroons and Toronto Maple Leafs demonstrated, that Saturday night, that they stood one of the toughest, fastest and most exciting games of hockey the Maple Leaf Gardens has sheltered. It had everything, that a playoff struggle should have, plus a bit of careless hockey, often lacking in the money games.

Toronto won the contest 3-2 after a third period free-for-all had climaxed an evening of bumping, butt-ending and general roughness, that had the players on edge and the 13,221 spectators on their feet most of the time.

Maple Leafs moved within a point of the second-place Maroons with the victory. The fact they are fighting for second place only was accentuated, when Montreal Canadiens defeated New York Americans 3-2 in Montreal Saturday and played a scoreless tie last night with Red Wings in Detroit. Canadiens went 11 points ahead of Maroons and nothing but a bad slump can prevent them from finishing first.

Hawks Hanging on

The fourth point of the week-end might have robbed Chicago Black Hawks of even their mathematical chance of second place in playoffs. But the Hawks held on to it with a 2-2 draw with New York Rangers in Chicago last night. One minute Rangers score one more than Hawks and nothing but a bad slump can prevent them from finishing first.

Harvey Jackson was the scoring star of the game at Toronto. The teams played through a scoreless first session and when Bob Gracie opened the middle period, Jackson rapped in two goals in 10 seconds. Frankie Finnigan batted in his first goal of the season and duplicated the same period to make Toronto look safe enough.

But Jerry Shannon blasted a counter past Turk Broda and that signalled the start of a Maroon attack, that kept up for the rest of the game. Pete Cain got another counter but stocky Broda stopped two kept Maroons from tying the count. The battle royal broke out in the third. It was a minor mix-up in which Investing Red Horner, Leaf defenceman, and Cecil Matter of Maroons. But on his way to the penalty bench Horner argued with Lionel Conacher. In a second Conacher Charlie Conacher of the Leafs was in it as a bumping peacemaker and that set off the spark.

Players mauled from both benches to join the fight and there was much swinging of fists and wrestling for arm and shoulder holds. No one was hurt, however, and most of the scrapping was done with the heavy gloves on. Shannon, Conacher brothers and Bob Davidson of Leafs all drew major penalties.

Syl Apps, Leafs' rookie centre, assisted Jackson on both his goals and moved up to within a point of Larry Aurie of Detroit, league's leading scorer.

Canadiens Win And Draw

Paul Haynes starred in the American-Canadien contest. Montreal scoring both the Habitants goals and assisting in the third—the winning overtime counter notched by Johnny Gagnon. Canadiens were never down in their game with Rangers. Louis Trudel and Earl Seibert gave them a two-goal lead in the first period and when Alex Shibicky and Frank Boucher reversed things in the second Trudel put Hawks out in front again. Wilder Larochelle scored the fourth Hawk goal in the third and Odi Heller made it close for Rangers.

More than 14,000 fans saw Canadiens and Detroit stage their N. H. L. championship series pre-view at Detroit. Alright defensive play and great play by goalies Cude for Canadiens, and Union Dolin for Detroit, prevented any score despite some great offensive play.

PEDEN BROTHERS REALIZE AMBITION

Victoria, B. C. Pair Team in Six-Day Contest at New York

(By Canadian Press)

New York, March 1 (CP)—Four Peden legs were unlimbered on Madison Square Garden's pine second-today, where previously the New York bike fans saw only two, as the Peden Brothers, of Victoria, B.C. teamed up with his younger brother Doug Peden of Manhattan's first six-day whirl of the year.

Golaham's first appearance of the new Canadian combination meant the realization of an ambition William's Victoria boy, a dream throughout his six-day bike career that had led the players on edge and the 13,221 spectators on their feet most of the time.

Maple Leafs moved within a point of the second-place Maroons with the victory. The fact they are fighting for second place only was accentuated, when Montreal Canadiens defeated New York Americans 3-2 in Montreal Saturday and played a scoreless tie last night with Red Wings in Detroit. Canadiens went 11 points ahead of Maroons and nothing but a bad slump can prevent them from finishing first.

Together for the sixth time, the Peden brothers team already has one big-time victory to its credit, the recent Buffalo race, and should the Victoria pair (to the amateurs) it's been a lengthy period of training for both but now that we're together, boy, if we can only win."

If the favored Pedens win, victory will mean $1,000 in addition to tie the record mark of Pete Van Kempen the Dutch blaster.

FORWARD PASSES GET PROTECTION

C. R. U. Also Changes The Rule on Interference

Toronto, March 1 (CP)—Widespread fear of injuries from charging interference on the line may move zone football rule of 1936 brought a revised regulation into the code to-day for 1937. It was chief among amendments approved by the Canadian Rugby Union Rules Commission Saturday.

Under the single-zone rule, backs could charge up and run interference three yards in advance of the scrimmage line. Eastern senior coaches and officials thought it so conducive to injuries that in two of the East's senior leagues, the Intercollegiate and Big Four, made the use of it.

Sarnia Imperials of the Ontario Union won the 1936 Canadian title by effective use of interference and it was highly popular in the West. But immediately the rule was altered.

Under the new regulation players stationed on the line may move back after the ball is snapped and engage in interference. Thus a play directed into the line will be slowed down but rules committee members feared these linesmen could be used to run interference at the ends.

Also they will be permitted for the first time to block for a forward passer. They may move out of the section from backed-up linesmen, providing they are eligible receivers to go downfield. Fewer incompleted passes will be the result, it is expected.

Only other major rules change was reduction of the penalty against defending teams for offside from 10 yards to five.

The C.R.U. annual meeting accepted application for affiliation from the British Columbia Rugby Football Union and the Western Intercollegiate Union, both formerly affiliated with the Western Canada Rugby Football Union.

By affiliating directly with the C.R.U., they gave the West the same number of unions as the East.

RAMBLERS FIND GOING TOUGH

Springfield Indians Make Strong Bid For Top Position

(By The Canadian Press)

Philadelphia Ramblers, generally considered the cream of the crop in minor hockey circles, may find the going tough before the season ends in tying in the International-American League Eastern Division' lead. Springfield's fighting Indians are on the warpath and now only seven points separate the clubs.

The Indians swamped the last at t'e week-end was the highlight of four games completed. They crushed the powerful Ramblers 2-1 before 8,000 excited Springfield fans Saturday night and rallied in New Haven Sunday night to edge out the struggling Eagles 6-5.

Four points added to Indians' total looked good to Springfield supporters, who considered the Ramblers unbeatable. Defeats here might play an important part in the stretch drive for the playoffs. Ramblers have three games in hand on Ramblers, who have already the jump on most of their recent performances.

Their position practically hopeless as far as cutting a slice in the playoff melon, Providence Reds were idle Saturday night. They thumped Providence Reds 3-2, at one time with a two-goal advantage. Both Reds' goals came in the last period, one on the sticks of, Alex Motter and left Berger.

Reds' week-end was not a failure, however, for they looked smart in downing the Eagles 6-5 after they spanked Syracuse Stars, Western Division leaders, 3-1 on their own counter between Chuck Shannon of Reds and Ken Doraty of Stars, in the end period spiced up proceedings. Art Lesieur, Providence defenceman, drew the pot a misconduct penalty for his trouble.

Curling Title Of Dominion Is at Stake

Toronto, March 1 (CP)—Ten curling sheps, the cream of Ontario's 1937 crop of "ice men" Stone dipped into a hat today for the honor of representing Ontario in perfect shoot of ice the 11th annual Dominion championship.

The Macdonald's Brier Tankard was at stake as rink leaders, each a past champion, or runner-up, gathered to select the two who will meet in the first game of the week's schedule. The game will be played today. The grind will really get under way tomorrow with games in the morning, afternoon and evening.

Jimmy Welsh of Winnipeg Deer Lodge, 27-year-old skip of a rink made up of youngsters, will be the defending title holder. Manitoba has held sent times. The youthful quartet is favored to turn out one of the curling veterans as Vancouver's Percy Walker, Toronto's Ernie Edmonton and Judge Charles Barry of Fredericton.

Mayor Gives Welcome

Mayor W. D. Robbins of Toronto and other civic dignitaries were on hand when the first rock was thrown in the 1937 title meet. The Brier trustees were there too, the Macdonald Brier Tankard trophy for the second time, will be truly representative of Canadian Curling supremacy.

First played for in 1927, the Brier has been the big event through all the Dominion title. Nova Scotia won it that year from a Manitoba rink skipped by Sandy Ross. From 1928 to 1933 Manitoba won it with regularity. Alberta's representatives took it to the foothills province.

Back in Manitoba in 1934, the Tankard went to Ontario in 1935, the year the famed Campbell brothers of Owen Sound, Ont., beat opponents. Ken Watson of Winnipeg Strathcona won it last year in a hard-fought contest. British Canada competition in the recent Dominion bonspiel in an early round.

Other entries in the '37 bonspiel are: Prince Edward Island, Skip Bowles; W. O. Roy, Quebec, Art Belcher, Prince Edward Island; Ernest Hamilton, Ontario; Ernest Smith, Northern Ontario and Frank Smith, Saskatchewan.

Yesterday's Stars

Paul Haynes, Canadiens, who brought the Habitants from behind to win from third-period rally and started the winning play that beat Americans 3-2.

Lorne Smith, Detroit, and Will Cude, Canadiens, whose brilliant goaling was the feature of last night's scoreless draw between the sectional leaders.

Harvey Jackson, Toronto, who scored two goals in Leafs won a 3-2 decision from Montreal Maroons.

Louis Trudel, Canadiens, whose goals enabled Black Hawks defeat Rangers 4-3 and retain a slim hope of making a playoff berth.

When the R.C.A.F. "Flyers" skate out on the ice in Point Edward tonight they may be minus the services of Captain Dan Cowley, who sustained a torn ligament in his ankle in collision with the goal post in Cananoque the other night. Dan was on crutches, when he boarded the special C.N.R. gas man coach with his team mates early this morning. Point Edward will know for sure by noon of their recent performances.

Their position practically hopeless as far as cutting a slice in the playoff melon, Providence Reds were idle Saturday night. They thumped Providence Reds 3-2, at one time with a two-goal advantage. Both Reds' goals came in the last period, one on the sticks of, Alex Motter and left Berger.

Reds' week-end was not a failure, however, for they looked smart in downing the Eagles 6-5 after they spanked Syracuse Stars, Western Division leaders, 3-1 on their own counter between Chuck Shannon of Reds and Ken Doraty of Stars, in the end period spiced up proceedings. Art Lesieur, Providence defenceman, drew the pot a misconduct penalty for his trouble.

Information relayed from Western Ontario interview as the "Point" boys are counting heavily on their keeper in Claude Harris, former Toronto Marlboro goalie and star football player for the Sarnia Imperials. "Beat Harris and you'll have no trouble with the "Flyers" was the information we received from Alan Ross, sports editor of the Brantford Expositor, who was on to say the Point Edward team was an exceptionally hard team to beat. Hard-hitting defence of Johnnie Manore and "Cord" Paterson, ex-Imperial grid star. Their first-string line is composed of Tommy Prudeom, Roger Clute, Bert Mannion, centre ice star and Gable" Manning. They play their home games in a big four barn of a rink at Point Edward, miles away from any signs of civilization.

"Twenty one years later"—it was exactly 21 years ago this month that Intermediate O.H.A. teams playing at Belleville and Sarnia met in the provincial finals (We'll skip the ultimate result) and it was not. Since then Belleville advanced once to the provincial finals, in 1931 when they lost out in the senior series. What we are getting at, however, is a suggestion to invite all present members of the former 1916 Belleville finalists to Wednesday night's game. There was Shrimp" Conley of Stirling in goal, Bill Sinclair was stationed at the point, Art Belcher, Ernie Ostaric; Emett Smith, Northern Ontario and Frank Smith, Saskatchewan out at defence, Dunc Campbell, Brilliant Gobs enabled Black Hawks defeat Rangers 4-3 and retain a slim hope of making a playoff berth.

Manager Eddie Thomas is taking his players out for a stiff workout tonight in preparation for their opening second round game with the Red Wings at the Arena Wednesday night. Belleville fans are really getting enthusiastic over their team and with the intermediate "A" final likely to be all over Wednesday night the players can continue to satisfy their hockey craving by getting in behind the Redmen. Belleville's own city team, and boosting them on their journey and quest of higher hockey honors. The Red Wings rubbed the Redmen out after a hectic four game series last year and the locals have "Revenge" as pets hope to keep Whitby's lead down to the minimum and polish off right here in Belleville on Friday night. The Red Wings are expected to be as tough as they were last year, but so are the Redmen, so it looks like a "dog fight" especially with "Wyn" Hurst in the nets for Whitby.

Enjoying a one goal lead the Napanee Collegiate senior Intermediate pucksters move into the Belleville Arena for what will undoubtedly be the final game in the Bay of Quinte interscholastic hockey group. On paper and taking into consideration the season's play Lester Shiels' kidlets should take Walt Geerow's charges almost in their stride, although the Napanee kids won 2 to 1 at home on Friday night. The winner coming out of tonight's game advances to the C.O.D.B.A. final play-offs at London, where the B.C.I. were booed out by Glebe Institute by the odd goal in three after a two all game. Coincidentially the score of tonight's intermediate final will be announced inside of the Arena for the benefit of the patrons only tonight.

Hither and Yon—Toronto Maple Leafs are starting to click and by their win Saturday night pulled within one point of the Maroons, second place team. It was a lively affair with four majors banded out and the Conacher brothers right in the midst of the battling. —The Canadian Rugby Union changed the rules at their meeting Saturday, giving more protection to the forward passer and cutting down the interference. The last mentioned change will be for the best and stop possible permanent injury.—Rosemont from the Montreal suburbs won a scoreless decision in the Senta Anita $100,000 handicap. He was the odd man out in the race. Smoothcraft was beaten only a whisker with Jockey Richards getting over credit. Somebody simply lifted the wire across the line.—Jimmy Welsh looks to have the curling title of the Dominion sewed up before a stone is thrown in the MacDonald Brier competition.—The Winnipeg curlers are tough hombres with the Bowes and slasher.—The Flying Habitants have the edge on the Detroit Red Wings, Adams' team having taken the measure of them this season. And they meet in the playoffs.

Manager Says No Steps Taken To Sell Royal EP Ranch

Oil Lease Regulation on Property is Changed

NEAR OIL FIELD

By J. F. SANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Edmonton, Feb. 27 (CP) — Alber-ta may have a second rancher, the Duke of Windsor who bought a 3640 acre ranch at High River in 1919 on his first trip in Canada, and has made the "E.P." branch famous at stock shows all over the continent.

The Aberhart government passed an order-in-council yesterday affecting oil leases on the E.P. ranch which, in part, read as follows:

"Whereas negotiations have been made to the Department of Lands and Mines that His Royal Highness the Duke of Windsor, formerly the Prince of Wales, contemplates the posting of his ranch. . . ."

Dwight Dale, A. L. Cirtyle, manager of the ranch, announced at his Calgary home no definite steps had been taken to sell the ranch and that the Duke of Windsor had no personal knowledge of the changes in oil regulations affecting his range lands.

"The change was sought just in case a sale is arranged in the future," Cirtyle said. "It was just a protection clause to keep the people free from the evils of development rush."

When the duke originally bought the ranch he was given a 99-year lease on it and the agreement with the stipulation it could not be sold with the property. The order-in-council passed yesterday rescinded the government not to sell the oil rights within ten years of disposal of the ranch by the duke, providing it was continued as a stock ranch.

The E.P. ranch was part of the old King Ranch. Records show the early cattle days in southern Alberta. It is 18 miles from the Turner Valley oil fields and many geologists suspect it covers the main pool.

The Duke of Windsor refused to permit oil drilling on his property.

HEAPS OF METAL TURN TO WEALTH

Ancient Wrecks Now Headed For Busy Furnaces Far Away

"Miners wanted"

"Wages 30 to 60¢ per day."

The above sign might have hung from the door of a mining office in the north country. Its appeal might have been directed to hard-chested hard rock men with the experience of digging for gold in the earth's sub-surface.

Neither hard rock men or men with brawn were needed. The kind of wealth that was to be found under the surface of Ontario's glad fields, but in huge garbage dumps where unemployed of the city have during the past few years been literally making the promised wages of from 30 to $50 per day at the simple, but nevertheless hard task of digging out ancient car bodies from the tin and debris encrusted depths.

For years past the memory of younger residents of the city hulks of battered and stripped cars have been dragged to the city dumps, their bones of wood and iron buried beneath the loads of successive garbage dumpings. Annually they have been piled one on top of the other, left to rust and decay. But metal decays slowly. Rust might form, but even rusted metal is acceptable to the dawn of glowing furnaces in faraway Japan, or the nearer steel mills at Hamilton and the east where metal scrap, whose production, even locally has come to mean literally making the promised wages of from 30 to $50 per day at the simple, but nevertheless hard task of digging out ancient car bodies from the tin and debris encrusted depths.

Annually they have been piled one on top of the other, left to rust and decay. But metal decays slowly. Rust might form, but even rusted metal is acceptable to the dawn of glowing furnaces in faraway Japan, or the nearer steel mills at Hamilton and the east where metal scrap, whose production, even locally has come to mean literally making the promised wages of from 30 to $50 per day at the simple, but nevertheless hard task of digging out ancient car bodies from the tin and debris encrusted depths.

Imbued with more modern ideas, a recently formed company, finding the byways of the city and rural districts almost metal-scrapless after repeated trips in its search, has for a few months recently, cast about for new avenues of search. Then the city dumps they found it. Swiftly the lure was dangled before the eyes of the city's unemployed. "You get it cut—we'll buy it" the new company told them.

With shovels and ropes and picks, and even windlasses mounted on heavy trucks, the work of dragging the ancient bodies from the dump has started. They were hoisted with the brass and copper and other rarer metal odds-ments, as well as the heavier engine parts of steel and iron, the chassis of the forgotten cars and trucks. They sold it to a grist to the iron mills where it was speedily cut and burned and hammered into easily handled lengths and sections. Loaded in heavy freight gondolas in the yards the scrap wrecks are now headed for the busy furnaces to points remote.

"Five dollars a day cause literally they've made me," one man said to a coincided one dealer. "Now we're looking some place else where metal may be recovered."

The dumps again lie deserted, but the search goes on.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Biggar and Crawford by Financial Service.

The past week was an interesting period for the local market, International Nickel touched new record highs, exceeding even the peaks of 1929, while Hollinger became the most active and strongest issue on many occasions, according to industrial activity in the district, are fit for a period of prosperity that may last for several years.

Major L. L. B. Angus, the British economic expert who has now set up in New York as a financial adviser, charges $2500 a year for advice, largely to individuals and $5,000 per annum for corporations. Major Angus certainly has a high regard for his ability.

Brokers say that the so-called selective attitude toward the market has become an increasing factor in all groups following the long sustained advance so many securities have had particularly in the industrial department. It is argued that not only has current good business diminished the buying but have bought invisibly into issues on a basis of what they may do in the next year and often enough have not taken higher costs into consideration in their estimates. Those interested say that if it is were not the legislative attack on the utility field there are more opportunities for increased interest in the utility group than in any other.

Considerable discussion has followed the announcement that the Canadian interests are to include Canadian mining stocks in their investment portfolios. Such issues must measure up to certain provisions contained in the Federal insurance Act under which Act all of our well-known companies comply with. Mining stocks eligible under such conditions are, Sherritt, Hargraves, Noranda, Teck-Hughes, and McIntyre.

Another Grateful Lady Praises Syntona Highly

Was Suffering from Bladder Trouble Which Disturbed Her Sleep. Also Troubled With Stomach Distress After Eating.

"After what Syntona has done for me, I will gladly recommend it to others," said Mrs. Charles Kross, in a recent interview with the Syntona Man.

"Before taking Syntona, I suffered after meals with dyspepsia and heartburn. My food would not digest but would ferment in my stomach, causing sourness, acid rising, nausea and cramps. Gas would form and press upwards making me feel smothered and short of breath. Bladder trouble called for many times each night and I was troubled with constipation.

"After taking Syntona and the little Syntona Laxative Tablets, the stomach trouble and constipation is entirely relieved and I do not have to get up nights now because I have complete control over my bladder."

No matter what medicines you have tried before, remember, Syntona is positively guaranteed to right here in Belleville and vicinity by every druggist. The reason that such good results are obtained from a medicine that is compounded to aid elimination are so closely related in their functions that when one becomes ailing, it often affects one or more of the others. Your food should nourish the body, ferments, causing gas, sourness and cramps, and poisonous waste matter remains in the system.

20 POLICEMEN ARE SWORN IN

Furniture Factories Lock Out Employees at Chesley

Chesley, Ont., March 1.—(CP)—Twenty special constables were sworn in here today as two furniture factories locked out their employees here. Kreg Bros., Furniture Company, would be picked. It was believed Kreg Bros. employees would be locked out tomorrow.

William Fisher of Hanover, member of the Young Sirite Council, said the Union would attempt to have Chesley plants accept a code governing wages and hours of work—the same code the Union hopes to put into effect in other Western Ontario factories.

While shops here were filled with striking and locked-out furniture workers, there was no sign that trouble would result from the lock-out development. Mayor W. Hamilton said he had assurances of companies of adequate police protection.

FEBRUARY MONTH VERY UNUSUAL

Past 4 Weeks Abnormally High, Figures Show

Not only was March ushered in by the legendary Lamb that has figures released by the Belleville Filtration Plant today indicate that the weather man has been influenced by the 250 strikers from Hanover motored to Chesley with the intention of persuading workers to join the walkout. The law-enforcement squad was strengthened to prevent violence.

When Hanover strikers reached the town shortly before noon, officials of the Chesley Chair Company and the Kreg Manufacturing Company sent their employers home and told them to remain away until a strike called by the Furniture Workers' Union was settled.

The lock-out was announced early for the Hanover groups to picket at the two plants. It was not known immediately whether the third factory here, Krug Bros., Furniture Company, would be picked. It was believed Krug Bros. employees would be locked out tomorrow.

William Fisher of Hanover, member of the Young Sirite Council, said the Union would attempt to have Chesley plants accept a code governing wages and hours of work—the same code the Union hopes to put into effect in other Western Ontario factories.

FIRE DESTROYS OLD HOMESTEAD

Wm. Broadworth's Dwelling Near Marmora is Total Loss

Rawdon, March 1 (Special)—Fire thought to have originated from defective chimney, today destroyed the William Broadworth homestead at Broadworth Corners on the Stirling-Marmora highway early this Saturday afternoon.

Fanned by a strong north wind the flames rapidly spread through the house, the only part of which was ablaze and beyond salvage before the fire brigade arrived. Neighbors and passing motorists flocked to the scene but no lutgaps was the heat and smoke that only a few articles of furniture were saved. Spreading of the flames and calls for assistance were handicapped by the lack of telephones in the vicinity.

The house which housed two families, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Broadworth, and Mr. and Mrs. William Broadworth and son and daughter, was one of the old landmarks of Rawdon County. Built in the early pioneer days, it was originally a frame and log structure, one and one square timbers. It was remodeled some years ago by the late John Fanning and converted into a double dwelling. The Broadworth family have resided there for the past thirty-five years.

Practically everything in the William Broadworth part of the home was destroyed, with the exception of a piano. A small amount of furniture was salvaged from the Ernest Broadworth section of the house. A strong, prevailing north wind carried burning embers to the barn of Blake Ketcheson, a short distance away, and ignited the roof, but the flames were extinguished before any damage was done.

The loss is estimated in the vicinity of $3,000. There was little insurance carried.

The families are being looked after by neighbours.

BRITAIN OFFERS GERMANY NEW LOCARNO PACT

British Colonial Policy Unchanged, Eden States; Transfer Not Considered

New Western Agreement Would be Step Forward to Settlement of Europe, Declares British Secretary

REFERENCE TO SPANISH WAR

British Defence of France And Belgium Reaffirmed in Event of Unprovoked Aggression, He States

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Mar. 2—(CP Cable)—Foreign Secretary Eden in the House of Commons this afternoon offered Germany a new Locarno Pact.

Eden intimated that as the Spanish civil war now seemed less likely of spreading over the country's own frontiers, Britain proposed to renew efforts to secure a western pact.

"If we can do that," Eden declared, "we shall have taken another step towards securing a general European settlement."

The Foreign Secretary made Britain's continental commitments clear.

If France or Belgium became victims of unprovoked aggression, he said, Britain would go to their assistance.

Extension of Agreement

At the same time, if a new Locarno pact could be negotiated, Britain would be ready and willing to reach a similar understanding with Germany. Mutuality, the principle of the old Locarno, was always welcome to Britain.

D. R. Grenfell, Labor, earlier in the afternoon questioned Eden on the government's policy regarding return of Germany's war-lost colonies.

The Foreign Secretary repeated the answer given to a similar question in the Commons a few days ago. The question of such transfers had not been considered, he said at the time, and not under consideration by His Majesty's government.

"That statement," Eden continued, "remains the policy

'Japan Need Not Fear U. S.' When Rearmament Complete

Admiral Yonai Discusses Tactics of War in Pacific

GAS AND CHEMICALS

Tokyo, March 2—(AP)— Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai, Minister of the Navy, declared today that when Japan's rearmament program for the navy and the naval airforce is completed, the Empire will not need to fear the United States for three years.

Tactics Discussed

The naval minister made his statement during a discussion of the tactics of a naval war in the Pacific that brought out such detailed points the budget sub committee decided to go into secret session to continue the debate on war appropriations.

Shortly before Admiral Yonai took the floor of the diet, the Minister of War, General Gen Sugiyama, disclosed the Japanese army was concentrating on gas and other chemicals with which to make up for numerical inferiority.

Japan, the Naval Minister said, was ready to accept an invitation from a third power to discuss arms limitation with the United States, Britain and other powers such a step if they unless there seemed to be a definite prospect for an amicable settlement.

"In the event the United States increases its air force in Alaska, the Aleutian Islands, Hawaii and other regions," Admiral Yonai said, "Japan will be compelled

Airforce Auxiliary to Navy

"Some think the airforce more powerful than the warships, but our navy regards the airforce as an auxiliary to the fleet, both being indispensable.

"If Japan's third replenishment plan for the navy and the naval airforce is completed, there need be no fear of the United States for the next three years."

Speed Limit Removal, Safe Driving Clause Proposed by New Bill

Toronto, March 2—(CP)— Hon. T. M. McQuesten, Minister of Highways, has had prepared a bill to remove the speed limit on Ontario Highways and substitute a safe-driving clause. The bill has been prepared as an alternative to a private member's bill drafted by James Clark (Lib. Windsor-Sandwich) to the same end.

The cabinet has not decided whether Mr. McQuesten's bill will be introduced as government legislation or not. It may be decided to allow Mr. Clark's bill to proceed and have the House divide on non-partisan lines.

If the speed limit is not abolished this session, it seemed today it would not be dealt with till next year.

STEEL EMPLOYEES GIVEN INCREASE

Minimum Wage $5 Day With Overtime After Forty Hours

Pittsburgh, March 2 — (AP) — Heavy labor clouds over steel's upsurging recovery activities appeared much lighter today with the granting or pay increases to more than 150,000 employees and the start of unheralded wage conferences between the industry's largest producer and union grievance committee for industrial organization.

The wage parleys between Philip Murray, director of an intensive eight months' organization drive for Lewis and Benjamin F. Fairless, president of Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation, began yesterday.

Murray, flanked by four other union executives, submitted during an hour's closed session his proposals for an agreement covering the union members among the corporation's 120,000 employees.

Not since the historic homestead strike of 1892 has "big steel" sat down with organized labor to discuss a contract and apparently no hint of such a development leaked out to the industry until after the sessions began.

With Earnest T. Weir, head of the National Steel Corporation leading the way, companies employing 190,000 men announced they were establishing on March 16 a minimum wage of $5-a-day with time and a half for overtime pay for all working more than 40 hours a week.

The industry now is on a 48-hour week with a minimum scale of $4.30 a day.

Increases also will be granted other workers with details to be worked out, the announcements said. Steel men expected the raises to average 10 cents an hour.

Companies making the announcements and the men involved were:

National Steel 20,000; Bethlehem 83,000; Republic 13,000; Youngstown Sheet and Tube 16,000; Inland 9,000 and National Tube, a subsidiary of U.S. Steel 8,500.

Brownlee Will Appeal Against Court Decision

Edmonton March 2 (CP)— An appeal will be launched against the decision of the Supreme Court of Canada which returned a judgment of $10,000 against former Premier John E. Brownlee of Alberta, it was announced today by R. B. Porter, K.C., counsel for Mr. Brownlee.

Mr. Brownlee declined to comment on the Court's decision that judgment for $10,000 damages granted in favor of Miss Vivian MacMillan, now Mrs. Henry Accom of Edson, Alta., at the trial should stand.

Mrs. Screeman, called by Mr. Osborne from Edmonton in her fiat-ton home, said she did not wish to make any comment on the judgment.

Candidate William Robertson: "I've had an itch to be Mayor ever since I was a little shaver. The itch started in the bag and I've got it the itch with a barber shop chord."

Spanish Government Forces Strike on Three Fronts

By JEAN ROLLIN

Copyright, 1937,

By The Havas News Agency

Madrid, March 2—(CP-Havas)—Striking hard on three widely-separated fronts, Spanish government forces today battered relentlessly Toledo with artillery shells, repulsed an insurgent onslaught in the Madrid sector, and reported were closing in on the southeastern town of Motril.

Opening up suddenly against ancient Toledo in a drive which may threaten the rear of the forces besieging Madrid, government ordinance sent shells thudding into the streets of the old fortress capital, rising in mediaeval majesty on an eminence skirted by the Tagus River.

A building near the Alcazar, destined for occupancy by the insurgents' military governor, and a number of barracks were struck as field guns around the city, from their posts northeast of the city, let the rebels have Cigarrales.

At the same time, governmentals shattered the second insurgent attack within as many days in the West Park-Universary City sector in northwestern Madrid.

The insurgents stormed out of the Santa Christina Hospital and other points last night only to be pushed back by government counter-attacks which saw the militia recover its positions at the Prensas bridge.

All Citizens from 18 to 55 Subject to Italy's Call; Answer to British Plan

Five-Point Plan to Increase Armaments And War Forces is Decided Upon by Fascist Grand Council Today

ITALY OFFERS TO COLLABORATE

Total Sacrifice if Necessary of Civil Necessities to Military Necessities For Self-Sufficiency is One of Five Points of Program

Rome, March 2—(AP)—Fascist Italy decreed virtual lifetime military service today for all citizens between the ages of 18 and 55 in a challenge to Great Britain's vast rearmament program.

Declaring "even the remote possibility of limitation of armaments now has been definitely excluded," the Fascist grand council pledged Italy to a five-point plan to increase her armaments and war forces.

At the same time, the official communique issued after the near all-night session of the governing body of Fascism stressed the "realistic" co-operation of Italy with the Fascist Bloc of Nations, particularly Nazi Germany.

Veiled Hint to Britain

In addition to what was generally considered the direct answer to British rearming, a veiled hint to Britain to consider Italian power in her foreign program was seen in the council's comment on the Anglo-Italian gentlemen's agreement.

While the Grand Council declared it considered the accord clarified the relations between the two nations in the Mediterranean, the limitation of the clarification to that specific area was deemed significant.

Italy, the council emphasized, desired to collaborate with those nations which demonstrate a desire to collaborate with "Fascist Italy."

Five Points of Program

Foremost among the five points decreed by the grand council, meeting at the call of Premier Mussolini, was the "integral militarization of all active forces between the ages of 18 and 55 with periodical recalls of the mobilizable classes."

The other four points announced by the official communique:

1. An "adequate increase" in the armed forces.
2. Extension for five years of the general commission for war supplies.
3. "Total sacrifice if necessary of civil necessities to military necessities for attainment of maximum self sufficiency regarding military needs.
4. An invitation to Italian science to collaborate in reaching self-sufficiency.

The Grand Council, in the official announcement approved by Mussolini, hailed the "realistic efficiency" of Italy's policy of co-operation with Germany in international affairs.

The council, the communique said, "is happy to note Italo-German policy and understanding has developed and shown a progressive realistic efficiency."

Why The Weather?

(By Major A. H. Thiessen)
Science Service Meteorologist
Washington, D.C.

The groundhog apparently has no monopoly on weather forecasting. Other animals, birds, insects, and even vegetation, all take a fling at predicting the season. Many property holders watch what the birds do so. Some perverts of this kind are over 4,000 years old. Others, like Seaforth, Ont., met at the top of a slight hill, and both vehicles were considerably stuffed. No reliable explanation for this could be found. In spite of this fact, which has been widely published, they still cling to their beliefs.

ONE KILLED IN HEAD-ON CRASH

Hamilton, March. —(CP)—A Toronto motorist was killed, his car was demolished, and a truck wrecked in a head-on collision on the Dundas Street highway about three miles west of the Claypiscon Outlet early today.

The dead man is Jack Dolgoff, Toronto. His car and the truck, driven by Reginald Seaforth, also of Toronto, met on the top of a slight hill, and both vehicles were almost completely stuffed. No reliable explanation for this could be found. In spite of this fact, which has been widely published, they still cling to their beliefs.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, March 2 (CP)—Prairie low over Lake Superior, with a shallow trough extending southward to the Maritime Provinces, thence westward across the low lake region, and a shallow low over the Gulf of Mexico, while the barometer is relatively high over the Mackenzie Valley, Manitoba and northwestern Ontario, also over the greater portion of the United States. With the exception of light snowfalls or flurries in Northern Ontario and Quebec, fair weather over the Dominion has been generally fair. It has become considerably colder in Northern Ontario and Quebec.

Lake Superior—Moderate winds; partly cloudy and colder today and part of Wednesday; following with moderate to higher temperatures.

Manitoba—Partly cloudy with somewhat higher temperatures today and Wednesday; light snow in some districts.

Saskatchewan—Partly cloudy with local snowfalls today and Wednesday; higher temperatures in northern and eastern districts.

'World too Busy, Well Armed, No War in Quarter of Century'

Lord Riverdale, British Steel Magnate Gives Views

INDUSTRY TOO GOOD'

Sydney, N.S., March 2—(CP)— There will be no world war for another quarter century, in the opinion of Lord Riverdale, British steel magnate who arrived here today.

"Everybody is too busy and too well armed to start another major conflict," said the owner of the Arthur Balfour Steel Company of Sheffield, England, as he arrived here from New York on a tour of Canada.

Speaking of industrial conditions in England, Lord Riverdale said they were "good, in fact too good. There is a shortage of 2,000,000 tons of pig iron and 3,000,000 tons of scrap. We will be unable to supply our steel requirements next year and next year."

As a result of the shortage he said, heavy importations would have to be made in pig iron and billets, and noted that "Canada, of course, will get the first chance to supply this demand."

"Jessie the Cow" Upsets the Calm Of Town Council

Riverside, Ont., March 2 (CP)— "Jessie the cow" came up for more discussion at a meeting of this suburban Windsor Town Council last night, but if members were hoping about it, Jessie won't get into print so much in future.

Jessie, a source of much gag in council members' halt in 1935 and a by-law was passed forcing her owners, the Fredrickl family, to move the bovine from the town on the grounds she wasn't a fit resident for a residential district.

Attempt of member of the audience to criticize members for forcing the exiling by-law brought Jessie back into the meeting last night.

"She has got us on the map, so let's forget about her," Councillor Clifford Churvin said. "An attempt is being made to make us look like fools again."

"I'd like to know who was responsible for Jessie's picture appearing in a Toronto paper last week," Reeve Harry Drouillard said. "I'm sick and tired of Jessie."

BREAD PRICE UP ONE CENT TODAY

Following a mutual agreement reached at a meeting of local bakers on March 1st of the Ontario Bread and Cake Board, which was held in the Y.M.C.A., last night bread prices in Belleville, Trenton, Picton and Point will now be raised from eight cents per loaf to nine cents. These prices went into effect this morning.

According to an official of the Association, another meeting will be held in the course of two weeks when other will be held. It is hoped all members of the trade to fall in line with the new bread prices.

Reports from Kingston state that bread went up one cent in price bringing the new prices to nine cents for single loaf and that the Kingston bakers are expected to fall in line with the rise.

A general check-up of a number of the premises in the heart of the city revealed the fact that all had co-operated with the resolution passed by the Association on the matter, fixing the new rate as laid down at the meeting held last night.

SAYS CROSLEY IS PHYSICAL WRECK

Convict Cries Out Against "Racial Feeling" Being Introduced

Kingston, Ont., March 2 (CP)—Chester Crosley was given ephridine as a "scientific experiment" by a doctor who had no license to practice in Ontario, testimony at the murder trial of the negro convict showed today. Crosley is on trial for the fatal stabbing of Guard John McCormick at Kingston Penitentiary last July 11.

As Dr. John Wylie, Professor of Preventive Medicine at Queen's University here, testified yesterday, Crosley jumped to his feet in the prisoner's dock and cried out against "racial feeling" being introduced into the trial.

"Stop him from introducing racial feelings into this trial," the negro said. Then pleading tears streamed down his face. "I was born in this country and nowhere in the world is a colored man treated as he is under the British law! Make him stop those South American tactics."

As Crosley sobbed bitterly, Mr. Justice Mailler MacKay warned him such actions would force him to place guards in the box with the prisoner. "You will get a fair trial, Crosley," Mr. Justice MacKay said. "It makes no difference if a person is black or white, man or woman, there will be no discrimination by the law."

Dr. Wylie described Crosley as a physical wreck when he met him at the penitentiary last September. Crosley was a "moron and of low mentality," the doctor said. He was also a drug addict. He admitted the "opium" at the time Mr. Hicks, K.C., defence counsel, he had injected ephridine into the convict.

TAUGHT SCHOOL FOR 54 YEARS

Port Hope Teacher Missed Only One Day in That Period

RETIRED RECENTLY

Fifty-four years of teaching, in the same schoolhouse, and missing only one day over the entire period, is the proud record of Miss Mary Strickland, school teacher of Central School, Port Hope, who retired recently from active life.

Possessed of many records by virtue of her long term of duty, Miss Strickland claims that the one she is the most proud of, is the fact that during the entire fifty-four years behind her desk in the schoolhouse, she has never had to resort to the strap as a form of punishment.

At a party given in her honor by leading citizens of Port Hope, Mayor George Hennigar of that town stated, "She has always conducted her self in a remarkable person. To have taught faithfully in one town for fifty-four years is a record in itself. To have missed one day in all that time is something that may never occur again during a like period of service."

MADOC NATIVE WINS HIGH HONOR

Exchange Club of Fort Worth, Texas, Presents Award

Stanley A. Thompson has been presented with the Most Distinguished Citizen" award of the city of Fort Worth, Texas, by the Exchange Club of that city. Mr. Thompson is a brother of Mr. Charles Thompson of Madoc township, ex-Warden of the County of Hastings, and is a native of Madoc Township. His mother is living in Madoc.

The Fort Worth Press pays the following editorial tribute to the recipient of the honor:

A Deserved Tribute

The Exchange Club has made a happy selection designating Stanley A. Thompson as the recipient of its "Most Distinguished Citizen" award for 1936.

In the 13 years he has lived in Fort Worth, Mr. Thompson has become ghot only one of the city's leading citizens but also one of its most useful citizens.

Fortune has been kind to Mr. Thompson since he came to Fort Worth. He is rated as a wealthy self-made man, but he is also a wealthy self-made man in this country but few who have kept their sense of civic responsibility and their love of their fellow men increasing in per with their fortunes as has Mr. Thompson.

All this has given opportunity and often of his means to help his city and his fellow citizens. And with his gifts he gives of himself. In addition to contributing largely of money to the Community Chest, the Frontier show and a score of civic and charitable causes, he gives generously of his time and energy.

We believe Mr. Thompson is a happy man because he has learned the satisfaction of using his money generously to help others. He has, in spite of the growing responsibilities of his own business, kept some of his time apart for civic endeavor, recreation and social activities.

In addition to holding offices in several associations in the oil industry, Mr. Thompson is president of the Baseball Club, of the T.C.U. Educational Foundation, and of the Southwest Motor Club. He is an officer of the Community Chest, the Y.M.C.A., and the Chamber of Commerce. He is an active steward in his church. He belongs to many social and civic clubs.

He has raised a good family and made money in the oil industry, in spite of accomplished success, he and his associates are still pioneering in oil development.

A list of his endeavors proves that Mr. Thompson is a man of great capacity for work and for citizenship.

The honor that the Exchange Club bestows on him is richly merited, and both he and the club are to be congratulated on his choice as Fort Worth's most distinguished Citizen.

HIGH NOON

by

RUBY M. AYRES

Reminiscent 1

As the low-built long-bodied car, with the absurd slipper dangling helplessly from its back axle, turned slowly out of the confetti-strewn drive, Heather Aston sighed, and and stopped to pick up a white flower which had fallen from Betty's bouquet when she came back from church.

It was over, this second family wedding which had required so much planning and comforting and hard work to make it the success it undoubtedly had been.

Heather's eyes followed a little wistfully the car that bore Betty and her husband away. It disappeared at an abrupt turn, leaving only the sun-baked road, with its night dusty hedges.

Betty had insisted upon being an orthodox bride in spite of the difficulties of money. She had overruled Heather's objections by saying flatly: "Well, if Caesar won't pay, I'll get Stephen to settle up after we're married."

She quite forgot, of the fact that it was a sheer impossibility for Caesar—or the family disrespectfully called their step-father—to pay, and she had only laughed when Heather had protested that it's not right for the bridegroom to bear the expenses of the wedding.

"Anything's right today," she had declared. "Besides he's got pots of money."

Heather sometimes wondered if that was the reason Betty had married him. She liked him of course, but her elder sister's pet name (Stephen) He was so kind and cheery. The quick sigh came again as Heather remembered a little ruefully that it was she who had first made Stephen's acquaintance, and that it had been to see her that he had first come to the house.

She had never wanted to marry him of course, still it did seem a little hard that Betty, all so young and light-heartedness, should calmly annex him, take from her not only that Heather, as usual, would retire into the background.

As the children and Caesar never failed to remind her. "You're the eldest, Heather darling." And that any of them were really "children" any longer, or Bobbie, the youngest, who had cost their mother pangs, life, was nearly seventeen.

Seventeen! It seemed impossible that for so many years she had been mother, housekeeper, nurse, general adviser to her father and brothers and sisters, carrying her own youth, and trying not to let that stand in her life would leave her lonely.

It had seemed natural that she—the eldest—should try to fill her mother's place, and I am in control of the disordered frightened family, and to see that Caesar should make as few as possible.

"Caesar!" Heather smiled fainly as the familiar nick-name. They called him Caesar, all who had originated it—they all claimed the honor in turn, but in an odd way it seemed to suit their father who was a lordly person with a certain dignity of his own dignity and integrity.

There were seven of the Astons. To Heather it had at first seemed an enormous family to attempt to control and care for, but as the years went by and their mother would have wished them to go, but with the passing of time she had grown used to it, and had even suffered when one by one they had begun to go.

Paul had been first to go; he had married a girl who considered herself superior to his family, and who after only one year of married life had almost entirely alienated them from them.

He had not even come to Betty's wedding, though he had sent her a handsome check. His wife's mystery, so Betty had ruthlessly declared) and followed it up with a telegram to wish her happy.

And now Betty had gone, leaving only John, Phillip and Bobbie in the ugly shabby old house in which they continued to live because it belonged to them, and because nobody would have given anything like Caesar's valuation of the property.

"We are seven," had been the family watchword, and Heather now remembered it sadly as she waited for the crowd of young people to troop back from the road to which they had flocked to give Betty and her husband a proper send-off.

Only four left at house now, for Yvette, the flower of the flock, had long since shaken what she was pleased to call their family dust" from her feet, and had married and into the world with the optimistic idea of making a great name for herself on the stage.

She had not been successful in spite of her beauty. At the moment she was traveling with a second-rate company in South Africa, and she last news Heather had received from her was that the tour was nearly over and that she would soon be home.

HIGH NOON—3.

She wondered if they would ever meet again, if so whether by mere meeting when he had looked from the carriage window to catch her hand, and say "Oh, Heather, won't you?"

Yvette would marry a rich man of course; she was pretty enough for any man to fall in love with. Many had done so already. But Yvette always said she was not in a hurry, and that she meant to have a good look round first.

But even she would have approved of Stephen Miller. Heather thought, and she almost wished that Yvette had been present at the wedding. It had been quite a big affair, for the Astons had a large if motley collection of friends, in spite of the fact that they could not afford to entertain.

Betty had always been able to find someone to take her to dances and theatres, Paul had married money, and even Bobbie had a dozen school friends always in request to include him in their pleasures.

"We must be rather a charming family really, so Effie once said in her quaint way. "If we weren't, nobody would trouble about us as they do. We're not smart, we haven't a penny, and if people come to the house they have to take pot-luck. It must be our personal charm."

Effie, who had just as generous died forgot, that but, for Heather life would have been a much more sorry affair for them all. They were all as "used to" Heather that they took her as much for granted as any old piece of furniture in the house. In their way they loved her, but it was a selfish way, and none of them ever thought of protesting when Heather said, "I'll stay at home—you others go." Nobody ever objected when Heather packed the old clothes "do" so that Betty or Effie could have a new frock.

Heather knew it all now, even as she read to send her to school, it had fallen to Heather to "give her pleasure" sacrifices of all kinds.

The spoiled one, Betty said Effie was; Betty always called a spade a spade.

Heather looked back upon all this as she stood in the sunshine listening to the laughter and voices of the wedding party who were now slowly streaming into the garden again, and she realized how fortunate it was that her life should have been so full, so that she never found time to think about herself.

Bobbie broke away from the crowd and ran towards her. "We're going to London, to a theatre, all of us," he explained excitedly. "Effie says she's got seats—as a surprise—the front row of the dress circle . . . " His eyes were bright with eagerness. "It's a musical comedy, and we're going to have supper somewhere afterwards."

Heather said quickly: "But we can't leave Caesar alone— and then looking at Dinah, who had been quietly becoming one with Stephen Miller's sister, who realized that they had been included her in this "surprise" and she added hastily, "But there'll be me of course—so he won't mind. I've got heaps to do —all this muddle to clear up.

Bobbie said hesitatingly, "You ought to come too—" and then as she shook her head, he frowned and slipped a hand through her arm. "You're always the one to stay at home," he protested. Bobbie was the only one whose conscience occasionally pricked him with regard to his eldest sister.

"Nonsense," she said cheerfully. "I couldn't go anyway . . . What time are you going—and how " and immediately she realized that perhaps they would want their railway fares—Bobbie and Effie.

But Dinah answered quickly. "We've got three cars among us, and we can all pack in if nobody makes a squeeze . . . "

And in an hour they had all departed leaving Heather alone in the big discorded house.

She sat in his study. It was only on very particular occasions that he condescended to use the own sanctum and to enter the bosom of his family. Caesar was supposed to be writing a book— Heather could remember that years ago that motto had often asked anxiously, "Do be quiet darlings; father's dictating your chapter he's writing."

That "book" had grown to be a sort of legend with the young Astons but only Betty ever dared to voice the opinion that Caesar was like the two gentlemen in the Golden Butterfly, who shut themselves up for years and years in order to produce a great work which was never produced at all.

Mrs. Priddy, the widow woman who "did" the work of the house for two young girls who had been hired from the village for the day, had keenly resented any sense of the rooms. Heather went up to her own room. She took off her wedding frock and hung it carefully away in the wardrobe. She slipped into a flowered cotton overall, pausing for a moment in front of the mirror.

Betty and her husband were going first to Scotland, and then later on to Italy. "I don't know how long we shall be away," Betty had said. "It depends how soon we get tired of each other's company!" Betty always talked like that, perhaps because she was getting along so near and dearest to her.

"I hope they'll be happy," Heather thought.

Wonderful to be able to go for an indefinite holiday, with no worries about money, or anxieties as to how the family were getting along at home! Betty was lucky . . . but there was no feeling of envy in Heather's heart.

She looked at her own serious face in the glass.

A little tired—well, she felt tired. She had been up very early that morning to make sure that everything would be in order. Her brown hair was ruffled, she must brush it out of her frock, and she ran a comb through it, though she had thought it was that she had a natural wave and hair that seemed to "do" itself for she could never have afforded constant visits to the hairdressers like Betty and Effie—they were always begging for extra shillings with which to "do" themselves.

Her eyes looked back at her thoughtfully from the mirror, and incongruously a line from a play she had hardly allowed herself to remember for years flashed into her mind:

"Funny eyes, Heather . . . sometimes they're blue, sometimes grey —sometimes they're quite green, but they're always the loveliest eyes in the world . . . "

Bruce Logan . . .

Heather's face grew wistful as she thought of Bruce. Nobody had ever been so sweet to her as he had been; she had "mattered" to him, in a far more beautiful way than she mattered to Caesar and to the family.

He must be thirty-seven now, and no doubt he was married and successful. She wondered if they would ever meet again, and if so whether he would remember that last morning when he had leaned from the carriage window to catch her hand.

"Oh Heather, won't you?"

Heather gave her shoulders a little determined shrug and went downstairs. The house seemed filled with the scent of the lilies from Betty's bouquet, they discarded now on a chair in the hall. Heather picked it up tenderly, found a large vase and went to the schoolroom. She set the bouquet on a side table against the wall, and looked round the room reminiscently.

All the family had been born in this house which had at rightly been named Tangley. Her mother had come to it as a bride, not because it had been her choice of a home but because Caesar's father had presented it to them as a wedding present. It had always been too expensive for them to keep up properly. There was a garden of nearly three acres which was so overgrown and neglected that it looked more like a wood. Sometimes at week-ends John would make an effort to reduce it to order by cutting the grass and lopping down dead branches from the old trees, but it was a task which invariably defeated him.

With a little humorous twist of her lips Heather realized that the paper on the schoolroom walls had not been changed for thirty-four years. It might have been pretty once, but now it was bleached white in places where the sun shone through the high window, and it had been scribbled over and scratched by half a dozen pairs of childish hands.

Heather leaned against the edge of the big wooden table where as a rule their busy family meals were started out at the rapidly fading sunset. It had been in this room that Bruce Logan had first told her he loved her; she could visualize his tall figure and the shy intensity of his eyes.

It was here that Caesar had come to break the news that their mother was dead—here that Caesar had told Bruce she could never leave the family; here that Yvette had defiantly announced her intention of shaking the "family dust" from her pretty feet here that a thousand and one little every-day tragedies and joys had been enacted.

It seemed to Heather that the youthful spirits of her brothers and sisters must always be gathered in this room, never to be parted no matter how far they wandered away. Three of them had gone already, and soon Bobbie would be leaving school and starting out in the world. Until a year or so ago he had wanted to be an automobile race driver. Now his ambition was to be an airplane pilot.

Bobbie's great passion was engines of all kinds. There was a flying machine a few miles away to which he cycled at every opportunity, returning with glowing eyes and thrilling accounts of the machines he had seen; talking glibly of "Pom-Moths," "Hi-ver Avros" and "Flight Lieutenants" till Heather's heart contracted with apprehension of the future.

Heather woke from her reveries with a little start. She glanced at her wrist watch—Bruce Logan had given it to her before he sailed, and she had never since been able to renewing its leather strap from time to time—and started guiltily. She turned hurriedly to the door and met Mrs. Priddy, to whom the postman had given two letters. One was for John, but the second—Heather's heart gave a quickfit that she recognized the South African stamp and Yvette's sprawling handwriting. It began with "Darling," and Heather laughed softly at the quaint words.

"I am returning to England, home" (underlined) "by the time you get this communication I shall be on the high seas, and I'll be with you in a week at most—my fair face a week later.

"I have done with the stage, or the stage has done with me, which ever way you would like to put it. I'll tell you all when I see you and me—I have met THE MAN.

"He is coming to England on the same boat, and although as yet he has not asked for my hand and heart, I feel that it is but a matter of days—a few moonlight nights and days of sunshine may do the trick. I will not tell you any more about him except that he is the most delightful person in the world, but you will see for yourself. Please do not broadcast the glad news to the family—keep it to yourself, but I know you will. He is on short leave, or you know what that means, and if he asks me to come back here with him—well I shan't say no. I am glad Betty is married, or she might try to snatch him from me—he knows me only by my stage name so far, but I suppose I must break the news to him before the white cliffs of old England come in sight. I shall have a horde of brothers and sisters in the background—and Caesar!

"That's all . . . I am bringing you a marvelous ostrich feather fan; if you don't like it I'll use it myself.

"Salaams. (I sign myself perhaps for the last time)

"Yvette Ponsonby."

Heather sighed and smiled together over this letter which was so typical of Yvette. It was not the first time she had read The Man. Ever since her school days she had been in and out of love, never falling for more than a few months at a time.

Poor Yvette; How teased she had been at sixteen she suddenly announced that she would no longer answer to her baptismal name of Vera, but that from henceforth she would be Yvette. The "Ponsonby" had come later together with her stage aspirations, and now with her usual impulsiveness she had grown tired of the game and was throwing it aside.

Well, one could only hope that this time it was the real thing.

REVOLUTION

. . . on Main Street

GIVE a thought to Main Street as you scan today's headlines! All the world's excitement isn't in Europe.

For, in our town . . . and towns like ours clear across the country . . . there's a daily revolution going on. Changes in dress styles and food prices . . . the rise of a hat crown . . . the fall of furniture prices—these matters vitally affect our daily living . . . . And the news is ably, fully covered in advertisements. Here, in concise, meaty form, makers of the world's goods tell you what's new, what's good . . . and how to make your dollars S-T-R-E-T-C-H.

Smart people who like to be up-to-the-minute in living and current events, follow advertisements as closely as headlines. They know what's doing in Europe and America . . . but they also know where money buys most!

THE UTILITIES COMMISSION

Belleville's public utilities commission has been organized and gone into operation immediately with the centralization of the business of the three utilities of Hydro, water and gas, in the offices which have been used by the Belleville Hydro Commission.

It is less than two months ago Belleville electors expressed a view in favor of the establishment of a utilities commission. Council after organization, learned that it was possible to establish such a commission with the same board as handles the Hydro, a board of three, and authorized such a step by bylaw. Yesterday's development was the outcome of these steps.

It is not always that the will of the people is so readily carried out. However Belleville had the utilities, it had the machinery in the Hydro Commission and officials and the establishment was merely a matter of time.

CARS AND PEDESTRIANS

It has been computed that it is possible for a pedestrian to be struck by a car in twenty ways at a crossing of streets. There are twelve ways in the middle of the street, on the New York Times points out, one north, one south, one east, one west, four right turns and four left turns. Besides there are eight possible ways on the four lines, one on each side of one street going north, two lines one on each side of the street going south, two lines one on each side of the street going west, and two lines one on each side of the street going east. Then there is to count the cutting of corners, known as jay-walking, nor the right and left turns of pedestrians, which would increase the number of possibilities. But under regulation of traffic, the straight traffic laws if observed cannot cause accidents.

With traffic lights, in places where there are right and left turns permitted, the number of possible chances of a pedestrian getting hit are seven as follows: going north or south on a crossing the pedestrian may be hit by a car turning right to the west or by a car turning left to the west. This is repeated ok each of the four crossings. If the pedestrian followed to turn to the right against red there would be three instead of two possibilities at each crossing one way. But if as in Belleville traffic against the red is prohibited there are as said before three for the north or south and two for the east and as there are two lines of pedestrian traffic on the crossings the number of chances of being hit are four times on each or a total of 28 in all.

One of the occasional annoyances is that of the car which swings on to the road one is crossing and which comes up behind one. Or the car which turns on the wrong side at Bridge Street intersection, a walker going south may be struck by a car which turns behind him off Front street, while a car swinging left after coming off lower Front may start to cross Bridge Street. Or again one may be walking northward across this intersection and be delayed by a string of cars turning on to Bridge Street after coming up or down Front Street. If crossing south one may be held close to the north curb by a fleet of cars and trucks swinging off lower Front Street on to Bridge Street west, while one waits. The same condition repeats on the other three crossings.

If a walker has to cross from, say, the southwest to the northeast of this same intersection, he has to pass over two crossings with four possibilities of being struck and with the same number if he returns.

Fortunately there are few accidents. Pedestrians at times annoy the motorist, but the motorist is almost always careful though sometimes one who takes advantage and hold walkers to the curb or centre of the roadway.

Those pedestrians who cross against the traffic lights may escape if cars are far enough away but they complicate the figures if they wander into traffic. To the good sense of motorists, there has been a praiseworthy lack of accidents which if they did happen would be those who offend against the traffic lights or diagonally cut a corner.

Stamps honoring General Sherman who marched through Georgia to the sea to cut off the line of supplies of the Confederate Army during the American Civil War have been sold freely in the heart of the old Confederacy, though Confederate veterans have announced a boycott. A story is that most of the buyers are collectors.

Those who have read the remarkable story "Gone with the Wind" by Margaret Mitchell, wherein she depicts the life of Atlanta folk during the Civil War realize that there may yet be some feeling of this kind in the South against the North and the Union generals.

ON A CHANGE OF ADDRESS

Not from this window shall I lean again
Gazing upon the poplars and the stars;
Not through this casement see the moonlight rain
In silver pools between the shadowy bars.

When the Great Dipper wheels again to where
It hangs above the tallest of the trees,
The frost will come—but I shall not be there
To drink again the pure life-giving breeze.

Nor when the Autumn spreads its rustic haze,
Nor when the Spring put out its tender green
Shall I share forth, as in these lonely days
Fraught with farewell to all that should have been.

Beauty that pierced me—beauty that tore my heart—
Beauty that fed me with its bread and wine—
From these alone I sorrow to depart—
Be to another's need as once to mine!

("NEWSPAPERS MEASURE HISTORY IN DAILY DOSES." Weeklies can take it in more concentrated form. Historians often swallow a century at a gulp." So writes a critic in referring to a new book called "The Hundred Years".) Just published by Doubleday, Doran for Philip Guedalla, the author, described as "a historian with a fine journalistic palate." Guedalla compresses one hundred years into four hundred pages. Of course he picks out the highlights. Of the passing panorama called Life and presents them pithily. . Frinstance, here are some of his pithy paragraphs:

1837—Sixteen million U.S. citizens were groaning—would the Depression never end?

In Buckinghamshire England, two old gentlemen called on a young girl six in the morning, to notify her that she was Queen of England.

1848—In Mexico City, just after the signing of the treaty of peace had given California to the U.S., came news of a great gold strike there. In Paris the last of the Bourbons signed his abdication and the gale of revolution that swept France ended the age of Metternich. The first carload of grain came by rail into Chicago.

1861—Tsar Alexander emancipated his serfs. In Charleston Harbor, the guns opened on Fort Sumter. Queen Victoria buried her beloved Albert.

1881—While "the world almost stood still," Tsar Alexander and with him all hope of reform was murdered in Russia. In Buffalo, N.Y., Mr. Rockefeller added another refinery to his booming little Standard Oil Co.

1905—Father Gapon's peaceful petitioners were shot down by troops outside the Winter Palace in St. Petersburg, while Mukden was lost and the Russian Navy went to destruction in Tsushima. The Kaiser rattled his sabre in Tangier, Morocco—a crude attempt to trick Tsar Nicholas into an alliance. Mr. Balfour, innocuous leader of England's Conservatives, sank into innocuous desuetude.

1917—After two and a half years of blundering war, England tired of its tight-lipped professionals, put Lloyd George, an intelligent amateur, in charge.... Tsar Nicholas renounced his throne while excited soldiers in St. Petersburg "swore eternal loyalty to something that they could not catch quite distinctly. Lenin arrived in Russia, half-expecting arrest, but the German secret service... When his Bolsheviks had driven out Kerenesky "the poetry of revolution had been defeated by its prose."

1933—The burning of the Berlin Reichstag, said Hitler, "is the beginning." Twelve hours later he was the autocrat of Germany. In the U.S. 120,000,000 citizens were groaning: "Would the Depression never end."

TORONTO FOLKS are proud of their city and its many points of beauty and interest, and well they may be, but Toronto folks know less about some of the more interesting places in their own city than outsiders. A case in point is the Royal Ontario Museum, bursting with entertainment and instruction. A recent visitor to Toronto asked a citizen residing within a block of the museum what the hours for visitors were. The citizen had to acknowledge ignorance of the hours and to admit never having entered the museum. When it is learned that the Royal Ontario Museum management proposes to carry prominent exhibits to various parts of the province, in order that other than Torontonians may enjoy the instruction and entertainment which these exhibits provide, one is forced to ruminate that the tour should start at home and exhibits be taken to Torontonians in their homes and churches and clubs, before being shown to the folks in the hinterland who have probably viewed the exhibits in their own beautiful building.

LOOKING BACKWARD

After the programme was rendered all indulged in quite a dainty supper was served. A hearty vote of thanks, moved by Mr. Harry Thompson and seconded by Mr. Harry Bryan, was tendered to Mr. and Mrs. Reid for their kind hospitality.

30 YEARS AGO

March 2nd, 1907.

An exciting game of hockey was played at the Arena last night, when the "Maple Leafs" defeated the the "Winchesters" by a score of 4 to 3. Ralph Graham was referee and gave all round satisfaction. 50 YEARS AGO

March 2nd, 1887.

A farmer in Tyendinaga Township has a pet pig; this week he is without his pet. The pig followed its master to market on Friday and in the street 1853 and came to Belleville on Saturday last and was lost.

Mr. Dale informs us that he does not intend to rebuild the Dale House.

The boys and girls and some adults are enjoying good coasting in many parts of the city.

At a meeting of the Police Commissioners yesterday afternoon, John Newton, constable, was appointed Chief of the Force in succession to Chief Hugh Ferguson, who is now Chief of the Dominion Police. Before the appointment of Chief Newton is a promotion list, which will be published in the year 1853 and came to Canada and located at Belleville in the early 60's. He was later appointed to the Belleville Police Force and served for 20 years under Chief McKinnon. The members of the Police Commission at that time were Messrs. Hinman, Graham Diamond, Police Magistrate and Mayor Wallbridge. The salary of the new Chief, in accordance with a resolution passed yesterday will be increased to be $650. per annum instead of $600. as heretofore paid to the chief of the force. The force as it now stands with one vacancy to be filled comprises of the following: Chief John Newton, Sergt. John Donaldson, Sergt. Jerry Downe, Constable Purdy Cook and Constable Patrick Hayes.

Men and Fleas

Anyone asserting that a flea only jumps a man (proportionately, that is) shouldn't bet on it. In a letter to the London Times, Gen. Fiddler explained why, as a matter of scientific fact, a man really jumps five times higher than the flea. As follows:

"You quote," he writes, "the statement of a high authority that the flea's jump of seven and three-quarter inches vertically and fifteen inches horizontally is 'equivalent to a leap of 300 yards by a 6-foot man.' Such statements are frequent in popular natural histories of eighty years ago. The mathematicale assumed is that similar animals should be expected to jump heights or lengths proportional to their own body lengths, and it is intelligible that this should appear experimentally proved to a naturalist who observed the jumps of fleas and not of larger creatures.

"A flea twice the length of a similar flea would have four times the surface but eight times the weight and muscular energy to impel that surface through the resisting air—twice as much weight behind each square inch—to drive it on to the skin. So that with small fleas, where the weight lifted is small compared with the air resistance offered to their quick jump, the distance through which the resistance is overcome will be nearly proportional to the first power, or unit area of skin—that is, proportional to the length of the flea. Six-foot-six Jump Is About the Limit.

"But the mutation suggests that if man were as good a jumper as the flea, being 200 times the body length (does this figure fairly with logs?) he should jump 200 times as far; for which suggestion there's no basis in fact or theory.

"As in fact every one who has seen a dog or cat jump a six-foot 6-inch fence, and knows that this is about the limit attainable for a man, and not far off it for a horse, will understand that a man and animals the height jumped does not vary with height of body but is relatively constant at 6 feet. Borelli in 1686 (of, D'Arcy Thompson's 'Growth and Form' p. 84) pointed out that for similarly shaped animals, to produce equal accelerations, 10 pounds of muscle will lift thirty pounds weight to the same height that 100 pounds of muscle will lift 150 pounds weight. So that, in proportion to the size of the animals assumed is that similar animals should be expected to jump heights or lengths proportional to their own body lengths, and it is intelligible that this should appear experimentally proved to a naturalist who observed the jumps of fleas and not of larger creatures.

"A flea twice the length of a similar flea would have four times the surface but eight times the weight and muscular energy to impel that surface through the resisting air—twice as much weight behind each square inch—to drive it on to the skin. So that with small fleas, where the weight lifted is small compared with the air resistance offered to their quick jump, the distance through which the resistance is overcome will be nearly proportional to the first power, or unit area of skin—that is, proportional to the length of the flea.

Weights of Birds

(London Spectator)

How much do birds weigh? What, for instance, is the weight of a hen? A good specimen of hen may be over three feet in length, with a wing-span of five feet. Questioned as to its weight, two persons replied respectively 20 pounds and 15 pounds. For myself, I should guess the weight of birds being a thing to which I had never given any consideration at all, I should have guessed, roughly, 10 pounds. All these figures are crazy.

The weight of a fine specimen of male heron, according to that parochial but patient Victorian observer of English wild life, the Rev. F.O. Morris, is only three pounds. For so large and fine a creature a bird, a heron living on eels, rats, trout, young moor-hens and even snipe, the figures seem incredible. Yet three pounds is a great weight for a bird. The snipe itself, male, weighs but four ounces, the female slightly more. The sparrow-hawk weighs only five or six ounces, with the female a good deal larger again. A woodpigeon weighs about 20 ounces, a wood-hen 16, a stock-dove 30.

But it is the weight of the really small birds that is staggering. A nightingale weighs six drachms, a blue-tit under half an ounce, a gold-crest three drachms, a wren two and three-quarter drachms. Even a quick, nerve-jarring, bustling little sparrow is an ounce, a linnet, scales only a quarter of a pound, a finch more than a blackbird.

Too Much Education

To the Editor of the Ontario Intelligencer:

Dear sir:

Just a few lines by your permission, for your popular newspaper about the "New Deal" promised by the Ontario Teachers' Federation. For the first place, the phrase "the new deal" as provised, is a very misty phrase, which has been left open from politicians in different countries and while no-body has learned a word about it, warn the fathers and mothers not to be too enthusiastic when it is spoken of by political speakers. It is sponsored by the Ontario Teachers' Federation and said professors who, as Mr. Jamieson Bone has said, are naturally in favour of more education, just as every barrender is in favor of more beer.

If I were an old-timer, I am sure that I could obtain this subject more successfully. However, I have a family and am of the opinion that our children are our greatest assets and a good education is needed whether they follow the occupation of farmer, mechanic or some profession.

I would ask you readers to recall a number of years ago, when it was possible to take a term's work in Public Schools after passing the Entrance, then attend continuation school, then Collegiate and High School, whereby a Junior Matriculation was received in two years. Now

Tweed and District

Tweed—Police Court was held on Friday afternoon in Tweed with Magistrate Lloyd of Northbrook presiding. Several cases were before the magistrate. Nine local citizens pleaded guilty to the charge of operating a radio receiving set without a license as required by law, and paid a fine of one dollar and costs, amounting to two dollars and seventy-five cents in each case.

Franklin O'Connor, who was arrested on Sunday afternoon by Chief Constable J. O. Hayes, pleaded guilty to a charge of consuming strick liquor. On pleading guilty to the charge he was fined $20 and costs or one month. He took the jail term.

Lando Chapelle, another of the five found celebrating well but not unduly on illegal liquor at the same time and place, was fined $20 and costs or one month. He also took the term in the County Jail.

Martin Fringle, arrested on a charge of intoxication, was sentenced to five months in an Ontario Reformatory without the option of a fine. This was the accused man's fourth conviction in the past year and the magistrate refused to take a lenient view of the case.

Vincent Chapelle, appearing also on the charge of a breach of the L.C.A., was fined $10 and costs.

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church held their annual supper this year at the home of Mrs. H. R. Rollins on Thursday evening. Supper was served from five to seven-thirty. Small tables were arranged in the spacious rooms of Mrs. Rollins' beautiful home which was very attractive with daffodils, tulips and potted plants. About one hundred and twenty-five people enjoyed a splendid supper for which the St. Andrew's ladies are noted.

Misses A. M. Rayburn and Grace Moran entertained a few friends on Saturday evening. The evening was spent in bridge, with Mrs. A. Dales and Mr. W. L. Ketcheson the winners of the prizes.

The mild open winter and, the resultant absence of snow has played havoc with the hauling of cordwood and the logs to Tweed. Practically the only wood being brought into town is coming in trucks. In other years hundreds of cords are hauled in on sleighs.

Stoco Lake has long been a highway for the Stoco folk, and others living southeast of Tweed during the winter months, but, except for a brief period, it has been unsafe during the present winter. Few logs have been hauled to Joe Rathbone's sawmill this winter as compared with the hundreds with which the yard is filled every normal winter. All of which has caused considerable hardship to those who depend financially upon their winter activities.

Cottage prayer meeting was held on Friday night at the home of Mrs. M. Bradshaw on Arthur St. There was a good attendance. Rev. R. R. Nicholson had charge of the service.

If the opening night can be accepted as a criterion, a successful future may be safely predicted for Tweed's new theatre, owned and operated by Mr. Stanis Quinn. Undertaken some months ago, the building, formerly occupied by the Star Cafe, has been completely remodelled into a most modern picture theatre. No smallest detail has been neglected to ensure the comfort or safety of the patrons. The machine sound system is thoroughly up-to-date and ensures proper reproduction of voice and music with the complete elimination of objectionable echoes.

On Saturday afternoon a matinee was shown for the children and the hall was two-thirds full. The programme showing on Saturday night completely filled the hall for both shows at 7.15 and 9.15. Mr. Edward Fowler of Kingston will act as chief operator for some time. Mr. Chas. Chappelle will be in charge of the ticket sale.

The work on the new theatre has been done by local contractors. The lumber and doors, etc., were supplied by Jos. Rashotte, Tweed Hardware—installed the heating plant and M. R. Rose, the lighting system. The interior decorating was the work of Messrs. C. Kleinstreuber and Ed Wright and it is particularly attractive.

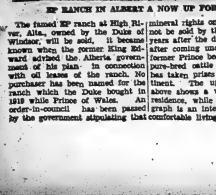
A contest is being conducted by Mr. Quinn to secure a new name for his theatre.

Mr. Quinn is to be congratulated on his enterprise and business acumen which ensures for Tweed an opportunity to see the most recent pictures at popular prices and places Tweed in the forefront in this respect and further enhances its reputation as an up-to-date Ontario village

Miss Evelyn Coy, Mr. Stephen Peverell and Mr. Jas. Young, of Oshawa, were Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Gordon.

THE SAFE, SENSIBLE WAY TO RELIEVE CONSTIPATION

Every one knows the dangers of constipation. Pills and drugs usually bring only temporary relief. That's, because common constipation is due to meals low in "bulk."



Kellogg's ALL-BRAN contains "bulk" that does not break down in the body as does that of many leafy vegetables. ALL-BRAN absorbs twice its weight in water and forms a soft mass that gently sponges the intestines.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is a food—not a medicine. In addition to "bulk"—it gives vitamin B to tone up the system, and iron for the blood. It is a healthful way to get rid of constipation and all its evils.

Eat two tablespoonfuls daily with milk or cream—three times a day in severe cases. Or use it in making bran muffins, breads, in salads or soups. Guaranteed by Kellogg in London.

REDNERSVILLE

The Rednersville Guild held their annual meeting at Fair Haven Cottage on Friday evening of last week and was well attended.

The report submitted by the secretaries of both Guild and Dorcas branch of the church work were very edifying and enthusiastically received. They stated a fine increase in revenue over last year, with a fine interest in their work. The talent moneys had all been met, also that the Missionary allotment was exceeded. And the Dorcas branch under Mrs. Alex Dickie showed considerable increase over the previous year. Plans were made for this year's work. The meeting closed in the usual way, With the exception of a new treasurer nominated by Mrs. Embury Adams, moving to Belleville, whom they all regret losing as her helpful willingness and cheerful personality will be greatly missed in the meetings of the Guild, the officers are the same with Mrs. Robert gabcock remaining President and Secretary of the organized year.

Holiday Surprise

Quilting is quite the order of the day just now, and a fine afternoon, recently was arranged by the Guild last meeting with a surprise tea in honor of Mrs. Will Peck, the secretary, it being her birthday. Mrs. Harry Dempsey made and presented a very fine quilt block following out the color scheme in the gaily lighted candles which presented a very gay effect as the quilters entered the living room for refreshments. Mrs. Frank Dempsey poured tea, with Mrs. Gilmour and Mrs. Harry Dempsey assisting.

On Tuesday an all day quilting party was given by Mrs. Will Peck of Albury. At 12.30 the guests were invited to a charming arranged luncheon, most artistic in its appointments. Coy and merry was the chatter, but later the needles did fly merrily along, and much was accomplished by evening time.

The Rednersville Institute had a splendid meeting on Thursday, followed by a delightfully arranged tea in the library rooms. The large room looked very pretty with potted plants in bloom. The tea table with its spring blossoms and lighted candles was attractive indeed and presided over by Mrs. Blanch Anderson who poured tea with Mrs. Ernest Adams, Mrs. Harold Ward, Mrs. Sills, assisting. Mrs. Earl Onderdonk, Miss Ruth Williamson and Miss Hobbs serving the abundance of refreshments. A very profitable and enjoyable time was had by all present, and a nice little sum was added to the library needs.

NEWS!

News ever has been the forerunner of progress. Civilization advanced, industry developed, trade and commerce expanded as facilities for circulating news improved.

When John Bushell published the first Canadian newspaper at Halifax in 1752 the inns and coffee houses of the scattered Canadian settlements were the principal sources of news. There the pioneers foregathered to gossip about personal and community affairs and to discuss the problems of their trades. Anyone unable to attend knew little or nothing of events beyond his immediate environment.

Bushell proposed to print the news and make it available to all. The first issue of his Halifax Gazette was a single sheet of paper printed on both sides. It contained a publisher's foreword, a few items of local interest, some foreign and colonial news. (most of it six months old), and three advertisements.

Modest as the venture was, it expressed an ideal of public service which endured.

Soon newspapers were established in other communities. Constantly this service has been extended until now the daily newspapers of Canada bring to every citizen the latest news of people, events and achievements in all parts of the world.

The first Canadian newspaper had seventy-two subscribers; today in more than two million homes throughout the country at least one daily newspaper is read.

Without this day-to-day record of social, economic and political affairs at home and abroad, progress would be retarded and the welfare of the individual and the nation seriously impaired.

Little Benny's Note Book

Me and Gilasses Magee each had a cent and we went around to Mommy Simmins's store and each bawt 3 gumdrops and Mommy Simmins put them in 2 small size bags for us and we wawked along starting to eat them and all of a sudden I looked in my bag, saying, Holey smokes I got 4 in here, she went and gave me 4.

O, hay, Glasses said. And he quick looked in his bag, saying, I only got 3, jeez.

And he started to look jellus saying, She proberly stuck it in there to test your honesty, and if you eat it she'll always put in one of everything after this, and when you go back and tell her she'll say, How about the time I put in one too many and you ate it, it's a mistake or not, he said.

Sounding like the best idea yet, and Glasses went and came back again, saying, She says it was a mistake but she says you can keep it anyways and she says she must need new glasses. How about giving me half for lying? he said.

Why I did, and we each enjoyed our half more than our 3 honest gumdrops put together.

BODY SILHOUETTED IN LIGHTED SHOE STORE

Roupn, Que., March 2 (CP)—The stark silhouette against a curtained window, the body of Sebastien Rastelski, 40, was found hanging last night in his lighted shoe store in full view of Main Street crowds.

Fifteen hundred persons, milling in the street outside the building, watched as the body was cut down after police had smashed through the glass in the store's locked door.

The Italian had been dead several nine hours, doctors estimated. The store light had been left on when he apparently leaped from the counter, and when darkness closed down the light threw his body into bold relief against the window.

HP RANCH IN ALBERT A NOW UP FOR SALE

The famed HP ranch at High River, Alta., owned by the late R. N. Windsor, will be sold, it became known when the former King Edward advised the Alberta government of his plan in connection with oil leases of the ranch. No purchaser has been named for the ranch which the Duke bought in 1919 while Prince of Wales. An order-in-council has been passed by the government stipulating that mineral rights on the ranch would not be sold by the province for 10 years after the disposal. The ranch after coming under control of the former Prince began specializing in pure-bred cattle and his livestock has taken prizes all over the continent. The upper photograph above shows a view of the ranch residence, while the lower photograph is an interior view of the comfortable living room.

Fainting — a Racket

About sundown last September 23, homeward bound office workers thronging the sidewalks in downtown Rochester paused to witness a pathetic incident.

Across the rumble seat of a battered little roadster drawn up to the curb were four grimy, ragged youngsters, two dogs and a cat; in the front seat sat a white man and an Indian woman, the latter nursing an eight-months-old baby.

As the crowds surged past, the woman alighted from the car took a few faltering steps, rolled her eyes heavenward and collapsed on the sidewalk, still clutching the infant.

Women screamed and men crowded close around the prostrate woman offering assistance. When she struggled to her feet $27 in coins and bills had been pressed into her hand.

But one man in the crowd—the traffic policeman—wasn't impressed. He detained the family and called headquarters.

At the welfare shelter Mary Copley Carpenter, 36, a Cherokee Indian, told a frank story of her 16 years of married life with the man whom she wed in Chillicothe, Ont.

She said they had spent those 13 years roaming the country from coast to coast. In practically every city in America she had practiced a trick—fainting in public is and each time had collected a minimum of $20 from sympathetic onlookers.

Promptly, a Rochester judge sent Edward Carpenter, 38, to prison for vagrancy. Carpenter's "squaw" and her children—all of whom were born between the ages of and without benefit of a physician—were scored into a home for the orphans of the city, were provided with clothing, food and fuel by the state welfare agency.

Today Edward Carpenter walked free—and into the arms of welfare officials. "Go to work or get out of town," they told him coldly.

Alone in the kitchen of her little home Mrs. Carpenter prepared a welcoming meal for him. "I still love him," she said. "The fainting idea was mine. I wasn't very good at it at first but when the babies began to come along I did better. I guess I fainted a thousand times all together and was only caught one time."—Buffalo Times.

The African Riddle

The African is said to have no gratitude. If you give your native servant a shirt, his thanks will be a formality and tomorrow he will ask for a pair of pants. It was upon his head by asking for another. On the other hand, if you make a stake that is about to bile his head the servant will become your best friend. He will defend you to his acquaintances and, on emergency will shoot that he is prepared to suffer on your behalf.

He is grateful for service, if not for gifts. This attitude seems curious, but it is highly practicable in application (and so to his religion). In the African family, the property of any one member is at the disposal of any other. The rich must look after the poor, if a man returns to the village from work with five pounds saved, his uncles and aunts and cousins will take every penny of it from him if they are in need of clothes.

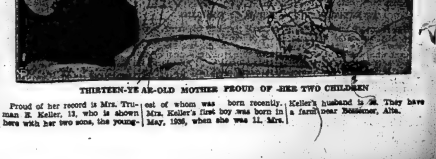
When you engaged that servant you thought his protector, his first relation, and the gift of a shirt to him is not so much a kindness as a duty. The gift—or your understanding of the matter—is misconstrued. But it is nothing to make a fuss about. The fact that the white man has such notions of duty and gratitude will not miss one shirt merely because the recipient has the gift.

On the other hand, you saved his child, and service is not obligatory between members of the family. A sick man's relations will often let him die in his hut rather than go to the trouble of carrying him in a blanket a few miles to hospital. Service to them is a gift for which one is grateful. It is not that the African does not understand gratitude, but that we do not understand his gratitude...

Now the case of the African living away from his tribal area is very different, unless he is a man of good character, it is a safe gamble he will deteriorate. It is a commonplace that, generally speaking, the African is a very much nicer person in his own home than he is in "foreign" surroundings, and by this I mean not only European surroundings, but even the area of another tribe.



If this deterioration were restricted to European surroundings it would be very much to our credit, a caution to the bad example set by many of the white men with whom the African comes into contact. There is some justice in this accusation, but it is also fact that members of another tribe living among strangers of their village do not make good citizens. There must be something which demoralizes people once they have left their homes, and since even a confirmed criminal seems to reform when he returns home, something which prevents civilized peoples while they are in their own country. The answer is, I think, to find the customs which embody it.

The tribal or family spirits never leave the neighborhood, as soon as a native goes over the tribal boundary he is automatically released from their domination. There is nothing to restrain him except his own character—formed by the disciplins of his religion—and the force of law and order set up by the white man. If he steals and can evade the police, no malady is likely to assail him.

The problem is an urgent one. There is only one remote answer, Christianity. That is the only adequate substitute. Meanwhile, it will help if we can begin to understand the African, and it is the hope to contributing something to that task that I have dared to commit to paper these tentative ideas.—Empire Review.

R. C. A. F. Flyers Gain Edge In Quest of Hockey Title by Winning over Point Edward

Score is 3-2 But Flyers Leave Ice With Many Bruises

REFEREE ATTACKED

Two Teams Meet in Belleville Wednesday in Second Game

By BEN J. COLLINS

Sarnia, Mar. 3—In a brulaing battle, that saw high sticks and heavy body checking featured and Referee Roy Reynolds pugnaciously attacked by a mad irritated mob after the game, the R.C.A.F. Flyers last night defeated by a third period rally to score two goals and go on to protect their lead and defeat the Point Edward Chain Shirts" by the score of 3 to 2 in the first game of the Intermediate O.H.A. Hockey Series. The contest here Monday night with the second game scheduled to be played in Belleville on Wednesday night in a two out of three game series, the Flyers enjoying the advantage of the odd game, when they take to the ice on the home rink.

Skipping Veterans

The Point Edward squad, a team of slipping veterans, that has seen the roughest aggregation of pucksters encountered by the Flyers on their barnstorming tours towards the intermediate championship, The "Red Shirts" proved a hard bruising team, who carry high sticks for cross checks, wooden neck ties around the throats of any player who let's ice be a battle-scarred team, but victorious. Setting up a skirting defence that was a splendid exhibition of goal-keeping by Lorris Gibson, Stan Partridge and Johnnie Lalonde, played cool steady hockey, taking the abuse of their opponents in good humor, while the locals's rushes always proved dangerous, while Partridge renewed his old time defensive form of yesteryears. Of the forwards the McNeeley twins starred, with Bobby Lalonde a valuable man used by either squad. Lowrey's poke-checking at centre and Lecompte's offensive play stood out for the winners. Some 1,500 fans, an error-fine crowd saw the "Flyers" lead at the end of the initial frame one to nothing, the teams tied one all at the end of the second stanza and the Flyers out-scoring the homesters one lucky one in the last frame to win a well-earned and hard fought victory.

Laid on God

Determined to blast their way to victory the Point Edward squad laid on the god from the outset, and continually cross checked any body-checker the Flyers' to it, three sones and interpersonal continued and heated and there were seldom checked by Referee Reynolds for their repeated illegal checks against the private citizens from the Flyer players, who took the punishment in good part and were rewarded in victory. The Point Edward team played the man instead of the puck for the first few interference times and therein lies one of the secrets of their undoing.

The Flyers' squad by sheer doubtless the biggest and most balanced squad that have been seen this year, but speed and ability triumphed over brute strength and illegal body checking. Rushes that had been heralded as invincible, proved no mystery to the Flyers, although the ice became sticky in the last half, which made combination passes, clever and abounding that resembled polo or golf. Patterson and Manore gave a splendid account of their wares on defence, Manore, a cool veteran with hair tinged with grey playing steady hockey.

Prudence Always Dangerous

Prudence and Manning looked the best of the starting line, the former always proving dangerous and his efforts to split the defence. Wood was doubtless the fastest man used by to "Red Shirts", but his efforts were mitigated by continued rough play, the latter always walking around with a chip on his shoulder all evening. Prance, a burly red-headed gent of much poundage, proved more of a deterrent to his team than an asset with his repeated charges, although he always escaped the eye of Referee Reynolds, who brought the wrath of both teams upon his head, when the game got out of hand towards the latter stages. Levan and Rutter played steady hockey.

Rink Poorly Lighted

On a small rink very poorly lighted, the game speeded with body checking from the opening whistle, at every available opportunity. Point Edward outset, Partridge and Lalonde had the homesters shooting from outside the defence zone, Gibson and Harris successfully booted out numerous shots from close range as the game progressed, with a bruising brand of hockey, with body-checking in all times across being permitted and high sticks prevalent."Gibson was twice struck in the eye during the game, blood being drawn both times. Lalonde and Partridge also received cuts, the period, while Eric McNeely, and Lowrey were good, with Prudence, Lorne and Gibson in the Point Edward at times. The small ice was a handicap to the Flyers, the Lecompte skids the rubber to centre, skated to the defence, passed forward, with Lalonde taking the pass to side-step Patterson and beat Harris at close range.

Cautious Hockey

Leading by one, the "Flyers" played cautious hockey, prior to the middle stanza, Gibson rising to block a shot from Lalonde, brought Harris to his knees with his hard drive. Patterson was holding Lowrey, when Referee Reynolds called referee Reynolds-Filed Lowrey off the ice, power plays were on with Point Edward scoring, the Flyers being short-handed. After spilling the puck around in the Flyers' zone, Levan batted Patterson's passout behind Gibson for a score knotting the count. The Red Shirts again applied a power play, without result, however Eric McNeely drew an undeserved penalty after being attacked from the rear by Prance, Ted being in the box two minutes old before any scoring was in evidence, although both opened on the offensive but the latter was made good hockey impossible. Lecompte was checked by Lalonde and Partridge and although the Flyers had five on the attack, Harris rose to occasions and made numerous sensational saves, no scoring being registered as Levan returned.

Lecompte Scores Second

Then the McNeeley twins took possession and got inside the defence to shoot, Lecompte shifting through to Lalonde, who relayed and put the Flyers one up. A melee followed, Stan Partridge broke away, passed at the defence man, Eric McNeley, who blazed a bullet-like drive past Lorris Gibson. With the score standing 3 to 1 for the Flyers, the homsters moved five forward and the Flyers, on opportunity Gibson, a busy session, broke through, scoring on a pass from Rutter during a scramble. There were numerous pile-ups in the Flyers' zone, Gibson's work being unbeatable. Although Chute covered after a whistle, no goal was permitted. Lalonde in the crease this play being what the home fans considered to be the last minute, when Dan Cowley played his last hockey, Referee Reynolds was set upon by the Point Edward players, the game are given quite a rough passage out of the band-box rink here.

MEET TORONTO

Winners Show Fine Passing Game With Many Plays

In a game which developed into a scoring parade, Kingston Y.M.C.A. defeated Belleville Intermediates from the Eastern Ontario picture last night, by a score of 36 to 14. The Kingston squad had previously won the first game of the play-off series by a one-point margin. In winning the second game, Gibson Allen and Harris successfully booted out numerous shots from close range as the game progressed with a bruising brand of hockey, with body-checking in all times across being permitted and high sticks prevalent."Gibson was twice struck in the eye during the game, blood being drawn both times. Lalonde and Partridge also received cuts, the period, while Eric McNeely, and Lowrey were good, with Prudence, Lorne and Gibson in the Point Edward at times. The small ice was a handicap to the Flyers, the Lecompte skids the rubber to centre, skated to the defence, passed forward, with Lalonde taking the pass to side-step Patterson and beat Harris at close range.

STIRLING TEAM MAKES PLAYOFFS

Win Over Tweed 6-4 And Meet Belleville Sailors in Semi-Finals

Stirling March 2 (Special)—A six to four victory over Tweed in the last scheduled game of the season put Stirling in third place in the league standing of the Trent Valley District League. In this position they will face the league leaders, Belleville Sailors, in the first round of the play-offs, while Tweed will meet the Trenton Golden Hawks at Madoc. The last scheduled game was played in Stirling on Monday night and though it was thought by many that both teams would be in the play-offs the game was necessary to established the fact of who would meet who in the semi-finals. A fair crowd was in attendance to see the game, which was fast and clean with a smattering of brilliance displayed by the players for both squads.

The Game

McGuire registered the first counter early after the first face-off, but Tweed tied the score a few minutes later when he took a pass from Jones. Both teams were playing a fast game and incidentally his first of the season. When he took a pass from Harry Ingram the first period ended with Stirling one up. Robinson increased the Stirling margin to two, when he beat Thompson on a pass from Ingram. Tweed scored the next counter with Morton getting through the entire Stirling team to put one, when he took a nice pass from Robinson. Marsh climaxed a pretty bit of play in the last frame when he beat Fox to make it 5-2 for Stirling, and Tweed failed to score a game, Stirling 6 Tweed 4.

Stirling—Thompson, Goodwin and McGuire were the pick of the Stirling team. Robinson, Ingram, Fraser and Ingram looking the best for the locals.

Tweed—Fox was picked up from nowhere at the opening of the season by Manager Bill Reddick and rounded in a real threat for the championship and their chance of being in there at the finish though up to now has seemed rather remote took a sudden jump with their win over Tweed. They have beaten all teams in the league but Belleville Sailors with whom they battled to a draw. With this "hustling seamen" should provide plenty of thrills.

Lineups:

Stirling: Goal, Fox; defence, Ingram and Delaney; centre, Robinson; wings, Fraser and Rodgers; subs, Weir, Morton, Butler, Reid and Jones.

Tweed: Goal, Thompson; defence, Tummon and Tummon; Counneyea; wings, McGuire and Marsh; subs, Leal, Elaboy and Long.

Referee: Harry Conley, Stirling.

That military-looking bloke seen in and around the tropical spaces of Florida during the sporting year, Very, Oh very red face, is none other than Brigadier Gen. Critchley of Strathcona horse fame.....

The reason for the Brigadier's ardour, which was not put on by a Florida sun, was the result of the world's amateur championship series held over 'nine last week.....

The gen. made the boast that his English hockey squads could take the measure of any U.S. or Canadian champion, then owed to make the trip.....Then along came the Kitchener Panthers who not only exploded Critchley's theory but blasted a picked team of English hockey players, who swear in a familiar Canadian manner, clear out of the title..... They left us, that game was a hoxey.....Why the Brigadier didn't simply throw bottles on the ice..... They heard rumors about the Canadian style of face with practically everything but money..... And knowing this, they didn't even bother as far as to swing a left at the amateurs' referee.....The English press blamed the newsprint on a crowd of forecasters who were there, and blamed the noise on fifty Canadian Jack Tars who rooted for their team in the vicinity of the Maple Leaf.....

It looks as though the hockey supremacy won by the Canadian squad wearing the English colors will be a long-drawn-out affair, not settled.....So did the famous British Lion by fair play and good sportsmanship.....It's hard to imagine a stolical British player blaming the referee.....when an outstanding play occurred, and the referee was the only one in the referee..... Some of those minute rules would be jolted clean out of their izzedom and loud cheers by their over play and the world of a typical Canadian game.....

Mebbe Gen. Critchley will change his mind about hockey after all..... Or make a deal with the Dyas-inters..... It's O.K. with us, Critchley.....Let's see him, and we'll breed 'em.....

That Canuck who said that "the Yankees would have to find them on the bottom to raise hockey players, following the Major League baseball Chicago Hawk fame, announcement that none but American players would be used by the Hawks, must have started something..... Like a man from the blue American A.A.U. clamped down on official hoor and has made Canadian hockey players from playing in the U.S.A..... It might be, and it wouldn't be, that Reubien of the A.A.U. is purposing the starving of the Yanks of home-brew players..... Seventy-five Canadians would mean like to the Immigration Offices at the end of the current season on their way to Canada, and the Yankees would likely be "On where, Oh where is my little dog gone."

Or mebbe the Yanks have lost a little prestige since they sent Quartermaster Washington to the set-up half of the big game in 1914-18 between an all-star European team, and the Mackinac Island Commandos.....As Tim Daly says "Abe Lincoln had Harry Ingram to help him and freed the slaves. This year their descendants won the Stanley Cup for Lester Jim Patrickson is threatened by Louis on the one side and Barney on the other, and he that as it may, our southern friends may have to "paddle their own hockey feet" until all the little Uncle Sams learn to play the game.

A hockey puck, and knock the old man's pipe out of his mouth with a slimmy shot before they can say Goo Goo.....

x x x

Here's a dilly from the sunny South, a dilly of a hockey story that was the captain of the local basketball squad, surprised a gang of robbers who were looting a store in game. He shot it out with them and completely routed the gang in their tracks. Calling his deputies, he gave orders to "Get the robbers, line-up, rough-box, nitched up his pants, lit a cigarette and went home whistling a Hittin' All My Yeggs In One Casket."

x x x

Not only did the American A.A.U. clamp down on their Canadian pros, but they aped one of our athletic associations when they suspended the Baltimore Orioles baseball service.....They also put the boo on all their players who had anything to cross sticks with them.....Tsk. Tsk. Tsk. Instead of getting all excited stuff in the land of the free, the Canadian Orioles merely smiled at the latest move of the A.A.U. and continued to play the game as they knew it, and as it should be played.....Which is a powerful team composed of Maritime and Ontario pucksters.....

And stiling up there in the midst of them and one of their stars is Harry Nicol.....Remember him?

.....He was the star rubber dunker with the Collie Pitcairn squad which operated around these here parts a few years ago. He's alone so bright that they changed him from a small Canadian Nicol to a big American one..... Now that the American A.A.U. have gone off their high-standard, Harry may be forced to look for his pennies elsewhere.

U. S. TEAMS PLAN TO DEFY UNION

Will Play Out Schedule in Defiance of Edict Issued

New York March 2 (CP)—Teams in the Eastern United States Amateur Hockey League, composed mainly of Canadians, planned today to complete the regular schedule including games against the suspended Baltimore Orioles in defiance of an edict of the United States Amateur Athletic Union.

The Orioles whose suspension was announced yesterday by Frederick Rubien, chairman of the A.A.U. registration committee, because they had not secured A.A.U. registration, will be met by the Boston Bear tonight.

Intermediate Manager Sam McCallister of the Orioles said he had assurances from other teams in the league that the schedule would be continued, even though such action might result in the officials' suspension of other teams.

Rubien, announcing suspension of the Orioles with announcement the A.A.U., was unwilling to grant transfer agreement with the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association which has jurisdiction in certain number of Canadian players on the Baltimore team, Rubien said that as the C.A.H.A. had no longer affiliated with the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, the agreement was no longer in force.

This opinion brought from trade circles the statement the existing loop would consider setting itself up as the governing body and function outside the jurisdiction of the A.A.U.

LAST NOT HEARD OF BIG FIGHT IN GAME SATURDAY

One of The Gendarmes Gives Report of Affair to Superior

DIFFERENT VERSIONS

Lionel Conacher Alleged to Have Rapped a Spectator

(By A. E. Fulford)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New Ideas don't appear so often in hockey management that they can be discarded lightly, particularly so potent a weapon against unruly players and crowds as the lately developed move of playing the National Anthem.

It is not got be too imaginative to picture its use in the National League, with quick as a flash fist fight suggestions. Of course, there will be many who object to so utilitarian use for the anthem, but apart arian all that the idea has its point.

It was used first Friday night in London to quiet the crowd during a young riot in the England-Canada game of the world amateur championships. Last night they played it twice in Sydney, Nova Scotia, to break up a fight between players and between spectators and players in an amateur game.

Might Not Work

Just how it would work in the N.H.L. is problematical, promising it is ever tried in the pro ranks. Some of the players usually behave themselves very well. Forbes Kennedy, Toronto manager, probably would consider a possible foiling of opportunity to get at Tompkins continuing to poke-check the "Red Shirts" in a state of nervous collapse, too, but the appeal to the arena prepared to welcome some of the best fights of the season.

Hockey Report

And more may be heard too about the Saturday night affair when referee Marcon defenceman, had earlier in the afternoon officiated at the sports affair about the affair and the action was so quick observers were not able to count it all.

One story has it that the spectator who was struck down by Conacher was a man who had been rapped in the head with a hockey stick. The spectator says, that the stick was caught under his arm and that he released it when he could.

Then, according to his story, Conacher jumped on him, thereby opening a two-stitch wound. One can only speculate on what would have happened had the National Anthem started as Lionel began his attack.

Perhaps it would be better to get away from the anthem and find something more appropriate for the duty of separating fighting hockey players.

Referee Scott Herbert of Black Hawks were scrapping in the game at Chicago Stadium Saturday would play "Goodnight, My Love" and it might have a soothing effect on the Hoolians.

Popular Ales Might Help

Or Lionel Conacher and Eddie Goodfellow might tangle when Maroons play Rangers in Montreal tonight. Can't you imagine the crowd's reaction when they decided to beat time to "I've got you under my skin"?

Still Mr. Conacher probably will have little time for waltzing this evening. He needs one more point to make up for his lead in Toronto Saturday. Lionel crept up to within a point of the Montreaers' runners-up position in the Canadian Division and tonight presents an opportunity of getting it back as the Leafs are idle.

The Chicago game may put a definite end to any lingering hope Hawks may have to get into the Stanley Cup play-offs. If they don't win they have but even an infinitesimal chance of finishing in the first three. A tie won't do them any good.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

REDMEN LEAVE TO PLAY WHITBY

Return Game to be Played in Belleville Arena on Friday

With high hopes the . Belleville "Redmen" left this city this afternoon for Whitby where they will play the first game of a two game series, goals to count in the International Finals. The second game of the series will be played in Belleville Arena on Friday night.

The series should be a torrid one as both teams are reported to be in a bitter struggle for four games last winter before the Whitby squad emerged victorious. The Red Wings will be out to even the score and the Belleville team could be rated pretty high. The local squad is reported to be in good shape and is rumored the Whitby crew is a little tougher so the series should be quite a thriller. The Belleville team has not had as stiff a struggle in their group as the Red Wings, they are nevertheless a smooth working crew and ready to go sixty minutes at top speed. Eddie Thomas, who guides the local squad, is one of the best Wait in goal and if he plays back to his game in Norwood, he should be tough for the Whitby snipers. Eddie Dick and Bill Hunter round out a strong hard hitting defence and Hawke and Bill Hall are expected. Harry Ingram will help out in the defence and the veteran is still tough to go around.

Up front St. Louis, Morgan and Hartage will form one line while the Jackson brothers and "Honey" Tamblin will supply the power in the second trio. This second line should be the best in the league in spite of trouble, while "Buster" Whitton will add a punch to the attack. Whitton is a fast puck plenty of speed, can play any type of game and has an excellent chance of downing the Red Wings. If the locals hold the Whitby squad to a one or two goal lead in Whitby tonight they will have a big edge in Belleville tonight as the latter is tough for the visitors down in this city on Friday night. The seat sale will be opened on Wednesday night and the fans should support this city's representatives in the hockey firmament.

Sport Callings

By Ken Colling

These hovering Flyers deserved their victory at Point Edward last night if any team ever did. They took two beatings one at the hands of a bruising, rough, ragged band of veterans, who are slipping, through the advancement of old age, and the other at the hands of a referee so keen to keep their way to their objective, and secondly at the hands of Referee Roy Reynolds, who as a referee proved highly inefficient to hold these hoary opponents in line. Flyers who were on the receiving end of the game will bow to a unbalanced offensive in an effort to pull the game out of the fire.

The Ontario Baseball Amateur Association is preparing for another season of baseball and the annual bulletin, which is at hand contains many suggestions for the betterment of ball in the Province. The annual meeting will be held in Toronto, the home of the Ontario senior champions, on April 3rd and there will no doubt be a large representation from the various Central Ontario at the gabfest. Any suggestions for alterations, amendments or proposed changes in the constitution should be forwarded at once early to the secretary, W. J. Snyder in Hamilton. Any player, that means a player who has played should immediately notify the secretary and the league or individual club with kindly send along "two bucks". The annual meeting of the executive should be forwarded not later than March 25th. Eddie Gilbert, who is also the O.B.A.A. president of the C.O.B.L. are going for re-election by the central east of Toronto should vote solidly for these two fellows as both fields have done a lot for baseball in the east.

Eddie Thomas leads his Intermediate "A" squad into action tonight at Whitby in the first game of a two game series that is going for the Provincial playdowns. The acquisition of Harry Whitton will materially help the "Redmen" and the series will certainly be a torrid one. The Whitby squad has disposed of the Redmen last year in a four game series but only by a slight edge. It is whispered the Whitby crew gathered in more than a few bucks and a much stronger than last year but the same holds true for the locals. The second return game will be played in Belleville on Friday evening and every local fan in the district should be in the Arena to help the team over the hard spot.

Napanee C. I. Hockey Team Wins Senior School Group Defeating Locals on Round

Win Here Last Night 3-1 And Cop Round 6-3

SMART PUCKSTERS

Team Will Enter School Playdowns at London Soon

Walt Gerow's orange-and-blue-clad pucksters from Napanee Collegiate Institute won the championship of the Bay or Quinte Interscholastic Senior Hockey series at the Arena here last night when they defeated the Belleville Collegiate Institute by a 3-1 score to win the round by 6-3, having defeated the local students in Napanee last Friday night by a 3-2 score.

The winners will journey to London in the near future where they will engage in an elimination tournament with squads from Georgian Bay, Niagara Peninsula, Central Ontario and the Ottawa Valley to decide the Interscholastic Senior champions of Ontario.

Wide open hockey featured the first two periods of the game with the locals skirting desperately in the first period to knot the count on the round. A sustained offensive on the part of the Bellevillians met with success at the thirteen minute mark in the initial period when Logie slimmed a fast side rush with a goal he sailed clear through the Napanee defence.

Both squads sent four man attacks whistling into enemy territory in an effort to break the deadlock and both goalies were extended to keep the fiying attackers out. The Napanee defence paid too much attention in the first two periods to the point with the result that the Bellevillians parked on Moore's doorstep to almost wide or be bamfized by the smothering tactics of the goalie.

O'Neill, Belleville right-winger, drew down the official wrath when he slammed Gerow and the Orange and Blue put on the pressure. A few minutes later Miller got too affectionate with Gilbert and cooled off in the fifteen to think it over. Napanee gauged the play but were held scoreless.

Visitors Tie Score

The visitors sent four men on the attack in the second period and Leary nearly scored when he broke through only to have Hughes come out and make a fine save of his hard shot. Napanee continued the pressure and were rewarded at the sixteen minute mark when Gilbert, flashy centre, lifted the rubber over the goalkeeper's head from in front of the Belleville net.

Apparently heartened by their success, the visitors again swept in to the attack and with successful passing thrust inside the Belleville blue line went into the lead, when Gerow drove home the rubber from a pass from Gilbert.

The third period saw a desperate Belleville gang unleash a furious offensive, but their attacks were confined mainly to individual rushes. The visitors established a three man defence and resorted to shooting the rubber from length from the start of the period. Their defence tightened up and used their bodies with telling effect, although the homesters were outclassed on several occasions, when close in. The pace told on the teams near the end of the period and play slowed up considerably. Gilbert got the game on ice with thirty seconds to go when he dunked the rubber from Gerow's pass in front of the Belleville net. Gerow, Gilbert and Switzer were well for the winners with Arscott, Logie and Hughes standing out for the homesters.

The teams:

Napanee—Goal, Moore; defence, Switzer, Exley; centre, Gilbert; wings, Gerow, Leary; subs, Barrett, Culhane, Paul, Hobson, Rice.

Belleville C. I.—Goal, Hughes; defence, Logie, O'Neill; centre, Arscott; wings, Hoxie, Rowbotham; subs, Muir, Adams, Miller, Bishop, Cullinane.

WESTERN RINKS HOLD AN EDGE

Manitoba, Saskatchewan And Alberta Win Their Matches

Toronto, March 2.—(CP)—Their ice mastery unquestioned, convincing in victory and impressive in defeat, western rinks held a distinct edge today over Eastern entrants as the second round of the Dominion Curling Championships got under way.

Even in this second day of the 1937 bonspiel in which are entered 10 of Canada's crack rinks the Manitoba's Brier, Tankard appeared destined, again, to go to a western province with young Jimmy Welsh of Winnipeg favored to win the titular emblem.

The west made almost a clean sweep in yesterday's first-round matches. Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta had little difficulty in winning their first games of the Round-Robin series. And only a single point brought defeat to British Columbia's representatives.

Manitoba turned back Quebec 16-6 in the first round, the only one played yesterday, Alberta defeated Northern Ontario 10-7 and Saskatchewan pushed Prince Edward Island aside by a 22-7 score as Ontario was administering a 16-3 defeat to New Brunswick. The pole-throbbing game of the day was Nova Scotia's 9-8 win over British Columbia.

(By The Canadian Press)

Ontario Hockey fans may bemoan the fact that year by year the Province's senior teams are becoming fewer and fewer but they certainly can't complain, that the small 1936-37 crop is failing to give full value. The pucksters are doing so much overtime work in playoffs they'll soon be spoiling their followers.

Two Kirkland Lake clubs, finalists in the Gold Belt League of the Northern Ontario Association, are proving bears for the greatest punishment. The Battlers-Tekinas Red Flyers and Lake Shore Blue Devils —were supposed to play a two-game 120-minute series for the League title and the right to meet Frood Mine in N.O.H.A. finals. So far they've played three big games and a total of 360 minutes—tonight they'll clash again.

In the first of the finals last Thursday, Flyers and Devils went 60 minutes to a 3-all score. No extra time was played because the round is on a total-goal basis. When 60 minutes had passed in the second meeting Saturday however, they started into added time and went 20 more minutes to another 3-all draw.

Bruised and tired, they stepped on the ice again last night. When Armstrong and Oliver gave Lake Shore a 2-0 lead in the first period it looked as if the series was finally coming to an end. But Campbell of Tekinas scored in the second session and spectators wondered if this fray would require more time, too. It seemed only natural when Swayze tied up the round again in the third.

Called It Off

Matters seemed to be pretty much in control of the fates as the game wore on. At the end of 80 minutes of play officials decided to call it a night and to send the rivals back at one another tonight they'll fight to a finish this time—if that's possible—and the winner will have to take on Frood Thursday and Saturday.

The N.O.H.A.'s affiliate, the Ontario Hockey Association, seems to have taken a page from the Kirkland Lake scene. Three for semi-finalists of the Toronto and York Metcalfe League, only O.H.A. Senior A Group put on a marathon last night. Fifteen minutes three periods of overtime to defeat Consols 1-0 and force a third game. The winner will oppose Goodyears in finals.

Two Weyburn, Sask., products were heroes of the grind. Len Lorne combined with Dillon Brady to score Dominions' only goal after just less than two minutes of the sixth period.

Cornwall Flyers have taken up the fad. After losing the first game of Ottawa Senior City League finals to Rideau 2-0 Saturday, they played a determined overtime stand on home ice last night. When three additional periods had been played the game was tied at 3-all. The series is on a best-in-five basis and will be resumed in Ottawa tomorrow.

The O.H.A.'s intermediate championships are also eligible for Senior playdowns and Point Edward Redmen made a public effort to carry on the overtime motif as they started finals in the Intermediate A series last night against the Flyers.

Fans Attack Referee

The Airmen were leading 3-2 with less than three minutes to play, when Charlie Levan beat Gilmon in the Airmen's net. The crowd's enthusiasm was short-lived, though, for Referee Roy Reynolds called it back for offside and Trenton was returned winner in the first of the best-in-three series, without so much as one overtime session.

Fans attacked Reynolds, former Queen's University Football Captain and a member of the Ontario Hockey Association Executive, as he left the rink and he needed police protection. The second game will be played at Belleville Wednesday.

When all this overtime business is over, the Intermediate A tilters will play Port Colborne, only Senior A team in the province the winner of that series will play the N.O.H.A. victor for the right to oppose the O.H.A. Senior A survivor in Allan Cup playdowns. Eight now Frood Mine, which has lost only one game all season, is being regarded as a heavy favorite, largely because its players are only standing and waiting.

BAND TATOO ON VICTORIA DAY

Kiwanis Club Sponsors Big Musical Event For May 24th

Sponsorship of a band tattoo to be held in Victoria Park on Monday, May 24th, has been decided upon by the Kiwanis Executive, it was announced at the meeting of the club on Thursday night. "We hope to bring bands from as far west as Hamilton and Brantford and from far to the east. Our plans include a fine fireworks production.

Mr. Jack McVeigh is in charge of the committee working out the details with Mr. Fred Jobson, leading the band of the Salvation Army.

Last year, Mr. Jobson organized a festival which proved a big success while a number of bands. The Kiwanis plan is to greatly extend the scope of the event. This will be a real tattoo.

A feature that is to be charged, had been creating a disturbance on the streets and in several stores, is also taken in. Both will face charges at the next session of Police Court.

The transient properties system must have issued a warning, stated Chief Kidd last night, concerning on the lack of overnight visitors in the 24 hours ending at 8 o'clock as six transients the other day, we have not been troubled much with transient properties during the night.

Only two knights of the road sighted the cell-block hospitality, last night.

CO-OPERATIVES ARE SEEN AS HOPE

Mr. Douglas Bews Speaks to Members of Y's Men's Club

Last night, Mr. Douglas Bews, resident of the Belleville College addressed the Y's Men's club, at the Y.M.C.A. supper. The topic chosen by Mr. Bews was The Co-operatives and a comparison with the "fascist".

Mr. Bews said that in the next few years there will be a great change in the world. If this change then should we fear communism and fascism? No, we do not. Co-operatives are useful because if we travel along the path of worry, financial disaster, strife, etc., which are characteristic of communism and fascism we will have to have recourse to more co-operative government.

In speaking on Sweden, he drew points, Mr. Bews took as examples the countries of Sweden, Denmark and Norway, countries which have come through the depression and have come out with a more prosperous economic problem by purely democratic methods. These countries would have solved these problems and because they had the co-operatives to help them as aims, there is no fear of communism or fascism and so there could be no fear of revolution in other democratic country.

Commenting on Sweden, Mr. Bews said that education was the main factor in their rise from depression. Education not only of the young but also of the old. There is no class distinction in Sweden. Everything is set at a fair price and the people are all well educated. Swedish people do not patronize those stores for every one is working in co-operation and there is a fair price set on each article so why patronize those who are trying to throw everything out of its proper channels. "A co-operative movement can be successful only when people are educated to see that "rugged individualism" must give way to the "service" ideal of life.

The Olth discussed the dance and the sending of the invitations. Refreshments were heard on the various committees. The surprise of the evening came when Dawson Boyd one of the Y's Men gave two solos and showed ability which formerly was not known.

Alex Weir, vice-president of the Club was in the chair. Godfrey Scott introduced the speaker and Harold Vaughan expressed the thanks of the Club. Newt. Thompson, Ken. Hubbs and Herb. Muir, Sary-at-Arms.

QUINTE SKATING CLUB EXPANDS

Jamieson Bone First President of Newly Incorporated Company

This club was originated four years ago by Stanley Wilbur, J. E. Shortt, Chris. Lewis and Stephen Licence for the promotion of aesthetic skating or what is commonly known as figure skating. Mrs. L. Smith, Miss Spracklet, Miss Olivia Davies and others have given unstintingly of their time to get young boys and girls interested in skating for there is no time to learn figure skating like one's youth, and there is nothing so healthful and so graceful. Unfortunately this past winter has not been very suitable in the matter of ice, but nevertheless interest has grown until it is now necessary to provide larger quarters to take care of the ever increasing membership. In spite of very limited means the club has made steady progress in the art of figure skating, and it certainly is one of the arts, and they have been able to put on a very commendable exhibition at various times here in the surrounding territory. As a meeting last night the club decided to be now incorporated and the following officers were appointed, Stanley Wilbur Hon., Jamieson Bone, President; Mr. Finnigan of Frankford, Hon. Vice Pres.; Stephen Licence, Secretary, and the following board of directors, Mr. S. Hughes, Mr. Cole, Gordon Lewis, Cyril McBride, Archie Leslie and Ivan E. Rosli.

The club intends to expand its activities at their premises at corner of Queen and Dufferin and as a larger number of members may be accommodated, and so that the grounds may be used for tennis courts in summer, to accommodate the ever growing army of tennis enthusiasts. It is felt that there is a real need in Belleville now for the young people so that good healthful sport and recreation may be had in a healthful price and the promoters should receive every help and encouragement in their efforts.

POLICE BLOTTER

"Hic-Offisher. I know all about you. The boys on the road told me what a fine fellow you are. Hic! you in Belleville was —hic—" mumbled a vagrant who had imbibed too many liberal potions of the cup that cheers last night, as the arms of the law gathered him in for a short sojourn to the sobering comfort of the police station.

However, the erring one was not the only one to have had a drop or bottle containing liquid evidence of his nocturnal pleasures.

Another drunk, who was charged, had been creating a disturbance on the streets and in several stores, it also taken in. Both will face charges at the next session of Police Court.

The transient properties system must have issued a warning, stated Chief Kidd last night, concerning on the lack of overnight visitors in the 24 hours ending at 8 o'clock as six transients the other day, we have not been troubled much with transient properties during the night.

Only two knights of the road sighted the cell-block hospitality, last night.

"Y" BRANCHES IN 67 COUNTRIES

Joe E. Shortt Guest Speaker For Kiwanis on "Presi. dent's Night"

Joe E. Shortt, general secretary of the Belleville Y.M.C.A., and president of the Belleville Rotary Club was the speaker at the Kinsmen Club dinner in the Queen's Hotel last night and several interesting facts concerning the organization of the Y.M.C.A. were brought out by the speaker. Mr. Shortt told the Kinsmen that the association had grown from its origin in London, England, some seventy years ago to the present size with, branches in sixty-seven countries throughout the world, and serving all classes and races of people. He spoke of the association's work in the association, and how it served all classes of people, from business men and women to the school boy and girl, and carrying on a work similar to the organization of the Y.M.C.A.

A favorable report on the progress of the junior short course in which the Kinsmen club toward the end of this month was assisted by Fred Marvel, chairman of the committee in charge, Mr. Marvel said that all of the eight committees, and their allied industries, were wholeheartedly backing the project.

of the government: I have nothing whatever to add to it today."

Says Limitation is Possible

Britain was prepared to agree to limitations of armament. "If," Eden said, "there came an opportunity to reach an agreement on limitations of armaments, that would be an opportunity which must not be missed."

He declared the government stood firmly by the policy of non-intervention in Spain and said he believed it contributed materially to the cause of peace.

"After many anxious months this policy is beginning to bear fruit," he said. "We intend to persist in it."

The Foreign Secretary went on to say he thought the League of Nations, while having difficulties, still was far from being entombed. People remembered the failures in the cases of Manchuria and Abyssinia but forgot that since 1931 the League had been successful in settling 12 disputes, some of major importance.

However, the government could not endorse a policy of universal military commitments, Eden declared. They were not a part of the League covenant.

MARKET COMMENT

The month of March suggests Spring, a time of year when business generally receives an impetus from seasonal influences. The opening of navigation, open highways and increased building programmes mean employment and consequently better times. The stock market usually reflects the anticipated betterment.

The oil stocks were firm spots yesterday on the leadership of Imperial Oil. This is one group that has been quite neglected in the 1936 market rise despite the fact that these companies are all in sound financial position, boast excellent depression records and are paying very satisfactory dividends. Conservative quarters feel that investment buying has been going on in the group.

To outstandingly brilliant earnings statements for 1936, sundry stocks have made no response whatsoever. Issues which most logically should have been expected to reflect striking achievements of the past year, especially when coupled with an encouraging outlook, have been singularly lacking in contrast between their performance and that of a host of speculative stocks being catapulted on prospects only, makes pertinent the old question "why not a market, which refuses to go up, have in it certain elements working for an ultimate decline?"

It is futile to attempt to diagnose such a phenomenon, that it might definitely believe is a certain speculative inertia. There is a story probably apocryphal, that the elder Rockefeller once asked what he thought of Standard Oil of New Jersey stock might do, replied "I think it will fluctuate". The investment movements in the past few months or so many leading issues must make it plain that shifts are still fluctuating and not moving in a straight line.

The action of Massey-Harris the past few days would appear to indicate pool manipulation.

In his latest article, Roger W. Babson, well known American economist and statistician, warns of the dangers of another "boom". He points out that business today is just about "normal" but signs are not lacking that the upward pendulum of industry may culminate in another prosperity era and a subsequent depression exceeding in intensity the last such cycle.

Mr. Babson offers the following advice:—"Every two Wat 17 years crazy enough to push our present prosperity beyond the limit of safe expansion, the reaction from such a boom might knock out every spoke in the business cycle and shake civilization itself."

On the Street

Long term recapitalization plan expected within fortnight. . . Some excellent buying of Int. Nickel when it showed signs of weakness around 71 . . . . The Street is anxious to learn something about Canada Car's German claim. . . . . The Montreal Exchange had a representative over in Berlin. . . . . Important American investment trusts have large blocks of dollars of our Senior golds. . . . . One reason for this may be switching of the funds—fear that the United States Government may follow the British method of gold in the vaults might not mean a dollar devaluation but rather a revaluation of the gold. . . . . DAILY SHORT STORY—

Had Come to the Crossroads

By A. W. Peach

Barton Ellis looked with somber eyes through his office window at the tall building beyond. His square with his thoughts on the present before him. He knew that he had come to the crossroads and the road that he wanted to take.

In line with his gaze was the dark hair and round cheek of the girl who was worth far more than the meager salary he had been able to pay her from his lawyer's income. She had been faithful to him; and a quiet comradeship had grown up between them until the thought of losing her had become a constant worry to him.

He turned to the papers on his desk. The estate which he had in his care was to be settled. He had handled it so well that it had yielded $18,000 more than anyone would suspect. By omitting that second item from his papers, the $18,000 would be his, and no one in the world would ever be the wiser. With that money he could end his present hand-to-mouth struggle and take possible perhaps—a home, and in spite of himself he glanced at the dark head and watched the white, capable fingers busy over his letters.

She withdrew from the papers in front of him a set of three, and folded the edges into the envelope. Then he sealed the envelope. His foresight had made possible the thousands. The world be his.

"Time to quit, Ruth. Suppose we go to dinner together," he suggested.

She looked up with a smile from eyes over which the long lashes laid their darkness. "That three more times," she said, "and I'll be ready."

Outside the building they turned in the direction of a favorite restaurant. On the way he came to mail box, and he held the long envelope ready to drop it in. For a second he paused, then he dropped the letter in and started quickly along.

Over the shaded table in the quiet corner of the little restaurant he faced her.

"Ruth, I sometimes wonder why you are willing to help me when you could command better conditions and salary than I can give you," he began.

She lifted her direct gaze. "Please don't talk shop, Barton. I think you have a future before you, and I want to be in it," she answered.

"His future." The phrase hurt as he thought of what lay in the darkness in the mail box.

The next day at his office the bottom fell out of the sky, for she sent him word that she would not be at his office. His own sense of guilt heavy upon him, he figured mercilessly on ways by which she might have discovered his act. But the day after she appeared, the same winsome, comforting presence that had come to mean so much to him. On that day he received his second shock. On that day into his office came the grey-headed McLean, head of the great investment firm of the porch of the slede.

"Ellis, I happened to know of the fine way you handled the Summers estate. It was a clean ten or twelve thousand above what was normally expected. We've decided to make you our legal agent here and if your bond will be satisfactory. Of course you will accept?"

When the whirling room had settled Ellis came to with a gasp. He had not sent the money and yet the great directorate had referred to it.

He looked in the direction of Ruth, to find her dark head turned in his direction.

"I couldn't help hearing, Barton. What a glorious opportunity!" she said eagerly.

But something in her eyes—a look that his analysis struck through him—a sense of great hurt—of love in agony.

He sprang to his feet with a single cry, "Ruth!"

She came to him with a rush, hiding her face against his coat, while his arms pressed her closer.

"Ruth—you know!"

Her head moved on his shoulder. His heart sank from light down into shadows that no human plummet can ever sound; but the chill that went over him brought the dead calm of despair.

"Tell me, you saved me, but how?" he begged.

"You forgot that I had seen the papers," she said, and then breathlessly she told him how she had withdrawn her own small fortune to help her father and how making use of her experience in his office she had seen to it that the administrators of the estate had the money. Her absence had been on the errand. Her work had brought McLean.

Across the square the sunset thrust against its farewell glow. He shivered a bit. "You saved me, and here in the desk is the money I planned to steal," he said with the iron in his voice and soul. And now I must lose you, I suppose, but God knows—"

She lifted a shadowed but tender face to him. "Yes I—I don't want to be—to lose."

At the words he caught her again to him, and with her he knew that, cleansed and strengthened, his feet were to tread the path of toil and sacrifice over which love would be sufficient reward.

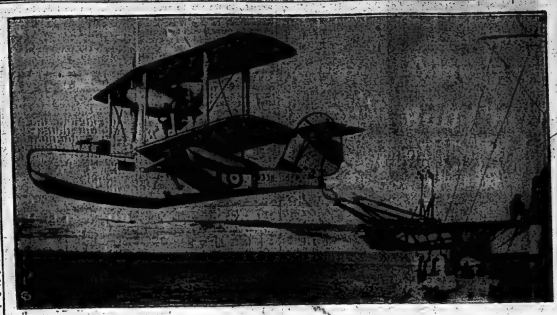
TARZAN'S QUEST



ABERHART OFFERS RESIGNATION AS SOCIAL CREDIT LEADER

Frankly admitting that, in the 24 months of its existence his Social Credit government had not been able to put into effect his promised policy of a new economic order, Premier William Aberhart of Alberta, from the pulpit of the Calgary Prophetic Bible Institute where he preaches, told Social Credit supporters in the province that they should decide whether he is to remain in office or to resign. Mr. Aberhart requested that constituency associations vote on the question after they had time to study the current session's legislation, and when the roads are clear after the spring thaw. He blamed bad conditions in the provincial treasury prior to his taking office and blocking tactics of opponents for the government's inability to redeem its election promises before the 12-month period had expired. Resignations of cabinet members were also mentioned as a hindrance to power because election promises have gone unfulfilled, is believed to set a precedent in Canadian politics.

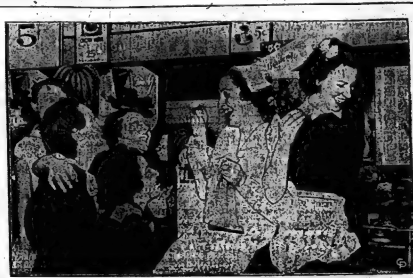
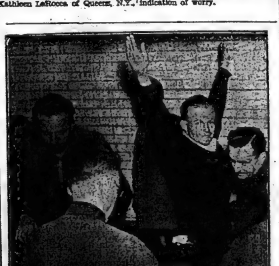
BRITISH AMPHIBIAN FIGHTING 'PLANE LEAVES ITS BERTH ON H.M.S. SUSSEX



A striking photo of one of the new type amphibian fighting aeroplanes of the British navy as it was catapulted from the deck of H.M.S. Sussex during manoeuvres off Malta. Formerly only land aeroplanes were carried by naval aircraft carriers, but the amphibian is gradually displacing them. Seaplanes working from floating bases are considered to have greater range of action than land machines, and greater safety and mobility.

PEGGY AND HUSBAND NOW FACING BIGAMY CHARGES

Dramatic silhouette by her unsuccessful suit against Dave Robinoff, violin genius, Peggy Cicola, former hat-check girl in a New York night club, finds herself in jail along with her husband, Michael LaRocca. They are charged with bigamy, Mrs. Kathleen LaRocca of Queens, N.Y., declaring that she is the lawful wife of LaRocca whom Peggy married some months ago, and Peggy herself admitting to a marriage when she was 12 years old, the status of which is still not settled. So here are Peggy and Michael studying the situation with some indication of worry.



"FIVE AND TEN" GIRLS STAGE SIT-DOWN STRIKE AT DETROIT

The sit-down strike epidemic sweeping United States spread to the Woolworth five-and-ten-cent stores in Detroit, and here are some of the girl employees "in action". The girl seated at the LEFT shares her own lunch with her sister workers while the girl at the RIGHT helps herself to some of the store's goodies. The management gave the girls permission to eat all the food in the place if necessary.

HOWARD HUGHES AND JEAN BATTEN RATED YEAR'S BEST FLIERS

Howard Hughes, millionaire speed flier, and Jean Batten, New Zealand aviatrix, were voted the most outstanding man and woman in the flying circles by the International League of Aviators at Paris, France. Hughes was given the recognition because of his speed records set in the United States during the last year while Miss Batten received her honor for a spectacular solo flight across the south Atlantic. Miss Batten, dressed in flying togs is seen above at the LEFT while Howard Hughes in the cockpit of his speed aeroplane, is at the RIGHT. They will receive the coveted Harmon trophies.

SEARCHING TWO OF 325 PLANE FACTORY STRIKERS

Two erstwhile sit-down strikers are shown here being booked at the Los Angeles county jail. These men are part of the 325 strikers at the Douglas Aircraft company plant at Santa Monica, Calif., who created a bedlam at the county jail when officials sought space in the limited quarters to lock them up. Police officers carefully searched the men before putting them in cells. The strikers were charged with forcible entry and detainer and malicious mischief. The striker with his arm up is being searched for concealed weapons.

BUILDING BIG OM SWEEPING U. S. AEROPLAN E FACTORIES

Striving feverishly to keep pace with British and other European nations in the race to augment and modernize the aerial branch of the army as well as to keep pace with the growth of commercial flying, United States factories are booming as government orders for war machines add to the commercial demands. These views from American aeroplane factories, show the extent of the building boom. Final touches are being given to a huge Martin bomber at Baltimore, Md., in the top picture, before the machine is sent out on its test flights. Many of these Martins have been built in United States for the Dutch government. At the left, skilled riveters are assembling wing sections of part of an order of ten superliners now under construction at Santa Monica, Calif. In the circle are engine cylinders lined up on a factory floor in Hartford, Conn. They will be assembled into Wasp and Hornet engines slowly and carefully by skilled mechanics. The United States navy has ordered 794 engines of this type.

WELSH SUGGESTS RURAL M. D. BONUS IN AREAS

Need Health Insurance, But Not Sta te Medicine, E. Hastings M. P. States

Sets Precedent in Attack on Government Policy

ELECTION AIRED

Member Engaged in Cross-fire With Premier Hepburn

Toronto, March 3.—(CP)—Suggestion for doctors in certain rural communities were suggested to the Ontario Legislature last night by Dr. Harold Welsh (Cons., Hastings East) when he made his maiden speech.

"I don't believe we need state medicine," he said, "I don't believe in a compulsory system but a voluntary system such as that started in Windsor is a step in the right direction."

Dr. Welsh, elected only December 4, has in the Hastings East By-election, disregarded a long established precedent which has hitherto prevented new members saying anything very condemnatory in their first speeches. Dr. Welsh was consulted by Premier Mitchell Hepburn who told him he was privileged to do a bad start, the Premier having been refused the right by Dr. Welsh to make an explanation arising from some one of the new member's statements.

Henry Endorsed

George Henry, Conservative House Leader, interrupted cross-fire between Dr. Welsh and Premier Hepburn concerning conditions in mental hospitals.

"What do you know about it anyway," demanded the Premier of Mr. Henry.

Mr. Henry protested and asked an apology for the Premier's remark but the incident passed.

Hydro was a real issue in the by-election, said Dr. Welsh. Repudiation of contracts means the breaking of one's word and the people voted against a government that broke its word. Even Hydro rate reductions could not sway them from condemnation.

People living in hamlets should have received the benefits of recent Hydro service charge reductions as well as farmers, he said.

Welsh Suggests Government

The Hepburn Government had attempted to buy Hastings East with Public Works

PICTON CLAIMS LARGEST ELM TREE

Toronto claim to the largest tree west of the Rocky Mountains was disputed by Picton, Ontario, yesterday, as elm tree growing on Bleat Main Street on the property of Crown Attorney Gordon Valleau-lily exceeds the famous Stanbore tree which claimed the title, by over two inches in circumference, measuring twenty six inches at shoulder height.

Its age estimated at 250 years, the Picton elm has a great spread of branches, and, unlike the Scarboro tree is alive and thriving. It has given its name to a number local landmarks had to be built around it.

FIRE DEPARTMENT GETS OFFICIALS' CAR

No longer will the clanging bell of the small truck of the Belleville Fire Department be heard on the thoroughfares of the city. This morning, all dressed up in the Belleville red of the department, an Essex car with the letters "B.F.D." emblazoned in white on both doors, was delivered to the department for the use of the Chief and other officials. Purchased by the city, the car fills a long-felt want and will facilitate the movements of the Fire Department Officials to and from the scenes of conflagration.

PICTON STAGES GOLD CUP RACE

First Race of Kind to be Held in Dominion of Canada

A pretentious program of aquatic events is planned for the Picton Centenary celebration, to be held, L. Ward, Commodore of the Picton Yacht Club, who addressed the Belleville Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon on Tuesday at the Queens Hotel. The speaker of the day was accompanied by a number of members from the Picton Club, who thoroughly enjoyed the luncheon and the good fellowship that prevailed.

Eddie Logan presided with Frank Domenico as song leader, Joe Hughes at the piano, and Leo B. Riggs as accompanist.

Arthur Mills was appointed to the Home Improvement Board as a representative of the Kiwanis Club and that member gave a report to the members asking them to boost the plan to provide better homes in Belleville and place more men at work. Geoffrey Pepper, who has distinguished himself as a motorcycle rider on various tracks in the United States and Canada was made an honorary member of the Club and Cliff Harper will act as chairman of a committee to act with the Quinte Motorcycle Club in arranging their annual Labor Day race. The speaker of the day was introduced by A. B. Collins K.C., and Kiwanian appreciation was expressed by Emily Fisher.

Commodore Ward told his audience that the Picton committee intended to stage a Gold Cup race for 225 cubic inch displacement boats on the Bay of Quinte on July 1st, and that affiliation of the Picton Yacht Club was being sought with the American Power Boat Association, one of the most influential associations in aquatic sports in the world. He told of traveling to Rochester, New York, with the Picton boats last summer to witness the Gold Cup race there, when, a normal population of 1,500 was increased to 30,000 on the day of the race. Mr. Ward stated, that the Gold Cup had been purchased and that sanction had been obtained to hold the race and at least ten boats would compete. He also explained the workings of the race and how the winner was decided. Besides this important race there will be races for local boats and a real gala day is expected on July 1st.

2ND BATTALION CLUB HEAR ADDRESS ON GALLIPOLI LANDING

The Great War in several of its phases, including the arrival of the Princess Pats Canadian Contingent and his own personal experiences during the earlier landings in the highly interesting account of the landing at Gallipoli formed the subject of an address given by Sergeant K. Taylor of the 2nd Battery, Canadian Artillery, Kingston, to members of the Second Battalion Club at their quarterly meeting held in the lecture room of the Armouries on Monday evening.

With President R. B. Cooper in the chair the business session of the meeting was first gone through in order that the highly entertaining program arranged by the committee could get under way.

The Belleville Orchestra under the direction of Mr. Leo Riggs, cornet soloist by Mr. Frank Howard, violin solos by Mr. Lorne Howard, pianist and humor of Sergeant Major Wilberley of R.C.A.F., the untangling of hand tricks of Flight-Sergt. Symes, and vocal solos by Messrs. Arnold Thomson and Hawthorne, rounded out an evening of entertainment which delighted everyone present.

Votes of thanks to the entertainers, after which a delicious luncheon served by members of the club.

NAVAL EXPERIENCES IN EARLY NINTIES TOLD AT CLUB MEETING

A graphic description of the famous naval catastrophe when the British flagship Victoria rammed and sank H. M. S. Camperdown during manoeuvres in the Mediterranean, on June 21st, 1892, in which over seven hundred British sailors lost their lives, was given by Mr. C. Gaicum, president of the Belleville Gunners' Club, at their meeting held on Tuesday evening in the Army and Navy Clubrooms last night.

A survivor of the marine disaster which sank in fifteen minutes of time, Mr. Gaicum held his listeners spellbound as he told of the horrible incident while others present vividly relieving the collision. The speaker gave a very graphic description of life aboard the sailing men-o-war and of the routine of training ships of the navy in the early nineties.

Discussion regarding the engraving of the name of Gunner C. Gaicum, Belleville Gunner, killed at Ypres in April, 1915, on the Ypres Cenotaph, was made and the list of Belleville was placed on the Cenotaph, took part of the business session of the meeting.

Refreshments served at the close of the meeting terminated a pleasant evening.

PHONE INVENTOR BORN 90 YRS. AGO

Commemorating the birth of Alexander Graham Bell, the inventor whose name is known today the familiar Blue Bell emblem of the Bell Telephone Company, figures from the flag-staff of the telephone building here and in Montreal, Ontario and Quebec.

Born March 3, 1847 at Edinburgh, Scotland, Bell came to Canada at the age of twenty-three with his parents, landing at Quebec City on August 8th, 1870. They travelled by boat to Kingston, Ont., and visited a few days with Rev. Thomas Henderson and his family. Soon they had known in the Old Country. Later the Bells took up residence at Tutela Heights, Brantford, seven miles away, in what is now the Mohawk Institute Reserve of Canada's best known and most frequently visited tourist shrines.

It was there that Bell invented the telephone in the summer of 1874. Mr. Henderson later became the first general agent in Canada for the Bell telephone.

From his grandfather and his father, both masters in the art of elocution, the younger Bell received early training in the phonetics with his father, Graham Bell was a teacher of "visible speech", an invention of his father, Alexander Melville Bell. This was a remarkable system of symbols showing all of the actions of vocal organs in uttering sounds. Alexander Graham Bell aided in describing the system publicly, "could be analyzed into a direction to the throat and to the with your mouth. If you followed the direction you would produce the sound even though you had never heard it before."

The future telephone inventor, even as a child, became interested in the science of "visible speech" enabling him to assist his father in public demonstrations. He could be sent out of the room while members of the audience suggested vowel sounds that Professor Bell would describe on paper in his symbols. On his return he would read the symbols in uttered sounds. In later years Dr. Bell told with relish how he had astonished one audience by reproducing a radio resemblance of sawing of wood. A ventriloquist had suggested it to his father and the elder Bell had described it in written symbols of visible speech. Still more remarkable was the young-ster's performance on one occasion when he astonished audiences from symbols on a slip of paper one of the most difficult languages in Sanskrit without ever having heard the sound or knowing a word of that ancient language.

Manager G. W. Procter of the Bell Telephone Company here pointed out today this interesting background of training and preparation that led up to Alexander Graham Bell's discovery of the undulating current the fundamental principle of his whole telephone idea as described in his father with his telephone invention at Brantford in July 1874. It was at the Bell Homestead there too, that the inventor, a year later in September, 1875, made the original draft of his telephone patent specification, patented "an improvement in telegraphy." It became recognized as the most important single patent ever allowed.

"TOMMY'S ENDS"
PROPRIETOR, DIES

Owner of Uniquely Named Store Near Lindsay, Did a Big Business

Lindsay, Ont., March 3 (CP) — Thomas C. Hawkins, proprietor of "Tommy's Ends," a store village store patronized by residents of every conceivable district and every state in the United States is dead.

Word reached here from the Inter Lakeyeda, Canada, New York to the West Indies, that "Tommy" had passed on Friday from a heart attack. He was bound for a two months' vacation in the tropics.

Tommy, as he was known by everybody, has conducted the strange store in the village of Janetville for about 30 years. Although the Janetville population is less than 100 and the village is situated off the beaten track, citizens of two countries beat a pathway to his door.

He never sent out circulars and never solicited business. He "dicked his shop for two or three months each winter while he went globe trotting, usually to New York, Bermuda, the Pacific Islands or the West Indies.

Tommy had no credit worries. he didn't bother about marking up costs of any kind. He did all his bookkeeping in his head—and made a success of his business for he is reported to have been more than moderately wealthy.

Remnants Formed his Stock

Tommy's store was the result of his name limitation. Tommy's Ends" one moved knee-deep through silks, laces, calicoes and cloth of every variety and color, bulging from apple barrels lined up in front of the tiny counter. Hanging all around the inside were articles picked up here and there, china, odd clocks, old fashioned glassware and dishes of every description.

It was the remnants or "ends" of cloth that brought fame to Tommy. The "ends" in their grand disarray brought women from every clime.

There was something alluring about "Tommy's Ends" that was irresistible to women, and no tourist once calling at Tommy's ever passed by another summer.

Nothing was price-marked at Tommy's. He just leaned up against the counter and watched the mob mow through all this expensive materials without a word. When someone would pull a piece of cloth from a barrel and holding it up ask "how much for this?" Tommy would name the price without a second thought.

Tommy seemed to leave everything to memory. There was no cash register in Tommy's store, he made change from his big pocket, seldom bothered to wrap the cloth that customers took out under their arms.

AIR LINES BILL NOTICE IS GIVEN

Ottawa, March 3—(CP)—Transport Minister Howe gave notice on today's House votes and proceedings of the long-awaited resolution preliminary to a bill incorporating the Trans-Canada Air Lines Company with authority to establish and operate air lines and services across Canada.

The resolution foresees that the airways bill will authorize the government to enter into a contract with the corporation providing for the organization and operation of such lines and services including the transport of passengers, goods and mails.

A subsidy will be paid to the corporation by the government and the government will provide for the operation and maintenance of emergency landing fields and other specified services.

Concerning government ownership and control, the resolution recommended the government be empowered "at its discretion to acquire and pay for all the shares of the capital stock of the corporation and further to authorize the Board of Railway Commissioners to fix the rates to be paid to the corporation for its services."

POLICE BLOTTER

Only one intoxicated gentleman disturbed the peaceful calm of the police station last evening when a transient was arrested by local police and lodged in the cells to await the answering of his waywardness before the Cadi on Friday morning.

Ten knights of the road, however, availed themselves of the comfort of the sit-block, and departed on their various ways at an early hour this morning.

PRESENTS AIR MAIL LETTERS TO ARCHIVES

Halifax Mail Clerk Donates Envelopes Marking Progress of Aviation in the Maritimes

By HAROLD E. FREEMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HALIFAX (CP) — The Nova Scotia Archives here has gone modern with a new collection of air mail envelopes marking many outstanding landmarks in the history of aviation in the Maritime Provinces. The collection of 15 letters was donated by John J. Hale, Halifax mail clerk.

The envelopes date from Jan. 28, 1928, to July 30, 1936. The first in chronological order in the collection marks the first official flight between Halifax and Saint John, N.B.; the last records the series of trial flights between Sydney, N.S., and Halifax in 1933, the airport here after it had been dedicated by Mayor C. E. Kitchie, August 29, 1931. Another marks the opening of Annapolis Royal, N.S., airport, July 1, 1932, and a third the official dedication of Baddeck, N.S. airport, August 16, 1934.

Another envelope connected with Baddeck is still more interesting in the history it records. It travelled on a special plane from Baddeck to Halifax February 23, 1934, before Baddeck had officially opened its airport. That trip marked the 30th anniversary of the first aeroplane flight in Canada when Pilot J. A. D. McCurdy flew near the little Cape Breton town in his "Silver Dart" Feb. 23, 1909.

The last five letters in the collection were carried one on each of the five experimental flights between Halifax and Sydney between July 29 and Aug. 4, 1933 in connection with Sydney's 150th anniversary. They show that 2,849 letters was the highest number carried on a single day during the flights, and 1,585 the lowest.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Ready to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food does not digest. It just decays in the bowels. You get constipated. The up-set stomach poisons the entire system and you feel sour, sunk and "punky and mean."

A more logical movement doesn't always get the desire. You need something that will get on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to make you feel "up and up." Harmless and gentle, they get at the cause. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. Be sure!

WOMEN IMPORTANT FOR NEW GERMANY

German Feminist Says Sex Not Excluded from Work in Reich

BOSTON (CP)—Defense for Germany's social policies, educational program and attitude towards women was put forth by Fraulein Erica Schirmer, Doctor of History, guest at the home of Baron Kurt von Tippelskirch, German consul, and Mrs. von Tippelskirch.

Dr. Schirmer, a graduate of the University of Vienna, Austria, is on an extended lecture tour of the United States.

"German intellectual education has not been vitally touched by the new regime," she declared. "Participation in sports has been made obligatory, but widespread interest in sports has been fostered for years in other countries, including the United States."

Outlining women's position in present-day Germany, Dr. Schirmer said: "There is no exclusion of women from work in Germany today. Throwing women out of work was only a means employed by the Nazi regime at the beginning of its battle to cut unemployment. It has been given up entirely.

"Women occupy an important place in modern Germany's educational program. About 30 have been appointed to professorships in universities, many of them since Hitler came into power. These appointments are comparable to professorships at Harvard University.

"Today there is great women's organization in Germany which includes associations of women lawyers, physicians, etc., and which works in close co-operation with the government. They exercise more influence than any women's organization in the world."

"SOLDIERS STAY AWAY" PLEADED CITY OFFICIALS

Disbanded Regiment Raised a Riot Time Its Old Town had No Casualties Reported

Saint John, N.B. (CP) — Saint John is peaceful now but it has had other moments. When 600 soldiers disbanded here they began civilian life with an inclination to paint the town red, take it apart, and things like that. It's all told in a little pamphlet found the other day and written long ago by a wanderer named John Mann.

On June 11, 1919, three transports with 600 of the Indian Rangers sailed into this port. Practically all the men had been deserters from other British forces and some were returning prisoners of war. The idea of them landing here, after just getting paid, alarmed civic authorities. They formally petitioned the Lieutenant-Governor to prevent the landing.

The forebodings were justified, although taverns closed for the night and other precautions were taken to preserve order. Saint John was only 52 years old and getting into its stride as a busy little port city.

A party including Mann arrived here that day. "We were not a little surprised to see the whole city in an uproar, occasioned by a part of the West Indian Rangers who, being disbanded there, were offered grants of land or ten pounds in cash," he wrote. "A great number of the men preferred the money and some of them were preparing to return home; others to cross the line into the United States. All doffed their regimentals and were furnished with civilian clothes."

Many of the soldiers soon became intoxicated, Mann recorded. "Towards evening no cordial security walk the streets for the crowding. One of the West Indian Regiment stood in the Market Place at the foot of King Street, stripped to the waist, challenging all and sundry in the city to fight. He threw away his vest which contained all his money and would have lost the whole of it contentedly had not one of his companions retrieved it.

"In fact all over the community the ex-soldiers wandered in a manly, kin manner, some overly-gracious, bowing and scraping, others darting pugnacious glances at inhabitants as a challenging manner."

Apparently, however, no serious injuries or damage resulted. Gradually the disgruntled soldiers found new homes or returned to former places of residence.

BABY GARMENTS GO STREAMLINE

Oklahoma Professor Diaper That May Answer Toronto Query

Oklahoma City (CP) — Now it's streamline "diape" for babies or as more old-fashioned parents call them, diapers.

Contour is the secret of this new garment invented only by the women of the Works Progress Administration in Woodward, Okla. It is designed to eliminate sagging.

Instead of antiquated squares or the more cumbersome triangles, the new model curves avwily toward the middle, giving a modified hourglass shape.

The clap was designed, its originators say, to bring more comfort to the infant and easier handling to the mother. The form-fitting then tended, they say, to keep the diap from working up, sagging or bunching.

Mrs. Peggy McEwan, Oklahoma director of the women's division, was so enthusiastic over the new design she ordered patterns cut for state-wide distribution.

Dr. Edgar D. Hiset of Kitchener, Ont., told a convention in Toronto the other day the "sanitary garment a child is compelled to wear about its hips is a factor which causes damage to babies."

The doctor suggested a fortune should await the person who could produce "a device for dressing infant children that does not deform them as does the present contraption."

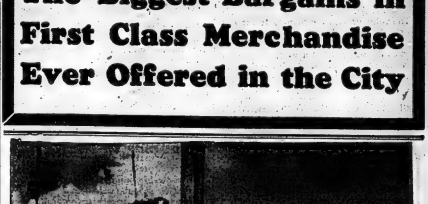
RARE CURRENCY FOUND IN N. B.

Fredericton (CP)— While examining papers in the office of the provincial secretary-treasurer, W. Borden Hicks, deputy of the department, discovered old New Brunswick currency notes.

Some of the bills were issued by the Westmorland Bank of New Brunswick in 1856 and 1861, and bore the signature of John F. Tribe, relative of the deputy.

Others were bills of the Bank of New Brunswick, the Central Bank of New Brunswick and the Bank of British North America.

All were in denominations of pounds and shillings.



CRIME GROWS IN SOUTH AFRICA

Cape Town (CP)—A steady increase in the number of criminal convictions in South Africa is reported, the number reaching 619,000 in 1936, compared with 589,000 the previous year and 547,000 in 1933.

EMPIRE ESSAYS

Col. Panton's suggestion that Belleville boys and girls should compete in the Royal Empire Society essay competitions is one which they should take to heart. There never was a time when so much is known of the Empire and of the various divisions of the Empire, there never was a time when there is so much discussion on the relation of the Empire to the world.

There are numerous sources of reference from which facts can be gathered in the preparation of the essays.

The value of such competition to the candidates is more than the possible award of medal or other prize. Study of such problems as the subjects of the essays require has its value not only in the training but also in the direction of the thoughts of the young to the great imperial theme.

BRITISH DETERMINATION SHOWN

British rearmament policy which has occupied so much attention during the past few weeks with the unprecedented peacetime outlay planned for increase of naval and air strength has a repercussion in Europe. Italy, which has not the wealth of Britain, has made a new gesture of a five-point program of might and strength.

Britain, recently at a rate which the rest of the world evidently thought impossible, still holds out the olive branch, seeking new Locarno agreements with the hope that these may lead to a definite settlement of Europe. Britain's strength is revealing itself and the rest of the world is taking notice as never before in peacetime. This has the object of practical defence in a modern war, which would be different from wars of the past, with aviation and navies developed greatly since 1918. Another aim no doubt is to show those who rattle swords that there is such a thing as British might which can be called upon in time of crisis, and that it would be better if nations were to realize this and cease the wild glorification of military strength, national boasting and disregard of the more peaceful aims of nations.

Captain Anthony Eden yesterday indicated that the way remained open for reduction of armaments. But he also warned that unprovoked attack would bring Britain into conflict with any nation which would unprovokedly assail France or Belgium. He showed that the land who went farthest to bring about an understanding which would have lifted fears of security from the nations, performed armament expenditures into peaceful pursuits, is still the advocate of peace, but so protected that no nation would dare try to take advantage.

In going about to preserve peace by the demonstration of her might on land; on the sea, and in the air, Britain is rearming with an eye to defence. There is to be noticed in her stressing of the navy and the air force a certain indication of where much of the test will come if trouble should break out. The little island set like a jewel in the silver sea might be an easy mark for an enemy armed up to the last minute, but Britain is determined to guard that little island which will still be called "tight," by throwing about her the mightiest of navies and the greatest power in the air to protect her from aerial invaders.

This move of Britain is a demonstration that Britain still counts, that she is mighty yet, that even if she is forced into an undesirable task act with as mighty a power as she acted with sincerity and earnestness to bring the nations to see that peace is the all-in-all for the world.

ST. PETERSBURG—THE SUNSHINE CITY

Where the plumes of the palm trees are waving,
Where the pine trees their tassels show,
In the land where the mocking-bird's singing,
Where softly the warm zephyrs blow,
Is a city of sunshine and glamor
Beside a jewel-decked bay,
Where night lights a myriad tapers
And the sun shines softly all day.

This city afar in the Southland
Is a mecca for wandering feet;
From the cold and the snow of the northland
It offers a safe retreat;
Its doors stand hospitably open,
It extends a welcoming hand
To the worn and world-weary stranger
From frigid and far-away lands.

This city that once was a desert
With barren and sand-strewn shore,
Is crowned with a beauty supernal,
A beauty that long will endure;
A beauty of sun-kissed waters,
Of bright-blooming flower and tree
But best of all is the sunshine
That smiles so tenderly.

TWO HUNDRED DOLLARS A MONTH FOR ALL OVER SIXTY—what a delightful picture—now fading away with the eclipse of Dr. Francis E. Townsend, modern messiah of the overflowing dinner pail and money to throw around in handfuls. Dr. Townsend was being investigated by the United States government when he brought annoyance of pertinent questions as to his sunshine city moneys received from disciples anxious to join the two hundred dollar a month club. His anger overcame him and he walked out of the room where no answer was possible to him. He has been found guilty of contempt of this House of Representatives and is subject to a sentence of a year's imprisonment and a fine of $1,000. Townsend says the publicity will boom his business—so hurry up neighbors, send in your dollars, Dr. Townsend needs them now as never before, and you may get two hundred dollars a month— in the sweet bye and bye, if ye faint not and the Mint is speeded up to double capacity or more.

SPORT IN THE UNITED STATES RUNS INTO BIG MONEY. Take the Santa Anita Handicap in California last Saturday, with $100,000 added to the purse. Eighteen horses started in the mile and a furlong handicap at beautiful Santa Anita race track, an amusement enterprise representing several million dollars investment. Spectators numbered more than fifty thousand, millionaires and movie actors—a scene of much money moving between the grand stand and the betting places where thousands of dollars were placed on the chance that the betters were good guessers. It was a perfect racing day, with perfect weather, and a close finish which was only determined by the camera. Rosemont, the favorite won by a nose from Seabiscuit, a six to one choice. As the favorite only paid two to one many were tempted to try the long shots, such as Goblin, the Seagram Canadian entries at 60 to one; Grand Manitou at 30 to one; Water Splash at 40 to one, or others who made brave starts and finished as "also ran." With betting made legal at the track by several states which hitherto banned betting, with professional and "amateur" football, professional baseball, prize fighting and wrestling in the Big Money now, sport is being commercialized to such an extent in the United States that it has developed into such Big Business that innocent bystanders begin to suspect that it is being managed on business principles to an extent which tends to eliminate chance and make results cater to the box office.

WHICH CAME FIRST?

On a cruise a specially invited guest had followed the ship for some time, to the intense curiosity of one of the women passengers, who never let the subject rest.

At dinner one evening she returned to it. "Captain," she said, "can't you tell me where those birds come from?"

The captain turned to the first officer and asked plaintively, "Can you say where those birds came from, sir?"

"Eggs, sir, eggs," replied the first officer.

NO FAVORS

A soldier on manoeuvres was posted as a sentry at an outpost on a bitterly cold night.

"Halt! Who goes there?" he shouted, very fed up with life.

"Oh, I'm the Army Chaplain," came the reply from the darkness.

"I don't care if you're Charlie Chaplin—come forward and be recognized."

A. W. RUSSELL, Resident Manager

This Really Happened

Here is a story that probably never saw print before and it is authentic in every particular. We heard about it several years ago but it was only this week that we secured the missing details from a resident of the Tyendinaga Reserve near Deseronto.

Some one hundred and fifty odd years ago, a small band of Mohawk Indians paddled up the St. Lawrence and entered the Bay of Quinte at the Gap. The party was headed by Capt. John Deserontyo, after whom Deseronto was named. The original party was under the joint leadership of Deserontyo and Capt. Joseph Brant (Thayendinaga) but a difference of opinion split the party and Brant went on to the head of Lake Ontario to what was later to become the Brantford reserve.

Deserontyo's party in time reached the north shore of the Bay of Quinte, at a point about a mile west of Deseronto, and it was at this they offered prayer of thanks for having made the trip successfully.

(In explanation the new home for the Mohawks had been purchased by the government of the country from the Mississaugas who were given lands in the Rice Lake area).

So far this story is historical, and perhaps as correct as it is possible to make it. But here is where the story of the coming of the Mohawks takes an odd turn.

The Indians had stolen a white girl before leaving the Mohawk valley and they had brought her with them. This part of the story has been done in fiction time after time and always the white relatives of the stolen girl have run down the Indians and after possibly a hand-to-hand fight have recovered their daughter.

But in this case no such thing happened. No parents, heavily armed, followed the Mohawks into the Bay of Quinte in quest of their missing child which may sound odd but who knows the drab circumstances which prevailed.

In time this white child, Christina Moore by name, grew into womanhood with full rights of the tribe and married the son of one of the chiefs. History does not record that she was looked upon as a queen by reason of her white skin and beauty, for she was beautiful, as a picture of her now in possession of a family of one of the prominent families.

We have in possession of the names of the descendants of this white girl and her Indian chief, the complete details making an interesting story.

And now that we are mentioning the early settlers of the Bay of Quinte there is evidence to prove that the Loyalists, under Major Vanalstine, who landed at Adolphustown, brought with them a number of negro slaves. While slavery was a part of the life of the settlers to the south of us until it was abolished by the civil war, there is no registered case that ever practiced in this country at any time.

So it is quite proper to believe that the Aboriginal United Empire Loyalists brought slaves with them. These people were no longer slaves under the British flag and became free as free to come and go as were the Loyalists.

We have had pointed out to us several times families who were well known in Belleville, descended from the colored people who came over with Major Vanalstine's party, but there is little to show now that they had come from a race that was not white. Further than this, these people have become some of our finest citizens which only goes to show that there is no such thing as the color line where there is ambition and energy, courage and worth.

World's Best Sellers

When the millionth copy of Margaret Mitchell's "Gone With the Wind" rolled from the presses within six months of its publication national record was established in American book publishing.

It was a time record only, however. More than a score of American-published books have passed the million mark since 1875, but no other book reached the million figure in so short a time.

"Gone With the Wind" will have to sell eight times its million copies to come within hailing distance of the Bible, greatest seller of them all—a religious novel. "In His Steps," by the late Rev. Dr. Charles M. Sheldon.

Those million copies were sold in this country only; by including translations into almost every known tongue, the author's novel piled up the incredible total of 23,000,000 copies around the world.

When Edward Weeks made a best seller compilation for the Institute of Arts and Sciences of Columbia University a few years ago he found that more than sixty books had sold more than the half million copies or more; a few even hit 3,000,000 or hovered around that figure.

Most of the books were novels and Weeks did not include Scripture sellers as the Bible and various text books.

Considering all books published in the United States, the Bible, of course, is the best seller of all. Uncounted millions of copies have been printed since the days of Gutenberg and the early part of the 15th century.

Noah Webster's "Speller" went beyond 20,000,000 in its day, while the McGuffey Eclectic Readers, once almost universal in the schools of America, sold the million pilot on the astonishing total of 80,000,000 copies. Other impressive sellers out of the fiction class are the Boy Scout Manual, 40,000,000, and various cook-books and books of etiquette which are in the one to two million class.

Few authors of best sellers repeat their first success. Sheldon wrote two score of books, but none made any appreciable approach to "In His Steps."

Incidentally, Dr. Sheldon, now in his eightieth year and living in Topeka, Kan., once gained world-wide notice by editing the Topeka Daily Capital for one week "as Jesus would have done." More than $70,000 copies of the issue were sold to readers in every state in the union and in Chicago for the printing of additional American books.

In the list compiled by Mr. Weeks only nine American authors had more than one book in the half-million or more class. Harold Bell Wright placed five, including one that went to a million and a half. Gene Stratton Porter was represented by four, all of which sold between one and two million. Mark Twain's ever popular "Tom Sawyer" and "Huckleberry Finn" were in the list, as were Charles M. Sheldon, 1896, 8,000,000.

"Freckles," by Gene Stratton Porter, 1904, 2,000,000.

"Ben Hur," by Lew Wallace, 1880, 1,500,000.

"Girl of the Limberlost," by Gene Stratton Porter, 1909, 1,700,000.

"The Harvester," by Gene Stratton Porter, 1911, 1,400,000.

"Tom Sawyer," Mark Twain, 1875, 1,500,000.

"The Winning of Barbara Worth" by Harold Bell Wright, 1911, 1,500,000.

"Laddie," by Gene Stratton Porter, 1913, 1,500,000.

"The Virginian," by Owen Wister, 1902, 1,543,000.

"The Call of the Wild," by Jack London, 1903, 1,412,000.

"The Story of the Bible by Josse Lyman Hurlburt, 1904, 1,232,000.

"The Trail of the Lonesome Pine, by John Fox, 1909, 1,265,000.

"Cardigan," by Edward Noyes Westcott, 1900, 1,200,000.

"The Outline of History," by H. G. Wells, 1920, 2,000,000.

"The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come," by John Fox, 1903, 1,100,000.

"Five Little Peppers, by Margaret Sidney, 1881, 1,000,000.

"Black Beauty," by Anna Sewell, 1877, 1,000,000.

"Huckleberry Finn," by Mark Twain, 1884, 1,000,000.

"Treasure Island," by Robert Louis Stevenson, 1894, 1,000,000.

"Trilby," by George Du Maurier, 1894, 1,000,000.

"Pollyanna," by Eleanor Stewart, 1913, 1,000,000.

At a meeting of the civic committees Ald. Smith asked if anything was to be done in reference to changing the names of some of the streets. It had been suggested that the names of North, Front Street, Mill Street and Station Street be changed as the two latter streets are a continuation of Front Street. Mayor Mackechnie replied that it would cost considerable money to do this and a new city map would have to be prepared. It was decided to leave the matter in abeyance for this year.

Suffered With Sciatica For 25 Years

Those who are subject to sciatica should read this letter from one who suffered for years before she found out how to obtain relief:—

"For years I suffered from sciatica in my right side, and I had backaches which forced me to remain in bed for two or three weeks at a time. When I got up in the mornings, my arms and legs used to pain me almost unbearably. One day I heard of Kruschen Salts. I took a bottle of them without feeling much improvement. I tried a second bottle, and that time I felt better. I have kept on taking Kruschen ever since." (Mrs.) H. E.

The pains of sciatica are frequently caused by an excess of uric acid in the body. Two of the ingredients of Kruschen Salts are notable for their work in dissolving uric acid. Other ingredients of these salts assist the internal organs to expel the dissolved acid from the system.

IN FACT they know a thing or two in his office. They know the good of that mid-afternoon tea; how it banishes the "Droops"; gets work back into full swing; pleases every member of the staff. The "droops" in the afternoon are Nature's warning. The nerves from your brain are like telegraph wires that flash messages to the muscles. Fatigue interferes with those "messages". That's when you feel "foggy", and mistakes creep into your work. The remedy, say doctors, is a cup of tea. Almost at once it stimulates your internal "telegraph system"—safely, harmlessly, gently, and so very pleasantly.

How to Improve Your Home On the Easy Payment Plan

Money at the Bank for You on Basis of Repayment in Equal Monthly Sums — Like Buying Car, Radio, Refrigerator — No Better Investment.

The Home Improvement Plan is extended to every home owner who is a reasonably sound financial risk.

You are a reasonably sound financial risk as broadly defined for the purposes of the Home Improvement Plan if you can pay in monthly instalments over a period of three years the loan which you obtain from a bank to be spent on repairs or improvements to your home.

If, for example, you borrow $300 for some job you want done on your house you can arrange to repay it in one year, if you wish, and the limit of time for repayment is three years.

Adoption of Instalment Plan

It is simply the instalment plan of buying repairs or improvements to your home. In that respect it is virtually the same well tried plan by which thousands of people buy automobiles, refrigerators, furniture, radios and so on.

If you want to make certain repairs or improvements that cost $300 you are given three years to repay the loan you get from a bank. In that instance the monthly instalment is slightly more than $8, something over two dollars a week.

If you can pay two dollars a week plus the interest charge of 6.25 per cent., the lowest rate of interest ever charged for a service of this kind, you are a reasonably sound financial risk for the loan of $300.

Red Tape Is Eliminated

The banker and the tradesman, whether he be carpenter, plumber, tinsmith, bricklayer, electrician and so on, probably know your reputation for honesty, and you will find it an easy matter to get the loan on your own personal note, or promise to repay the money. You don't need an endorser, and there is no question of a mortgage.

Red tape is almost entirely eliminated by the Home Improvement Plan.

As has been explained to the tradesmen this week, the Plan is not intended for the person who is unfortunately out of work, and hasn't a steady wage, salary or other income.

If you can assume the obligation, you can borrow up to $2,000 for repairs and improvements to any one property.

"CAN I GET A LOAN IF THERE IS A MORTGAGE ON MY PROPERTY?"

The answer to that question is yes. However, if there is not only one mortgage but also a second one, and your equity in your house has just about vanished, the banker will have to give your application very serious consideration, and it may so in that case that the loan might be refused.

The ordinary mortgage arrangement does not prevent you from taking advantage of the Home Improvement Loan.

Arrears of Taxes No Obstacle

"I haven't got all my taxes paid; a little behind on last year's instalments. Can I get a loan in that case?"

And again the answer is "YES". The mortgaged house and the other house with arrears of taxes against it are not excluded from the Home Improvement Plan.

What About Assessment?

Here's another recurrent question: "If I put on a new verandah what about the assessor increasing my assessment?"

This question of increased assessment has been satisfactorily answered by Mr. Harry Muir, General Chairman of this district and member of the Provincial Advisory Board.

Other questions which may arise can be taken up with Mr. J. O. Herity, chairman for Belleville, at the Chamber of Commerce, or any banker.

Protect Your Property Investment with Improvements

Telephone Nook

In almost every house there is some place under a stair or off the coat closet or beside a chimney where a telephone niche can be installed. Below this niche there may be a space with perpendicular divisions for telephone and other books. Somewhere in a convenient spot in the niche should be a pad and pencil for memoranda.

A Fireplace Is a Fine Addition to Any Home

No Living Room Is Really Complete Without One — Adds Class and Dignity to the Room and Is Good Investment

One improvement that would be welcomed in many homes, because of the added beauty and utility that it would contribute, is a good fireplace in the living room. In some cases, where there is an old fireplace that is hardly ever used, a reasonably inexpensive re-modeling job will make it into a new one. In other cases a new chimney and fireplace will be needed. No matter which is the case there are several important things to be borne in mind.

First of all, to make the fireplace draw instead of smoke, the construction must be right. The size of the opening and the size of the flue have definite relations to each other from which it is dangerous to depart. The fireplace opening should be about ten times as large as the flue opening. If it is much more or less, the flue will not draw properly. The depth of the fireplace, from front to back, should not be less than one-half the height of the opening. The rear wall should go up straight for about a foot and then slope slightly forward. The sides should not go straight back from the facing, but should slant toward each other at about three and one-half inches to the foot.

With this construction the whole fireplace acts somewhat like a funnel and thus encourages the air in the room to go into the fireplace and up the chimney easily. Above the fireplace and concealed in the chimney are the damper and smoke shelf, both of which increase the funnel effect. The flue should be lined with a square tile pipe called flue lining. This is better than a plain brick flue because the sides are smooth and even; there is no chance for any roughness. The correct size flue is no insurance to the proper operation of a chimney that anything which decreases its size, such as a projecting brick, excess mortar, or even an accumulation of soot, may cause the fireplace to smoke.

The height of the chimney is also an important factor in making the fireplace draw well. The top should never be less than two or three feet above the nearest high points of the roof. As anything higher than a chimney and near it will cause down drafts when the wind is blowing across it toward the chimney. Even a tall tree can cause this.

Below the hearth, the floor framing should be cut away so that the stone of the hearth can be bedded in concrete. It is usual to keep all woodwork of any kind as far from the flue of a chimney as possible. None of the framing of a house should ever rest directly on the masonry of a chimney.

Another convenience is an ash-dump—a sort of flue that leads to an ash pit in the cellar so that when a metal trapdoor in the fireplace is opened or a pair of spring doors depressed, ashes can be dropped directly down.

A major part of fireplace heat is usually lost up the chimney, but the loss may be minimized by the installation of a device consisting of a double-walled smoke box or heating chamber which permits warm air to go to the second floor through metal ducts in the walls, thus giving heat upstairs in the fall before the furnace is in operation. Circulation of air is provided by intake ducts on either side of the fireplace.

Just follow this practical home-guide

To help PREVENT many colds. At the first sneeze or sniffle or irritation in the nose—tickle—put a few drops of Vicks Va-tro-nol up each nostril. This special-ized medication is expressly designed for the nose and short distance, where most colds start. Used in time, Va-tro-nol helps to keep colds from developing—and to throw off head colds in their early stages.

To RELIEVE a cold SOOTHE. Massage Vicks VapoRub lightly on & back (between and below the shoulder-blades) as well as on the throat and chest, for 3 full minutes. LITTLE THEATRE HISTORY TRACED BY MISS J. TUITE

Movement of Vital Importance Started in 1899

COLLEGES SPONSORS

Members of the Women's Canadian Club had the pleasure of hearing a most interesting address delivered yesterday afternoon in St. Andrew's Church Hall by Miss Jessie R. Tuite, Dean of Women at Albert College, who discussed the history of the Little Theatre Movement in the United States and Canada. Miss Tuite was introduced by Mrs. H. Williams, President of the club, who also expressed the appreciation of the members to the speaker for the excellent address of the afternoon.

While the dominating motive behind the Little Theatre Movement is the creative impulse Miss Tuite pointed out it is not merely the desire for acting which has caused it to develop and grow until it is now a vital contribution to the drama of the present day. Besides supplying the opportunity for people to express themselves through the medium of the drama, it provides small communities with their only contact with the stage since travelling players have ceased visiting various centres. More than that the Little Theatre sponsors friendliness and good feeling, is good advertising and develops and bears the standard of culture.

Beginnings of Movement

In the United States the amateur actors of settlement houses, Hull House, Chicago, in 1899 and Henry Street, New York, with its Neighborhood Play House, gave the Little Theatre Movement its first impetus. The latter grew, aided by wealthy women, until its Play House was a real theatre, mingling and uniting art, music movement, pantomime and speech. In 1911 Professor Dickenson created the Wisconsin Players and in that same year the famous Irish Players visited America for the first time. In the course of a few years the Provincetown and Washington players came into being and after another few years when the movement made great advances the now famous Theatre Guild began.

Universities have been a great factor in the progress of the Little Theatre and one hundred and fifty colleges have courses in all phases of dramatic art. Besides interesting the student in great literature of the drama, the courses, by necessitating team work, initiative, personal responsibility, free play, and an acquaintance with the best in plays, are invaluable to the individual students. They will demand higher standard in plays. It was this demand for plays of a fine quality which inspired Eugene O'Neill refusing to write the kind of drama that Broadway asked, to continue until Broadway now asks for the kind of plays he writes. O'Neill was an active member of the Provincetown Players.

Origin in Canada

In Canada, the Little Theatre the spoken drama, since today there is not one stock company left in Canada. The Ottawa Drama League, operating for seventeen years, Montreal Repertory Theatre, Hart House, London, Sarnia, Winnipeg and Vancouver Drama Leagues are examples of the high standard of amateur drama in Canada. Queen's University and Montreal are both doing splendid work in the drama. The Little Theatre Movement has been stimulated in Canada by the Dominion Festivals originated by Lord Bessborough and has developed to such an extent that this year's adjudicator remarked, "I have never seen a people anywhere with a keener interest in the drama." The serving of plays in Canada is also being encouraged and it may not be long before there is a real Canadian drama.

Plan Simplicity Shown

The public has a deep desire for the spoken drama and welcome the Little Theatre Movement. Amateur actors have plenty of shortcomings, they attain a fine simplicity, have real sincerity, and a desire to do creative work of a high standard which upholds the ideal and object of the Little Theatre.

Following Miss Tuite's splendid discussion, afternoon tea was served the members, the tea table looking most attractive with its centrepiece of Spring flowers. An unusually large number of members was in attendance yesterday.

Indian Woman Acquitted of Murder Charge

Sudbury, Ont., March 3.—(CP)—Mrs. Agnes Saylors, 32-year-old Chapleau Indian, was free today from a charge of murdering her brother-in-law, Willie Saylors, 30, she said was thrown through the head when he attempted to break into her home with a hatchet. Retiring but twenty minutes after receiving the charge from Mr. Justice E. R. E. Cherrier last night, the jury at her one-day trial brought in an acquittal.

The young mother showed no emotion throughout the trial and seemingly did not understand what was meant as W. W. Henderson, Copper Cliff, delivered his jury's verdict. As she was led from the prisoner's box Her, Canon Prayer spoke to her in the Ojibway language but she showed no animation. She joined her husband, Henry, 48, and left the court room a free woman.

Practically all the evidence for both Crown and defence was based on statements made by Mrs. Saylors on the night of the shooting. It was testified that Saylors, under the influence of wine, came to the Saylors home to find sister-in-law alone, except for her four-year-old daughter.

Struck With Axe

Refused admittance, Willie found an axe and threw it through one of the windows striking her on the leg, Mrs. Saylors said. Taking up a rifle she ordered him away and fired three shots. Willie started to kick in the door and got his head, shoulders and one leg inside, when Mrs. Saylors shot him. Wrapping her child in a blanket she fled to a neighbor's house to await her husband and police to whom she related the story.

This was neither manslaughter nor murder, but justifiable homicide in defence of her home," Dr. E. Buchanan, defence counsel, told the jury. R. D. Wilkins, Crown Attorney, intimated the woman did not tell the full story of what occurred that night.

Evidence showed Willie met the woman in the afternoon and struck her for no apparent reason. He had been drinking and drank some more after the evening, the court was told.

Most of there were intimate relations a woman has the right to defend herself if she says "No," Mr. Justice Cherrier told the jury in his address.

SUFFERS LOSS OF MEMORY

Hamilton, Ont., March 3.—(CP)—Andrew Malcolm, 73-year-old resident of this hamlet, 30 miles west of Peterborough, is suffering from loss of memory today after a fall downstairs in his home. His niece, Miss Mary Malcolm, had left her aged relative for a few days while on Saturday and he decided to get wood for the fire from the cellar.

After eating I would get so bloated and frequently had heartburn. I used Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and it was wonderful. It improved my appetite and helped to give me the stomach discomfort. It seemed to build me right up." Now Mrs. Boots is full of fun service of £144,300.

BRITAIN PLANS

The new construction program for 1937 is:

Three additional battleships of the type of the King George V and the Prince of Wales, now building, with a displacement of 35,000 tons and carrying 14-inch guns.

Two aircraft carriers.

Five cruisers of the "standard" 8,000-ton class.

Two cruisers of about 5,000 tons.

Sixteen destroyers.

Seven patrol type submarines.

Sixty-five smaller vessels of all types.

Increase In Personnel

This will involve an increase in personnel of 11,000 officers and men, bringing the navy's total strength to 112,000.

The entire 1937 program will cost £105,065,000, ($525,325,000) of which £27,000,000 will be met from the £400,000,000 it is proposed to raise in defence loans.

Sir Samuel Hoare's memorandum accompanying the figures comments "That as the Washington and London (1930) naval treaties expired Dec. 31, 1936, there is no longer any quantitative limitation on naval construction in any category of warships, but pending ratification of the London naval treaty of 1936 the qualitative limitations contained therein are being observed in the construction of ships now laid down or projected.

Empire Defence

The memorandum observes that the imperial conference to be held in May "will provide an opportunity for discussion with the Dominion authorities of important questions of naval defence." Under the head of co-operation with the Dominions, the memorandum remarks that the Australian cruisers Australia and Sydney had been for some months attached to the Mediterranean fleet, leaving the Mediterranean last July for Australian waters.

"The co-operation of the Australian government," the memorandum adds, "in consenting to the stay of these ships in the Mediterranean has been greatly appreciated."

Canada's purchase of two destroyers, the Fraser and the St. Laurent, is noted. "It is intended that the Fraser and the St. Laurent shall take part in exercises with the America and West Indies squadron during March," the memorandum stated.

Another Grateful Man Praises Syntona Highly

Had No Appetite and What Little He Did Eat Caused Indigestion — Nerves on Edge, Had Dizzy Spells and Couldn't Sleep.

"I certainly can recommend Syntona after what it has done for me," said Mr. F. S. Neely, 161 Palmer St., London, to the Syntona Man, only a few days ago.

"I was in such a rundown condition I could hardly get upstairs to go to bed. I had been suffering from indigestion and gastritis for so long that it got so I could hardly eat anything. My tongue was always coated and I always seemed to have a bad taste in my mouth. I had frequent dizzy spells, spots floated before my eyes and finally I became so nervous I could not sleep. I am 78 years of age and at times I wondered if I would ever feel any better.

"Then one day I read about what Syntona was doing for others and I decided to try it. I have taken three bottles in all and can truthfully say I feel like a different man. Climbing stairs don't bother me at all now. I can eat three good meals a day, I sleep well and get up mornings feeling rested and ready for a day's work. I am very thankful for what Syntona has done for me and recommend it to anyone suffering as I did."

Local men and women can now get Syntona in Belleville at Dolan's Drug Store. Ask about the special introductory offer. Also for sale at all Standard Drug Stores.

PREMIER

given a wisecrack touch by Mr. Heenan's "Dumb Dora" charge that prices are rising under Premier Hepburn.

Premier Hepburn had refused address at 3 p.m. at the request of the Co-operative opposition leader, Mr. Heenan's speech to a division on the throne speech debate. At 12.10 a.m. Mr. Hepburn, while Dora slept, was up.

"In view of the conduct of my colleagues, I'm going to accept a motion for adjournment."

Mr. Henry quickly made the motion, Mr. Heenan rose to speak as Speaker left. Without a glance at Mr. Heenan or anyone else the Premier strode from Chamber.

Thoroughly Disgusted

"I'm thoroughly disgusted," said Mr. Hepburn to the press in the corridor, "That's all."

It looked as if the Premier would issue a statement later.

Mr. Heenan rose to point out the Conservatives had offered an amendment to the address in reply to the speech from the throne. When he mentioned the $600,000 expenditure on the Hawkin-Kemsley highway stretch, Mr. Heenan started running comment.

The Irish-born cabinet member, formerly a federal minister of labor was reproved several times by Speaker Sauve, who did not see he began a speech "to correct Mr. Heenan."

The Speaker ruled he was out of order and "asked him to take his seat."

"If I was in order I'd go across there and see him (Mr. Henry)," declared the tall, lean Conservative, rising again and taking a step as though he would. "I'm going to dig out out his arse to restrain him."

Talk about your own dirty work" Mr. Heenan called to Mr. Henry.

"I'm not a minister without portfolio," said Mr. Henry.

"You'll be without portfolio a long time on the high jump it," shot back Mr. Heenan.

The Conservative leader took up his speech again and said money had been spent unwisely on the six-mile highway here, while 300 miles of the trans-Canada remained undetarred.

"We've got lots of money," said Mr. Heenan from his seat.

"Then you seemingly have," replied Mr. Henry.

"We spent it, to," declared Mr. Heenan.

Remarks Lost in Cross-Fire

Mr. Heenan's remarks were lost in Mr. Heenan's cross-fire.

"We've got the votes though," barked Mr. Heenan. "You've hired Kenors from the first. Why did they (Kenors) let seven contracts just before the election and now charge me with expenditure?"

"Answer me that one!" Mr. Heenan shouted, shaking his fist at Mr. Henry.

Speaker Hipel rose.

"This has gone far enough," he declared. "I'll ask the member for Kenora to rise and put his question in a proper manner."

Then I ask him—" began Mr. Heenan, rising to his feet.

"No, I don't want to answer your questions now," said Mr. Henry.

The Dumb Dora don't want to answer," Mr. Heenan cried, throwing up his hands in a gesture of disgust.

Mr. Henry began again, but Mr. Heenan kept up his interruptions. Cabinet colleagues sought unsuccessfully to quiet him.

Premier Visibly Shaken

Mr. Henry had uttered only a few words when Premier Hepburn, visibly shaken, rose and said he was willing to adjourn the debate.

The Premier marched from his seat, Mr. Heenan sat at his desk a few moments and then went out

The 62-year-old Lands and Forests Minister was in the news a few weeks ago when reports drifted about, that he had thrown a cabinet colleague from his office. Mr. Heenan refused to confirm the story but a few sly remarks cropped up from the opposition benches. Mr. Heenan, who was called Peter the Peacemaker by politics friends, when he served as Federal Labor Minister in the Liberal government from 1926 to 1930, became a member of the Ontario Cabinet in 1934. In the interval he retained his railroad seniority rights by returning for a while to his run on the line. During his life he has worked also as a coal miner and a deep-sea diver. He was also a professional football player before coming to Canada as a young man.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLE

"Shanghai Troupe" Eleven Spectacular Artists on the Belle Stage

After a sensational engagement at the Imperial Theatre, Montreal, an exhibition the sensation of two Hemispheres, The Shanghai Troupe, starring acrobatic and contortion unbelievable feats of strength and agility, 22 acts are presented against a background of dazzling beauty.

This sensational attraction, which is touring the Famous Playgoers Theatres through Canada, offers the public a real entertainment value, and Manager Forhan of the Belle announces that his greatest stage attraction, and places his personal guarantee behind the attraction.

Eagles in Favorite Role

If you think your wife has been minding too much of your business lately in telling you how to run your business, just wait, for Charlie Ruggles in his latest comedy, "Your Own Business," announced as the feature screen attraction at the Belle stage attraction, and you will see what a mess she can get you into if she wrestles!

Or, if you are a wife, and friend husband needs an extra push to get him to ask for that raise or to go after that job, take him by the hand and take him to see how one wife took the bull by the horns and made her husband a "millionaire" . . . and against his will.

It's all in fun, of course, but it makes one of the most delightful comedies of the month. Good old Charlie, intent upon minding his own business, and intent upon letting glory and power fall to those who want it, is perfectly satisfied with his little job as "birds-and-bees" editor of a newspaper. He likes the birds and the bees and he loves children.

But friend wife, played by Alice Brady, thinks he's just frittering along as rapidly as she would like him to so she writes his column for him one day and what a column it is! Families will all the scandal in it, and she thinks a new, hot "key-hole peeper" and then the fun begins.

Charlie becomes the most famous reporter in town. He is regarded as "Broadway 'in the know'" feared by erring husbands and philandering wives, grossly overpaid, and, what is more important, the underworld. The latter believe they have a use for him, and the "snooper" so they decide to put him on the spot. He is kidnapped and taken to a gang hideout. From there on everything happens including a rescue engineered mainly through a knowledge of woodcraft and his ability to imitate an owl.

Assisting Ruggles in the gymnics are Lyle Talbot, Jack Latiz, Benny Baker and Fernanda Eliscu. Gene Raymond, Ann Sothern

Gene Raymond and Ann Sothern head the star fun cast in the sparkling, comedy-romance, "Smartest Girl in Town" to be presented at the Belle tonight for the last times.

Delightful humor is combined with a fast-moving plot which gives the zillies play to the versatile talents of one of screen's most popular romantic teams.

Helen Broderick, Eric Blore, Erik Rhodes and Harry Jans keep the comedy fast-paced.

Romance, melody and laughter combine in "The Gay Deception" the second feature attraction on the same program featuring Wm. Hartnell, the handsome young star of radio, grand opera and films, lovely Grace Moore and Leo Carrillo. The Belle Latest News Wiashes are presented on the same program. Don't fail complete show begins at 8:30 P.M.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Canada's Own Deanna Durbin"

Starting today until Saturday night at the Capitol Theatre the grand and glorious new screen singing sensation Deanna Durbin who is being hailed from Canada's radio hook in the screen hit "Three Smart Girls." Following is a true story picture preview in her home town Winnipeg, Canada, as her "Granny" sheds tears of joy as Deanna sings in her first movie.

A little girl who sang a rippling song to her sick granny in a St. Vitai bedroom a little over a year ago repeated that song on the screen at the leading theatre in Winnipeg, Man., when the 15-year-old Deanna Durbin, Hollywood's latest "find," was singing the number from the screen and granny listened while tears of happiness streamed down her cheeks.

"She's just a lovely girl," she said, "and if I could feel my heart beat I'd take her in my arms and give her a great big kiss."

Deanna Durbin had returned to Winnipeg—her birthplace—on a reel of film, the first "shot" on the stage and the Metropolitan Opera company in Hollywood by her future. There is talk of a "command" performance before the King and Queen next August. "Winnipeg girl makes good" has never taken on a more significance.

All Deanna's relatives in Winnipeg came down to the Capitol theatre late Wednesday night—"mostly nervous contingent," as they call themselves—but granny was the star of the evening. She has been ill again, and at 76 has to be careful.

All Excited

They were awed with excitement when they trooped into the theatre at 11 o'clock, but they followed granny in as she was supported by her two sons and selected the choicest seats.

Granny and her brood didn't have long to wait for Deanna to appear. Her voice was heard before she was flashed on the screen. And suddenly granny, who was singing and smiling as she sat on the stern of a sailboat.

"It was just like Deanna," said Granny as she sat with some of her family. "Wasn't she lovely."

And so the picture continued for about an hour and a half, Deanna was seldom absent from the screen and she sang three songs. There was a sentimental touch to her voice and she acted with vivacity and charm.

Deanna exceeded the fondest expectations of Granny and the family. They were thrilled at her every bit of delight as they left the theatre and were whisked away in taxis.

Granny could still hear Deanna's song from the last spool homewards.

Deanna—then Edna Mae Durbin—motored down to Winnipeg with her father and mother, Mr. Smith, and she was just a little girl who was taking singing lessons. There was no thought of a dancing career, then.

Granny was sick in bed, but she wanted Edna Mae to sing for her. So Edna Mae fluttered into the bedroom and sang one of the songs she loved best. It was the "I Reckly" waltz by Arditi.

Granny Happy

"My," said Granny, "you sing that number beautifully!"

So Edna Mae—now rechristened Deanna—sang the song in her first movie. It was the happiest moment in Granny's life. It was so happy that she had to spill a few tears.

"Why, she was so natural, she darling. She usedn't run all over the house and play. A regular tomboy. She used to laugh and joke with her Granny all day. I am sorry to see her go back to Los Angeles.

"Why, I could feel my heart beat so fast when she came on the screen."

Deanna was 14 on Dec.4 and Granny was 76 on Dec. 14. She got a great birthday card, and on it Deanna had written:

"I'm coming back as soon as I can so you can paddle me in the meantime."

"She wrote that," said Granny, "to remind me of the time I used to get in the bedroom in the summer and paddle her until she got up."

"Why," she asked whether she'd like Deanna to stay in the movies or whether she'd like her to sing in opera.

"Well," she said, "it's up to Deanna's mother and father but I'd like to see her in opera."

Perhaps Granny may get her wish she might be present the night Deanna sang her first operatic role.

"Anyway," I like the pictures," she said, "But so we all would. We're very proud of her."

Deanna was born in Grace hospital while her people lived in Winnipeg. She was taken to Los Angeles with her father, mother and sister when she was only a little over a year old.

She has been back, though, and looks upon Winnipeg as her home. Granny and Mrs Gordon have been down to California to see her.

Larry Aurie Heads for First N. H. L. Scoring Title After Ten Years of Campaigning

Three Points Ahead of Syl Apps of Toronto Leafs

HAWKS STILL IN

Defeat Bruins 4-3 to Win First Game on Boston Ice This Winter

(By A. N. Pulford)

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Someone should take Syl Apps aside and whisper that there is little use of his trying to win scoring honors in the National Hockey League in his third season.

Pale and drawn these days the sensational 23-year-old Toronto centre might be advised, that he has years in which to reach the top and that there is no percentage in burning himself out.

And that's where's another reason. He's little Larry Aurie of Detroit Red Wings, who, at 26, is going at his best and seemingly headed for his first scoring championship in 10 years of N.H.L. campaigning.

It might be foolish for Apps to embrace himself trying to catch a player, who seems to have everything in his favor. Even his years may be an advantage to Aurie at this stage of the race.

Hard to Overcome

Aurie today was more than ever a good reason why Aces should slow down. The Detroit right wing piled up two assists last night as the world champs defeated Montreal 7-4 in Montreal.

That head him two up on his teammate Marty Barry, who scored three goals to take individual honors of the evening's ten. Three up on Apps. It's an advantage Apps would find hard to overcome in seven games.

The win left Detroit with the task of scoring only five more points in seven games to make positive of finishing first in the American Division, and they need those only if Boston or New York Rangers win all their remaining games.

Bruins helped the Wings along in a way last night by bowing 4-3 to Chicago Black Hawks in Boston. The tenacious Hawks are still clinging to the slimmest mathematical chance of getting in the playoffs. They must win seven more games and Rangers must lose seven for that unlikely thing to come about.

Habs Gain Three

The Aurie-Barry-Lewis line got three goals against Maroons but lesser scorers with the exception of Lead and Shore before their work started. Gordon Pettinger, Syd Howe, Harold Doetzel and Gene McDonald each shot a goal in the opening period.

Stew Evans started Maroons on their way in the second and Earl Robinson, Hec Kilrea and Russ Blinco added other counters for Tommy Gorman's men. However, Wings were always at least two goals up on them.

Maroons staged a thrilling attack in the last period of play and played without penalties in contrast to Maroons last contest in Toronto Saturday. The Montrealers' failure to win lost them a chance to widen their points lead over Toronto, who are in third place in the Canadian section.

The line-up in Boston was their first there this season. They had lost two and tied one previously.

Cooney Weiland gave Bruins a lead halfway through the first period but Mush Marsh tied that up in the same period and Hawks went ahead in the second on goals by Paul Thompson and Pete Palangio. They matched Bill Cowley's counter in the third by one from Johnny Gottselig's stick.

Bob Greer, erstwhile baseball and hockey star of Picton, and former member of the Belleville baseball squad of the Western Senior Loop in Texas, is tearing it up, literally, in the Queen City last night when he was made 1936 recipient of the handsome trophy annually awarded to the most valuable player in big tears in the league . . . Greer has improved one hundred percent since coming under the fiery eye of Pat Downing . . . He led the loop in home runs last season, and was voted the first string catcher in an all-star selection . . . Greer's greatest asset since hitting the big time, is the combine of "wise old fish" and attending the annual ball of the baseball writers, that he drawn his salary check . . . He made hits with the fans, players and chained a fine performance by making "home run" just before the curfew-tolled in the ninth inning . . . He can give plaster for plaster with the toughest of umpires and fights with the best of red lips and the twinkle of mischief's eyes causes the Greer-complexioned to turn a rosy red.

Gibson, R.C.A.F. goalie, is thought to be the best bet to succeed Roy Worters as goalie for Pittsburgh Pirates in the Yandon B Point Edward. So much did they believe this, that they made a special ice-making ceremonies, and with Levan doing the scooshing, crowd enticed him into signing on the dotted line of the Jackson Park ice . . . Now that Detroit Olympics have signed Gibson, it looks like the Pittsburgh Pirates will have to be drawn by Point Edward.

CLIFF MANAHAN UPSETS DOPE BY TAKING WINNIPEG

Five Rinks Tied For First as Third Day of Tankard Opens

ONTARIO DOWN

Western Players Continue to Use The Knockout

Toronto, March 3.—(CP)— Cliff Manahan's Edmonton rink may not be winner of the Macdonald's Tankard when the Dominion Curling Championship Competition ends this morning, but the Albertans at least will have recorded one of the year's outstanding feats. Last night they stopped what was beginning to look like a runaway for Manitoba today the contest was wide-open again as 11 entered lis fifth round.

The Edmonton Four set back Jimmy Welsh's previously undefeated Winnipeg Deer Lodge Rink 13-11 and the representatives of Manitoba and Fort Rouge-Saskatchewan, British Columbia and Northern Ontario were left tied for first place with three wins and one loss each. Even the Ontario rink, Tom Campbell's Nova Scotia, Quebec, Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick took an early bath.

Experts who watched Manitoba's supreme declared it has been one of the easiest sort of placement to win by precision and the manner in which they defeated the Deer Lodge rink almost even-money favorites with the "Manitoba" to take the Tankard.

Winnipeg off Form

It was generally admitted the Winnipeg players were below the form which has characterized their matches. They missed important shots in the early ends and Welsh's rink was unduing on the last end, when he clipped his guard that distracted little from the work of the curlers from the Pool-fishing Province. When opponents' stones seemed to block the way they managed to slip in with unbelievable shots and their knockouts drew loud applause from the gallery.

Another interesting game was that in which W. O. Roy's Quebec rink defeated Tim Cochrane's rink piped by A. E. Dunker 9-8. A single point on the last end gave Welsh's rink the title to tankard and set Ontario's score at two games won and lost.

Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick couldn't hold the pace class. The Island Province was beaten by Nova Scotia 15-5 and New Brunswick went down before R. V. David's British Columbia rink 16-6. Total 2460.

Cochrane's fifth game R. P. Smith's Saskatchewan rink defeated Nova Scotia, skipped by H. K. Ferguson, 19-15.

Belleville Redmen Tie 3-3 With Whitby Red Wings in First Game of Playdowns

Locals Leading 3-1 With Only Two Minutes to Play

PENALTY HURT

Redmen Force Whitby to Carry Play on Heavy Ice

Forcing their opponents to carry the play for practically the entire game, the Belleville "Redmen" played a splendid system of defensive hockey and took full advantage of all the breaks to play the Whitby Red Wings to a 3-3 tie in the first game of the second round play-down for the Intermediate championship in the "B" series at Whitby last night. The two teams battled through the scoring early in the initial frame and were never headed, the period ended with the count at 1-1. At the end of the first and second stanzas, Belleville leading the Runnymen by a 3-2 count. A minute left to play, when a penalty to Carl Morgan, coupled with sheer clearing out of the Whitby their checks, saw the Red Wings golf two quick goals from the ice to put the game to the fore. The two teams resume hostilities at the Belleville Arena this Friday night, when the second game of the series will be played, the total goals on the round determining the winner. The Redmen have the advantage of the final game on the home ice and should be the slight favorites to win the bunting.

Ice Quite Heavy

The ice was quite heavy at Whitby last night, although not overwhelmingly so, but the Redmen by clever combination and passing practically impossible and resulted in a cross between polo and golf being provided a small crowd of 700 people. Contrary to the views and expectations the Red Wings were not the super team expected to be met by the Redmen, and were often luckied on several occasions. The Red Wings possess a strong fast skating team but on the heavy ice the "Redmen" forced them to carry the play, and this with the locals checked back fairly well, the first line of the Jackson Crawley and Tompkins proving highly efficient for the cause of the Redmen, playing both ends of the attack to a fine class. The Island Province was beaten by the Belleville Redmen, the New Brunswick went down before R. V. David's British Columbia rink 16-6. Total 2460.

Cochrane's fifth game R. P. Smith's Saskatchewan rink defeated Nova Scotia, skipped by H. K. Ferguson, 19-15.

Opine Louis Will Take Braddock in June Meeting

POMPOON FOR DERBY

Think Cards And Yanks Will Meet in Worlds Series

(By Alan Gould)

(Associated Press Sports Editor)

New York, March 3.—(AP)—If you care to parley expert opinion on the outcome of this year's major sporting contests in United States professional sports competition, for or against, here's the forecast:

Joe Louis to whip Jim Braddock for the world heavyweight championship in June, Pompoon to capture the Kentucky Derby, Cardinals to win the United States open golf crown, and New York Yankees to play St. Louis Cardinals in the next World Series.

Those are the consensus selections of the United States, leading sports writers who went into the Crystal Ball at the request of the Associated Press and tried their fingers and put themselves on record for the Sports Campaign of 1937. For their information and more, it is suggested Jack Doyle's opinion this five-star bruiser is a 500 to 1 proposition.

A year ago, the ringside experts picked Joe Louis to regain the title, a chance in 100 to keep his fistic crown safe from the assault of the then New York Giants and Yankees, subsequent events altered opinion with Louis regarded as a 10 to 7 favorite over Joe Louis. This year, with Louis a 10 to 9 favorite, odds of betting men that the Bomber will be no better than a 2 to 3 shot when he takes the ring in champion in Comiskey Park June 22.

Dizzy Dean, Cardinals ace in the National League, is a 2 to 1 favorite to win the Derby over Pompoon, three-year-old classic scattered.

Harry Cooper seems likely to be the hottest choice for the U. S. Golf Association open at Oakland, Cal., June 10 to 16 edge over Reaping Reward. The two of the ballots cast on Kentucky three-year-old classic scattered.

FOXBORO EARNS FOURTH GAME BY LATE TALLY

Thirty Minutes Overtime Played Between 'Hornets' And Glen Ross

PLAY SATURDAY

Glen Ross Leading in Final Game With 30 Seconds to Play

Stirling March 3.—(Special)—The largest crowd to assemble in the Stirling Arena this season lined the boards on Tuesday for ninety minutes of the fastest and most thrilling hockey displayed here this year. Glen Ross and Foxboro having split the first two games of a best-two-out-of-three Championship series fought doggedly through a game and a half before the necessity of the fourth game was finally established. Three times the fast skating Foxboro "Hornets" took the lead and three times the "Riverside" came from behind. With only six minutes of the last period left Hornets led three to two Armstrong balled in a pass from Robinson for the equaliser and forced the game into thirty minutes overtime and Rocsky's goal with only thirty seconds of the final overtime period left forced the series into the fourth game which is expected to take place on Saturday night next. Bidding to give goals as "Million Dollar Goals" on the night's play was expensive business for as that rate no less than four million dollars in goals were scored for that many times either one team or the other were pulled out of the hole.

The Game.

Starting at top speed but with great caution the forward lines of both squads checked frantically. Robinson was the first to get a shot on Stinfield and he took it carefully on the pads. Bill Hanna was the first to break into the scoring going in alone to beat Hagerman and the period ended that way. Robinson suffered an injury to his face early in the game and went off for repairs for the first twenty. The crowd gave him a great hand when he re-appeared for the second period.

Starting the second period, Glen Ross turned on the pressure and G. Fraser (centre) left his boards to flick the puck past Stinfield and the crowd went wild. Heavy checking began to appear and Sharp and Armstrong served time for minor infractions and the middle period ended tie 1-1. Early in the final period G. Fraser was chased for high sticking and Rocsky sailed in to put Foxboro on the lead again, but when he took a neat pass from Don Lee in close Glen Ross sent every man up and Robinson finally beat Stinfield to tie the game up again. Robinson was chased for a trip and Foxboro pressed again with the orbits man and Stinfield saw Lee put the "Hornets" in front on a brilliant lone rush and with exactly five minutes left J. Armstrong and Robinson broke away to beat Stinfield and once again this all important fixture was tied up and tee very tired teams, unaware of the fact that three ten minute overtime periods awaited them, skated off for a well-earned rest.

Sixteen Terrific

Playing five minutes an end these boys each striving to give their supporters the best, that was in them went through a scoreless twenty minutes skating and back-checking like fiends, and the respective goalies getting the jitters on every shot, that came close to them. The suspense was terrific and minutes of silence passed as the supporters of both clubs watched every play in anxiety. A goal would end and wind up a great season's hockey. Win or lose she was a great game someone would say quickly. There a brilliant rush by either of the forward lines would bring forth a bedlam of cheers. Each team began to be more cautious and tired players began to wait for breaks, that never seemed to come. Robinson finally got a break and it looked as if the series were over when he put the "Riverside" up one by sifting one past the weary Stinfield to make it 4-3 for Glen Ross and so it remained with Foxboro tearing in like mad men; their supporters urging them and their supporters urging them on frantically. One minute left to play and Glen Ross standing to keep the ice at every chance. Thirty seconds—and then it happened Rocsky sailed in with his back to perfection and beat Hagerman with a beast-breaker. Pandemonium broke loose dog-tired and the cheers of the crowd were deafening.

Dramatic Climax

It was a dramatic climax for the fans supporting the clubs. Ross team but triumphantly glorious for those cheering the "Hornets". The game and a championship snatched from their grasp in the thirty seconds left. Surely the audible sighs of the crowd was justified. But the bruens were drowned out by the deafening cheers of the Foxboro crowd some of whom had already started for the exits and now they stopped hope abandoned no one minute and in the next shouting to the world I knew they could do it, I told you so. And so a fourth game will settle the championship at the Centre Hastings Rural Hockey League between two of the best matched teams, that ever played hockey in this part of the province.

When—? Saturday night — the place—? Stirling Arena—? That's where the biggest crowd with gather to see the two fine teams in a hockey match for many years. Both teams have their loyal supporters but there weren't many in the crowd, that didn't scrooch with the "Hornets" back in that final rally. They seemed to want another chance to see those teams mix it again before the curtain fell on the last act and sure enough the boys are to be called back for a curtain call, and they can honestly take a bow for their fine season's performance. Saturday will see a packed house for what is certainly a "Natural". Robinson, Fraser Brothers, Deland and Armstrong were the stars of Glen Ross. Lee, Rocsky and Simm and Bill Hanna stood out for Foxboro with Sharp and Steelman turning in a great effort. The line-ups.

Sports Roundup

Baseball Schedule Is Changed

Outfying around with the Dodgers Wednesday Gleason says there'll be no more of the screwy stuff on his ball club. . . . When the Dodgers let holdout Joe Stripp come back from Orlando, sell the Club 11 parchutes of his baseball school and get out of town without signing his contract . . . This wire from Casey Stengel reached camp yesterday: "Still in Brooklyn opening day to see the Charlie Dyer Show." . . . Casey is taking 11 easy on Glendale, Cal., and getting fat. . . . He has picked up 21 pounds since getting fired . . . His wife'll step into a job with one of the two biggest organizations in baseball the minute he settles with the Dodgers for his 1937 salary.

You can laugh at the Dodgers, but Grimes means business his managerial record reads like a success story. . . . In two seasons he stepped from Bocaraton, 11., to the Majors, via Louisville, a class AA town . . . Eddie Forelich, new Dodger trainer, has received a well earned promotion. . . . He went from the last place Chicago Cardinals to the National Football League to the last place Chicago Blackhawks in the National Hockey League . . . Now he's moved up to the seventh place Dodgers and thinks he may still live to see the First Division.

POINT EDWARD IS NO PUSH-OVER

Another Battle Royal Expected Between Flyers And Western Squad

Although it is useless to ballyhoo or advertise tonight's Intermediate O.H.A. championship game in the Ontario Intelligencer deems it a privilege to be able to convey to its readers the probable lineups and more especially the numbers of the outstanding players of the Point Edward "Red Shirts" and the R.C.A.F. "Flyers." The referee for tonight's game was announced by the O.H.A. as being "Army" Armstrong of Oshawa.

It is understood, that the S.R.O. sign (standing room only) will be hung out at the Belleville arena early this evening and a bumper crowd will be on hand to witness the struggle. The Point Edward team is a hefty collection of hockey artists, who are pushovers for no team in any league. Judging from the first game of the series won by the Flyers, tonight's game will doubtless develop into a heavy-checking game with the checking down and no quarter being asked or given. Interspersing the speed of three youthful pucksters with the experience of seven cagey veterans the Point Edward team hopes to even matters and force the intermediate "A" finals to a third game, but the Flyers say "nay, nay" it's do or die tonight."

The probable lineups and numbers of the contesting teams:

R.C.A.F. "Flyers" Point Edward

Lalonde (3)	Manore (2)

Carling-Kelly (3)	Mars (7)

In order to distinguish the various players on the ice the fans are urged to clip the above lineups that include all of the players on both clubs, except Major Morley who wears jersey number (11) for the visitors.

"THE REAL M'COY" EXPRESSION COINED AWAY BACK IN 1899

New York, March 3 (CP)—Sixty-four-year-old Norman Kid McCoy Selby, famed middleweight of another generation, smiled along Manhattan's cauliflower row, bruised elbows with fistiouffers past and present and left with unexpected today his story of how the saying "the real McCoy" came into being.

There are those who claim "the real McCoy" is redundant; that boy Coy is McCoy. And there are Scotsmen, who say the argument is as old as the Highland Heath; that it should be "the real McKay." But not so Kid McCoy.

He went back to his fourth meeting with one Joe Choynski, in San Francisco in 1899 for this version of the birth of "the real McCoy."

It seems two weeks before Selby tackled Choynski a middleweight named Pete McCoy had been in the west coast fight mecca and was lauded by Joe Midgiffin.

"So," said Selby, "when I stepped in Choynski it came out this way in the papers: 'The real McCoy and Choynski.' From then on I was the real McCoy as well as 'Kid McCoy'."

Choynski Husky Hitter

Choynski was a husky hitter Selby recalled and as the record books show Kid McCoy bit the canvas 16 times in his fourth meeting with Joe. Selby must have been something of a battler himself to win the bouts on 200 bouts.

"A lot of them could hit harder than Joe Louis in those days," Selby opined. He figured too, that Bob Fitzsimmons had more thunder in his knuckles than Nonpareil Rolfa famed negro fighter Sammy Langford.

Tonight Selby attends an old-timers' boxing night in Philadelphia and for story-telling the Delaware has a little tale of a pugilistic rogue used in his bout with a giant negro, the "King of the Kaffirs" in South Africa, also in 1899.

As Selby tells it, the negro's feet were too large for the ring but his belting power appeared too much for Selby. So when Kid McCoy nodded his head his trainer tossed a few fistfuls into the ring. As the Kaffir attempted to keep his feet from his foot Selby put him away for keeps.

That story so Selby says, is also "the real McCoy."

BREAKS RECORD

Father Time received a severe jolt when Thomas Deckard of Indiana University ran the 3,000 metres steeplechase in 8 minutes 18 6-10 seconds in New York. In setting this new world's indoor record Deckard outran the former champion, Joe McCluskey of the New York A.C., who held the shattered record of 8 minutes, 57.1 seconds. The meet was sponsored by A.A.U.

Little Benny's Note Book

This morning at breakfast pop took 2 lumps of sugar and an asperin with his coffee, and ms said, Now Wilbyus, I've given you plenty of time to get rid of that cold, and if you dont promise to stop it and see Dr. Borer this morning Im going to call you up at the office every half hour and ask how you are. I dont care whether you're in conference or anywhere else, it'll insist on leaving to you, she said, and pop said Yes ma'am, everybody knows a cold has to take its own time and run its own course but you, it'll see the doctor.

Well he started to do on his way downtown, me wrestling with him on account of Dr. Borer's office being on my way to school, and Dr. Borer was just getting out of his car to go into his office, saying its pop, Will, I haven't seen you for a long while, you're not on your way to see a doctor by any chance, are you?

O no, nothing like that, pop said. But if I felt there was any use asking you about this confounded cold of mine I half believe I would pay you a visit. But you're the doctor and I guess you know better than I do that the common cold is just a common nuisance and if we can do is let it stick around till it leaves, a little common sense realizes it has outgrayed its welcome how about it, eh? but after all I'm a queer animal, that's rite, it's one little germ that's got us licked. We doctors have a saying that we can cure the usual cold in about 2 weeks but if left to itself it will take about 14 days, ha ha ha. But cant go around telling that to all my patients, will you? he said.

And he hurried up to catch a trolly car and Dr. Borer went in his office an I kept on going to school, trying to see how slow I could work without axually being nite, pritty near making a record for not quite on account of it being not exactly late.

MARKET COMMENT

Brokers are impressed with the action of the market and say that technical tests both in following material tests both in the news and from a volume standpoint indicate that stocks, it has emerged with confidence in higher prices and that a period of evidence of sustained buying in stocks selected for their improved outlook.

In view of the current strength in the oil stocks, it is interesting to note what the technical statistics has to say on the oil industry outlook. Crude oil production recently established successive new high levels and gasoline inventories also have been mounting. From a near term standpoint these developments might have favorable significance were it not for the fact that the period of seasonal peak gasoline demand is approaching and there are numerous indications that the present price structure within the industry will be severely shaken. Moreover, the field is clearly not as vulnerable to unionization efforts as other major industries.

If present estimates of potential demand are realized, oil production will have to be increased by even further to meet requirements in coming months. Crude oil inventories are extremely small, probably barely sufficient for immediate working requirements. Estimated gasoline demand for 1937 is about 9% greater than in 1936, on which basis the recent expansion of gasoline stocks is not dangerous, and oil forwards are down the equivalent of 15 million barrels per week. Refining, chemical and gasoline stocks as of March 31, next, are only 310 million, barrels under last year's total for the same date.

Slave Lake

According to the Listing Statement filed with the Toronto Stock Exchange only 300,000 shares have been sold for cash; 100,000 shares at 10 cents a share and 99,200 shares at 15 cents a share in October and December 1935; the balance of the shares were issued in 1935 between the M. A. Timmins Corporation and Slave Lake Gold Mines Limited.

Imperial Oil—Much Buying Needed To Move This Issue

The heavy liability position of the Imperial Oil Limited makes for a certain degree of inflexibility. Also as the stock is listed on several foreign exchanges, heavy selling while making for considerable market liquidity—tends to restrain buying improvement.

SPANISH FORCES ISOLATE OVIEDO

Battling to Recapture Three Of Largest Cities

(By Jean Rollin)
(Copyright, 1937, By The Havas News Agency)

Madrid, March 2.—(CP-Havas)—Spanish Government troops, battling to capture three of Spain's largest cities, today were reported to have isolated Oviedo and to be closing in rapidly on Toledo and Malaga.

Official advices from Gijon said militiamen and Asturian miners captured the San Pedro de Anes suburb outside Fascist-held Oviedo yesterday, encircling part of the Northern city.

The San Claudio position, a hill dominating the village of the same name and the road to Scampiero, was abandoned by the insurgents, recognized by the Insurgents, who fortified the church on its summit. Government artillery opened fire on the church yesterday, it was reported, sending its rails crashing on the heads of defenders. Asturian miners, throwing grenades and dynamite-sticks, stormed the hill and drove the insurgents back in disorder. Government forces also occupied Panton and Olivares Hills.

Violent fighting swept the frontic adian railway unions, said today.

Southeast and southwest of Madrid as Government troops closed in on Toledo from two sides and went "over the top" as Morels de Tonnas and perales to capture a number of trenches.

Young Boy Saved By Older Brother

Kitchener, Ont., March 3.—(CP) Gerald and Douglas Kern, 10 and 13 respectively "are warming up" under blankets today following an accidental freezing in which both lads nearly drowned.

Playing on rolling ice on a dam on a small creek, Gerald, the younger boy, fell through a hole and began to struggle under the chill water. As his older brother edged toward him the boy broke through the ice, but the crumbling ice with the older brother managed to crawl out and pull his brother out after him.

Ballots Support K. R. Unions

Montreal, March 2 (CP)—Ballots "from every city and town in the country" point to overwhelming support of the railway unions committee seeking immediate restoration of 10 per cent wage cuts, Howard B. Chase, Chairman of the Vice-Presidents conference of Conservation Officials from two sides and went over the top" as Morels de Tonnas and perales to capture a number of trenches.

DRAMA

Three-Act Comedy "The Patchies" Admirably Produced by Theatre Group of Bridge Street United Church

When a rural miss with forthright ideas steps into a Fifth Avenue drawing room bristling with intrigue, things are liable to happen and the occurrences in the Chandler household made "The Patchies" the three-act comedy presented by The Little Theatre Group of Bridge Street Young People, a very amusing play. The Sunday School rooms were filled to capacity and the Young People's Association was greatly encouraged by this evidence of interest and support.

The action of the play takes place in the living room of the Chandler residence in New York City and the stage setting was splendidly arranged, giving the impression of the position and culture of the family, an impression which the members of the house-hold, in their daily ramblings, petty plots and ancient disregard of financial obligations, proceed to destroy.

As Mrs. Elizabeth Chandler, Miss Hilda Beman had a demanding and difficult role, which she sustained with dignity throughout the performance. A country girl who submerged her individuality when she became a wealthy society matron is faced with financial ruin and plans were made for her son and daughter to help return the family fortunes, Miss Evelyn Chandler and Mr. Harry Chandler, and Mr. Harry Atkinson as Baldwin Bellamy had very interesting comedy roles, but both gave excellent performances and showed real ability. Mr. Charles Earle made a very outstanding character of Carter, the butler, and Miss Jean Bowerman for the bitter in life.

Miss Anne Bert Weil as Miss Anne Lee Rue was delightful as Rue Bennett, the country girl whose presence embarrassed her relatives. But Rue's charm of manner and ready practicality everybody saw, including a radio station owner, Mr. Jack Bell, who became smitten and cousins to overcome their awkwardness. Mr. Bell and Miss Dora Osborne was Lydia Le Roy, a fluffy, feminine character who wards Baldwin kept the audience in roles of laughter. Miss Osborne was a delight in her every appearance. Mary Lockhart as Elvira Smithers and Mr. Arthur Atkinson as Ambrose at this part, without any suggestion of overacting, and Mr. Glen Cleo Ostrom, in her brief appearance as the famed radio singer made a splendid impression. Mr. Arthur Sansome as Count Gaston de Long completed the cast of the piece, trying his wiles on one girl after the other, according to the dictates of his affections and Mr. Alfred Bishop as Jay Bishopby, the owner of the apartment in which the play was staged.

She discovers the true identity of the mysterious Mr. Smith to be the overstrained Chandler finances by a combination of the piece, trying his wiles on one girl after the other, according to the dictates of his affections and Mr. Alfred Bishop as Jay Bishopby, the owner of the apartment in which the play was staged.

The very interesting play was directed by Mrs. Ruth Tuttle and to her supervision is due much of the success of the production.

Adding to the enjoyment of the audience a musical prelude by Miss Ruth Tuttle and Mr. Bert Weil, vocal solos by Mr. Ken Anglin and piano selections by Miss Gordon were heard between acts. Mr. Taylor introduced the players and Mrs. F. E. Welcomed the large audience and expressed appreciation of the efforts of the Young People's Society in the evening's entertainment and to all who had helped in any way. Miss Helen Sukman was efficient business manager and Mr. Ken Anglin and Mr. Taylor Franklin and Mr. Milton Fowler were stage managers.

CUSTOM OF 'BIRCHING' MAY BE PROHIBITED

London, March 3—(AP)—A move was launched today to end another of the customs of Dickens' England—the "birching" of young law breakers.

Demanding an investigation "of the whole procedure with a view to the end of birching," The Daily Herald declared 80 per cent of young offenders punished by the courts went back in court within a few years.

NEED HEALTH

Health Insurance plan is needed by Ontario he said. In parts of Hastings County there were physicians to which a doctor charged $25 a trip. The result was many poor-circumstanced until employment hospitalization is required.

"The Government could not be a good idea to have bonused doctors in communities like these" he said. "The Government could pay part of the salary. I don't believe we need state medicine. I don't believe in a compulsory system but a voluntary system such as that started in Windsor is a step in the right direction."

Hospital Situation

Dr. Welsh said a serious crisis had developed in Ontario in respect to overcrowding of mental hospitals.

Premier Hepburn advised him not to pay too much attention to grand juries "reports. They were sometimes wrong. A recent finding in respect to overcrowding at the Ontario Hospital, New Toronto, was an error.

Premier Hepburn attempted to read a report by a departmental official regarding an interview with the foreman of the grand jury, Dr. Welsh objected. Mr. Hepburn said it was customary to give the Prime Minister a chance.

"You're getting off to a very bad start, Tim (sic) Welsh," Mr. Hepburn told Dr. Welsh.

Question of Religious Issue

If the religious issue was interjected into the Hastings East by-election it was the Conservatives fault.

The only way to keep religion out of politics, is to keep it out of the legislative hall," Mr. Hepburn said.

The Trudeau Policy of the Hepburn Government has been directed to putting the burden on those able to pay it, William Newman, (Lib., Cochrane), in the House. He particularly commended the drive on Succession Duties.

Mr. Newman said farmers in certain Eastern Ontario Districts were in a serious position in purchasing seed grain. Prices have risen because of a shortage and the Government should accomplish a great deal towards relieving the property owner of heavy taxation. At the moment the property owner and he alone bears the brunt of providing the whole city budget."

Mr. Rose referred to the premature of municipalities in default and added that "the property owner in many cases is paying more than he receives in municipal taxes." He reparently no remedy for this situation. He said he would not put up a fight and for this purpose the Ontario Association of Property Owners recently came into being."

Mr. Rose is a director and second vice president of that body. The association has a journal "The Property Owner" which is devoted to the elimination of this evil and to the tax load from the property owners.

Mr. Fred Chamberlain of the city hall staff recently addressed the forum of the chamber of commerce on this question.

Mosquito Control To Doom Menace

Residents of Belleville will not be bothered with the pesky mosquitoes this summer, if tentative plans formulated by Dr. Gordon Bell, Provincial Entomologist and Mr. A. B. Baird of the Entomological Laboratory at Chatham.

"This is a very necessary work" Mr. Baird told the Belleville Intelligencer this morning" and one which will require a lot of study. There is nothing definite to be done to work on at present we are going to start immediately on certain formulas which we believe will provide the solution to the mosquito problem. We must, of necessity work with the various committees, with particular reference to drainage and ditching and such things. If necessary we will call in the outside expert to help us. We feel that this work is one of paramount importance and one which should not be neglected."

26 Men in Cells After Plant Strike

Sarnia, Ont., March 3—(CP)—Twenty-six men were in police cells today on bench warrants issued as a result of their failure to heed summonses charging conspiracy issued as a result of a sit-down strike at Holmes Foundry Co., here. They were brought to the cells after they had been evicted from the plant and turned over to the police by non-strikers. It was not certain when they would be arraigned before a magistrate.

PROPERTY OWNER BODY TO ORGANIZE

Speaker Rules Out of Order Remarks By Hoc-nan

A committee, composed of Messrs. J. J. Wallace, C. O'Flynn, Fred Houston, L. B. Riggs and Jamieson Bone, along with Mayor Arnold, met on Tuesday evening to form the nucleus of a local association of Property owners and arrangements for a speaker to address an open forum meeting of the Chamber of Commerce at a supper meeting in the Queen's Hotel on Friday, March 19th at 6.30 p.m. to discuss matters pertaining to the welfare of property owners.

Announcement to this effect was made today by Mr. Jamieson Bone who said that it was hoped that all property owners will turn out to this meeting and address their views in no uncertain terms as that employment may be stimulated."

He went on to say "It is felt that the much-talked of building boom will not materialize so long as property is so heavily taxed. With the object of forcing this issue into the limelight, a local property owners' association will be formed."

Property owners of Toronto have a very successful association, which it is said, has been instrumental in correcting a number of their grievances.

Mr. Jamieson Bone explained today that "recently it has been felt that a province-wide association composed of local associations from every city and town in the province would accomplish a great deal towards relieving the property owner of heavy taxation. At the moment the property owner and he alone bears the brunt of providing the whole city budget."

Mr. Rose referred to the premature of municipalities in default and added that "the property owner in many cases is paying more than he receives in municipal taxes." Is apparently no remedy for this situation. He said he would not put up a fight and for this purpose the Ontario Association of Property Owners recently came into being."

DAILY SHORT STORY

The Grace Period

By Jane Osborn

"The grace period allowed for the payment of your premium will expire on the 15th of April, 193—. In case of nonpayment during this period, THERE FOLLOWS WITH LAPSE—"

Martin Noble regarded the printed slip of paper that had come in his morning mail with an expression of grim amusement. He read it through and his eyes lingered on the words in large black letters at the bottom of the slip:—

"IMPORTANT—LAST NOTICE"

"Well, let her lapse," he said half aloud, and let the slip drop into the waste-paper basket at his side. He reached for another letter but did not open it. His eyes were still absently focused on the expanse of gray-blue sky. He recalled similar portent details of the transaction eight years ago when he first took out the life insurance. He was twenty-four years old then and though his salary was unusually good for a young man of his age, a fifty thousand dollar life insurance policy seemed large. Taking it out at all was, of course, the result of mental derangement at the time. Payment of the large premiums had been a pleasant way to spend one or two things for himself so that he might pay them. It was a real contest to think of the girl to whom he had been engaged at the time ever. Then after she had returned the ring and the letters he had gone out and bought a car, still thinking vaguely that there might be a reconciliation.

Several times within the eight years he had thought of letting the policy lapse. But each time he had gone on with it.

But now he had honestly forgotten to send in his last premium. Of course, with his present income the the payment of it meant no sacrifice, still there were other ways in forest the money the benefits of which he might reap himself. "Better let it lapse," he muttered again—and then looked up somewhat surprised to see his secretary, Mary Bennett, standing at the other side of the desk.

"Are you ready for dictation?" she suggested rather demurely.

"I hope you noticed the nonpayment notice from the insurance people," she said accordingly through the pile of letters.

"It's in the waste-paper basket," said Martin Noble. "I'm going to let it lapse."

"But, Mr. Noble," gasped Mary. "You can't possibly—"

"Why shouldn't I?" he asked, watching the color mount in her cheeks as he looked at her. "I can buy it, I stock with the premiums—and that will be some good when I want to retire. It isn't as if those Dawson cousins would care about a paltry fifty thousand—"

"But—but you might marry," exclaimed Mary.

Martin shook his head sadly and watched Mary's face to see the reaction. He was surprised to realize what enjoyment he got out of the play of expression on Mary's pretty young face. A quick little "oh" of surprise escaped from Mary's pretty young face. A quick little "oh" of surprise escaped from Mary's unpainted lips, then she took her accustomed seat at the side of her employer's desk and precisely opened her note book.

Martin hesitated, stopped and drew the important notice from his waste basket. He tore it in small pieces really to Mary. "Tell them that owing to a clerical error the payment of the premium was not included. Make out the check and leave it with the letter for me to sign." Martin watched for the reaction on Mary's face, but Mary was simply looking intently at her notebook.

After an hour of rapid dictation Mary rose and left him alone at the door.

"I hope Mr. Noble" she said shyly "that—that I didn't seem to be intruding in your personal affairs."

Martin looked up and smiled and surprised himself almost as much as he did Mary when he said, "Let's have luncheon together. It's a depressing sort of thing to lunch alone."

And the luncheon Mary had the temerity to ask Martin to come to see her at home some time—she said she thought he would like the men her brothers. There were two of them in the city college and they knew all sorts of amusing songs and stunts.

That night Martin Noble had a long conference with himself. In the morning when Mary Bennett appeared for his dictation he had difficulty in assuming his usual impersonal manner toward her.

"No thinking of making a change in that policy of mine," he said. "You might write and ask them what form is necessary for changing the name of the beneficiary. I don't know a thing about insurance."

"Shall I give them the name of the—beneficiary?" asked Mary, narrowly watching the long points of her pencils.

"Perhaps I had better get the beneficiary's consent first," said Martin. "Mary's blue eyes opened in a sort of childish bewilderment.

"I mean—that I want to marry you—Mary," he said. The pencil dropped from Mary's hand as he took it in his own and drew her to him.

"You don't let's ever talk about the insurance," said Mary.

TRENTON and DISTRICT

Accidental Death

On Friday night a coroner's jury found that Percival Leblanc, 22, of Shetview met his death on Saturday, February 20th, when he was run over by a fast moving C.P.R. freight train at the Lerai West Street crossing, when he was attempting to board the train. The injured took place in the town hall. Command Butler of Belleville conducted the inquiry, and Coroner Dr. W. B. Crowe presided. The written testimony of Leslie Lepage of Shetview identified the deceased man as Fernand Leblanc. Eye witness Bert Farrar testified he was on West Street standing on the opposite side of the track when the fatality occurred. Three other transients caught the same train, Farrar said, and when Leblanc was about to board it he fell beneath the wheels. I saw twenty box cars pass over his body," Farrar testified further and said he informed the station agent of the mishap. Dr. W. J. Johnston an elbe viewed the body of Leblanc at the McNair and Northey funeral home on Eight Street and found it badly mutilated about the mid-section. Two inches of skin was all that connected the top and bottom portion of the trunk, he said. Chief Bain testified he located Leblanc's home through a letter written in May to Miss Lucille LeRage of Eastview. Leblanc was carrying the letter in his pocket at the time of his death. He had stopped at the police station on several occasions and checked out on the morning of the accident. O.P.P. Constable John Pennington said the lower half of Leblanc's body was lying between the tracks and the top portion was outside the rails when he arrived on the scene. An investigation was immediately opened as soon as the body was removed to the undertakers, he said, fat, Walter Proctor was the officer in charge of the inquest. The jury comprised, Grant Woodall (foreman), W. Hutton, W. Sleaney, O. Newton, R. Haines, Dr. Thomas Taylor Rd. Regin and C. Fitzgibbon.

Relief Ends March 31st.

At a meeting of the town council on Friday night, Mayor H. R. Cuty announced, that on March 31st, all able bodied men in the town of Trenton accepting relief would be struck off the relief rolls. They will be put to work on a town's work plan, he said, and the work will be set at 40c an hour for an eight hour day. Preference will be given sufficient employment may be found. The mayor was further sanctioned a by-law controlling the manufacturing and the sale of bread within the corporation. A $1.00 yearly license was levied on all manufacturers of farmers selling bread.

Their establishments must be open for inspection at all times and their products must be labelled and wrapped to insure sanitation. All persons must get a recommendation from the local Medical Health Officer before they can start in business. Church sales and bazaars and all other activities raising funds for the needy, where home bread is sold will be exempt from paying the annual $1. license. Mayor Cuty reported the town taxes for 1937 will be struck on a 62 mill rate and not at 45 mills as was expected earlier in the year. The new Collegiate Street public school will not be replaced by a modern structure until the principal has been paid off the municipalities' debentures which may be in 1938, Mr. Cuty said.

At present the Mayor is attempting to lower the cost of hosting six Trenton people in Weston sanitarium yearly. The town paid $8,168.00 to the hospital last year, which Mayor Cuthbert is too much. Dealing with Mrs. Bernice White, Dundas Street, who recently demanded that the pay $40.00 per month sustained to household belongings in the early season flood that Cuty informed Mrs. White, that the town solicitor Col. H. J. Smith reported she absolutely could not claim damages as the storm was swift and unforseen. Mrs. White left the meeting threatening to go on relief if a replacement was not made in the near future. The council authorized that a roadway be built into George Van Meer's home on West Street.

Synopsis of Preceding Instalments:

Upon the shoulders of Heather Aston, now 24, has rested the burden of rearing her brothers and sisters the youngest of whom, Bobbie, now nearly 11, had only their mother her life. Heather had started her secretarial career, when Bobbie was only a baby, selling Bruce Logan, who was leaving England for South Africa, that she could not marry him and desert Caesar, as they affectionately called their pompous but excellent father, and "her children." Caesar was insufficient means to maintain Tangley, the home his father gave him as a wedding present, and spends his time interminably writing a "book" which is never completed. Paul, the eldest brother, has married a wealthy woman who after a year alienated him from his family. Now Betty has just married the well-to-do Stephen Miller and left on a honeymoon, leaving Heather worn out by her effort to make the wedding the success it was with the limited means at her command. Events of the day bring Bruce Logan vividly to her mind. In the midst of her wistful reminiscence she receives a letter from her sister Vilette who has been traveling with a second-rate theatrical company in South Africa. Presently is her stage name. She seemed quite at through with the stage, will be on her way home when the letter is received, and has met the man, who is returning on the same steamer, Heather Wilson, as the man she has bobbed up in Vilette's life several times previously. She hopes it's true this time.

INSTALMENT 2

Glad as Heather was at the thought of seeing her sister again, she rather dreaded Vilette's arrival. Vilette was a disturbing element—she was always such bad friends with Caesar, and as Heathered to alter the routine of everyone's life.

"And you mean to tell me you've been all this time without a penny piece?" she added incredulously.

"Oh, Bobbie, you know you wouldn't!" she looked at Caesar appealingly.

"The future of England lies in you, Bobbie," Caesar said grandly, and finishing his coffee he left the table.

There was a little silence when he had gone, till Heather said, "Well, I suppose I must go alone, that's all."

Bobbie scowled. "I said I'd go if you sent me to, but I shan't get a chance to go up with Jepson again, He's going to Cormwell tomorrow."

She looked at him with a smile. "You go, with Jepson—only for goodness' sake don't fall out of the plane or do anything silly. What's the time? a quarter to ten?... I must fly."

At Waterloo Heather stopped at a flower kiosk bought some roses which she could not really afford. Flowers were always such a lovely welcome.

The boat train was not due when she reached the platform and Heather stood aside, not far from the gates.

A slim little woman in a black coat spoke to her suddenly. "The train is late this morning; it is usually so very punctual."

Heather looked down at her and smiled. She was such a very little woman with intensely blue eyes and a second startlingly young in her lined face. "Is it late?" she asked.

The little woman brushed a spot of dust from her coat. "I meet all the boat trains from South Africa," she said. "I never stay away for fear I should miss him."

Heather echoed her words uncertainly. "For fear you should miss him?"

The little woman nodded: "Yes, he went away just after the war; I expect that seems a long time ago to you, but to me it's only yesterday. He had to go away—his business was out there—and so he's coming back some day to fetch me. The blue eyes clouded a little.

HIGH NOON-2

"Sixteen years seems a lifetime to me. Look at him, darling!.... see if you recognize each other!....I'm so thrilled to see if you do!"

But in spite of her many frivolities and inconsistency, there was something very sweet about Vilette. She was warm-hearted and generous to a fault when she had anything with which to be generous, and if her presence at Tangley upset the household, they definitely missed her when she departed.

Heather did not take this letter too seriously, remembering a previous occasion when similar news had been communicated to her, and when on Vilette's arrival she had asked interestedly, "And what about him?" Vilette had laughed and dismissed the subject with a careless, "Oh, that was nothing. I've had half a dozen love affairs since then."

Perhaps history would repeat itself, one never knew—but in the meantime she fact remained that in a week time she would be home. Perhaps she would bring THE MAN with her!....would be thing, because very shabby? It was of course, although when you were used to it it did not seem to matter.

On the morning of Vilette's arrival, Heather asked at the breakfast table, "Is any one coming with me to Waterloo?"

There was a little silence, until Bobbie blurted out, "Jepson's promised to take me for a joy-ride." Then, feeling nobody else volunteered, he added resignedly, "But I'll go if you want me to."

Heather asked hurriedly, "And I shall be waiting," she said, as if to herself, "I shan't fail him. He knows that.... Are you waiting for your sweetheart?"

"No, my sister."

"I'm glad it's not a sweetheart." The blue eyes were smiling again. "They stay away such a long time and yet every day I say to myself, 'That's one day nearer to the time he will come.' It's wonderful how it helps, even though I'm old now, and tired." Her voice sounded a little puzzled.

"There was a feeling of tears in Heather's heart. Impulsively she said, "My name is Aston—Heather Aston—what is your name?"

"Molly Kent".

Such a girl's name; but it seemed to suit those blue eyes, even while the worn face pathetically belied it. Suddenly she knew was steaming into the station, and Molly Kent was lost in the crowd. Heather looked for Vilette in vain. She waited a long time, until only a few stragglers were left.

A girl clinging to a mans arm passed close to her. Heather stepped forward and touched her arm. "Please forgive me," she said shyly. "But can you tell me if there was a Miss Aston—" she hurriedly corrected herself, 'a Miss Ponsonby on board the ship? Vilette Ponsonby?"

The girl smiled. "Oh yes—we were great friends. Do you know her?"

"I've come to meet her," Heather explained. "But she doesn't seem to be here."

"She went up from Southampton by motor car, with a friend...we said good-bye to them."

Heather drew back. "Oh, I see," she said slowly, and then, "thank you very much. Vilette is her sister," she added simply, as she turned away.

The girl looked after her dubiously. "She's a bit dowdy to be Vilette's sister—but then you never can tell." Perhaps Vilette wasn't very anxious to introduce her...."

But Heather felt a sudden dejection she retraced her steps. Couldn't Vilette have sent a wire? Or perhaps it had arrived after she left the house? She tried to believe that was what had happened, while all the time she knew Vilette's carelessness and lack of consideration in this matter.

After a warm and stuffy train trip home, Heather went in by the garden gate instead of going straight to the house. She loved the garden in spite of its wild, neglected state—she loved the tall cool trees overhead and the tender bracken which stood like a fairy army amongst all the disorder.

It was very silent and restful. The startled chattering of a blackbird soaring up from the undergrowth seemed a tremendous noise, shattering the midday peace.

High Noon!....The words slipped into Heather's thoughts from some forgotten memory of her childhood. A nursery rhyme, in which she had read that high noon was of much greater importance in Fairyland than midnight; that it was at high noon that all the world held its breath, because great things happened when flowers whispered to gethde; and everything reach its zenith; a golden moment of the little woman with the vivid blue eyes waiting at Waterloo for a man who would surely never come, and in some strange way she felt that Molly Kent was akin, two women who had both missed the way—two lonely women.

High Noon....some hint corner of Heather's mind whispered to her. "You're thirty-four, and this is your high Noon. Make the most of it; it can never come again."

She closed her eyes, feeling a little dazed, and suddenly she found herself weeping.

Was it for the past and for her lost lover? Or for the present, which was made up of hard work and patience and of self-denial. Or for the future, which stretched before her like an empty road along which one cannot hope to meet a friend?

Slow foolish to cry like this, when for so many years she had denied herself the luxury of tears. Cry just because of an old forgotten fairy-story—because of a little old woman who had been waiting patiently year after year for a lover who would never return?

High noon, the moment in one's life, which can never come again.

Heather leaned against the rough bark of a giant tree and sobbed her heart out.

So many thoughts crowded in confusion through her mind. Her youth she had been robbed of that and for the first time she realized it and knew it to be a cause for grief. She saw it behind her as a red ghost with unsmiling eyes and lips.

Other women were given love, and a home of their own, and children, but for her the road had twisted away from all these things and she could only look back on them and weep.

It was the chattering blackbird which at last aroused her by swooping down from his bough, indignant that his sanctuary should be invaded. Heather started to watch him with tear-dimmed eyes. The spell was broken.

Caesar, the family, Vilette, Mrs. Priddy, Life! They were all waiting for her to go back to them.

She dried her eyes and carefully powdered her reddened lids. She must have to go upstairs and bathe her eyes. Then she saw that the long French windows leading from the drawing room were wide open, and inside she could hear voices and laughter.

Vilette!....oh, surely not so soon! She turned to hurry away, but she was too late. A slim dazzling figure hurled itself down the steps from the wide open window and flung itself upon her with a scream of joyful recognition.

"My poor Heather, I can tell me you've been all the way to Waterloo! They stay away such a long time and yet every day I say to myself, 'That's one day nearer to the time he will come.' It's wonderful how it helps, even though I'm old now, and tired." Her voice sounded a little puzzled.

shook her playfully.

"Look at him, darling!— see if you recognize each other!—I'm so thrilled to see you do!"

Heather turned very slowly, her head downbent, and it was strange that her thoughts were only of the man on the platform at Waterloo who had said in her gentle, puzzled voice, "I'm old now, and tired....."

Then with an effort she looked up, her frightened eyes raised to Bruce Logan's face.

INSTALMENT 3

Sixteen years!....

Vilette...who was still clinging to Heather's arm, was smiling on. "Do you find each other very much altered? You must have been just twenty when you last met. It's the kind of thing you read about in story books, and never expect to really happen—"

Bruce gave Heather a playful little shake. "Wake up, darling, you look quite dazed."

Heather found her voice with a great effort. "I am dazed—" she said. "It's the last thing I ever expected—or—"

Bruce Logan held out his hand and she laid hers in it. "I am very glad to see you again, Heather," he said, and at the sound of his voice she almost cried out, but she managed a little laugh.

"Have you had lunch? Yes, I suppose you have—it must be nearly tea time....isn't it?" she added vaguely.

It was Vilette who answered. "We lunched at a roadhouse coming up. And then without waiting for any one to speak she went on, "which room am I to have? I think I'll go and wash—you two stay and talk."

"I'll go with you," Heather said hurriedly. "I'll show you your room —it's Betty's old room. I thought as it was bigger—"

She hurried after her sister without another glance at Logan.

"Of course, Betty's married a millionaire?" Vilette said.

"I think he's well off," Heather managed to answer.

"So is Bruce," Vilette said almost shyly, and then, "Fancy you two having known each other!— I don't remember him, but I suppose I was only a kid, then. He didn't remember me either—but I've altered so much, haven't I?"

Heather said generously, "You're looking very pretty, dear."

"Am I?" Vilette squeezed her sister's arm. "We had a perfectly marvelous trip home. Of course Bruce being there made it all the more exciting. He dances divinely and I love tall men."

They were at the top of the stairs now, and Heather gently disengaged herself. In Betty's room she said, "It's a lovely sunny room, the nicest in the house, I think."

"But it is a bit of a barn, isn't it?" Vilette said, then asked anxiously, "Will there be a decent dinner tonight? I'd like Bruce to stay."

"It's roast chicken," Heather answered.

Vilette made a little grimace. "Oh, well, that's not so bad. I suppose," she added a little impatiently, "you're still a slave to the whole family. I can't think why you don't cut and run."

Heather smiled faintly. "Where should I run to?" she asked.

She went down stairs very slowly, conscious of a numbed feeling in her heart and mind. What a wonderful child it was to be young and carefree like Vilette!....

She paused for a moment in the hall, forgetting why she had come downstairs. Oh yes, the roses she had bought at Waterloo for Vilette, and she must speak to Priddy about the chicken for supper.

She crossed the hall on tiptoe, not wanting either Caesar or Bruce to hear her. The roses were in the drawing room, standing at the open window looking over the ragged garden. Turned quickly at the sound of her footfall.

"I expect you hoped it would be Vilette," Heather thought.

Logan came forward a step, and Heather said, "I've come for the roses—oh, there they are."

She picked them up and would have gone, but that he said again, "It is good to see you, Heather," and she had to turn and look at him.

She brushed a hand across the back of his hair with a well-remembered gesture, and she smiled suddenly.

"You haven't altered, Bruce—you're just the same—more grown-up, of course."

"Nothing seems to have altered —it's like—like stepping back sixteen years. The house is just the same—and the garden. I could find my way about it blindfold. Is the May bush still there, where we last spoke, "You must find everything very different from what it was then."

She looked at him calmly enough, and yet her heart ached as it recognized and acknowledged afresh the dearness of him, the well-remembered lines of his face, the funny little upward turn of one eyebrow which she had so often teased him about, the kink in his hair which no amount of oiling and brushing would flatten, the warm look in his brown eyes which seemed as if some one had lit a lamp behind them....foolish to remember said to her hurt by the remembrance.

She said hurriedly, "I'll just put the roses in water—" but he was between her and the door now and it seemed impossible to pass him."

"I found the thrush's nest? And the pond I made for John and Paul? Do you remember that we could never make the water stay in?" He laughed at a strangely excited note, and then before she could answer he said, "Do you know that this is the first time I have been home since—since you saw me off that morning?"

"Is it?" she tried hard to steady her voice. "I didn't realize—"

"No, why should it, darling!—see it recognizes each other!—I'm so thrilled to see you do!"

Heather turned very slowly, her head downbent, and it was strange that her thoughts were only of the man on the platform at Waterloo who had said in her gentle, puzzled voice, "I'm old now, and tired....."

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, MARCH 4, 1937

2 KILLED, 2 INJURED AT CORBYVILLE R. R. CROSSING

Two Moira Young Men, B. Herity, H. Emerson, Die as Train Hits Car

Albert Clare is Badly Injured, Gordon Vanderwater Lacerated

TRAIN MOVING NORTH

111-Fatal Car Proceeding to Belleville From Moira

Bernard Herity, 22, and Henry Emerson 20, of Moira, 14 miles north of Belleville, were instantly killed shortly after eleven o'clock today and Gordon Vanderwater and Albert Clare, also of Moira, were seriously injured, when the car in which they were riding was struck by a Lindsay bound C.N.R. way freight, at the Corbyville level crossing on the Belleville-west highway four miles north of this city. Poor visibility by reason of a heavy snowstorm and a slight fog are given as the contributing factors to the accident by Sergeant Harry Pierson of the Provincial Police and Traffic Officer Sam Stone, who investigated. The bodies of the two dead, were removed to the Martin Funeral Home, while the injured were taken by ambulance to the Belleville General Hospital, where they were attended by Dr. E. G. Kennedy.

Dr. F. G. Wallbridge, chief Coroner for the district, has ordered an inquest and the preliminary hearing will take place at the Martin Funeral Home this evening and will likely be adjourned for a time, in order that the investigation into the fatality may be completed.

Albert Clare is suffering from a possible fracture of the skull, bruises and a broken left arm and right leg. Gordon Vanderwater was not seriously injured and received head lacerations. He is also reported sadly today following an examination of the injured men.

Death Instantaneous

Bernard Herity and Henry Emerson sustained internal injuries and fractures and it is presumed died instantly as the result. Their bodies were not badly mangled although the car was dragged up the right-of-way for nearly three hundred feet. It is believed the vehicle was being driven towards Belleville while the train, which had just completed switching operations at Corbyville distillery was proceeding towards Toronto. The train was in charge of Conductor Arthur Betts.

SHAW SWANKS, PEOPLE LIKE IT

Dramatist Considers Self Greatest Dramatist Since Shakespeare

London, March 4—(CP)—Bernard Shaw, George Bernard Shaw last night added to his reputation as a wit, a mere statistician and a broken left arm and right leg. Actually, the latter were not seriously injured and received head lacerations, but the 80-year-old nedy stated today following an examination of the injured men.

Death Instantaneous

"As to a split personality—well, I should say I have about 20 personalities at least—everybody has. Everybody is shy— on certain occasions and subjects.

"On one point Shaw said, he is in complete agreement with Prof. Henderson, who considers him the most distinguished dramatist of English literature since Shakespeare."

"I think the part about Shakespeare is quite sound," Shaw remarked.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thomson
Science Service Meteorologist

Windy March! This is a saying which refers to the facts. "Wind is a flowing of air"; a definition as old as old. Wind is caused primarily by difference in temperature, that is, difference in temperature between the warm air south of the North Pole is in winter. The wind speed should be greatest then. It is. The winds of March frequently average greater than those of January or February.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, March 4—Freezer is high over the Maritime Provinces and the Atlantic coast states. Another high is moving from the Pacific coast states. Warm air is flowing northward from Hudson Straits southwestward across the centre of the region of the Great Lakes. Rain and snow is occurring today in the Atlantic provinces, in some districts of Quebec, and in Ontario. In the Prairie provinces the weather has been for the most part fair and it is now mild in Alberta and in Saskatchewan.

Lake Superior — Moderate variable winds; generally fair; not much change; mild with somewhat higher temperature.

Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta—Mostly fair and mild today and Friday.

Management Responsible for Collapse at Moose River Mine

Report States No Adequate Measure Taken to Live and Property

WEAKENED STRUCTURE

Halifax, March 4.—(CP)—Findings of a Commission, which investigated the collapse of the Moose River Gold Mine disaster, will be laid before the Nova Scotia Legislature today.

Responsibility for the cave-in which imprisoned Dr. D. E. Robertson and Alfred Goudey underground for ten days and caused the death of Thomas Bruhm and Theodore, owner of the Mine, was placed by the Commission on the management of the Mine "in that they did not adopt adequate precautionary measures in their operations for safeguarding the property and the lives of the men employed or expected there."

The immediate and direct cause of the collapse of the Magill shaft was the removal of the pillar remaining in the 14-foot level," the report stated. Evidence showed ore had been removed from natural pillars supporting the mine, weakening the roof support of certain sections.

Collapse Only Delayed

"While the placing of additional timber in the working places and in the Magill shaft might have afforded temporary relief", it was reported, "it could only have delayed the collapse for a short time. It cause we consider that the structure of the Strata left in this portion of the mine was of such a tender nature that it was not in condition to withstand the forces of the men who were employed there."

"The ordinary safety precautions as practised by practical miners from day to day were not sufficient in this instance to meet conditions of this kind. It required in addition the services of competent engineers and the benefit of expert advice before any more was made to remove ore from pillars, which might be said to weaken the mine structure."

Management of the mine was criticized for not having reported renewal of operations to the government; for not making regular inspections of the mine, and for "negligence in caring for the conditions" of supports in the only shaft into the mine.

Dr. James Loudon of Toronto is Cross-Examined at Murder Trial

Kingston, Ont., March 4—(CP)— Cross-examination of Dr. Julian E. Loudon, Toronto physician of St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, by W. P. Nickle, K.C., continued today at the trial of convict Chester Crossley, charged with the murder of guard John McCormack at Kingston Penitentiary. Crosley had to be assisted into the courtroom by a guard and was carried as he took his place in the prisoner's dock.

By means of an X-ray picture, Dr. Loudon outlined how a frog would react when the animal's brain. There was a discussion between the witness and counsel regarding anaesthetics and the effect of each on individuals.

History of Black Race

The history of the black race was also discussed.

"What would the probable outcome of a child of his father and his own sister be?" asked Mr. Nickle. "Would it not bridge out the irresponsible side of the parent?"

"It might," replied Dr. Loudon, "though it might not in the first generation."

Dr. Loudon said that the mind might become poisoned by constant use of drugs and judgment might be impaired. He said that when he had said he never heard of any one being addicted to cocaine, he would not say that it does not PGasible to be so; merely, in his experience he had never encountered such a person.

ESTIMATES DOWN OVER 10 MILLION

Supplementary Estimates Tabled by Dunning is $96,063,307

Ottawa, March 4.—(CP)—The House today had before it estimates of Government expenditures for the fiscal year ending last April 1, totalling $506,528,708, indicating the administration may not bring down from estimated $500,000,000.

Yesterday's supplementary estimates, tabled by Finance Minister Dunning, called for votes for $96,-063,307 making the total appropriations for the 1936-37 fiscal year of $134,748,743. Added to them were the estimates of last January totalling $410,465,397 which compared with $391,272,607 provided in last years main estimates. The 1937-38 total so far is $10,183,446 less than that of 1936-37.

Whether any further supplementary estimates be brought down this session was not known, but it was indicated none would be, or that, if any were, they would be small, as Mr. Dunning explained last January in his Budget speech last week total expenditures for the next fiscal year would be $500,000,000.

Yesterday's supplementaries included $1,000,000 for unemployment relief next fiscal year, no less than $500,000 for no more than $36,000,000 that will have been run up by the end of this month. No estimate for monthly grants-in-aid to the provinces for relief was given.

ITALY LAUNCHES 7-POINT DRIVE TO INCREASE BIRTHS

Program Expected to Secure Future For The Fatherland

MAN POWER NEEDED

Heads of Large Families Given Preference in Employment

Rome, March 4.—(AP)—Italy launched a seven-point drive today to increase the birth rate for "military power" and "a secure future for the Fatherland".

The Fascist Grand Council, with Premier Mussolini presiding outlined the provisions of the program by which Italy's declining birth rate and subsequent man power shortage in the armies of the future.

The plan, placing heavy economic burdens on bachelors and childless husbands, was the second such step to be taken by the Council in its current series of meetings.

Monday the Council acted to strengthen the Italian army of the present, calling all able-bodied men into 33 years of periodic service between the ages of 18 and 55.

Last night's meeting, lasting into the early morning, was concerned with making sure that man-power would be available in the future.

Under the program adopted by the Grand Council, highest governing body of Fascism, heads of large families will receive not only preference in employment, but wage increases in proportion to the number of children born to them.

"No large families", communique explained, "in exceptional times for the Fatherland will fall short of the highest moral contributions of men".

Bachelor taxes levied for families rather than for individuals and laws will be revised to assure stability of living conditions for large families.

Loans For Couples To Marry

Loans will be made to enable couples to marry the State will assist in providing dowries for brides and will appoint inspectors for young workmen.

The other points in the program were—Formation of a big families association; revision of provincial and municipal boundaries to adjust the absorption of provinces and communes in which the population growth no longer justifies the maintenance of separate public institutions; creation of an organization to promote and control the drive.

The problem of population became urgent when statistics disclosed that, in proportion to population, Italy had raising large families had failed.

Mussolini, who boasts 8,000,000 Italians under arms in time of battle, set a population of 60,000,000 by 1950 as essential if Italy is to remain a first class nation. Last January he set the current figure at just under 46,000,000.

Hanging over the heads of the children was the additional threat of directly punitive measures such as increased bachelor taxes and denial of jobs to all but those in small families, both of which measures may be applied to the large age before nearly five hours of argument.

(By George Hambleton)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON, March 4.—(CP Cable)—Britain's bill for armaments still climbs skyward. Army and navy for 1937 issued today provide for an expenditure of £82,174,000, an increase of £6,293,000 over 1936. With yesterday's estimates they contemplate an army and navy expenditure in 1937 of £187,239,000 ($936,196,000). And the air estimates have still to come.

Of the total naval expenditure of 1937, £27,000,000 will be money borrowed under authority of the £400,000,000 Defence Loans Bill. The remainder will be raised from revenue. Of £82,174,000 army expenditure for the year, £19,054,000 will be borrowed money. The remainder will be from revenue.

Biggest Army Bill

They comprise the biggest Armament Bill Britain has ever known in time of peace. In 1922, Britain's army estimates totalled £62,300,000. They steadily expanded to £86,485,000 in 1933. By 1935 they had climbed to £82,500,000. Last year, including a supplementary estimate of £6,000,000, they were £81,000,000.

Principal changes proposed are in the organization of the various services.

In cavalry of the line five regiments are to be converted into armored units, and in the process of mechanization and two regiments in Egypt will be on an experimental mechanized basis.

In the Royal Artillery, it is hoped to complete the mechanization of field artillery. A second survey company is to be formed.

In the Royal Engineers, the second half of an anti-aircraft battalion is required for the first anti-aircraft group to be formed.

CANADIAN ARTIST WINS RECOGNITION

Carl Schaefer Has Two Pictures Purchased by The National Gallery

A young Canadian artist whose work is receiving prominence in the contemporary art is Carl Schaefer of Toronto nephew of Mrs. W. Mitchell, 35 Bridge Street. The recent purchase by the National Gallery of two water colours, and the interest his work has aroused in well known Canadian connoisseurs lately show that his efforts are receiving the recognition and acclaim of critics.

Regarding this artist, C. Campbell McInnes writing in the Canadian Forum and also in Toronto Saturday Night stresses the fact of locality and importance of Carl Schaefer in Canadian painting. A craftsman in the arts preceded Mr. Schaefer's adoption of painting as his medium.

Reproductions of the paintings have appeared from time to time in Canadian newspapers and magazines and it is evident that he is inspired unless and influenced by his own country and its "good and bad points". A vision of realism coupled with wry humour characterizes his art. Mr. McInnes points out, Mr. Schaefer is particularly fond of this district.

Schaefer's work, McInnes points out, is intensely personal, absolutely convincing and devoid of his environment and his sensitivity. He is regarded as an important figure in contemporary painting and his aesthetic integrity is such that he cannot but grow in stature.

'THAT COW'S 19' OWNER ADAMANT

Sticks to Age, Even if it Means Loss to Him

Had Diogenes been searching for his famed "honest man" in Picton, Ontario, sometime the other day, he would have hung up the lantern, gone home and called it a day. For in that particular district there dwells one honest man, at least.

A veterinary surgeon carrying out T. B. tests came to a man who had only one cow, which was anything but baby beef. "What is her age?" asked the surgeon. "Seven years old" came the instant reply. Warned that if he declared the animal over age it would not receive any compensation if it were condemned, the owner replied: "I don't care. She is 19."

Thinking to test the man's honesty further, the vet persisted. "But if I put her down as 19, the government will want to pay for my services as this cow is of practically no value."

"I don't care" the honest one maintained "she hasn't had a calf for three years, and she IS nineteen."

350 POUND BEAR SURPRISES MAN

Later Beats Retreat as Animal Starts For Him

At least one bear got his dates mixed as regards seeing his shadow on February 2nd, a resident of Stoco, gasped in surprise the other day while attempting to chop down a swamp, for facing him stood a huge bear and, to the hunter's opinion, would-do the scales at 350 pounds.

Both lunged to the attack, and Trudeau beat a strategic retreat. The bear, however, kept away in search of food and Trudeau breathed easier. The next day, accompanied by a cousin, Trudeau again visited the spot but the bear was still away on a foraging expedition.

Bumping off bruins is no new experience for Trudeau, for a short while ago while deer hunting, two bears and a timber wolf fell to the accuracy of his shooting eye.

Accident Leads To Major Industry

A cow kicking over a lamp, they say, started the Chicago fire. A spider climbing a thread brought Bruce of Bannockburn victory. But these and many other like historical incidents pale before the story of the housewife whose carelessness founded one of the most important phases of the Canadian fish industry.

Away back in a Scottish village a housewife left a haddock hanging from the rafters of her cottage as she went out for the day. She had left it too near the peat fire, however, when she returned the fish was all dried by the smoke from the fire. She decided to cook it anyway and the result was so appetizing that it started the idea of the wildfire and smoked fish began to national industry.

Today the popularity of smoked fish has spread everywhere and the appetite for this delicacy has founded Canadian organizations of international repute, some of which have been established for a century and more.

The Canadian climate has been found ideal for the production of this delicacy and other cured fish and today the Dominion ranks as the foremost fish world trade in the export of dried, smoked, and pickled fish.

PRESERVING LITERARY MEMORIAL

A mortgage holder who expected to make three-storey Philadelphia residence of Edgar Allan Poe a rooming house was blocked at a sheriff's sale by Richard Gimbel, head of the Gimbel Foundation for Literary Research, who paid $7,000 for the structure after spirited bidding against a restaurant proprietor who held a $7,250 mortgage. Those who have attended sales here or anywhere will not be surprised to learn that the bidding started at $50 and the restaurant proprietor stopped bidding at $6,100.

A little post history may not be amiss. Four years ago a group of admirers of the gloomy poet of "The Raven" which croaked "Nevermore," the author of "The Gold Bug" and those wondrous tales of mystery which only he could write, established a museum in the house and restored its interior as far as it was possible.

Gimbel's plan is to tear down the present front of the building, added in later years and preserve intact the rooms which the poet occupied about a century ago from 1842 to 1844 and where he wrote these great works.

Passage of a century has not dimmed the fame of Poe, who died in 1849 at the age of 40 years, already in ill health and the long illness of his wife, who was his cousin and whom he deeply loved and her death prostrated Poe. One of the gloom geniuses which the human race turns out at times, Poe was a master of the witchery of the music of his rhythm and sound. He is remembered as poet and is considered among the masters of the short story. Few young writers there are who have not come in contact with his works as models.

The Philadelphia home of the poet is of its age and may well be preserved for the sake of future generations, which will be as great admirers of the mysterious genius as the present and past ages.

SCIENCE AND FAITH

Science and faith are found compatible and complementary, Archbishop of Fredericton, N.B., told the congregation at Trinity Protestant Episcopal Church, Broadway, New York. Seeming internal contradictions of the Bible and its frequent opposition to observed scientific fact which are usually taken to establish the rivalry between religion and reason are not essential points of difference, he pointed out. "Science is a noble vehicle of truth in things, but it is religion alone that concerns the soul.

"Let it not trouble you that the Bible does not stand alone," he told his hearers noting that differences of detail that are not in agreement on the story of Genesis are easily explained by the existence of earlier accounts, mentioning similar legends in Babylonian, Persian and Indian lore. "It is good that there is a Biblical tradition older than the books that contain it. The final difference is that our Bible is on a higher level than the other accounts... The Babylonians had many gods, the Bible one.

"Nor must we be troubled by the uneasy feeling that the Bible is not scientific. Professors in the universities, young in years and immature in intellect, are delighted to sow the seeds of discontent with the Bible in the minds of students. The church of today takes in a literal sense the story of the creation in six days; that was before geology was an exact science, forcing back the creation into the aeons of the past. While ceasing to treat the Bible as a treatise in geology, zoology and astronomy we continue to see in it the truth of things which concern the soul."

The answer of materialism to the problem of life is insufficient, since science's modest statement on the existence of God and the origin of life is, 'I don't know!' he said. Concepts like atoms and force leave unexplained the nature of will and spirit and thus leaders of science are driven to the first words of Genesis "In the Beginning God."

Rev. J. S. Kennedy speaking at the Church of St. Paul the Apostle scored the Nazi view of youth and said: "The spirit of man behind the tactics of the absolutist regimes in Europe is not that of a reasoning being; it is the idea of an eye to watch the assembly line, a pair of legs to march in an unending parade, a shoulder to support a gun and an arm to give an automatic salute."

Rev. Dr. Minot Simons at All Souls Unitarian Church noted that "As time goes on and as a matter of self-preservation, the secular service of religion will be more and more recognized as an opportunity to take the pressure off the inner life and give the spirit a chance to come in control. A machine age is hard on human nature. It threatens the inner life with spiritual exhaustion unless man makes a greater effort than he is now making to control the machine."

Dr. Simons declared that great eras of life are now spiritually barren.

CANADA'S CENTURY

Out of the north, O Lord,
Out of the north we have come at Thy word;
The forests have heard,
Yea, the tall cedars have heard, and they bow;
The plains have rejoiced at the wound of the plow,
They have laughed, they have laughed at the kiss of the rain
In the bountiful beauty of grain;
The waters have sung of the ships to be.
We are come, a people new-risen and free
As our wide, deep rivers that run from the snows to the sea. — Marjorie Pickthall.

DIETS HAVE ALWAYS TAKEN A BIG SHARE IN DOCTORING man and beast; but a new diet sheet for humans has developed into more or less of a fad, what with eighteen day diets, banana diets and various kinds of reducing methods pertaining to food in which various people are said to have starved themselves to death so anxious were they to regain "that girlish figure." Most medical practitioners will tell you to eat what agrees with you, eat moderately and be temperate in all things, regarding the human body more or less as a machine not to be overloaded or overworked, a strong machine, yet delicate and sensitive to abuse but capable of great reserve comebacks. Now the British Medical Journal steps into the diet picture with this pleasing message from the pen of Professor E. P. Cathcart, Professor of Physiology at the University of Glasgow:

"Eat all kind foods with relish and zest;
"It will amalgamate below.
"If the mind says so, it shall be so.
"But, if you once begin to doubt,
"The gastric juice will find it out."

LIVER USED TO BE A DESPISED BY-PRODUCT OF THE ANIMAL KILLED FOR FOOD. Then someone discovered that calves' liver was a specific for "tired feeling," and instead of throwing a chunk of liver in with every beef order a price was set on the organ. As demand grew for calves liver the price rose until it topped seventy cents per pound. Since it has stopped but it is still popular enough to command a good price. Codfish long furnished employment to fishermen and cheap food to many—but codfish livers were worth less than nothing until someone discovered virtue in them and cod liver oil poured in great streams upon a run-down world, a great business arising on the shivering mass of cod livers hitherto thrown away. Halibut livers were lowly distant cousins of the cod livers but until lately no one thought to capitalize the humble halibut as a boon to humanity in a medicinal way. However, someone experimented on halibut liver and found all kind of valuable vitamines concealed therein, all the vitamins in the alphabet, almost. News from Ketchikan, Alaska, states that proportory to the opening of the halibut season about the middle of March fishermen are gratified to learn that the price of halibut livers has advanced materially. New contracts with wholesale drug companies offer fifty cents per pound for halibut livers against 12 cents per pound five years ago. As recent as 1930 halibut livers were discarded as worthless.

COMPLAINTS ARE STILL BEING VOICED ABOUT THAT NEGLECTED CORNER, Bridge and Church Streets. The high board fence which has withstood the onslaughts of wind and permanent waves for so long is now staggering to its final downfall, like an inebriate who has overestimated his capacity and is struggling against the horizontal urge. Someone with a mistaken view of sympathy with dumb things has taken part of the fence and supported another part by fastening the support boards to a tree. Love's labor lost, for the quicker the whole fence becomes reunbent the better. Then it will probably be removed. Why the City Council permits that ugly and dangerous eyesore to remain at the corner of Bridge and Church Streets is a mystery, unless familiarity breeds contempt and they have been looking at this civic disgrace so long that it has become so familiar that it no longer offends. When open sore to civic pride is not only ugly it is dangerous and someone may be killed or injured by a fall there. Is it necessary that an accident should occur before protection to the public is insisted upon, as well as a general clean-up and levelling of the property.

CHAMPION

A man rushed into the newspaper office and demanded to see the editor. "Sir," he cried as he strode up and down the room, "your paper has libelled me. You have called me the lightweight champion."

"But that is true," returned the editor.

"You are Mr. Fightwell, aren't you?"

"Yes, yes," cried the other, "but it's my brother who is the boxer. I'm a cool merchant."

Pearling Perils

In the February number of the Canadian Geographical Journal, one of the several interesting and informative articles, "With the Pearlers of Northern Australia," by Miss K. Patterson, tells of the white and colored workers and the advantages and disadvantages of their calling. The pearl fishery of Northern Australia is said to be the largest in the world, hundreds of luggers of from five to twenty tons burden being employed in the industry which is worth on an average half a million pounds sterling annually. The pearlers really get their pearl shell, mother-o-pearl, which is sold at so much a ton. If a pearler finds a really valuable pearl in every twenty tons of shell, he considers himself very fortunate. Now and again there is a great luck; for example, one pearler received £14,000 for a single pearl, the famous Sparrow's Egg. Such luck, of course, does not come in to a lifetime, but in general the pearlers fare well. Incidentally Miss Patterson says a real pearl can be readily distinguished from an artificial one by testing it with the teeth. All imitation pearls, he says are smooth to the touch, whereas the real products of nature are gritty. In the centre of the shell is built up of layer on layer of carbonate of lime, skin on skin, similar to the layers of an onion.

Dangers of the Deep

Mr. Patterson states that while the divers meet with occasional roundings, they have much to contend with in their adventurous occupation. In the shallower parts of these seas there are some terrible man-eating creatures, and more unfrequently find human victims. Sharks, which are the divers carry their lives in their hands every time they go beneath the water. The writer proceeds to tell his graphic story of these dangers:

"The seas off the coasts of Northern Australia are teeming with sharks. Over forty species of sharks are known to be present in these waters. The creatures range from ten feet to forty feet in length and the majority of them are man-eaters, constituting a grave peril to the divers. A belief very common among most human writers is that a shark will never attack a diver in a diving dress because the upward leaping air bubbles from the diving helmet scare the monster away. This is incorrect. Hundreds of divers in Northern Australian waters have been killed by sharks, and many of the men have been injured. A diver from a pearling boat on which I recently travelled had the bottom ripped clean out of his diving suit by a shark. He managed to escape and fight his way to the surface, but he was nearly drowned when removed from the water. But he was more fortunate than a diver on another boat. This man was working in deep water fathoms when a huge tiger shark came straight for him, and before he could signal to the men aboard in the boat above, the shark grasped the copper helmet in his mighty jaws and made off with the diver. The crushing was apparently unable to tear the helmet off, for it dropped its "catch" when the line was hauled on by the men in the boat. It was suspected that something was wrong. But the diver was dead — his head being crushed in—when brought to the surface. The shark and the number of teeth marks in the damaged helmet left no room for evidence of what had happened.

Rob That Fed Men

"Other man-eaters which have taken a heavy toll of the divers are huge red-eels, monsters which attain an average length of about twelve feet. They are the only man-eating eels in existence, having enormous crocodile-like jaws capable of cutting a man in two. Giant groupers, huge cod-like fish, ten feet long and a quarter of a ton in weight, are other terrors. They have a cavernous mouth armed with razor-sharp teeth, and have been known to swallow a man whole, in one gulp. Highly venomous sea-snakes are numerous, and fishes are also plentiful. The devilfishes or giant rays are flatish, diamond-shaped creatures which grow to an enormous size, covering many square yards of the sea-floor. When disturbed they invariably attack and with their formidable sharp-toothed mouth they have often fatally injured a diver. They have another weapon — a long, sharp spear in their tail. They use this with extraordinary ease and quickness, and many times the spear has almost pierced a diver's body. Monster octopuses are also occasionally encountered, while enormous sea-slugs are the giant clams. These amazing creatures, which are like gigantic cockle shells, are the largest bivalve molluscs ever known to exist. They attain a diameter of anything up to fourteen feet. The shells are hinged in such a way that the oyster, the things being a strong muscle, the contractions of which are immensely powerful.

"The clam spends most of its time feeding with its shells open. In such a position the huge, flabby creature looks a completely exposed. Despite its great size, it lives on the tiny organisms in the water. It is continually taking in water, which, after everything of food value has been extracted, is ejected. At the least sign of danger, the clam closes its shells with a swirl and, because of this habit, the mollusc has been responsible for numerous deaths of divers. In the dim undersea light they have fallen or stepped into a resting clam, and have either been crushed to death by the enormous shells, or have been held trapped by the leg to die a terrible, lingering death.

"The native 'skin-divers' are, of course, easier prey than the divers driven to them because shortages and scores of natives have been killed, while others have been badly injured by the man-eaters. The plight in some districts that darkskinned races are immune from shark attack is definitely a fallacy as far as Northern Australia is concerned. There was one recent case of a native boy who was gathering pearly oysters in about five fathoms of water, when a large shark, fully sixteen feet long, attacked him. In a flash it bit off the monster tore a great piece of flesh from the native's right shoulder.

"The native was less than three feet from the surface when the shark caught him again, and as the monster's terrible jaws closed on the native's leg he gave up all hope, when suddenly a dark shadow left the lugger.

"It was another native diver who, upon noticing his companion's struggles through the crystal-clear waters, immediately grasped a spear, and, diving overboard, drove the weapon deep into the shark's side. It was a magnificent action, that combined diving and spearing — and a brave one, for the native took his life in his hands, as it were; had he missed with his spear or failed to penetrate the hide he fell a victim to the man-eater as well. When speared, the monster released its victim, and was then assisted into the lugger by his rescuer. The native's wounds were soon dry in the water, which in its agency is lauded for its healing power, and, even with the spear sticking in its side, it disappeared into the depths before the injured native was admitted to hospital suffering severe pain from his injuries, but he made a rapid recovery, and within a few weeks was again diving again."

Belleville, Ontario:

To the Editor of,
The Intelligencer:
Dear Sir:

Speaking of this talk about unification of the Railways when there is not a chance of ever bringing it about. Both railway parties are against it, and the majority of the people are against it. You can hardly pick up a newspaper but what there is an account of some one trying to show us that the government is all wrong in trying to make a success of the C.N.R.

On Friday, February 19th, in the Globe and Mail there was a letter over the signature of "Fortnight," (if he had signed himself "Blind sight" I think it would have been more to the point). He says to solve Canadian Railway problems, give back to the C.P.R., the business the C.N.R. is doing, and keep from it by abandoning the C.N.R. so as to enable the C.P.R., an independent railway company, to operate on a profitable basis, but he forgets that the C.N.R. debt is largely the fault of private companies and the C.P.R. So why close or private railway has failed to operate in this country on a profitable basis.

We all know there are too many miles of railways, but a lot of this was made mistakes. Sir Wilfrid Laurier made some and I suppose Sir John Bond Kingston and extend to Sault Ste. Marie met in conference at Belleville yesterday. The meeting was held at the city hall and a hearty welcome was extended to the delegates by His Worship Mayor H. F. Ketcheson. About forty were present. The head office of the company was represented by Mr. F. A. Mac Farlane of Montreal, Commercial Manager of the Company. The Division was represented by Mr. A. T. Smith of Toronto. Messrs C. S. Hudson and W. B. Stewart, travelling auditors, represented the audit department. All were very well delighted with the hospitality extended to them by Mr. Harry B. Shick, the genial and energetic manager of the Belleville branch of the company.

Curb 'Trunk' Exhibitors, Fairs Supt. Urges

Leamington, Ont., March 4—(CP)—Measures to curb the "trunk" exhibitor who takes heavy toll annually of prize money offered at agricultural fairs throughout the province, were recommended by J. A. Carroll of Toronto, superintendent of the Ontario Fairs Association, at a conference of Fair Board representatives from Elgin, Kent and Essex Counties here last night.

"Competition must be restricted," Mr. Carroll said. "Times have changed and so must we. I have seen vegetables 150 miles from home picking up prize money last year," he said.

Approximately 60 representatives from 18 centres in the three counties attended the meeting.

NICKEL BASE FOR CHROMIUM

The reason why the chromium plating, which is such an ornamental feature of the modern auto mobile, no longer tends to show off, as it sometimes did in years gone by, is because the cheaper material is used but because the underlying nickel coating is heavier than it used to be, according to metallurgical experts. This is a good deal more nickel than chromium is used in this plating though it is employed not on the surface but as an undercoat for chromium, says a White Metal News bulletin. Hence factory plating jobs are frequently due to the use of too little nickel.

SOUTHERN GOLDS SPEEDS UP WORK

Officials of Southern Golds, Ltd., announce that within the next few days the underground development campaign now in progress at the Carolina property will be speeded up considerably. New equipment will be added and the crew enlarged to permit work on the Carolina vein from the present shafts. It is the intention of the management to continue with crosscuts and drifts now being driven to fully determine the possibilities of the present zones.

Regarding current operations it is stated that the ore shoot on the No. 3 vein has been extended to 176 feet with the face still in ore. Numerous samples have been taken over entire length and an average gold content of $8.50 per ton ounce per ton is indicated across good commercial widths. The drift on the No. 2 vein is now 35 feet and 60 feet with the last face assaying $26.50 over a width of 2½ feet. High grade ore is also being opened up in the No. 1 vein with drift being extended both northeast and southwest.

MYLAMAQUE GOLD MINES

Officials of MyLamaque Gold Mines, Ltd., report that a diamond drill hole is now being put down to cut the extension of the highgrade ore-zone recently encountered. The hole is being driven considerably closer to the Lamaque-MyLamaque boundary.

BRIDGE OF ICE BEGINS BREAKING

Sheet of Ice From Forty to Sixty Feet Thick in Gorge

Niagara Falls, N.Y., March 4 — Niagara's mighty ice jam began breaking up today.

The water flow over the American falls, which were partly dry yesterday, increased nearly to normal, and holes appeared in the ice sheet in the lower gorge. This sheet ranges from 40 feet upstream to be 40 to 60 feet thick.

"The ice is setting," Chief Engineer Lee Jarvis of the Niagara Falls reservation police said. "If it continues softening the jam should be out of the lower gorge by the end of next week."

Jarvis said mild weather and a decrease in the amount of ice coming over the American and Canadian falls were causing the ice sheet to soften.

Elsewhere on the Canadian shore here said there was more ice below Niagara this week than in 32 years.

An official of the Niagara Falls Power Company reported today that the could still see ice "mountains" 60 feet high near the foot of the falls.

Alleged Assaults on Sit-Down Strikers Subject of Protests

Hamilton, Ont., March 4—(CP)—Protests by Premier Hepburn, Hon. A. W. Roebuck, Attorney-General, against alleged assaults upon some of the strikers at the Holmes plant, Sarnia, yesterday, John O'Flaherty, President of the Hamilton Trades and Labor Council, said today.

The steel workers unions here would forward petitions to the Attorney-General demanding inquiries into the alleged beating of Montgomery, steel union organizer, it was stated.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, March 4—(CP)—Oil and gold stocks slumped in the early trade on the mining section, Toronto Exchange today, they were showing signs of doing better in the early afternoon, while the base metals, higher in the early stage, appeared less robust. In the later period.

Lower prices were posted for Dome but it recovered slightly after the annual report was issued at noon. Other soft spots were Darkwater, Beaucamp, Preston; O'Brien and Central Patricia.

Announcement of the re-opening of the Wasamac property apparently had been discounted by the market for the price of the stock slipped back to 4.30 for a loss of 35 cents. Hudson Bay weakened more than a point and other base metals were barely firm.

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS

Toronto, March 4 (CP)—The industrial list suffered a moderate slump around the noon period but recoveries were under way by early afternoon, with the heavy industrials, including the steels, and implements, showing the most vigor. Dominion Steel and Coal B advanced to 5.25 against 21 2-4. Massey Harris common recovered a morning loss of a point and Oshawa Motors picked up a net gain of 1 1-2

Afternoon prices were lower for Nickel Imperial Oil and International Nickel Preferred and higher for Smelters and Ford A.s Liquor stocks were quiet and Walkers common firmed a fraction.

NEW YORK MARKET

New York, March 4—Stock buyers were more selective today and some of the leaders showed slowed down to make room for new favorites.

Merchandising, farm implement, utility rail and specialty issues stepped out in front while leaders in steel, motor and other groups encountered selling pressure.

In the Canadian sector of the market, a steady to slightly lower price range was shown by McIntyre, Dome Mines, International Nickel and Hiram Walker. Lake Shore, on the curb, yielded a small fraction. Dominion government bonds were inactive. Canadian dollars were unchanged at par.

Youngstown Sheet and Tube shares were pushed up around five points at the best. Gains of fractions to less were registered for Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck and Marshall Field.

sung by the assembly.

Greetings From Governor-General

Mayor Sochi then read greetings from Lord Tweedsmuir as follows:

"Government House,

"Ottawa.

"His Worship, The Mayor of Picton:

"On this, the occasion of its anniversary, I send warmest congratulations to the town of Picton. Its history is, however, older than that, for it was settled by the United Empire Loyalists in 1790. Such was the loyalty of these staunch persons, that, rather than live under another flag, they left all their possessions to make new homes for themselves, in the dense forests of an unknown land.

"I believe that that spirit of devotion and courage, is as strong in Prince Edward County today as it ever was, and this anniversary is but a milestone on the long highway of history; a highway, which will, I hope, lead it to a future filled with peace and prosperity.

"Your loyal Freedomair',

The hymn "Unto the Hills" followed, after which Psalm 90 was read responsively by Rev. A. C. Moore and a scripture reading was impressively rendered by Rev. David Wren. A selection by the male chorus "Land Kindly Light" with 10 voices was next given, Rev. Cecil Wilder and Mr. Ernest Hall offering sang "For All the Saints". Rev. F. E. Manktelow offered prayer. A very scholarly address on the early history of Picton was given by the Reverend Gerald S. Despard, Rector of the Church of All Saints, Picton, who was introduced by Judge E. H. McLean, Rev. S. M. Scott offered prayer, his main subject being another hymn selection, which was followed by his address and benediction "Abide With Me".

Greetings from Dr. H. A. Bruce, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario were read by Mayor Scott. His Worship also gave an explanation of the views of the ancestral home of Mr. Thomas Picton in Wales, which was shown on the screen. Their wives, Marcus Hawley of Belleville, Blackwell of Desoronto, Dalton Rose Kingston and Hughson of Napanee were on the platform, with embers of their councils and officials. A host of friendship and congratulation to Picton on the occasion was received from Napanee, Mr. A. S. Hughson, also made the presentation of a beautifully engraved tablet, the gift of his town to Picton. Short addresses from these gentlemen were much enjoyed. The meeting closed with the National Anthem, after the pronouncing of the Benediction by Rev. Mr. Despard.

Attending the ceremony and refreshments Belleville were Mayor R. D. Arnott, and Alderman Laurie Lewis, C. R. Clapp, A. O. Kennedy and F. J. Hadley. The officials from of the city across the bay were conveyed by local officials by His Worship Mayor Arnott.

TWO MOIRA YOUNG MEN

while the engineer was James O'Leary and the fireman John Chetwynd all of Tamworth. Members of the train crew stated, that after reaching the Corbyville the train was proceeding slowly to get underway, when the accident happened. The engine struck the automobile in front of the left door and carried the wrecked car some distance up the track in a northwest direction.

Saw Train Too Late

Sergeant Harry Thompson and Traffic Officer Irvine both stated, in separate reports, that the driver of the ill-fated car, believed to be Bernard Herity, was dead, and that he was too late to avoid a collision and that he had pulled his car sharply to the left, but not in time to prevent the tragedy.

The fireman of the train, John Clement, stated to the officials investigating "I did not see the approaching car as we were moving slowly out of the Corbyville yard limits. When we arrived at the building I felt a sudden jolt and thought something had broken on the front of the engine and jumping into the seat of the cab and looking out the window I saw the automobile suspended on the pilot of the engine. I shouted to Engineer James O'Leary, who immediately applied the emergency and stopped the train in three telephone pole lengths". It was quite evident that the vehicle had nearly crossed over the crossing as evidence of the engine having struck the distant. The car was a complete wreck.

Herity Leaves Bride

Bernard Herity, believed to be the driver of the car, was pulled from the dead body from behind the wheel, while Henry Emerson, was found in the back seat. The other two, Gordon Vanderwater and Albert Clare apparently were thrown from the wrecked car and probably was the means of saving their lives. Gordon Vanderwater is a son of Frank Vanderwater, while Albert Clare is the son of George Clare and both boys have resided at Moira all their lives. Bernard Herity, one of the dead, was born at Moira, being the son of Frank Herity and the late Mrs. Herity and has resided in that community all his life. He was a member of the United Church and leaves his father, his grandfather, Anthony Herity to mourn his loss. Henry Emerson, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Emerson was born in Moira and has resided in that community all his life. Left to mourn besides his wife and one child are his parents, three brothers, Arthur, Wellington and Andrew of Huntingdon Township, and two sisters Mrs. John Morton of Hunting-don and Miss Myrtle at home. The tragedy has cast a pall of gloom over the community where all the victims are well known and deservedly popular. The four left Moira early today for Belleville, where Bernard Herity was to accept delivery of a new truck.

OCEAN AIR MAIL PLANS CLEARING

Uncertainty Exists as to Date of Installation of Service

By E. NORMAN SMITH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, March 4—(CP)—An Atlantic air mail service, though not yet sufficiently advanced to permit announcement by inauguration date seems gradually to be forging clear of fogs and blueprints.

Some speak of experimental flights in May and a regular schedule by November. But more cautious authorities still speak in terms of a year or more. Imperial Airways and the British Air Ministry will not commit themselves.

Recent test flights around England and on Britain's empire mail route have been highly satisfactory, but it is agreed that long distance Atlantic flights cannot be inaugurated by the mileage feats of overland planes.

Speed Factor

The Imperial Airways giant flying boat Caledonia recently flew non-stop from Southampton to Alexandria, 2,300 miles, in 13 hours and 35 minutes, at an average of five, half a ton of freight and averaged 200 miles an hour. She had considerable fuel to spare.

It is noteworthy that this is 400 miles longer than the longest non-stop flights from western Ireland to Newfoundland.

Then came a 1,326-mile non-stop flight of the Cambria around England, Scotland and Ireland, averaging about 190 miles an hour with seven on board. The trip was reported "pleasant and uneventful" and the plane was in constant contact with Croydon airport.

Recruiting at 'Low'

Alfred Duff Cooper, Secretary of State for War, announced that recruiting still is below "both our hopes and our needs" although there was an increase in enlistment which he trusts will "lead to a substantial and progressive assistance in the position."

The strength of the regular army, inclusive of British Troops in India and Burma, at the beginning of the financial year will be approximately 980 officers and 20,230 others exclusive of the recruiting establishment. During the year the number of men joining the army will be approximately 27,000. Recruits required therefore will be about 47,200.

Duff Cooper comments: "In spite of the uniting efforts of the army recruiting staff, the great help received from the press and the film industry, and the fruitful co-operation of lady visitors and other bodies, recruiting, though it has improved over the last few weeks, is below both our hopes and our needs, but certain measures which are in contemplation will, I trust, lead to a substantial and progressive, amelioration of the position."

Recruit Shortage

"The recent increase in recruits is due almost entirely to some modifications in physical standards for recruits which are contained in a memorandum has permitted re-examination of rejected men whose fitness particularly those concerned with chest measurement.

"The modified standards came into force December 1 last. The intake for the corresponding rate for the recruiting year ended September 30, 1936, was 16,000. The corresponding rate for that year reached the low level of 396.7 per 1,000 compared with 305.7 per 1,000 for the pre-

Stirling and District

Stirling—The increasing number of flu cases noticed during the past week in the neighborhood of Carnival has caused alarming proportions. Studies in the school were discontinued for an indefinite period last Thursday. The teacher and several of the pupils suffering from severe attacks of cold and "flu". The regular weekly meeting of Carmel United Church had been previously arranged to be held in conjunction with the meeting of the stirling group on Monday evening when the Carmel society were to be the guests of the stirling congregation in St. Paul's United Church. The meeting had to be postponed because of so much illness. Service in Carmel United Church on Sunday last was also withheld because of the illness of the minister, Rev. W. J. Scott, who is numbered among those confined to bed with the prevalent illness with the "flu". It is believed by many that this form of illness is prevalent in the community of Carmel than at any time in its past history.

St. Paul's Young People's Union.

On Monday evening it had been previously arranged that the pupils and citizens of St. Paul's Young People's Union would entertain their parents, this evening the members of the Young People's Group at Carmel, the stage was all set and everything was in readiness to welcome the many cases of illness at Carmel, they were unable to come and the joint meeting was postponed indefinitely. The program arranged for the evening was forced to promptu nature and proved most entertaining.

In the absence of Mr. Don Williams, president, Mr. H. E. Hulin acted as chairman for the evening and opened the meeting with a musical song-service starting at 8 p.m. The Scripture reading was read by Mr. Clarence West and prayer by Mr. C. G. W. Bradley in place of Mr. Norm Wescott then presented the secretary's report of the previous meeting. From this point the financial contributions to the program was solicited at a liberal rate and with the willing response to the requests of the chairman provided plenty of the necessary funds for the items of the season. The first number was a reading given by Mrs. Ern Wescott. Miss Betty Morris rendered a pleasing solo—Miss Thelma Merrick acted as her accompanist—this was followed by a vocal chorus by the junior members of the group. Mr. W. A. Hall contributed a humorous program was the telling of a very interesting and educational story. The final musical number of the program was a Baritone solo by Percy Dutton. The singing of a closing hymn and the Mizpah Benediction climaxed an evening which was enjoyable. The method of providing an evening program may be put in force soon again.

Synopsis of Preceding Instalments:

Upon the shoulders of Heather Aston, now 24, has rested the burden of rearing her brothers and sisters, the youngest of whom, Bobbie, now nearly 11, had comforted his mother her life. Heather had started her sacrifices when Bobbie was a year old, telling Bruce Logan, who was leaving England, for South Africa, that she could not marry him and desert Cesar, as they affectionately called their grandfather, inefficient father, and "her children". Cesar was insufficient mentally to maintain Langley, the home his father gave him as a wedding present, and spends his income intermittently . . . writing a "book" which is never completed. Paul, the eldest brother, has married a wealthy woman who after a year alienated him from his family. Now Betty has just married the well-to-do Stephen Miller and left on a honeymoon, leaving Heather worn out by her effort to make the wedding the success it was with the limited means at her command. Events of the day have recalled Bruce Logan vividly to her mind. In the midst of her wistful reminiscences she receives a letter from her sister Vilette, who has been travelling with a concert company in South Africa. Fortunately for her stage means, She announces she is through with the stage, will be on her way home when the letter is received, and has with her a man, who is returning on the same steamer, Heather goes to Waterloo to meet the boat train, but the man drives Vilette up from Southampton. When Heather returns home Vilette introduces him—he is Bruce Logan. Twice, before he goes on to London, he makes opportunities to be alone with her and he refers to old times but Heather avoids intimate talk.

"Very well indeed."

"Do you remember the fish pond?" John broke in, "and how upset Heather was because you spent all one Saturday afternoon building it, instead of taking her for a picnic?"

"John!" Heather protested indignantly.

"Well, you were," he said. "I'll bet Bruce remembers it too."

Bruce laughed. "I should have been wiser to have gone for the picnic," he answered. "The fish pond was a failure anyway."

"Heather's filled it with ferns now," John informed him. "It's the nicest spot in the garden."

"I am very fond of ferns," Heather said a little constrainedly.

It was difficult to listen calmly to these reminiscences; each one brought back the past so vividly. She remembered well enough that she had been a little upset—because they had not gone for the promised picnic, but the boys had pleaded so hard that Bruce stay, that Heather had not gone for her own pleasure. "I was insufficient" she said sadly, "We can always go another day, Heather," but that other day had never come, for quite soon after, he went to South Africa.

How very young she must have been!..... It would take a great deal more than a picnic to hurt her now.

She had been worried because Bobbie hadn't returned from the aerodrome and they were having coffee in the drawing-room before her anxious ear heard his footsteps and she hurried from the room. She returned with Bobbie, and Vilette nodded to her youngest brother who smiled rather selfconsciously.

Logan went towards him. "You won't remember me," he said.

"Heather's told me," Bobbie answered.

They shook hands.

"Did you have a good time?" Heather asked.

Bobbie's face lit with enthusiasm. "Marvelous—we went in the Ju."

"Paris!" Vilette cried. "You lucky creature! Who took you?"

Bobbie shifted from one leg to the other. "Oh, just a chap I know," he said awkwardly. "He's going to Germany tomorrow." Then abruptly he asked, "Is there any grub, Heather?"

"I'll get you some."

Bobbie's interest in motors hurried him through his meal and soon he was out with Bruce, his head under the hood of Bruce's low slung car. Cesar had retired to his study again and John had gone up to his room to read. Heather went to the schoolroom for her work-bag. There were always such shoals of stockings and socks to mend. She tried not to think of the day's events but a question crystallized: What did this meeting with Bruce mean to her after so long?

"Nothing," she told herself firmly, and tried to believe it.

Was it likely that Bruce would look for a second glance or thought when Vilette was there? And yet a sad little voice was whispering in her heart, "He belonged to me once."

There was a sound of footsteps. "I've just come to say good-bye," Bruce Logan said.

Heather stood up, one hand still on the back of the chair Bobbie's stock. "Oh, are you going?" she said hopelessly.

"Yes—it looks like a storm and I want to get to town before it starts."

There was a little silence which both of them were at a loss to fill. Till Logan asked, "When may I see you again?"

Her eyes wavered, though she answered with a smile, "Come whenever you like—we shall always be pleased to see you. And thank you for bringing Vilette home. You are staying in London?"

"Yes, I've taken a service flat—perhaps you will come and lunch with me one day?"

"We'll all come," she said quickly. "That's the worst of us—we hunt in packets. I expect you'll have far too much of the family before your leave is over."

"No" he said, and then, "Well —goodbye."

She avoided his hand. "I'll come to the door."

Bruce took his seat at the wheel of his car and slammed the door. "Give me a ring in the morning," Vilette commanded.

"I shall probably come down," he answered.

He smiled a last good-bye and Heather wondered if he had quite forgotten that morning at Waterloo, and the way he had leaned down to catch her hand.....

"Oh, Heather, can't you?"

The memory was so poignant that she turned quickly away, so she did not see that his last glance was for her and not for Vilette who blew him a dainty kiss from the tips of her fingers.

Instalment 4

Vilette opened sleepy eyes when Heather went to her room with a cup of tea. "Do you mind if I don't get up?" she murmured. "I'm absolutely done."

"Of course I don't mind; stay where you are, and if you feel like anything to eat, just ring that bell."

Heather began to pick up her sister's garments which were scattered all over the floor. Vilette was always untidy, she said that life was too short to bother. Heather laid them neatly on a chair.

She had turned to go when Vilette asked from the pillows, "Do you think he likes me, Heather?"

"Likes you." Heather stared at her. "You mean—Bruce? My dear, you should surely be the best judge of that."

Vilette turned over, frowning. "Onlookers generally see most of the game," she answered. "And I thought—as you knew him years ago—you might be able to tell—I mean from his manner to me. I can always tell when anyone is in love with anyone else."

Heather said awkwardly, "I wasn't in the room very much last night, was I?" and then conscious of the eloquent silence she hastened to add, "He must like you, of course, or he wouldn't have brought you home as he did—you could easily have come by train."

And even as she spoke she was thinking vexedly how stupid she was not to be able to find a better reason.

"Oh—that!" Vilette said contemptuously, "I'll confess I thought that he drove me up from Southhampton—he had to drive up, anyway. I've driven hundreds of miles with men I didn't care two hoots about, and they've been glad of a master of course."

Heather said, "Vilette—"

"Have you?" Heather asked helplessly. "I—I don't understand how—I mean—the difference in the age, Vilette, you're only 21. When I was a girl—"

"You talk as if you're fifty," Vilette broke in impatiently. "It's silly of you, Heather, I thought I'd come back and find you young. If only you were better dressed—" She stopped, and Heather had the strange feeling that Vilette resented the fact that she was looking her best because she had dressed in reflected on her own age.

She glanced at her thought aside, and moved towards the door. "Drink your tea while it's hot," she said.

Vilette looked after her suspiciously. "That means you don't think he's in love with me," she declared.

Heather came back again to stand beside the bed. "I've had a great deal experience of people in love," she said simply, "and I'm afraid I've grown far too hardly ever brought Maisie to the house, and though I certainly saw more of Bruce, I certainly never yet they were often away—they were always going somewhere."

Vilette sat up, her golden hair rumpled about her head, her yellow and tiroar showing above her pink nightgown. "Haven't you ever been in love yourself?" she asked.

Heather flushed sensitively, "If I have, it's my own affair," she forgotten all about it, and anyway, it was just a boy and girl affair . . . and they're dead, long ago, so they?" she asked bravely.

Vilette was sipping her tea. Heather felt rather helpless. Suddenly Vilette gave a confidential little laugh.

"Well, I don't be very clever if I can't make him ask me to marry him," she said. "I've never had much to do with women—he told me so—and I'm not short of men who always easy to manage. Besides—this time I happen to want him."

Heather was looking at Vilette's hands—such slim white little hands they were, with delicately tinted nails—and then almost unconsciously she looked at her own capable hands. She had neither the time nor the money to have them manicured, and housework and cooking made difficult enemies to fight.

She started when Vilette asked abruptly, "Are you shocked?"

"Shocked?"

"Because I said I could make him ask me to marry him?"

Heather looked at her, and though she was thinking with a sense of bewilderment that it was a thing she could not understand, even while she recognized that apart from the differences in their ages, many things separated her from Vilette.

She said briskly, "Well, I must go and help Priddy with the housework."

"Bother the old house," Vilette retorted. "Why don't you let it take care of itself sometimes, and have a little fun."

"Perhaps looking after it is my idea of fun," Heather answered with a smile. "Ring the bell if you want anything, but once again Vilette detained her.

"Heather" she spoke almost shyly now, "I don't want you to think that I'm—I'm not going to live with him! . . . I am—most awfully in love with him."

Heather did not look round, though she said gently, "Are you? I hope it will all come right. It will, if you are in earnest, darling!

Vilette gave a deep sigh. "Have you a cigarette?" she asked. "I've smoked all mine."

"I haven't—but there may be some in John's room, I'll see." She came back with two and gave them to her sister.

"Don't you ever smoke?" Vilette asked.

"Yes, when I can afford it."

Vilette frowned. "Money is a perfect curse," she declared.

Heather laughed and closed the door behind her, but she sighed as she went downstairs, and there was a little sinking in her heart as she remembered her sister's words:

"I am—most awfully in love with him."

It was unlike Vilette to speak with so much feeling—and for the first time she was conscious of jealousy, as she tried in vain to stifle the voice that whispered again, "He belonged to me, once!"

When she reached the hall the telephone bell was ringing. The telephone was the one luxury that Langley boasted. Every quarter when the bill came in Cesar declared he would not pay it, and threatened to have the instrument removed. "I never use it," he said not quite truthfully. But the telephone remained.

Heather lifted the receiver a little hastily. She so seldom received a personal call that the phone was of small interest to her. She gave a sudden start as she recognized Bruce Logan's voice.

"Is that Tangley? Is Miss Aston at home, please?"

Heather's heart seemed to miss a beat and then seemed to stop as she answered a little breathlessly, "Bruce? Oh, and I can tell her," for of course, it must be Vilette he wanted, but before she could turn away he said, quickly, "Is that you, Heather? Bruce here. How are you?"

"Very well, thank you. You got to London safely?"

"Yes, and it's quite a decent flat, comfortable and all that. May I come down?"

"Of course; come down to lunch." and then without waiting she went on, "I'm afraid Vilette isn't up yet. She seemed so tired that I made her stay in bed."

Bruce said rather shortly, "Vilette is shockingly lazy"—and then, "I see you! I come? I want to talk to you."

"I shall be here, of course."

"And prepared to talk to me?" he insisted.

She caught her breath on a laugh. "Well, of course . . . why not?"

"I'll be down in about an hour."

Heather found it difficult to say naturally, "We have lunch at half past one."

"Does that mean I am not to come before?"

"Come whenever you please. I will tell Vilette."

He said, "You need not—I want to talk to you."

She had no reply, and he said again, "Did you hear me? I want to talk to you."

"I'm not very good at talking—" she said with a little laugh. "Is that meant to be as frigid as it sounds?"

"Does it sound frigid?" she asked helplessly.

"Alarmingly so." There was a pause before he said, "I've been thinking a great deal about you last night—about the old days . . . I had some happy times, Heather."

"I'll so long ago—"

"Too long ago to be repeated?"

She tried to laugh. "I'm the head of a family now."

He said something inaudible, and then, "Very well. I shall see you presently."

Cesar was coming slowly down the stairs in his dressing gown as she turned with the telephone receiver, vainly trying to drag herself back to every-day surroundings. What had Bruce meant? Did he think that she still cared for him? And was he sorry for her and imagined that she wished to take up their story where it had broken off?

"When do we start?".

"The car will be here at ten."

She glanced quickly at the clock—twenty past nine now, so they would be well away before Bruce could possibly arrive.

"I am ready," she said, and then, "I suppose we shan't be back for lunch?"

Cesar looked aggrieved. "Loseley is twenty miles away," he said. "And I have business to see to when I get there! . . . we shall certainly not be back to lunch."

"That will be nice," Heather said. "I'm just tell Priddy."

She had a queer feeling that she was running away from danger, and all the while she was giving orders to Mrs. Priddy she seemed to hear Bruce's rather constrained voice saying, "I want to talk to you——" and then behind it, Vilette's, "I am —most awfully in love with him."

Air Cadets in All Schools Suggested by Col. G. Drew

Speaks on Canadian Aviation Before Trenton Club

IN INFANCY STAGE

Trenton, Mar. 4—(Special) — At the St. George's Church Men's Club banquet held in Canterbury Hall on Monday night Col. George Drew suggested that aeronautic courses be introduced into Canadian educational institutions. The speaker said "there may be a great deal of reason for condemning cadet corps in schools but I'd like to see air cadets in all Canadian institutions of learning. Air cadets do not carry guns and the training they receive prepares them for Canada's aviation future. We haven't yet developed as satisfactorily as in the air and I think every boy in Canada should become interested in flying as our country will be united by aeroplane shortly. Aviation on the North American continent has passed the infancy stage and has reached the point of being a commercial enterprise, when one American first boasts of carrying a million passengers.

Built on Faith

Canada was built by the faith of our fore-fathers. This country will have no worthwhile future unless everyone growing up has faith, that Canadians will succeed in the future. We must develop a spirit of confidence and faith in ourselves that will produce results for itself. We must foster the spirit of "when I get to the top I'll be awarded with a Royal Commission", we must gain our prosperity through the individual effort. We Canadian citizens shouldn't be to complacent, because we are absolutely sure that democracy is going to survive in Canada. Canada is not immune from dictatorship. Things are not too bad in other countries where dictators have such an iron hand. The dictators are conscientiously and unceasingly developing the faith and confidence in the youth of the nation, which is the most important material in the nation one use. Italy and Germany are handsomely governed by dictators but these countries are progressing rapidly.

Swamps Cleared

21 Italy " areas four and five hundred miles apart known as the Pompey swamps have been cleared by army veterans under military heads. Houses and villages have sprung up on the rich marsh-lands. Fever conquered, were formed. It saw Mussolini formally open one of the cities. The Italian classes may be surprised that they are striving for a form of government, that will work. Democracy still works in Great Britain and not only last in the world as long as it survives in Great Britain. People of Great Britain have absolute faith in their government. During the Jubilee of King George, Hitler made a declaration of faith to the masses of Italy in his dramatic voice from a balcony overlooking a crowded square in Rome. His other pilot during the greatest conflict of the world's history. The letter expressed words of appreciation and affection for Canada's Ace. No more aviator in the world can compare for sheer valor to Billy Barker, V.C., who was the outstanding aerial tactician in the Great War. He was credited with destroying forty-six planes and eight balloons before his heroic last stand. Barker formed in his regular clothes hopped into his Sopwith Snipe and set out for Paris one morning. He sighted a German Fokker at 20,000 feet over the front line broadcast and while driving down the enemy he was wounded in the right elbow. He fainted and his machine dove two thousand feet before he regained consciousness. When he righted his ship, the Richthofen Flying Circus of sixty planes surrounded him.

Another machine was sent earthward by his blazing guns and a pistole tore away part of his right hip. He fainted again and his craft out of control again fell five thousand feet. Twenty more hun Fokers met disaster before a bullet pierced his left hip. Barker fainted for the third time and came to three thousand feet from the ground. An enemy fighter loomed ahead and he gunned his Snipe for a mid-air crash. The German avoided the collision and Barker cracked-up behind our lines. He recovered and was killed in an aeroplane mishap in Canada after the war. Such bold courage in the face of danger is a story of which to be proud of and confirms the boast, that Canadian pilots are best in the air.

Life Dull in North

If you consider life is dull here take a trip to the northern wastes that constitutes much of our country. There you can see Canadians, who have confidence in themselves. Commercial pilots guide transport planes twice to fourteen hundred miles north of Edmonton and touch the Arctic coast. Only twelve hundred people inhabit the vast area surrounding the Great Slave Lake, Athabaska and Copper Mine rivers. You couldn't help but notice the spirit of unity, that is evident among the Eskimos on the Arctic coast. As I looked from the cabin or a plane operated by the renowned Walter Gilbert, I was sorrowfully impressed to see an aeroplane, crashed and a Catholic burial in separate lots, a division, which seems to me unnecessary in a community where all is so unified.

A hearty vote of appreciation to the speaker was given by Rhes James and George Lobb. Gordon Firth, president of St. George's Men's Club proposed a toast to the King and welcomed the guests. He officiated as toast master during the evening. W. H. Ireland, former M. P., introduced the speaker. Rev. F. A. Smith addressed the gathering briefly and extended thanks to the ladies of the Guild for their co-operation with the program. Cannon Smith and Cross before the gathering sat down at the banquet table. The Quinteite Quartette, Claude Shaffer, Frank Lawrence, Glen Mitts and Lloyd Mills supplied entertainment. Leslie Hearts was accompanist.

SONS STOLE CROWN

Wearing one of his two 18-carat crowns, Sir Clort Aita, ruler of one of Britain's Gold Coast (Africa) colonies, is pictured here on an occasion when he visited London.

Sir Clort is now in the spotlight as a spartan father who sent his two sons to jail after they had been found guilty of pinching their dad's scintillating millinery. Both boys R. J. Birkorang and J. W. Pe-quimbar, were given sentences of nine months hard labor, respectively, by the district magistrate at Sekum.

Kidney Acids Rob Your Rest

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They toss and turn—have backache and aching joints. Often they blame it on "Rheumatism" when it may be their kidneys. Healthy kidneys filter poisonous acids from the blood. If they are sluggish and fail, poisons stay in the system and backache, rheumatic pains, headaches often follow. If you don't sleep well, try Dodd's Kidney Pills—for half a century the favorite remedy. 19

Life Is Saved by Hanked With Best

Our pilots ranked among the world's best during the world's greatest conflict. Col. Drew related the achievements of Billy Bishop, V.C., who at present is Air Commodore of Canada. "You can talk about Thermopoly or fighters under Wellington at Waterloo but you can compare with the valor and courage that was shown by Bishop in his last twelve days at the front. He shot down twenty-five enemy craft mounting his total to seventy-six official victories. He won more decorations than any other allied soldier. A true picture of real spirit was shown in a letter which Udet, noted German aviator in the World War, recently wrote to Bishop at Ottawa. Bishop shot down more Germans than any

ITALIAN LABORER GREETS IL DUCE

Supreme devotion to his leader seems to be portrayed on the face of this Italian workman as he greeted Benito Mussolini during Il Duce's visit to the site of the next world's exhibition to be held at Rome in 1941. This workman is helping demolish some of the buildings around the railroad terminal in Rome. Il Duce seized a pick from one of the laborers and himself assisted in the work during his tour.

CORONATION REQUIRES NEW COIFFURES

Special designs of hairdressing models for use at the coronation ceremonies of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth, were submitted to the trade by a London hairdressing school. It's expected that these designs will be used by the general public. The photo shows the "coronation coiffure" dressed in such a manner that it does not hamper the wearer of the coronet. They curls surround the base of the headwear.

"SALADA" GREEN TEA

—DAILY SHORT STORY—

Just A Cup of Pansies

By Ad Schuster

A faded picture of pansies in a blue cup. To Florence Turner it stood for the happiest day of her life, the revelation of a husband's neglect and the end of romance.

The wife stood before the picture which had been put under the back attic last night and there came back to her the days when she had painted it. Cambridge had praised it, wondering when she applied the finishing touches. He had even said she hoped she remembered the delightful fear which came into his eyes—that she would not let an art career stand in the way of . . . Then he had propped it and the picture was the prized ornament in the little house that was theirs by choice bleurl days before there were money and success and—she sighed—the disillusionment of years.

Now the picture was in the attic. Cambridge Turner, the slim youth of other days, had filled out and was the picture of a prosperous merchant. She wondered how she looked and, like Cambridge, had changed. In these changes had taken place. It had all been so gradual and neither had realized.

"The day he let me take the picture down," she said aloud, "must have been the turning point." thought he would miss it, ask for it, and he never did." Florence raised her apron to her eyes and wept. Suddenly she stopped, stood erect and defiant as if making a resolve.

"You are to old for confession," she told herself. "It is time for you to be sensible. Cambridge is a model husband. Maybe he is too good for you."

"All the same," she said after a little while, "I must get rid of this picture."

The rummage sale of the Ladies' Aid was enriched with the oil painting which had once been the high a place in the Turner home and hearts. With bonnets, shawls, vases and books it was put in the window to turn its faded face to the passing crowd. Cambridge and Florence Turner, who had left the house, slowly home and Florence resolved that she would not hereafter as a sensible woman of forty.

Cambridge Turner was a little late for dinner. When he appeared it was with a shame-faced air.

"Flo," he said hesitatingly, "I did something today which maybe you won't understand." There was almost a begging appeal in his eyes. "You know," he apologized, "I have always left the decorations of the house to you, ever since we left the little place. My furniture, like the pictures, Flo, I have let you choose them, haven't I?"

"Cambridge Turner," the wife interrupted "what have you been up to now?"

Visibly he wilted. Then, with an effort, he announced strength.

"I bought something today that I want to have in this house. It's not much, but something else you took away. You know, that picture you made of pansies—I always liked so well and you thought wasn't good enough for your house? Well, I found another, almost like it." He was pitiful in his lack of guile, pitiful in the pitiful pride of his wife who had turned romance out for the luxuries of wealth.

"It isn't the same and it will never mean so much, but really, it is almost like the picture you painted and I thought you would not mind my having it in my room."

For a moment he was silent. In her happiness at discovery she watched him, afraid the moment would end.

"I even hoped," he ventured, "you might like it, too. Say, it's a picture of pansies and I know you like them. Do you like it?"

"Like it," I love it—and you, too."

"And to think," she said a little later, "I thought we had grown too old for romance."

WEST LAKE

Westlake—Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Frazis returned on Monday from their honeymoon trip. A reception was held for them at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Kleinsteiber, the same evening.

Mrs. Phoebe Wright visited her sister Mrs. F. W. Haycock on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jetsen Brooks, Salmon Pt., were mid week visitors of Mr. and Mrs. H. Mallorieu.

QUITE SO

The youngster did not mean do be cynical, but this is the answer he gave when his teacher asked him to explain the difference between natural instinct and human intelligence:

"If we had instinct," he said, "we should know everything we needed to know without learning it, but we've got reason and so we have to study ourselves most blind or be a fool."

No Commission For Ontario Game

Toronto, March 3.—(CP)—No Commission will be appointed for the administration and conservation of Ontario's Game Resources, Hon. Harry Nixon, Minister of Game and Fisheries, told the Fish and Game Committee of the Legislature at its organization meeting today. Mr. Nixon said there was a determined propaganda abroad favoring the erection of such a commission. It has been threatened, he said, to make it an issue in the next election.

"I know of no issue that would be more welcome in an election" said Mr. Nixon. "I would rather abolish 50 per cent. of present commissions, provincial and federal, than appoint one new one. Never as long as I have anything to do with it will control of our natural resources be delegated to any irresponsible commission."

NO TRACE OF HUSBAND

Niagara Falls, Ont., March 3.—(CP)—In spite of a night-long search by dozens of cars and scurrying from an acrylane, no trace has been found of G. Russell Todd, 34, who disappeared an hour and a half after his wife's death here yesterday. Mrs. Todd, ill only since Sunday, died Tuesday and Todd emptied all his pockets onto a table, got into his car and has not been seen since. The car, of distinctive color, a light tan, has not been seen and it is feared it may have been driven into the river.

EXHIBITION ASSURED

Glasgow, March 3.—(CP)—With the guarantee fund already exceeding to $3,100,000, success of the Empire Exhibition in Scotland in 1938 seems assured. Lord Elgin, the President announces. The King has intimated his patronage to the exhibition.

Keenest interest is already being taken in the exhibition overseas, and we have knowledge of parties being formed in Canada to visit it," added Lord Elgin.

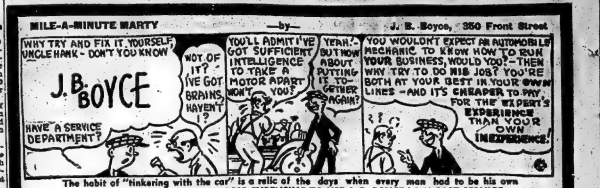
Magistrate Regrets Whippings Not Allowed For Juvenile Offenders

Brantford, Ont., March 3.—(CP)—Jack Blanchard and Wesley Westcott with previous records in Juvenile and criminal courts, were sentenced today to three months in jail with the former getting the straps with a flat lash and the latter ten.

The pair were found guilty of robbery with violence of Percy Speck, Hamilton. He was robbed of a cigarette lighter and $1.50 in cash.

On a charge of breaking and entering Bells, Ltd., Service Station the pair were found not guilty although the Magistrat, pointed out that circumstantial evidence was against them.

Magistrate S. A. Jones deplored the fact that Judges of Juvenile Courts could not order whippings for juvenile offenders. He felt that other crimes, were carrying on their too many kids caught in theft and work when older in spite of frequent appearances in the Juvenile Courts.



OLD LONDON BUILDING HAS MANY MEMORIES

One of London's ancient institutions is the Watson and Lightfirmen's company of the River Thames. Located a building built in 1780, in St.> Mary-at-Hill, near Billingsgate, fish market.

The interior of the hall has scarcely changed since 1780 and it contains many interesting relics among which is the Bachelors' bowl, an ornate silver cup bearing the date 1659. The custom was for a widow selected by the company to walk in the passage of the court, and each young waterman taking up his freedom she would offer a draught of ale from the cup and receive a shilling from him.

In Queen Elizabeth's reign boatmen petitioned against the building of playhouses in the city. In their opinion Bankside was the correct place, for playgoers needed a boat to get them there. That they feared competition is evident, for in 1634 they petitioned against hackney coaches and sedan chairs.

BUDGET DEBATE

Dues of Peace Rivers

The dues of peace rivers was the subject of a speech, cut short the night before by interruptions from Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Lands and Forests, that caused Premier Hepburn to call for adjournment.

The day's developments in the Legislature-Henry clash included an apology from Mr. Heenan to Speaker Norman E. Wood and a promise by Hon. Mr. Henry to visit the Minister in his office.

Wilfrid Hamilton (Con., Toronto-St. David's) complimented Mr. Heenan on the withdrawal of his apology and said he did justice to British Parliamentary traditions.

Defends Public Accounts

Speaking last night, Mr. Heenan defended the Government's recently-adopted policy of permitting the export of pulpwood from Crown lands. The Province could export 600,000 cords annually without cutting into the province's timber resources, he said, and agreements for timber limits would provide employment for Canadian workmen.

Mr. Henry denounced the policy of permitting the export of unmanufactured pulpwood and declared the Conservative Party was stood for the processing of raw materials in Canada.

A "morass" has resulted from the Government's "vacillating" policy concerning the allocation of School Area moneys, Mr. Henry charged. No one knew what the Act meant and the Act had results unexpected by even the Government. He said Premier Hepburn had tried to reduce it to a definite formula, but that was not the moral principle at stake and the people were being robbed of a fair share of the Public School system.

SIDNEY CROSSING

Sidney Crossing—A play entitled "The Old Maid's Club" will be presented in Aikins United Church, by the Ladies Aid, on Friday evening of last week.

The Institute "Euchre Party" was well attended at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Casey Ketcheson on Friday evening.

Mrs. Ernest Outwater spent a few days last week with her sister Mrs. Ed. Shaw, Trenton.

The Ladies T. P. U. held their weekly meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Limb on Thursday evening. Quite a number were present and the program was in charge of Miss Ida Ketcheson, assisted by Mrs. Limb.

Mrs. Hoyt Hogle spent a few days last week with her cousin, Miss Ethel Wm. Limb, in Belleville.

Rev. Horton of Foxboro took charge of the service in Aikins United Church on Sunday morning with a goodly attendance.

a press conference tonight, "that opportunity may thereby be offered to talk over matters of mutual interest to the United States and Canada.

I have accepted the President's invitation and expect to arrive in Washington on Friday morning.

"I hay arranged to lunch with our Minister, Sir Herbert Marler, at his table, and expect to return to Ottawa on Friday evening of last week.

"I am looking forward to the opportunity of discussing matters concerning the allocation of School Area moneys, Mr. Henry charged. No one knew what the Act meant and the Act had results unexpected by even the Government. He said Premier Hepburn had tried to reduce it to a definite formula, but that was not the moral principle at stake and the people were being robbed of a fair share of the Public School system.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Biggar and Crawford by Financial Service.

MARKET COMMENT

The exceptional strength in New York has permeated the local list, and with the exception of some of the power stocks, the list here is giving a very good account of itself with a number of new highs recorded. The implement stocks, the oils and a few specialties are moving ahead in good style, while the papers are also acting well.

It is entirely likely that the rise in some of our stocks is due to demand from London, as British capital is seeking "dollar" investment, and the bright prospects for the Dominion make this country an excellent field for such funds. British journals are devoting more space to Canadian business conditions and the comment, as a whole, is quite favorable.

With the price of base metals climbing daily, it is no surprise that such stocks as Consolidated Smelters, International Nickel, Noranda, etc. are selling close to their highs. These companies should show very handsome earnings in 1937 and shareholders can look forward to liberal treatment in the way of dividends.

The announcement that Sherritt-Gordon had 36,000 shareholders came somewhat as a surprise, as this is one of the largest group of stockholders of any company in Canada, and also attests to the popularity of the security.

Slippers of Destiny

By June Watson

Raymond found the package on his table when he went up to dress for the Flemming's dance. He had thought this he would give dancing, but this was a particular occasion. Billy Flemming was having a birthday and his wife insisting on a real old-time party.

So Raymond had hied him to his favorite shop shop and been fitted to dancing pumps, and the obliging box testified to their arrival at the last minute. Raymond groaned inwardly, and when he had finished he untied the oblong box and opened it.

There, he stopped aghast. Instead of a pair of shiny patent leather pumps he found nestling in the white tissue paper a tiny pair of high-heeled slippers, frivolous cloth of gold trifles that glistened in the light.

"Hang it all—of course I can't wear them," he told the world in a complaining tone. "Of all the absurd mistakes—well, Mrs. Billy, you can count one dancing man out." He put the little slippers away in his chiffonier, smiling at them as he did so. Some little fluffy thing might be aching for those very slippers, but she could not help smiling at sight of his new and shining pumps when they reached her!

"You dancing?" asked Mrs. Billy, frowning at him.

"No," told her that, lacking dancing shoes, he had ordered them and been disappointed in their delivery.

"You are like poor Nellie Warren —she says she received an enormous pair of men's shoes instead of her own—she is wearing an old pair and is as cross as can be. Go find her and dance with her, fellow sufferers should console each other."

Raymond found the dancers and found a place comfortable for wallflowers. He wondered which girl would prove to be Nellie Warren. He rather liked her name, simple and reassuring, but she would have been splendid in gold slippers if—

He felt so watching the dancing feet of the girls, noting the dainty foot-gear until his eyes were dazzled with the procession of silver and colored shoes. Then he started—no dancing along in perfect time to Billy Flemming's ponderous feet, were a tiny pair of shabby gray slippers—they were, emergency shoes for her very own with gold and golden hued silk hose and a golden tiara front.

The girl herself—he caught a glimpse, of a dark, bewitching face, golden eyes, a flash of rose color in cheeks and lips, and she was gone.

He plot the shoes away, his young eyes strangely bright.

He knew that love had come at last.

We are informed the three-compartment incline shaft at Prancour Gold Mines has now reached a depth of 125 feet on Feb. 24, progressing at the rate of 5 feet daily, and that the objective slope depth or 200 feet is expected to be attained by mid-March. The first level will be established at the latter point, which will give a vertical depth of about 150 feet. Crosscutting east and west to the ore, 400 feet in each instance, should be in progress by the end of March it is stated.

From 15 to 60

Special attention is called at this time to the stock of Sigma Mines (Quebec), now selling around 60. Financial Service first recommended this issue to our readers at 15. There are only a little more than 700,000 shares outstanding. During the last period of prosperity this stock sold as high as $200, a share. Needless to say, this price was not warranted. Since that time, however, the company has strengthened greatly their holdings in the Turner Valley area, extensive deep cracking plant has been erected and a strong working capital position has been built up. Earning power has been greatly enhanced since the above mentioned high, for reasons why Royalite is being bought by some people who wish to have a share in the development of the oil industry in the Province of Alberta.

HUSBAND KILLS TWIN SISTERS

Estranged Husband Kills Himself After Murder of Wife And Sister

Boston, March 4 —(CP)— Twin sisters from Dixville, Que., lay dead here last night, shot to death by the estranged sister's estranged husband before he committed suicide.

Mrs. Phillip Cincotta, 27, and Rose Lessard, her sister, natives of the French-Canadian village, were slain last night by Cincotta, a Revere, Mass., mill worker in a fit of rage because his wife had left him.

As police pieced the tragedy together tonight, Cincotta got a gun yesterday after his wife had left him and started to look for her. He visited the homes of several relatives with no success until he came to her brother Armand's place in East Boston.

There, he found both the twins in a bedroom. The wife refused his entreaties that she go back, and the enraged husband finally shot her through the head and put a second bullet into the sister's head.

Then, he rushed to the street. As the brother, Armand, came out of the house behind him, two shots from the crazed Cincotta narrowly missed him.

The husband, rushing into an alleyway beside the house, shot himself.

Mrs. Martha Lessard, wife of Armand, heard the double shooting and also stood in the kitchen of her home with her five-year-old child by the hand.

The killing left Richard, three-year-old son of the Cincottas, as an orphan. Tonight, relatives of the wife were making efforts to have the boy placed in their custody.

Plans for a double funeral for the slain sisters went forward, meanwhile, with Father Lessard, M.S.C., of the Assumption College, Lasamack as the priest.

The sisters will be buried together, probably on Friday.

MISFORTUNES

Wrote Elizabeth, the post-queen of Rumania: "Do not be proud of having borne your misfortune. Could you have done otherwise?" A very fine question, Elizabeth. Inasmuch as we can in no way evade our misfortunes, there is no cause for pride in meeting them. But the spirit in which we meet them is in our control. In that there may be cause for pride or for shame.

YOUTH AND AGE HOLD SPOTLIGHT

Three Rinks Tied For First Place Position in Brier Spiel

Toronto, March 4 (CP)—Youth and age held the spotlight today as the field for the Mcdonald's Brier Tankard race rounded into the home stretch. Three rinks were tied for first-place position in the final fight toward the 1937 Dominion Curling championship.

Youthful Jimmy Welch of Winnipeg hooked up with Veteran Ernest Smith of Haileybury, Ont., in the feature battle of the seventh round, with Cliff Manahan of Edmonton expected to etch out his 10th morning match. All three skips have won five games and lost only one.

But two other entries in the 10-rink field were far from being counted out. R. Y. David of Vancouver and Frank Smith of Moose Jaw, Sask., were tied for second place with western skips won four and lost two of their games in the past week's spelling.

POWER PLAN T THREATENED AS ICE JAMS, PACK NIAGARA RIVER BELOW THE FALLS

This power plant on the Niagara River nestling just below the Horseshoe Falls on the Canadian side, was threatened with flooding by the ice jam in the Niagara River, rivalling the most serious on record, sent the water up 30 feet above normal and piled heavy, jagged, crushing masses of ice in the river. Homes and buildings were threatened and minor damage was done to the docks of the sight-seeing steamers Maid of the Mist. A drop in temperature plus the fact that ice from Lake Erie and Niagara Falls in the background, like, is believed to have saved the power plant from flooding. Employees and riverman are pictured anxiously watching the pack from the power plant platform with the Horseshoe Falls in the background.

MAYORS ASK OTTAWA TO ASSUME RELIEF COST

'Roman Holiday' Feared If Municipalities Lose Responsibility in Relief

Mayor of Hamilton States His View at Mayoral Congress

INEQUALITY NOTED

Mayor MacBride of Brantford Refers to 'Bonusing' of Cities

Brantford, Ont., Mar. 5.—(CP)—Relief maximum allotments, unemployment as a "national emergency", hospitalization, relief residence rules, income tax, general taxation problems, highway levies, health insurance, minimum wage regulations, housing, Grand river conservation, slot machines, education and social service were among the subjects covered by resolutions tabled today by the three major committees of the conference of Ontario Mayors.

Mayor R. Service presented the report of the committee on relief. Recommendations of this committee on relief maximum allotments was immediately carried without discussion on motion of Mayor D. M. Kennedy, Guelph, seconded by Mayor A. C. Hall, Galt.

Recommendations

The recommendations read:

That while under the prevailing system this Association of Mayors, as a general principle approves the plans of maximum allotments but having regard to the fact that the monthly allotments were only established it recommends that permanent plans be given municipalities to transfer a surplus or deficit over or short of the monthly allotments from month to month.

On motion of Mayor J. Albert Hall, Hamilton, seconded by Mayor J. Gardiner, Niagara-on-the-Lake, it was resolved that "whereas unemployment is a national emergency, be it therefore resolved by this Conference of Mayors directly representing approximately 3,000,000 of the population and more than 70 per cent of the taxes paid, that the Dominion government take over and assume the entire cost of unemployment relief. This association however reaffirms its previous declaration that it is in favor of a process system of relief continues in operation, the government contribution should not in any instance be less than 75 per cent.

Hospitalization Plan Urged

Mayor Robbins, Toronto, and Mayor Wigle, Windsor, supported the view that the present arrangement take over relief and urged inter-provincial conference to that end through the medium of

By Major A. H. Thiessen

How much actual water is there in damp air? Is it as much as one rather; Suppose we have a cubic mile of the land of Ontario filled to 100 per cent. and temperature 60 degrees. How much water on the level would that make? It figures 1.2 inches. It would cover the province, or about 100 feet per acre. Rather heavy rain. It frequently fall in one hour in the north and middle latitudes.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, March 5 (CP)—Pressure is high over the Northwest Territories and the greater part of the Dominion, and relatively low over the Western Provinces. Temperatures have risen in Ontario where there has been fair and mild since last night. Light snow has been reported in many districts from Ontario eastward to the Maritime Provinces.

Lake Superior—Mostly fair and becoming milder tonight and Saturday.

ONTARIO MAYORS BACK MINIMUM WAGE LEGISLATION

Labor Fears Minimum Wage Paid Will Become Maximum

Brantford, Ont., March 5—(CP) The Ontario Mayors Association today unanimously approved a motion to telegraph Premier Mitchell Hepburn and his government supporting the province's new minimum wage legislation, establishment of a minimum wage for men.

Toronto, March 5.—(CP) Powers given the Industry and Labor Board in establishing minimum wages for Ontario workers were set forth in the Minimum Wages Act, 1937, printed today. The Bill to provide, for which it was introduced in the Legislature yesterday by Hon. Duncan McArthur, Minister of Labor.

The Industry and Labor Board is to be set up under legislation previously introduced. The Minimum Wages Act, 1937, will designate to the Board authority to establish minimum rates of wages for all employees and generally to enact such legislation with respect to conditions of employment as may be deemed necessary. For the "protection, moral and, intellectual well being of employees."

Toronto, March 5.—(CP)—Maximum number of hours of labor for which Ontario workers may receive minimum weekly wage for male workers were set forth today in the Minimum Wages Act, 1937, introduced in the Legislature yesterday by Hon. Duncan McArthur, Minister of Labor.

The Maximum work weeks for which minimum wages shall apply will be: forty eight hours in municipalities having a population of more than 50,000; 50 hours

ICE ENDANGERS FISHERMEN'S HUTS

Sand Bar Blocks Ice at Mouth of Niagara River

St. Catharines, Ont., March 5—(CP)—Huge quantities of ice, drifting down the Niagara River have been blocked by a sand bar just east of the mouth of the river at Niagara on the Lake, and threatened fishermen's huts and the U. S. S. Gwendolen in the town. The bar has already piled up nearly to Queenston, more than three miles from the lake.

A serious situation would arise if the ice below the falls broke and went down the river. Riverman said the situation was similar to that in 1909 when great destruction was wrought on both sides of the river.

9 ESCAPE FROM BURNING SHOP

Mother Wrenches Ankle When Carrying Child to Safety

Toronto, March 5—(CP)— Nine persons, including three children were forced out by smoke early today when fire, caused by an overheated vulcanizing machine, gutted the interior of a three-storey shop and spread to an adjoining restaurant and dwelling of Mrs. Mary Minzi. Damage was set at $3,000 to the building and $600 to the contents.

Mrs. Antonio Minisi, wife of the restaurant owner, slipped on the stairway injuring her four-year-old son, Bernard, to safety, and wrenched her ankle. The child was unharmed. Five others, eight and her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Minzi, reached the street unaided, although the elderly man was partly overcome by smoke.

Abe Minzi, brother of Antonio, his wife and four-year-old son, Morris, also escaped from the building.

London, March 5.—(AP)—Military experts today stressed the fallacy in Hitler's claim of the most efficient of modern weapons in the attacking Spanish battleship fleet.

The balloon barrage consists of a series of kite balloons which support steel cables. From the cables hang explosive charges.

Any contact with these wires, however slight, it said is enough to wreck an airplane or cause a shot to lose control of his machine.

The idea was tested, with success, at Paris during the Great War.

Ottawa, March 5.—(CP)—Great Britain proposed to spend $82,500,000 (£415,500,000) on Air Defence in 1937. This is £31,500,000 ($157,500,000) over 1936. The increase is almost double the total capital expenditure of £16,091,000 in 1928.

EXPRESSES VIEW CROSLEY IS SANE

Accused Man Very Nervous While Doctor is Cross-Examined

Kingston, Ont., March 5 (CP)—All the evidence in the Crosley murder trial was concluded today with the completion of the cross-examination of Dr. R. S. Tennant, of Brockville, that witness called in rebuttal by C. L. Snyder, Crown prosecutor, K.C., and by H. C. Hall, K.C., counsel for the negro convict of the murder-inquest. Tennant, a son-in-law of Guard John McCormick was to address the jury when court reconvened this morning.

Doctor on Stand

In cross-examination Dr. Tennant said he thought Crosley was faking because a man suffering from an overdosage of barbital would not do what he did according to Crosley's condition at present. Dr. Tennant said the accused was not in good condition. He heard a .06 about what was going on. He considered Dr. Crowley might see walk properly and was possibly under the influence of barbital.

Kingston, Ont., March 5 (CP)—Cross examination of Dr. C. E. Tennant, was carried out in the Crosley murder trial today by W. F. Nickle, K.C., the indication being that Dr. Tennant would be the last witness in the case.

To Mr. Nickle, Dr. Tennant reiterated his previous statement that he believed Crosley to be sane.

At the juncture Crosley got to his feet and addressed the court, demanding that Justice MacKay read a paper he had prepared.

"Wants to Die, and to Speak"

"I want to die, but I want to speak," cried the accused. He was finally persuaded by the judge and counsel to sit down, but got up in a few minutes he broke out in a few incoherent words to the effect to Crown Prosecutor C. Snyder.

Dr. Tennant continued that he would not challenge the statements of Dr. Wylie and Dr. Ross, though he differed with them. He added he ted that Crosley's whole life had been filled with violence, but he held that he was possessed of a definite-ly diminished will power. Crosley's actions in the penitentiary indicated a lack of desire to co-operate.

Signs of Nervousness

While Dr. Tennant was being cross-examined, Crosley seemed more nervousness than at any time during the trial. Dr. Wylie sat near the prisoner, holding his hands and quieting him.

The witness went over the record of Crosley at the penitentiary, to some minutes of conversations, questions of ephedrine and barbotol and the effects of these drugs, the taking of nine drams of bromidia to Crosley since yesterday morning's heavy dosage.

Crosley started to talk again and Justice MacKay ordered that Dr. Wylie move away from him. Re-marking that the accused acted better from him, remarking that the actor when by himself.

38 MILLIONS LOST BY RAILWAYS IN TRUCK COMPETITION

Ottawa, March 5.—(CP)—Canadian railways lost $38,000,000 in 1936, attributable, to competition from trucks, Hon. Clarence Decatur Howe, Canadian National Railways Commissioner, told the Senate Railways Committee yesterday as it strove to reach a decision on Transport Bill.

Trucks competed with railways "up to hauls of 1,000 and 2,000 miles," Mr. Howe said. He specified shipments of grain from Winnipeg to New York City.

The Bill would give nearly loss to railways from truck and bus competition from provinces more than 16 per cent of the total freight traffic and was from all highway traffic, except local agricultural and international.

He endorsed the clause of the Transport Bill which would give a Federal Board of Railways Commissioner, Dominion and international highways traffic because he felt it would provide uniformity of regulation.

The Bill would authorize a new Board of Transport Commissioners, to replace the present Board of Railways Commissioners, to regulate certain forms of rail, air, water and highway traffic.

Transport Minister Howe defended the Bill and urged its passage to obtain stabilization of the transportation industry in Canada in the public interest as well as of those engaged in transportation.

Premier Blum Announces Free Gold Market to Ease Financial Situation

Stabilization of Franc Not Mentioned in Communique

START ON MONDAY

No New Credits Will be Asked of Parliament

Paris, March 5.—(AP)—Premier Leon Blum's Socialist Government bolstered uncertain French finances today by lifting the ban on Domestic Gold Trading promised drastic curtailment of public expenditures and urged "every Frenchman" to support the National Defence Loan—"the only one which the Treasury will issue during the course of the year."

Lifting of the ban on gold for home trading will be effective Monday.

Must Pay Francs

To revive confidence, parliamentary circles said the Government necessarily must pay the franc, at least unofficially.

Financial circles expected the Bank of France, with the backing of the treasury and under the Tri-Partite agreement among France, Great Britain and the United States, to keep the franc to 21.50 to the United States dollar, approximately the present market rate.

Parliamentary circles thought 11 year Finance Minister Vincent Auriol, Minister of Finance, would seek to pay the franc 21.84, a slightly lower rate, in order to aid foreign trade and prevent further strain on French finances.

Premier Pleads

In a trio of measures which received the entire support of the deficit-ridden account sheet, Premier Blum proclaimed a twenty-year revision in his financial policy.

A disturbing hidden cloud in the premier pronouncements, however, was the failure to mention a national conference of Finance Ministers of Britain, France and the United States, to which Premier Blum had looked for support.

Premier Blum pleaded for the cooperation of every Frenchman in the struggle to save the franc.

J. O. Herity Gives Address on "Competition and Co-operation"

Classifying Life insurance business as the "greatest co-operative enterprise organized through commerce," Mr. J. O. Herity, Industrial commissioner, and Manager of the local Chamber of Commerce gave a highly entertaining address before members of the Belleville Life Underwriters Association in the Y.M.C.A. recently.

Taking as his theme "Competition and Co-operation", the speaker gave some very interesting conclusions and impressions of the underwriter as viewed by the customer. He mentioned that he was very much impressed by a phrase taken from Mr. O'Leary's speech classifying Life Insurance as the greatest co-operative movement in the world, co-operation of customer and salesman.

Illustrating how nature has taught humans that to progress they must co-operate, Mr. Herity said the bee is a good teacher, he said, working with others accomplished that which would be impossible if working alone.

High Standard

Mr. Herity paid a fine tribute to the Life Underwriters Association, and the work it is doing to foster the proper co-operative spirit, and maintain a high standard of ethics in the Life Insurance business. He classed the Insurance man's business as Christian, or religious work which was eliminating misery for widows and orphans in "this great co-operative movement of Organized Benevolence."

In conclusion, the speaker remarked on the fine record he had made in his lifetime in the attitude of the public expressed toward Life Insurance which reflected in the total of insurance in force in this country,—now grown to over seven billion dollars.

Mr. G. R. McIlMeran, on behalf of the Association, moved a vote of thanks to the speaker. Other highlights of the meeting were the approval of those present of the resolution that regular meetings would be held on the fourth Friday of each month and the adding of Thursday, March 18th as the date, when the local Association would be hosts to the Kingston organization.

Among those present were the following members: Messrs G. H. Bray; R. W. Dowsley, Jr.; Wm. O. H. McIlMeran; A. Izard; J. J. Whelan; H. M. Jones; G. S. Joyce; R. Smith; Floyd Robbins; Wm. McClure; J. A. Barclay; V. O. Wait and W. Lawrence.

PAIR ARE BOUND TO KEEP PEACE

Assault Case in Huntingdon Laid Over For One Month

John Marcels and Abraham Marcade, both of Point Ame, were bound over to keep the peace, the former receiving a fine and costs, suspended sentence following the evidence submitted before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., in today's local police court. Abraham Marcade charged John Marcels with assault causing actual bodily harm. The evidence submitted by both parties proved conflicting and of a contradictory nature, each accusing the other of the alleged assault. His Worship solved the situation by binding both over to keep the peace, however, as there had doubtless been bad feeling prevailing between the two parties.

Constable Beckwith, the arresting officer pleaded guilty to a charge of permitting a motor vehicle to operate truck with defective brakes, the offence having occurred when he was attached by Traffic Officer Sam Ervine, who investigated. A fine of $10 and costs was paid forthwith.

Hector Wright, Huntingdon, appeared charged with assaulting Thomas Lowry, a neighbor and causing him actual bodily harm. The complainant, Young, through his legal counsellor S. B. Powell, local barrister, explained to the court that after considering the matter the case would not be available today. Crown Attorney S. C. Donnan meeting the situation with the suggestion it be enlarged for one month, and if seemingly satisfied Incidentally Mr. S. L. Howell will conduct the prosecution in the Belleville police court for the next few weeks.

Myles Lucas, Point Anne, pleaded guilty to the operation of his auto mobile, when not equipped with 1937 license plates and also to the charge of a possession of liquor from a private garage in Sidney. There has been a marked epidemic of gasoline stealing in Tyendinaga and Thurlow of late, and he was instructed and this has got to stop," pointed out Mr. Donnan.

A fine of $100 and costs was imposed in the matter of operating the vehicle with last year's license markers and a three months suspended sentence received on the theft count. Mr. Lucas' operator's license was declared null and void for the matter of three months, he being instructed not to drive a motor vehicle during that period. "We cannot confiscate his 1937 driver's license because he hasn't one," explained Mr. Donnan.

LITTLE FELLOW NOT WORRIED ABOUT SHOW

The show was over. People had slowly filed out of the theatre to their way home. Theatre attendants, prior to extinguishing the lights, made the nightly inspection of seat rows to see if anything of interest had been left or lost by patrons.

Suddenly one of them paused. He then slowly reached a finger at a pair of legs protruding from the end seat of one of the rows. Full lights flashed on in the auditorium. Others walked to the row from which the legs protruded. Then they smiled. Sound asleep with his head pillowed on the arm of the seat, lay a grimy-faced little fellow.

His cap was pulled at a ludicrous angle over one eye. He yawned, stretched himself, opened sleepy eyes, and as an attendant picked him up carried him to the exit, promptly subsided into deep sleep under again.

FIVE TRANSIENTS SENT 'UP ON HILL'

Nine transients, all of whom were apprehended in Belleville by Chief Wm. Ovide Shaw, but authorities later stated he was in no way connected with the matter, were charged with one or five days in order to raise the necessary fine after being brought up to a charge of intoxication. His report was "drunk."

Charged with common vagrancy a transient giving the name of James Mahoney asked for time to get out of town, "This man was intoxicated and was found in a local session of some goods identified as having been stolen from a local department store," interrupted Crown Attorney S. C. Donnan, K.C., after conferring with Chief Kidd.

"How is it that so many transients come to Belleville? Can't something be done to prevent this continual appearance here?" interrupted His Worship in the matter in question.

"Your Worship, that is exactly why we are remanding up these men. We are trying to discourage them from coming to Belleville by giving them a long remand," informed Chief Kidd. "Five, 15 days to the Jail Farm on Next case," replied His Worship.

Four other members of the alleged transient crowd were also arraigned before from 10 to 15 days after being found guilty, the latter receiving some protesting loudly as to the decision and promising never to darken the portals of the city's gates if released from custody.

Others pleadings were in vain.

POLICE BLOTTER

Police last night were searching for a middle aged man, who, it was reported to have stolen a windbreaker from a Brock Street residence. The man in question was described as being 35 to 40 years of age, standing about five feet seven or eight inches tall and was carrying a bag. Police department procured a night's lodging in Mrs. Keen's rooming house on Brock Street on Wednesday night. Upon rising early Thursday left the house allegedly in possession of a heavy windbreaker, one pair of gloves and two tooth brushes. Transient jungles were searched for his whereabouts, but without results.

A teen-aged boy was caught by the management of the Capitol Theatre in the act of stealing paper cups from the rest room of the theatre yesterday. He was turned over to the police and after being warned to stay away from the building in the future, was allowed to go home.

Sergeant Thos. Moore of the R.C.M.P. district headquarters, Brockville, was in the city today investigating reported discrepancies in this city.

A motor accident was reported to the police by a motorist last night. Mr. Wood informed the authorities his automobile had been struck by another motor car, that driver of the latter machine, which failed to stop. Later police apprehended Lauriston Hollcroft, Tweed, who today pleaded guilty of failing to allow an oncoming motor vehicle one-half of the highway contrary to the H.T.A. "There was no great damage done, only a few of the paint being scraped off Mr. Wood's car," pleaded L.D. Corcoran, Tweed barrister, who appeared on behalf of the accused. A fine of three dollars and costs was paid.

Nine transients were given warm sleeping quarters at the police station last night.

Mrs. Yatcher completely taken by surprise, the recipient replied in a few well-chosen words, thanking them for the gift, and expressing her appreciation for the Young People for their loyal support, and wishing them every success in the future. Mrs. Yatcher with Miss Noble spent many happy hours spent together, and we feel sure that in leaving such a jolly group of willing workers. All joined heartily in singing "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" and the meeting closed with the National.

They will be greatly missed by the community. (Contributed)

WANTED RADIO JAILED ALSO

Arrives For 10-Day Term With Radio, Deck of Cards and Checker Board—Jailer Bans Radio

Windsor, N. S. (CP) —And imagine his amazement when the jailer refused to let him take his radio into the cell to amuse him during the 10-day term.

Convicted on an assault charge, the lumberjack brought his radio, checker board and pack of playing cards with him.

Jailer George Cochrane said he was surprised—and more so when the prisoner said he was amazed anyone should want to interfere with his enjoyment during the 10-day term.

The jail warden banned the radio —but prisoner appealed to Sheriff C. D. Currie. The sheriff backed up the jailer.

DON'T SAY "SMITH" TO PORT OFFICIALS

But it Wasn't All The Lady's Fault That all The Men Lost Half-Holiday

Saint John, N.B. (CP)— Miss John Smith is usually an inconvenient name but it will be long remembered by local port officials.

She arrived in port on a Saturday afternoon. And she was the only passenger to disembark during that time. And Saturday afternoon is usually a half-holiday for the officials.

But this time it was just another afternoon for customs, immigration, steamship and medical men. The solitary passenger on the S. S. Calvin Ellen necessitated operation of the same port machinery as would be needed if thousands of passengers arrived.

First the port doctor visited the Calvinglen. Then the customs and immigration men went aboard. The steamship agents followed.

There was no overtime pay for the port officials. Saturday afternoon is only a half-holiday when circumstances permit.

Miss Smith, born in Montreal, has lived in Edinburgh since her marriage to an officer on a sister ship of the Calvinglen. Her husband sent a motor boat to the anchored Calvinglen, and Miss Smith came ashore to help her catch the four o'clock train to Montreal.

And the holiday habit for the valied three hours for the next one.

FEARS OF 'EMPTY' EMPIRE

The dangers of an empty Empire were stressed by the Bishop of London, on Wednesday in the House of Lords. What is needed is ten million more Britishers, he declared, as he pointed out the risk of the Empire not remaining British.

What he said of the need of a larger population in Canada is something which has given and is giving Canadians concern. Sooner or later the ten million of Canadians even with the natural growth will be too few to occupy this large country. The immigration question is one of many possible implications.

If there is immigration it of course should be so predominantly British or very like British as will leave no doubt of the perpetuity of British ideals in the Dominion. Essentially this is, is pointed out in the speech of the Bishop of London who said that in Edmonton thirty languages are spoken. There are those of other races, who will make good British subjects, from the start and become strong defenders of British ideals, as the result of immigration from some of the northern countries indicates.

The danger to the Empire of wide open spaces with too small a population was acknowledged by Earl Strathcona, first Commissioner of Works, who said it was for the Dominions to say when immigration was possible without increasing unemployment. Therein lies the issue.

Discussion of armaments and the questions of defence make this subject peculiarly gripping at this time.

CAR ACCIDENTS ANALYZED

A chart of the six year accident record on Ontario highways, issued by the Ontario Department of Highways, shows how 3608 deaths were caused as a result of accidents in that period 42.4 per cent were in collisions with pedestrians, 15.5 per cent resulted from collisions with other motorcars, 8.8 per cent were in collisions with fixed objects, 5.2 per cent bicycle riders, 13 per cent non-collision, and 15.8 other types.

These years 51,779 persons were injured; in collision with pedestrian 32.9 per cent; other auto 34.8; fixed objects 7.4 per cent; bicycle 8.4 per cent; non-collision 8.9 per cent; and other types 7.6 per cent.

One of the most striking facts is revealed in another diagram. The hour from five to six p. m. is the hour of the greatest number of accidents, nearly ten per cent of the total. From that hour by gradual decrement hour by hour the accidents diminish (with one exception) until the lowest rate is reached from at four to six o'clock in the morning. Thence it is a fairly steady climb up to the peak of the day in the afternoon.

Saturday claims most accidents, twenty per cent, Friday 18 next, then Sunday, Monday, Thursday, and Tuesday and Wednesday the latter two being lowest. The average across the week is fairly even outside of Saturday.

Male drivers in fatal accidents number 93.6 per cent and in bil accidents 94.8 per cent.

Actions of pedestrians are responsible for the following percentages of fatal accidents:—crossing at intersection 10.3, crossing intersection with signal, 0.8, playing in street 20.2, walking on road highway, 17.8; crossing rural highway 10.2; coming from behind other vehicle 8.0; crossing between intersections, against signals and diagonally at intersections 22.7; miscellaneous 10.2.

Daylight accounts for 50.9 per cent of fatal accidents, dusk 6.9; and dark 42.2.

The age group 25 to 40 had most accidents 44.7 per cent of them.

Action of drivers in fatal accidents were classified as follows: driving too fast 36.9 per cent; on wrong side of the road 19.9; did not have the right of way 6.2; drove off roadway 29.5, miscellaneous 7.5.

Operating experience records show that in fatal accidents drivers with experience of five years and over had 78.4 per cent of the accidents, drivers with one to four years 18.4 and of less than one year 3.2 per cent. Records for all accidents in this classification showed the same percentage for the older driver and three per cent drivers with less than one year's experience.

Like a morning dream, life becomes more and more bright the longer we live, and the reason of everything appears more clear. What has puzzled us before seems less mysterious, and the crooked paths look straight, or as we approach the end.—Richter.

As for the just and noble idea, that notions, as well, as individuals, are parts of one wondrous whole, it has hardly passed the lips or pen of any but religious men and poets. It is the one great principle of the greatest religion which has ever nourished the morals of mankind.—Harriet Martineau.

MIRROR LAKE—FLORIDA

A sparkling jewel rare it lies
Upon the Southland's breast,
Bringing to beauty-loving eyes
A sense of peace and rest;
Here water-fowl a refuge find,
It's placid depths explore
Or lured by gifts from human kind
Come boldly to the shore.

And here the silver moon at night
Sends showers of diamonds down,
And from the shore the gleaming lights
Of ere its blue field are sown;
Reflected in its depths, behold
Like living gems they shine,
Within a sea of blue and gold
Begirt by palm and pine.

And musing by this limpid lake
On wings of thought I fly,
Again my wandering eye I take
Beneath a northern sky;
And by its placid waters blue
Beneath a maple tree,
My inward-eye takes to the view
Of days that used to be.

QUODDY VILLAGE IS A MODEL COMMUNITY IN MAINE, owing its origin to the desire of certain politicians to get some government money for Maine while the big nation-wide spending orgy for employment relief was under way. Some downeast Yankees sold President Roosevelt the idea that the power contained in the rise and fall of the ocean tides could be harnessed to furnish enough power to drive all the wheels of industry East of Albany. Some five million dollars was allotted for spending money for the big show, including a million dollar model community for the executive officers to live and move and have their parties. Army engineers were put in charge of the project but Congress soon got tired of voting money for such a chimerical project and the lights of Quoddy dimmed as the gay and sporty engineering colony moved out because the government itself refused to walk on and payday was no more. The enormous quoddy tidal power project passed out of the picture leaving a model village and many great hopes laid low. Now the model village and works, as far as developed, have been taken over by the National Youth Administration, another branch of the many limbed alphabetical tree growing out of the President's desire to help everybody to a day's work, three square meals a day and a decent place to sleep. Passamaquoddy has passed but Quoddy Model Village goes on — perhaps forever.

SOME FISHERMEN CAN'T FISH UNLESS THEY HAVE A GOOD SUPPLY OF BAIT IN BOTTLES, and so an advertisement in the Fort Lauderdale, Florida, offering prizes of bottles of rum for contestants in the "Rum Fish Derby" sounds good but not awful. The advertisement is sponsored by a liquor selling concern and offers one bottle of Ronico Rum to the fisherman catching the biggest sailfish. A weekly prize of one quart of rum is given the captain of the boat catching the biggest sailfish. For Saturday a special prize of one quart of gin is given the fisherman catching the biggest Barracuda. Sunday is beer day with a case of beer to the fisherman catching the biggest Kingfish. Prizes to be decided according to Anglers' Association rules. It is presumed that this is tourist fishing, not commercial.

KNOW WHAT TO SAY AND MAKE IT BRIEF. Loquacity is a pretty thief. Long-winded talk is so unjust; talk to the point if talk you must. Talk less and less, not more and more; a wagging tongue is such a bore. So soliloquizes Grenville Kleiser, a more or less recognized authority on perfect diction. Few people can make long talks interesting but most folks can get an audience and hold it agreeably entertained with short talks. The secret is to know the subject thoroughly and then boil it down to the smallest compass possible within the limitations of the English language.

Owing to the prevailing storm the proposed march out through Front and other streets was abandoned. Many ladies of the Belleville Khaki Club were present and the soldier boys remembered with a supply of oranges and cigarettes. Col. Too Much Education

Under the above caption there appeared in the Belleville Intelligencer issue of Thursday, February 25th, a letter to organizer Mr. Jamieson. Some of his critical presentation of the case and his fearless pointing out many of the defects of our system.

As one who has had more than forty years of experience in Educational work, as a Principal in Graded and Continuation Schools, and a teacher of Mathematics in the large Collegiate and Vocational School, as a Public School Inspector, as Superintendent of the School for the Deaf and as a member of the Ontario Legislature, perhaps I be permitted to comment on some of the criticisms of the writer of the article and to offer a few constructive suggestions.

In his first paragraph he refers to the mass psychology which has become prevalent in Russia, Italy and Germany, and to Republicanism rather than to think for themselves. With this I most heartily agree. Our methods of teaching do not lead the children to think for themselves. They must accept the ideas, politics, religious beliefs and prejudices of their parents in the first place, and when they go to school, those of the teachers which are directed through the authorized text books and the Regulations from the Department of Education. In this way the "mass" is unified in its way of thinking.

With the ideas expressed in the next paragraph I am entirely in accord. The so-called Education that has been dished up is for the most part superficial to be absorbed and then reproduced on the quarterly examination. If a person marks out his task tained to get a certificate the whole work goes into the discard to make room for something else equally as useless.

The reference to fine grown up boys not being able to secure a job is as we all know unfortunately too true, and while some of the blame may be due to their inability to function the work that would enable them to make a living. Why do these concerns require them to have a matriculation certificate obtained by passing an examination by a bunch of old book worms? I am of the opinion that employers have fixed on the wrong standard and expect their applicants to have certificates that are of no practical use for the work they expect them to do.

As to the cost we all agree that it is exorbitant, but when one attempts to make changes that will make the school life a part of the real life there are set up in the whirlwind?

Let me tell you from experience Mr. Bone that it is not the long-haired, muddle-headed students that the "fond parents" back home who demand that their children be taught as they were taught in the good old days and woe to the teacher who dares to teach with any new fangled common sense natural methods. These were the methods employed by the celebrities, Crooks, McDonald & Lincoln. They learned to know by putting everything to the test of experience doing it for themselves.

I congratulate Mr. Bone on his wonderful appeal on behalf of the boy but I fear the modern Idea of Education is based largely on the traditions handed down to us by other countries. It is hard to break with the past. Those who attempt to do so are treated with contempt. Inspectors are considered queer and kindred socialistic communistic and other evil names.

What do we mean by Education? It is very difficult to define but the very word itself gives us a clue. Education is the training of those mental habits or faculties that enables a person to meet adjustments in life and to be adjusted to his environment, means that your faculties have been developed and trained so that you can function for your own satisfaction and your own satisfaction. All the indicates that Education has to do some sort of training. In view of these points can we say that there is anything lacking defects in our system and, having discovered these try to work out some remedies.

I think we will all admit that our Public Schools and High Schools Educational Methods have not kept pace with modern requirements of Science — such as Experimental Science, Manual Training, Domestic Science, Communications.

All of these are sponsored to a certain extent by the Ontario Government. At the head of the Department of Education we have a Doctor who has had experience in Medicine, Surgery, the Ministry of Health, and he has with him a staff of experts.

Similarly the Department of Transportation there is an Engineer who has charge of the Engineering Work. In Agriculture a trained Agriculturist and so for each of the Departments under the Minister of Education.

The Department the Minister has been chosen from almost every occupation except the one most important in Educational who knows the system from the kindergarten to the higher grades of the Secondary system.

The same may be said with respect to the Deputy — A journalist or a University Professor who has not had the sufficient practical experience to direct the teaching of Kindergarten and Public Schools. The emphasis thus being placed on the accumulation of knowledge rather than the methods by which these facts are assimilated.

Then the Public School Inspectors, the Assistant Standing is given the preference over professional training.

The result is that the training received by our teachers is very largely acquired through long years of experiments on unfortunate children who do their reach any degree of efficiency.

Then the Department fixes a rigid "Course of Study" and authorizes text books based on this course. The unfortunate teachers must follow these or suffer the consequences. The courses are so extensive that even if the teacher wishes to use the initiative and has time to do so she has not time left to try it out.

I think when Mr. Bone refers to teachers as drawing good salaries, he is rather misinformed as very few of them receive salaries in keeping with the qualifications they possess or the character of the work they are engaged. With most of them the acquisition of real estate is out of the realm of possibility and when some of them do buy they generally find out how foolish they were as the powers that be take advantage of them to remove their cheap property and sell out altogether, and their property has to be sold at a sacrifice.

Many of the best talents and point out flaws and defects but unless remedies are suggested they are only wasting our time and that of those who read the "letters."

In the last 70 years no important educational improvement has been made in the Public School System. Our ideal has been based on competition, and from the time the child enters school it is ground into him that he must beat the "other fellow." The result has been to develop a spirit of selfishness that cannot be eradicated during the rest of his life.

The system as it exists today was brought to "perfection" by the Hon. G. W. Ross in the early part of the Worlds Fair held in Chicago in 1893 there was a demonstration of the various methods of Education used in many of the countries of the world. Ontario had a very elaborate display and won the highest award. The Minister of Education in describing the display the whole Course was one of competition, beginning with the Kindergarten and advancing step by step through the various grades.

With some slight modification the same may be said of our system today. Ontario has a very glaring defects in our system and, having discovered these try to work out some remedies.

1. The Public School Course should be completed much more efficiently in from one to two years less time.

2. The pupils would have a much greater interest in the work they are doing as they are learning "to do by doing."

3. They would be brought into much closer fellowship with what they would develop the social side of their character.

4. They would have a working understanding of the basic principles of society and would be led into the larger sphere with greater confidence and with a desire to be useful citizens rather than with the idea that the object of life is to get ahead of the other fellow, at the expense of the other fellow. In other words their training would be such as to give them the impression that when they leave school their education has just begun.

Little Benny's Note Book

After school I stopped at the firehouse to tawk to Mr. Riley about different subjects such as his experiences in the war, the scarlet fever you really feel mad at everybody the same way, sords me, as there was no love lost, the saying goes. To begin with there was something about his face I didn't like, I dont know what, exactly, unless maybe it was the general arrangement of the features, but the feeling didn't become really personal till I saw him aiming his scarcone at me when there were a dozen other men around that he could of aimed at instead, Mr Riley said.

O, did he stab you? I said, and Mr. Riley said, No, I outwitted him. I tried out Schnee die Engst, wich is German for Look at the birdie, and while he was looking up in the air one men took his petioner. He never forgave me. He claimed it was underhand, unsportsmanlike warfare. Well, after the war he moved over here and became a citizen of this country, and one day I seen my hooked nosed older crew to a berning house and whose house was it but his same chapie, how's that for a coincidents? Mr. Riley said.

I bet he was glad to see you that time, I said, and Mr. Riley said, On the contrary, he was still so angry with me he refused to let me help to put out his fire, or any of the other men either, but nothing I could do about it, because he was protected by the law to put it down in writing and sine his name to it, and I substituted. He never forget that name, and he stood there crossing with revenge at the site of me standing there biting my nales with vexation while I watched his house burn down before my very eyes, and it wasn't even insured. Well, maybe I got even with him some time, and now I've got a little polishing to do, Mr. Riley said.

Sniffs at Egg Batter For Frying Chicken

Alabama Expert Disagrees With Governor's Wives on Dixie Delicacy

Auburn, Ala. (AP)—Bacon grease, buttermilk and egg batter may be great in their place for serving to Dixie Governors in the contrary notwithstanding—ther have no place in the art of frying chicken, a la deep South.

That was the last word of Miss Dana Gatchell, faculty expert on food preparation, at Alabama Polytechnic Institute, as she had her say and dusted for cover.

Miss Gatchell's method of dipping chicken in buttermilk or frying it in bacon grease, it destroys the characteristic flavor of fried chicken, and she has entered the entrant into the controversy over the best method of frying chicken started by Governors' wives.

The buttermilk idea was advanced by Mrs. B. B. Bibb, wife of the Governor of Governor, while the bacon grease theory was advanced by Mrs. George C. Peery, Virginia's First Lady.

The egg batter business came from Baton Rouge, home of Mrs. Huey P. Long, wife of the Louisiana Governor.

Miss Gatchell lifted her hands in horror at recipes that called for dipping chicken in buttermilk, chicken, or for soaking the chicken in cold water.

"Why," she explained, "extracts the meat juices which are the very essence of delicious, tender, fried chicken."

With that preamble, Miss Gatchell laid down her recipe for real deep South fried chicken:

"Take a well-seasoned fryer of not more than two pounds and dress carefully so the skin will be attractive. Place, without salting, in a paper bag with flour in the proportion of one to four.

"Shake ready for the chicken, first salt and pepper to the flour in which the chicken is to be fried.

"Don't attempt to guess the temperature of the fat in which the chicken is to be fried: use a deep-fat frying thermometer and be sure the fat which must have a high melting point, is heated to 375 degrees Fahrenheit.

That point driven home, here's the recipe for the batter:

"Use enough lard to cover the chicken, and when it becomes hot to a golden brown. Then remove the pieces and allow to drain on unglazed paper: this absorbs excess lard."

AT THE CAPITOL

"Three Smart Girls"

For months the people of this country have been enchanted by the golden soprano notes of Deanna Durbin, who has won stardom over the national networks on Eddie Cantor's radio program.

Now the people of this city will be able to see the beauty of this 15 year old girl and hear her sing too, when she graces her screen debut in the comedy drama, "Three Smart Girls", now at the Capitol until Saturday nite at no increase in prices.

This motion picture sets forth the dramatic adventures of three young girls intent on saving their father from the ruinous international beauty, who wants to marry him only for his wealth. There is a comedy of errors, based on mistaken identity, which adds to the hilarious proceedings.

Just to make the film even more interesting, there is a thrilling romance woven into the narrative. The plague is brightly amusing, the situations get funnier by the minute and the songs will steal your heart away.

The ravishing Binnie Barnes plays the mistress of ceremonies, Alice Brady is seen as her schemming mother, Ray Milland helps the "Three Smart Girls" prevent their marriage and wins the heart of one of the sisters, played by Barbara Read. Charles Winninger is the irascible father and Franklin Pangborn is the youngest daughter. The other one is portrayed by Nan Grey, who is whirled into a romance with the latter.

Mischa Auer is prominently cast. "Three Smart Girls" is a picture to take your friends to see. It is excellent entertainment.

AT THE BELLE

"Bengal Tiger", Circus Drama

"Bengal Tiger" a Warner Bros. picturization of actual circus life and people, comes to the Bells Theatre, tomorrow and Monday, matinee daily. It is said to be powerful drama, full of love and thrills, simple and touching in its unusual romance, appealing to warm hearts everywhere.

Packed with adventure and excitement as well as romance, it is the kind of drama that touches the heart chords of men, women and children alike.

The setting in which most of the plot takes place, is a real circus, inside and outside the big top, the special train and winter quarters, the side shows and scrimmy tent. Much of the drama centres around the cage in which the wild animals are chartered, trained and exhibited. Real acrobats, aerialists, riders, clowns and animal trainers famed in circus life, appear throughout the picture.

Just as the big people is the glimpse the story gives of their lives, is work and away from it, day and night, winter and summer, a cross section of the real existence of the colorful clan that entertains the world in the big tents.

Big, hard-bitten Barton MacLane, circus manager and many a gangster film, plays a sympathetic heroic role in this picture, just as a fearless animal trainer. Reckless in his daring, he is finally clawed one of the tigers and is saved from death only by the prompt action of his assistant who loses his own life in rescuing him.

Back on the job, minus a leg, he looks up his assistant's daughter and finds her in grave trouble and in jail. He obtains her freedom and marries her. Judy June Travis plays the role of the assistant trainer's daughter, who marries the animal trainer, not because she loves him, but out of gratitude for what he has done for her.

But youth turns to youth and she falls in love with the aerialist who is the pet of her husband's fight against their emotions, however and the aerialist, a part played by Warren Hull, decides to leave the circus because he cannot conquer his love.

In saying goodbye to his friend's wife, the two break and embrace just as the husband enters the room. Thinking his friend has double crossed him, he knocks him out and drags him to the cage of the savage tiger. The events that follow are found of engrossing interest, and to reveal here would spoil the spectator's enjoyment of this 1937's outstanding film.

Bargle on My Knee

A drama with music, deftly relieved by comedy and enlivened by several new song hits, combine to make "Bargle on My Knee" a companion feature on the same program, a hit musical comedy-drama, a story that is distinctly different in theme and plot construction, and the sum total is something new in movie entertainment. The splendid cast include Barbara Stanwyck, Joel McCrea, Helen Westley, Buddy Ebsen, Walter Brennan and Katharine DeMille. The Belle News of the Day, will be presented on the same program. On Saturday matinee the new adventure of the "Undersea Kingdom" will be exhibited.

Charlie Ruggles and Alice Brady are featured in "Mr'd Your Own Business' a delightful domestic comedy packed with wholesomeness fun. An entertaining program of features are also introduced.

YOUR CHILD'S SUCCESS AT SCHOOL DEPENDS ON GOOD EYESIGHT
Whenever you see a school child wearing glasses you can be sure that his parents are concerned with his health, his comfort, his school standing and his future success.
School days and school environments are arranged for healthy eyes. Children who have defective eyes become disheartened in the attempt to keep up with their fellow students.
Defects never disappear of their own accord. They can only be permanently corrected if taken care of in time. An optometric eye exam by Dr. Edward Sywight Sheslastet, 200 Front Street, will determine both the cause and the remedy for the defect, if such exists.

MUCH IT COSTS THEY WHO WEAR THEIR CORONET

Consider the Barons or Duchess, Their Raiment For King's Crowning Means Spending Lot of Money.

LONDON (CP)—If you were a duke invited to attend the coronation of George VI in Westminster Abbey, you'd have to write out a check for approximately $2,000 for clothes alone. And your wife's bills would be more than double that.

Thousands of pounds will be represented in the ceremonies at the palace and glittering coronets which the titled folk of Britain will wear when they see the monarch crowned.

Heavy prices for robes and uniforms vary widely according to the quality of the materials used, but are but slight differences in the cost of the trimmings which help distinguish peers from their wives and children.

A duke or a marquess, for example, pays about $1,000 for his robe. $1 above the price charged for an earl or a viscount. The earl must pay at least $10 more.

The lowest rank of peeress, the baroness, must set aside at least $400 for the clothes she will need for the Abbey ceremonies. The viscountess, countess, marchioness and duchess each will pay more as the degree of rank goes higher—the duchess will probably totalling more than $2,000. And the gowns and robes bought with this money will be worn only once or twice in a lifetime.

Peeresses' robes must be crimson velvet, or purple velvet if they are widows. They must be trimmed where they wear underneath them must be white, cream, silver and gold, and they must be bawed by wearing mink ermine instead of first quality fur, and they must have the proper length of the correct hand-woven velvet.

Majesty dressmakers, who have been busy for coronation orders for some months, say 17 yards of velvet is needed for a duchess's robe compared with 15 yards for a baroness. The ermine trimming on a duchess's robe is three inches wider than in the peeress of lower degree.

One of the most expensive items of the robes for peeresses are the golden girdle and tassels which cost $100.

Meanwhile, the coronation theme is reappearing in the shops in the clothing. Coronation colors will be incorporated in many of the Easter models. Earle Row predicts, and red and white pin-stripes on a blue background are expected to be popular.

Hats with tiny embroidered crowns and the symbol "G.R. VI." already are in the stores. Designers are experimenting with the litter of the word "Coronation" in various patterns for the very brave.

Pajamas with reproductions of the simple Stage costumes of Shakespeare's time are expected to make their first appearance soon in shops. Girls will be able to buy cut-out materials printed on satin pajamas, each country having its own design. The map of Africa has elephants and ostriches scattered on it, Canada a beaver, and England is represented by a beefeater guarding a Tudor rose.

British Judges Expected to Have Wide Sympathies, Says Lord Hewart

LONDON (CP)—Lord Hewart, the lord chief justice, in a speech at the golden jubilee banquet of the Birmingham and Midland Law Students' association, indulged in a bit of audible sighing over the trials and tribulations of being a judge, but the bit of audible sighing was not as easy as it seemed.

In reaching its exhibit profound and permanent impartiality, He must be at one and the same time a man of unfailing figure—a stranger to the joys and sorrows of mankind, and the sympathetic friend of the world, intimately understanding the emotions and temptations of the human heart," Lord Hewart said.

At one and the same time he must be a miracle of experience, knowledge and sympathy, but he must also be capable at decent intervals of asking such questions as "Who is the prime minister?" and "Who is Oracle Fields?"

Lord Chief Justice said there were many conflicting conditions of various demands on a judge.

ACADEMY AWARDS TO MUNI, RAINER

Golden Statuettes Presented as Gala Affair of Film Colony

Hollywood, Calif., March 5.—(AP) Golden statuettes, the Academy awards for motion picture greatness —and irreverently known as "Oscars"—were proud possessions today of Paul Muni, stage and screen veteran, and Luise Rainer, comparative newcomer from Vienna.

The two highest honors of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences were presented at a gala affair last night attended emmense by the film colony.

Muni's performance in the title role of "The Story of Louis Pasteur", was adjudged the best work done by a motion picture actor in 1936.

Miss Rainer, as glamorous Anna Held in "The Great Ziegfeld", won the prize for actresses.

Critics generally believed Spencer Tracy as the priest in "San Francisco" ran Muni the closest race.

The other three nominations for best actor were Gary Cooper ("Mr. Deeds Goes to Town"), Walter Huston of Toronto, ("Dodsworth") and William Powell, ("My Man Godfrey").

Pitted against Miss Rainer were Irene Dunn in "Theodora Goes Wild", Gladys George in "Valiant is the word for Carrie", Carole Lombard in "My Man Godfrey" and Norma Shearer of Montreal in "Romeo and Juliet".

Frank Capra, whose work is characterized by deft lightness and

LIE DOOMED HIM
Thrice registered from death in the electric chair, Joseph Rappaport, Chicago narcotic peddler, condemned to death for the murder of a police operative, was given a chance for acquittal when Governor Henry Horner, of Illinois permitted use of a lie detector in a last minute effort to decide the man's innocence. The detector failed to save Rappaport. When he replied in the negative to the question "Did you kill Max Dent?" the delicate needle scratched a jagged jump on the graph. Rappaport is shown here and with him the graph record which sealed his doom. He was executed several hours later.

MAYORS TO DEMAND INVESTIGATION OF TAXATION METHODS

Brantford, Ont., March 5.—(CP)—Demand for a complete investigation of taxation methods by a committee of the provincial government has already been launched immediately faced the Ontario Mayors' Association today as they settled down to a general session of discussion was and means of bettering Municipal Government.

"This conference of Mayors will demonstrate that municipal problems are not static," Mayor J. Albert Smith, Kitchener, said in his presidential address yesterday. "They are alive and heavily freighted with strife and no municipality can afford to be indifferent in an effort to obtain relief from these conditions."

New sources of municipal revenue formed the basis of Mayor Smith's address in which he declared overlapping or double taxation made this problem the most serious in municipal administration at present. There was a definite need, he said, for a final determination of federal, provincial and municipal fields of taxation.

"There is a strong feeling at the present time that public opinion will back the appointment of a competent commission to study and report upon the question of taxation defining responsibilities of the federal, provincial and municipal governments and for functions of administration and sharing funds therefor.

"This commission could develop plans for the co-ordination of tax systems and propose methods for their application to this effect: allocate functions between the federal, provincial and municipal governments, collect facts and statistics in respect to tax rates and laws, and make a general and complete survey of governmental functions and expenditures as well as provide up-to-date data."

GETS ANONY MOUS GIFT TO AID MILLAR WILL CLAIM

One of the strangest developments of the bizarre Millar will story came when an unnamed benefactor, identified only as a Toronto lawyer, placed in unidentified sum of money at the disposal of C. R. McKeown, solicitor for Mrs. Pauline Mae Clarke, one of the contenders of her ten children, all born within the ten-year period stipulated in the will, since the courts ruled that only legitimate children can share. The 36-year-old mother, who does not know the name of her benefactor, is pictured here on the steps of her Toronto home with six of her children. The amount of the sum was also not revealed.

Hawks Begin to Hit Stride But too Late to Overtake Other Three Section Teams

Defeat Canadiens 5-3 And Look Good in The Performance

WINGS BEAT RANGERS

Detroit Needs One Point to be Sure of First Place

By A. E. FULFORD

Canadian Press Staff Writer

It's too bad the National Hockey League is not playing a 100-game schedule this season. Chicago Black Hawks might end up the season as champs then. The 48-game stretch is some too short a campaign for Glen Loughlin's men.

Kicked out of it season by the other teams, Hawks are just beginning to hit their best once they have. Now they have run up wins over Rangers, Boston and Montreal.

Rangers might have administered the coup de grace to Hawks last night but the world champion Detroit Red Wings got in the way. Jack Adams' charges turned back the New Yorkers 2-1, halting Rangers' effort to get into the American section second spot over the idle Boston Bruins.

Smith Heads Out

Norm Smith, Detroit goalie, stood out in the win over Rangers and last little drama in the fray will be George Vezina trophy with the best goals-against record in the league. Opposing him last night was Rangers' Dave Kerr who has the second best record.

Counting New York's bone goal last night, only 32 shots have gone by the 36-year-old Toronto lad in Wings' nets. This is eight goals better than Kerr and with only six games left for both teams to play it is likely the Wing netminder will hold the edge.

Smith was particularly good when Rangers staged power plays in the third period—last night in an attempt to even up the score. Cecil Dillon had just driven away to a good start early in the game but Bucko McDonald, Wing defence in the first and Pete Kelly got the winning goal early in the third.

Kerr Weakens

The win left Wings needing only one more point to make sure of first place in the American section and a playoff with Canadiens in the N.H.L. title fray. Rangers or New York-Americans Sunday or Boston fails to beat Rangers that night Wings will be through.

Hawks put on their best Montreal game of the season against Canadiens. They skated the Habitants ragged and their play had more judgment. Canadiens individually saved themselves a bit, and there was considerable lack of heavy bodychecking.

Johnny Gottselig starred for Hawks and played his team mates their win with two first period goals. Wilder Larochelle and Paul Thompson were the other Hawk goal getters. Canadiens offsetting their markers with three by Joe Benoit, Babe Siebert and Paul Haynes. Pep Kelly and Marshall added the other goals in the third.

OLD and NEW

By George M. Carver

Long and loud waxed the argument;...The Boys were whooping it up about the probable abilities of one James J. Braddock and the Midnight Master from Detroit, Joe Louis,...."Who's Braddock ever licked?...wasted the Louis supporter. He won the title from Maxie Baer, when that guy couldn't make the weight,...."You're nuts", comes back the champion's champ Braddock....."Braddock ain't in him like Grant took Richmond with one hand on his pocket, and the other tied behind his back, and reading the funny papers."

o o o

"Oh yeah!" retorts the Louis supporter, "Braddock is finished. Did Louis hasn't'v'....."Pinsky," replied the foe, "if he starts, Braddock took in that modified manner, then they chisel a fifth victim. Baer once led him to the wire, went half-end to end they would say, but Braddock was all over the....And so they argued.

o o o o

Present indications point to Louis being a favorite in the battle with the champion.....For the first time in history the odds-on will be the short end of the odds.....And his popularity prevents the odds-on from being higher on the Sepia slugger.

o o o

Meanwhile Braddock's career in the ring has been just as colorful as that of his challenger....Starting in 1926, and fought successfully until reached the height when he scuttled "Tuffy" Griffiths..... Got scalped a few rounds later when he met Tommy Loughran gave him a boxing lesson.....Even Gob polish his slid down the title ladder, and crashed at the bottom.....Suffered a broken jaw, although he punched well.....Times went from bad to worse, fighting for a living way and finally he got a job as a lifeguard....The story could end here and so was his appeal to the box office, but Braddock came back and finally Braddock went on relief.

o o o

In 1934 Carnera, Mussolini's man-mountain, and Max Baer held the title spotlight.....Baer's right fifths, a promising heavy from Livermore, California, showed class coming fast.....The moguls looking for a set-up contacted Braddock.....Baer was floored and knocked Griffiths kicking.....Braddock took Baer's....Got radio, and exhibition tours, but the gravy hasn't been thick.....Braddock is a nice fellow, never will bring in his first big headache, but he can't put it on the button, he will salvage sufficient coin of the realm to last him and his family in comfort for life .....If he wins he will have that much coming, if he loses he will be pin pin gaiters in royalties, etc. for another 12 months or so.

Free and Clear.....Bill Fry heaved in sight this evening with the remark that some of the Belleville intermediate hockey players, after their defeat, on Wednesday evening, handed out the opinion that the Quinte Sport Collosus Sallors would clip the Flyers wings to the tune of a few goals on the round.....That's gratitude for you .....Jack Corbett, who knows his device O.H.A. hockey, and has seen the Hamilton Tigers, Kitchener, the Toronto and the rest of the senior loop teams go through their paces numerous times, in the course of years murmured "Phooey" when told of the Sailors' confidence and Jack "were always a heavy, rugged hard checking team.....Something after the style of the present Flyer aggregation.....But a fast team of Sailors, who can't handle and beat them, and this year is no exception.....I'll take the Flyers to repeat."

Thought Eddie Thomas' gallant band of pucksters will be battling to keep the name of Belleville in the hockey picture.....They outplayed the wise guys, when they held the Whitby Red Wings to a three-all tie last week.....Now they have got to avenge that defeat of a year ago, and if speed, fight and hockey can do it, it will be done..... But they need the support of fandom.....Tonight is the night, so go down to the arena and by your presence and tonsilar efforts, give the boys that extra shove which will heave them into the next round of the intermediate "B" playdowns.

Whitby Team Strengthened From Last Year With Hurst as Coach

Returning from Whitby, where they battled to a three all draw in the opening game of the intermediate O.H.A. second round play-offs, the Belleville Redmen and the Whitby Redwings resume hostilities at the Belleville Arena tonight on even terms. Belleville hockey fans have already expressed and encouraged this district team, its S.C.A.F. to a provincial championship and should now utilities their full support to the efforts of the Redmen and encourages them with their support in the battle tonight.

If the two teams are tied again tonight at the end of regulation time, overtime has been ordered by the O.H.A. The club emerging victorious will advance to the provincial semi-finals for the honours of the O.H.A. championship. It would be nice to see both teams in the semi-finals, but the Redmen need the moral and vocal support of the home fans.

The Whitby Redwings, coached by the diminutive "Pep" Hurst of Oshawa, a team of fighters, who have not lost a single hockey game this season, but the games they are still playing great hockey, while Pilger, Sig Allen, Thompson and Bowmanville, are some additions, that help to make the Redwings a stronger Thomas' Redmen welcomed the return of "Skater" Wilson to their ranks the former Marconed player still being in possession of his famous bag of tricks. MARMORA GIVES NAPANEE SCARE

Unleashing a furious third period offensive, which well nigh swept Napanee off their feet, an inspired student crew of Marmora Wings, last night, defeated the Napanee Crescents 5-4 in the opening game of the Eastern Ontario senior intercollegiate hockey group, the winners of which will meet the eastern Ontario intercollegiate tournament to be held in London, Ont., between the two junior group champions, will be concluded in Kingston on Tuesday night, the two teams again clash, with goals counting on the round.

Napanee scored five play in the first period of the game last night, but the Marmora defence held up well and restricted the boosters to a single goal, with the Napanee crew's passing plays clicked in the second stanza and was good for three more markers before the period whistle blew.

Marmora Rallies in Third

But the third period saw the Black and White student gang suddenly come to life. They swept on the boosters and put on a concentrated offensive. Disorganized by the smart thrusts of the visitors, the Orange and Blue attempted to stave off the scoring threats of the attackers.

broke away to increase their count to five. The visitors again rallied a stiff pressure and by virtue of well timed passing forays finally the light four time behind the Napanee net. Desperately the homesters drove the rubber down the ice, but the Marmora boreals were equal to the task and, after striving for the equaliser, when the final whistle blew.

Wall Gerow was the high scorer with five markers registered by the pair of markers registered by the home team. J. Lovelace had two, with Keast and Dr. O'Neil, centre, the red light in succession for the Napanee students in the closing setting to follow the return game, here, Even if he is not on the largest ice surface at Madoc."

C. A. Elliott, superintendent of the Deloro Smelting Company and past president of the O.H.A.A. and O.R.U. A. addressed gatherings in the north, personally promised to provide Hollinger with a hockey team if they eliminated Napanee. This offer naturally proved a big attraction and urged the "Northerners" on to greater heights. Belleville followers of senior intercholastic hockey however, still respect their conquerors and are looking for a Napanee victory in the return game.

Marmora: Goal, Hart; defence, O'Neil and N. O'Neil; centre, D. Lovelace; wings, Reynolds and J. Lovelace; subs, Lewis, Mouri, G. McKeown, Prentice and Grey.

Senior 'B' and Intermediate 'A' Winners to Play Here Monday

GAMES TO COUNT

Flyers Hoping For a Fast Sheet of Ice For The Series

The R.C.A.F. "Flyers", 1937 intermediate O.H.A. champions of Ontario in the "A" series received official instructions from the provincial body they had been drawn against Port Colborne, senior "B" champions of the O.H.A., in the Allan Cup play-downs in their next round by virtue of winning the intermediate "A" title, W. A. Hewitt, in charge of sanctions, has stated the first game of the series was scheduled to be played on the ice here on Monday night with the return game to be played in the Welland arena on Thursday in a best-in-three series, a possible third game to be arranged if necessary.

This morning the management of the Flyers was undecided as to the outcome of the game on Monday night, but definitely stated the series would be played in Belleville Arena if the weatherman provided the proper cold weather needed to keep the ice in its natural ice arena. If the weather is not in favor of the management, then better ice than the teams have enjoyed during their triumphant march to the provincial championship, then doubtless the first game of the Allan Cup finals will be played in the Welland arena at Kingston, where artificial ice is available. Port Colborne having a small rink, but equipped with an artificial ice plant.

"We appreciate the patronage of the Sports writers of the entire Bay of Quinte district and our players are quite anxious to play all of their remaining games possible in Belleville, but the last three weeks during which our club has battled through the play-off, the whole team has been under a mental and physical strain, the latter due to having played six consecutive games on soft ice," stated team officials today as they added that no concrete arrangements had been made with any outside point as yet, the Flyers retaining their decision in hopes of more favorable weather reports in the hope that there possibly being colder weather predicted in the near future.

The official committee sees as to where the first game of the Allan Cup finals will be played, has not decided Port Colborne "Sailors" and the R.C.A.F. "Flyers" will be playing their second game of the provincial championship racetrack by Kimberley Drummond from the past as knees.

Dynamiters, who took the Allan Cup to British Columbia last year for the first time, are on a European tour at the time. The Ontario League which produced them is the strongest in the Dominion, with Leafs whipped Vancouver Canadians 3-1 in the opening game of a best-of-there B. C. title series at Nelson last night.

Edmonton Dominions won the Alberta Big Six championship by defeating the third and deciding game of a series with Drumheller miners 7-3 at Drumheller, moving into the Provincial final opening tomorrow night.

Fort Fin Bombers, who dethroned Saskatchewan's champions, Prince Albert Mintos, in a playoff before the crack North Battleford Beavers, meet Edmonton Eskimo Bombers 7-3 in North Battleford last night for the Canadian Football Union mid-West play-off. Beavers won the first 4-3 and the second 7-3 at Edmonton.

Regina Aces and Yorkton Terriers play a two game total goal three-game series in Yorkton tonight, Aces won the first game 3-2 and the second was a 1-1 tie. The winner will engage Wilcox Notre Dame for the right to meet the Battleford-Fifth Pion survivors.

Great Falls won a game lead in the best-of-three Winnipeg Big Four final with Canada Packers, the winner to represent Manitoba in the playdowns.

Select Junior Hockey Teams Out in Playoffs

(By The Canadian Press)

Select Ontario junior hockey teams around today for the more important playoff battles but oddly enough no one was booming the teams with the most imposing records. While most eyes focused on an impending classic in the south of the province between Leaside Lumber Kings and Copper Cliff Redmen strong northern aspirants, were almost disregarded.

Timmins, undefeated all season, will play Port Arthur for the second of district competition. If they win, the Kings will likely go against Cyclone Dennery's Ottawa Rideaus. Copper Cliff are playing in Northern Ontario Hockey Association Group Ranks most of the winter, waits for a winner to emerge from the Timmins- Noranda series.

Spotlight in South

But drawing the spotlight now is a contest to deal with Toronto-Saint. Stratford Midgets and St. Michael's College will meet in Toronto tomorrow afternoon in the final of finals for The Ontario Hockey Association crowned title and one of the largest attendances for an Ontario age-limit game in years is expected.

Four seasons ago Stratford had its last title team, a juvenile puck-puck was beaten by Newmarket Midgets. The Redmen are in the round for the O.H.A. crown and Stratford has won the Ontario championship and the Memorial Cup. Now Dave Pinkney has developed another championship club for Stratford and the Classic Kings looking for the laurels it nearly gained in 1933.

St. Michael's, the Dominion title in 1934. The Irish haven't had the same luck since but now they've got a team that looks like a winner that time, one that includes several Copsal Memorial Cup players. It swept everything aside so far. It's what Stratford has attracted so much attention.

Pembroke is Feared

Pembroke won't mind being out of the spotlight. The Lumber Kings were dark horses last year when they gave West Toronto National a tremendous shock before bowing out in the semi-finals of the Memorial Cup.

The North has always sent down strong contenders in intermediate ranks teams, and Copper Cliff is said to be the strongest team that ever represented a lot down against Sault Ste. Marie in the Allan Cup but managed to win out with little damage to their prestige. They'll get it thoroughly test in the series between Timmins and Noranda.

Timmins and Noranda have been fortunate enough to get strong opposition all through the campaign and are considered fit for the grind it come. In group finals they had to fight all the way to beat Deadend 4-3 and 6-3.

NEW SURVIVORS IN WEST HOCKEY

Winnipeg, March 5 (CP)—Western Canada Senior Hockey playdowns had almost a completely new slate of survivors today. Edmonton Eskimos reached the same stage last year but the evidence defeated the championship racetag by Kimberley Drummond from the past as knees.

Sport Callings

By Ken Colling

If the Belleville Redmen can hop over the Whitby Redwings at the local Arena tonight they should easily advance to the intermediate O.H.A. finals in the "B" series. In 1935 the Redwings won the intermediate championship and returned to the year to gain the final series last year, when Dunbarn nosed them out by the odd goal. The Redwings are reputed to be stronger this year so when the Redmen held them to a tie in Whitby, they completed on mean rest. Local fans will well recall the hectic four game series between these clubs, when forsaken able "B" teams last year and this alone should prove sufficient initiative to the fans to warrant a capacity house at the Arena tonight. The teams take to the ice on even terms, the game having been ordered to be played over-time, if necessary. The Redmen say it won't be necessary for any overtime, so hop the bus and speed and join the joyous throng tonight.

Local hockey fans should well recall the stellar work of Fry Hurst, Belleville's flashy little star of the Flyers, Bill Fry, Sig Allen, Thompson, Pilger, Bowmanville. If the Redmen are to defeat the Redwings on Tuesday night, however, the local fans will have ample opportunities to carry the their vocal chords tonight. Manager Thomas has one of the shifted and best hockey clubs he ward lines in "B" hockey in "Hamilton" Wednesday. Will Jackson, Clayt Jackson, the Deseronte whirlwinds. These kids possess what it takes as scrappy, fast-skating hockey players and it is a treat to watch them put their bag of tricks into effect. The Redmen are Belleville's own city team and deserve consideration and support. Every fan not playing better hockey each time out and have potentialities of championship conclusions.

Gord Bruyere, former N. H. L. puckster with New York and Chicago has purchased a hotel in Timmins, Ont., where the north land hockey wars to became a business man. While in that section of the country we hear the former Belleville former Tweed hockey player and brother of Ken Carey is coaching in the senior pastimes, is going great guns with Mcmaster University. Leal is a "Varsity" puck performer and was moved into Syl Apps' position, when the latter graduated to coaching ranks. Leal is the only player possible by Apps turning professional with Toronto. According to Hamilton Spectator, Leal is credited doing every bit as good a job for McMaster as did Apps last year.

If the weatherman smiles in the right direction, the game of Quinte hockey fans will get a peek at their first Allan Cup hockey game in history, when Port Colborne "Sailors" and was moved into Syl Apps' position, when the latter graduated to coaching ranks. If the weatherman smiles in the right direction, the game of Quinte hockey fans will get a peek at their first Allan Cup hockey game in history, when Port Colborne "Sailors" and the R.C.A.F. "Flyers" clash in the first game of the series here according to the draw, and by virtue of winning the intermediate "A" championship, the R.C.A.F. "Flyers" have been pitted against the senior "B" champions of the O.H.A. in the Allan Cup play-downs in their next round by virtue of winning the intermediate "A" title. W. A. Hewitt, in charge of sanctions, has stated the first game of the series was scheduled to be played on the ice here on Monday night with the return game to be played in the Welland arena on Thursday in a best-in-three series, a possible third game to be arranged if necessary.

This morning the management of the Flyers was undecided as to the outcome of the game on Monday night, but definitely stated the series would be played in Belleville Arena if the weatherman provided the proper cold weather needed to keep the ice in its natural ice arena. If the weather is not in favor of the management, then better ice than the teams have enjoyed during their triumphant march to the provincial championship, then doubtless the first game of the Allan Cup finals will be played in the Welland arena at Kingston, where artificial ice is available. Port Colborne having a small rink, but equipped with an artificial ice plant.

"We appreciate the patronage of the Sports writers of the entire Bay of Quinte district and our players are quite anxious to play all of their remaining games possible in Belleville, but the last three weeks during which our club has battled through the play-off, the whole team has been under a mental and physical strain, the latter due to having played six consecutive games on soft ice," stated team officials today as they added that no concrete arrangements had been made with any outside point as yet, the Flyers retaining their decision in hopes of more favorable weather reports in the hope that there possibly being colder weather predicted in the near future.

The official committee sees as to where the first game of the Allan Cup finals will be played, has not decided Port Colborne "Sailors" and the R.C.A.F. "Flyers" will be playing their second game of the provincial championship racetag by Kimberley Drummond from the past as knees.

Dynamiters, who took the Allan Cup to British Columbia last year for the first time, are on a European tour at the time. The Ontario League which produced them is the strongest in the Dominion, with Leafs whipped Vancouver Canadians 3-1 in the opening game of a best-of-there B. C. title series at Nelson last night.

Edmonton Dominions won the Alberta Big Six championship by defeating the third and deciding game of a series with Drumheller miners 7-3 at Drumheller, moving into the Provincial final opening tomorrow night.

Fort Fin Bombers, who dethroned Saskatchewan's champions, Prince Albert Mintos, in a playoff before the crack North Battleford Beavers, meet Edmonton Eskimo Bombers 7-3 in North Battleford last night for the Canadian Football Union mid-West play-off. Beavers won the first 4-3 and the second 7-3 at Edmonton.

Regina Aces and Yorkton Terriers play a two game total goal three-game series in Yorkton tonight, Aces won the first game 3-2 and the second was a 1-1 tie. The winner will engage Wilcox Notre Dame for the right to meet the Battleford-Fifth Pion survivors.

Great Falls won a game lead in the best-of-three Winnipeg Big Four final with Canada Packers, the winner to represent Manitoba in the playdowns.

CANADIAN STAR MARKS LIFE IN THREE CAREERS

Quebec-born Lucile Watson Veteran of New York Stage; Finds Present Part True to Type

NEW YORK (CP)—Lucile Watson, the Canadian star of 37 summers who says her hobby is acting, divides her life in the theatre into three parts—each a career in itself.

Miss Watson, native of Quebec City who made her stage debut in 1900 in the old Ottawa Opera House, long since destroyed by fire, reminisces on her long and successful stage life here. Daughter of Major W. C. and Lelia Watson, she was educated in Miss Harmon's school, Ottawa; Clonmore School, Windsor, N.S., and the Ursuline Convent, Quebec. She married Louis Irvan Shipman, playwright, who died in 1933.

Miss Watson's first career includes the years after she left the American Academy of Dramatic Art as a promising graduate until she was 30, during which she played ambitious and character women. The second, to 1924, was devoted almost exclusively to the portrayal of older but gay women of society. Then, after an intermission of some ten years during which she lived in France, she returned here to start a third career as an engaging mother with a sly wit and a mind slightly unconventional.

Miss Watson considers her present featured role in "Yes, My Darling Daughter," which Alfred de Liagre, Jr., is presenting at the Cort, the perfect example of this type. She ranks the part with the lovable woman she played in "No More Ladies," the "Mrs." in "Pools Errant" to mention only a few. She likes working abroad with the playwright who had become her husband and only came back to America after his death. She returned to the theatre.

MODERN VALJEAN

Here is J. J. McCann, the 30th century "Jean Valjean" whose true identity was revealed to police as the result of a quarryl with his wife. He is Clarence J. Cannon, 50, held on a charge of being a fugitive from London, Ohio, where he was serving time for a robbery 17 years ago. His wife, family and friends knew nothing of his past. While serving 12 days in the Allegheny county workhouse on a charge brought by his wife, he later won his release, he was identified through a picture and finger prints in federal files, as the man who escaped from the Ohio state penal farm almost two decades ago.

His Stomach Suffering Ended by New "Syntona"

Nervous Indigestion Gone; 'Feel Better Every Way' Praises New Medicine

Convincing proof of the results obtained by using the new Syntona medicine is found in the high praise of Mrs. Lorraine Sparks, 1 Bridge St., Belleville, who says: "I was a sufferer from stomach trouble for years. I suffered from sensations of nervousness, dizziness and tired, sluggish condition, neuritis or rheumatic pains practically all the time. Syntona has helped me and I recommended it to friends and neighbors.

"This is certainly the splendid experience of Mr. George Loomis, Stirling, who says:

"I suffered with my stomach for over a year. Everything I ate brought on gas and indigestion. My nerves were on an edge. Many days I could not come up in my throat after meals. I've got sleepy spells and couldn't sleep nights.

"Previous ended all that trouble and I enjoy my meals free from gas, sour-ness or other stomach disturbance. Food digests good, I sleep well at night, dizziness has left me and I feel fine. Nothing has given me the relief I got better in every way. I certainly am pleased to say this and highly recommend Syntona."

Nearly every day you read on this page of the good results some person has obtained after taking the new Syntona medicine. Isn't it reasonable to think that it can do the same for you?

"SHUD" ETHIER STAR AS SAILORS TIE STIRLING 5-5

First Game of Semi-Finals in Trent Valley Loop a "Honey"

NO PENALTIES

Stirling Rallies To Cut Down Three Goal Lead

Stirling, March 5 (Special)—Stirling and Belleville players gave the smartest and cleanest display of real fast hockey in the Stirling Arena, on Thursday night, when they met in the first game of the semi-finals for the championship of the Trent Valley Hockey League. "Shud" Ethier, stalwart defence-man of the "Seamen" squad, was the star of the evening, tapping home three of the five goals scored by the visitors and in the last few highlights of the night was the performance of "Ace" Reid, youthful rover of the Sailors' attacking line, who accounted for two of the Stirling tallies after the Sailors had amassed a three goal lead. Last night's play at the Stirling team reduced a three goal lead to a tie game and three two evenly contested games go into the last of the two game series on an even basis. The game was a record breaker for clean playing. Though plenty of heavy body-checking took place, they were all the "real McCoy" and not one of the players scored a penalty. This was a new style of tactics adopted by both teams in their first encounter of the season when fisticuffs broke out early and often. Smith has a tremendous crowd hockey players that will put in a thrilling game for the championship. Their speed and combination play were superior to that of the youth-ful Stirling squad in the first two periods, but Stirling came back with a bang in the final period and had a decided edge.

The Game

Stirling started at top speed with the ice in fine condition but a bit rough; the puck was hard to control. Robinson beat Hinton for the first counter of the game and the Sailors came on with a burst of speed that was met by Stirling and Harvey tied the score on a nice long rush. Just before the period ended "Shud" Ethier beat Fox to put the Sailors on top.

Stirling opened the middle frame with a flash of speed, beating down on Hinton several times but failing to beat him. The crowd went wild when Robinson broke away for the score. Shortly after, Semark was the spear-head of a dangerous rush and Fox had to juggle several hot ones, still pressing the Sailors aforward and Ethier fired the puck out of a scramble to put the Sailors in the lead again. Shortly after the face-off Ethier brothers and Semark found the Stirling defence as they skated in with "Shud" as the puck-carrier and instead of passing he went right in himself to make it 4-3. Both teams went off the ice for their well earned rest, jagged by the stalling speed.

Stirling Rally in Last Period

Shortly after the start of the final period the Sailors seemed conspicuously sure of victory when Semark put them three goals up, climaxing a brilliant lone rush. Stirling changed lines and sent out their "kid line" and how they "turned it on." Three boys, all High School kids, skated themselves dizzy in a rally that put Stirling back in the play-offs again. "Ace" Reid gave the crowd a real thrill when he added to his goal a pass from R. Ingram right in the goal mouth to score. Belleville forced the play again and Ingram broke away; with no one to stop him he skated in on Hinton, drew him to one side and shooting to the corner carefully put him to make it 5-4. This give the Stirling crew new hope and they tore in like Sendai and with only six minutes of the game left "Ace" Reid clicked for the goal that sent the crowd went wild. The final six minutes of the game found Stirling outscoring on extra speed and both goalies getting a thrilling workout. Stirling's entry in the League is a much improved team and the return of the stalwart "Hank" Ingram to their defence makes them worthy contenders. The Sailors have a real strong team with plenty of speed and a smooth working combination. But on the night's play Stirling held them remarkably in check.

Sailors Finish First

The Sailors topped the league in the regular schedule and are the favorites to take the championship in the opinion of those who are expected to know hockey. They have taken victories from every team in the league and score by exceedingly large scores. They have everything it takes to carry on sixty minutes of real speed hockey and in their own calculations, have included the final series of the play-offs. They are anxious to digest with the semi-final game and move into the final round with whoever wins the Madoc-Tweed games. However, there is one more game with Stirling and that last period spurt of speed by the local will give the Sailors something else to figure in their future plans. The game was a real "Honey" and only a small crowd was on hand to get the thrill of the cleanest game in the history of the Stirling rink. Sixty minutes of bang-up hockey without a single penalty.

Hinton, Harvey and Semark were the pick of the Sailors' crew with "Shud" Ethier as a standout. Robinson, Fraser and Rodgers on the Stirling crew displayed plenty of speed with Ethier, Reid, Morton, Reid, Hall turning in a real effort. The final game of the series with goals to count is expected to take place on the ice week with the winners to go on to meet the victors in the Madoc-Tweed playdowns.

The line-ups:

Belleville Sailors—Goal, Hinton; defence, G. Ethier and J. Ethier; centre, Osgood; wings, Robinson, McCulre; subs, Day, Semark, Harvey and Steele.

GRANITE ICEMAKER MAKES "COLD" DRAW NEARLY EVERY TIME

Toronto, March 5—(CP)— Before the greatest curlers in Canada walk out on the Granite Club ice and Dominion championship competition, a 60-year-old Scot shows those champions from British Columbia and Prince Edward Island how it's done. He lays a half-dozen of so shots on the button. Funny part of it is, he doesn't miss.

He stands at the tee and runs a rock up the ice and the rock stops on the button. Slowly he trudges after it, turns around and shoves it back. Again it stops in the exact centre of the ring. The old man moves over and repeats the performance in another ice lane.

It's all fascinating to the arriving gallery and even to the champion curlers who frankly would like to know how he does it. Then the throw to the button without fail.

He's the Granite Club icemaker Andrew Harvey from Scotland and he's just testing the sheet to see there's no "falling off on the bottom" before the MacDonald's prize Tankard curlers take over. Can he throw a rock on the button every time?

"I wouldna like to say I can put it on the spot ev'ra time, but in most cases—yes, in most cases," he says. And can find nothing surprising in his experience since he's been at it so long, since he was a boy in Lanark.

CURLING GREATS TO PLAY OFF TIE

Manitoba And Alberta Rinks Tied in Brier Tankard

CROLL IS SPONSOR

400,000 Workers to be Affected by New Legislation

Toronto, March 5 (CP)—A pulsating ice battle was in prospect today as two of Canada's curling greats prepared for the match that will decide the 1937 holder of the MacDonald's Brier Tankard and the Dominion title.

In a play-off that promised to produce thrills seldom seen even in Brier curling, Edmonton's Colin Manahan will meet Jimmy Welsh of Winnipeg this afternoon, a climactic finish to a week of sensational sparkling. The two were tied for first place last night, the scheduled finish to this year's championship meet.

An extra-end 13-10 victory over Hugh Ferguson of Truro, N.S., brought the Albertan to the top of the standing after all but being knotted out. The 37-year-old Winnipeg skip had arrived there a short time earlier with a 10-8 win over Saskatchewan's champion, skipped by Frank Smith of Moose Jaw.

Five-Ender

They still tackle today of Manahan's five-ender, that snatched victory from defeat in the ninth end by bagging a point for the Nova Scotians, too, were being praised for their stiff battle they put up. Their two points on the 12th and final end forced the rinks to an extra end for a decision.

As the Prairie skippers prepared for the titular match, the odds slightly favored Manahan. He won the Tankard in 1932 and had already squeezed out a win over the Manitoban rink in an earlier round this week. The 40-year-old Albertan also had the edge on Welsh in experience.

But tradition rested with the Winnipeg Deer Lodgers. Manitoba has become almost a perennial winner of the trophy, played for since 1927. That province has won it seven times. Welsh was on the Jimmy Douglas rink that lost to Manahan four years ago and was out to avenge that defeat.

AS ONE MIGHT DO IF HE WERE YOU

Father Layman and Preacher Son Debate Respective Positions

NEW YORK (CP)—A Sunday evening congregation at the Central Presbyterian Church was treated to a novelty. Instead of listening to a sermon, they listened to a debate between their pastor and his father.

The father, James M. Speers, well known department store head spoke on "The Layman's Ministry," while the son, Rev. Theodore G. Speers, took as his subject "The Preacher and Layman."

The elder Speers presented a portrait of an ideal minister—a composite person drawn from what was said by ministers he had known in his youth in Ireland and later in Canada. He spoke of the man as intimate touch and helpfulness. "Ministers," he said, "should be filled with the very spirit of Christ and the Gospel—men of tremendous power and momentum; men of prophetic vision, men who utterly forget themselves in their zeal for the glory of God and bringing in of His kingdom."

Rev. Mr. Speers chided the laity for its habit of dumping religion in-to the lap of the clergy and then waiting for the ministers to return the religion to them as if in the form of easily digested pills. "What the world needs most of all," he declared, "is more laymen to whom fellowship with God is a vital first-hand experience, a product of their thought, reading, effort and adventure for God."

MARKET COMMENT

A buoyant tone is evident in the industrial market, with a number of new highs recorded. This is impressive for the reason that several issues have been dormant for some little time have come to life on good demand. The exceptional strength in Wall Street is no doubt an important contributing factor to the local buoyancy.

Standard Statistics, in their current survey of Canadian industries offers the following interesting Policy:—

"There is little reason for United States investors to place any substantial part of their relatively limited field of Canadian securities, both because of the currency factor and because recovery in Canada, while it will probably be less than in United States, is likely to be at a more moderate pace. On Canadian investors, however, the following are seriously considered among the most desirable vehicles: Bell Telephone—Steadfast Traction, Imperial Tobacco of Canada, and Loblaw Groceterias for income; and Canadian Car and Foundry, Canadian Pacific, Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting, International Nickel, Noranda Mines and Steel of Canada for long-term appreciation."

"Wells Amulet is Reopen'

An official announcement by the secretary of Wells Amulet Mines Limited reads as follows:

I am instructed by the Board of Directors of Wells Amulet Mines, Limited, to announce that after several months' study of possible future policy between Cobalt, Ontario and Zinc, and the carrying on of negotiations for financing reopening of our properties, for a contract for refining, concentrating and sale of new Copper Smelting contract, they, at a meeting held in Toronto this week, instructed the manager to take immediate steps for the re-opening of both the Wells and Amulet Mines. The program decided upon for the re-opening is that from the Amulet which it is hoped will commence early in next week and in the meantime the Wells property will be prepared for production.

Leitch No. 1 Vein In High Values

H. J. Mackay, Secretary of Leitch Gold Mines, Beardmore-Leslie Shiver area, Port Arthur mining division, which poured its first brick two weeks ago, reports receipt from the mine at Ottawa of 254,146, the first shipment containing 697 fine ounces of gold, and thirty ounces of silver, according to official determination.

He also reports that the last 31 feet of drift on No. 1 vein, fourth level, averaged $70 across seventy-two inches of face inches, which, with considerable widen.

Mill is handling about sixty tons daily, with heat at times running up to one ounce per ton. It is as yet too early to say what the average of millheads over a conclusive period.

Cost of Producing Gold

Gold producers in Canada are closely watching the trend of economic conditions throughout the world, for the continuance of an average of about $21 per ounce to produce gold is essential, that is the average cost as measured by the performance at all the leading gold mines.

WALL STREET

New York, March 5—(CP)—Stocks swung into a brisk recovery movement today, market under leadership of steels and rails.

Numerous new highs were registered in the first hour when the ticker tape fell several minutes behind. Gains advanced a point to more than 5 points, however, were later reduced in "second installments," near the fourth period, activity was moderate.

Transfers were around or 10,000 shares. U.S. Steel quickly pushed across the 125-mark, its best level in its present rebound.

Among shares of Canadian companies, International Nickel and Distillers Corp.-Seagrams pushed up moderately, while Canadian Pacific and Dome Mines lagged. On the curb, Lake Shore was down two points. Dominion Stores common bonds were steady. Canadian dollars were unchanged at par.

Aside from the major steel issue, outstanding on the forward tilt to the general list, were Bethlehem, Consolidated Oil, Commercial Solvents, Public Service, American and Rolling Mills.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, March 5—(CP)—Mining shares churned about a narrow trading range in heavy business sluggish by early afternoon. Scattered gains were appeared in the Golds while Base Metals held fairly firm, supported by higher quotations in London for the Metals and the Oils were slightly heavy.

Bralorne, Buffalo-Ankerite, Macassa, Pickle Crow, MacLeod Cockshutt, Rock and Sudbury-Patricia were all lower. Falconbridge, off 1-2 to 11, was weakest of the Base Metals and losers in the Oils included Calgary-Edmonton, Calmont and Dalhousie.

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS

Toronto, March 5—(CP)— After recording substantial gains and trading in sizable volume through the early session. the industrial section of Toronto Exchange turned quiet in the early afternoon and some of the early gains were forfeited.

A gain of about a point for Dominion Steel and Coal it was good to a half point and the gains were trimmed for Abitibi, Canneries, Canada Cement, Gypsum and the Canadian Car and Foundry issue. Gains were narrowly thin for Simpsons this afternoon and Ford A and C. P. R. showed small net declines. Moderate profit-taking in the implements caused mild price weakness.

STEEL ADVANCES $3 TO $8 PER TON

Wage Increases Passed Along to Steel Consumers

Pittsburgh, March 4—(AP)— Unmoved by the $1,000,000,000 plaint of the booming steel industry, passed along by the government today that wage increase it granted employees three days ago.

William A. Irvin, president of the corporation whose employees will benefit, in all, $12,000,000 a year, next pay bout for a 60-hour week. Other leaders in the industry "new raw materials" also had their part in the settlement, which is to be made effective today.

The wage agreement signed Tuesday in Washington F. Fairless, president of Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation, and the steel's biggest subsidiary—reduced the work week from 40 hours, provided time and a half for overtime.

One discordant note sounded in the harmony that enveloped the industry. The meeting in Pittsburgh today was the so-called "company unions" to discuss possibility of establishing a rival union to combat John L. Lewis' committee for industrial organization.

Lie-Down Strike May Soon Terminate

Smithville, Ont., March 5 (CP)— The "lie-down" strike at the Dominion Steelcastings plant, 37, and Louise, 42, at the home of her parents in Wainfleet here, may come to an end within the next day or two, it is reported today.

Dr. C. Elmore, medical officer of health, said yesterday that Mary, suffering from an infected foot and a weakened condition, entered on a hunger strike, may go to hospital within the next day or 24 hours. It was learned that Louise has not consented to be removed to hospital and may be sent to a friend's home.

The meeting on 12th. day, the sisters' "lie-down" strike—they have been in bed almost continuously since Friday—was started to prevent their brother from putting them out of their home.

Use of Defective Brakes Called Most Reprehensible

Brantford, Ont., March 5 (CP) — Defective brakes are the most reprehensible violation of motor traffic laws and endanger not only the life of the driver of the particular car but also have no reason to use the streets, Magistrate S. A. Jones said today in imposing fines on three drivers who, according to testimony, had been involved in accidents.

Vernon Young, Burford, was fined $15 and costs of $5.95 on the charge of having defective brakes on the car he was driving and an additional fine of $10 for not having obtained a permit to drive.

Ralph Brantford, was fined $25 and costs of $3.75 and had his license suspended for one month.

municipalities having a population of from 10,000 to 25,000, 6 hours in any other municipality, or in any locality which is not a municipality.

Powers to enforce the Act will be authorized by legislation now pending.

It will be provided that the minimum Wage Act "shall not apply to employees engaged in agriculture or any private residence nor while engaged in farming operations".

Minimum Wage

Toronto, March 5—(CP)—Labor today assured closely Ontario Government's Bill to amend the Minimum Wage Act to provide minimum wages for men with several statements indicating opposition to the bill.

After Hon. David C. Croll, Minister of Labor, introduced the Bill in the Legislature yesterday Labor men declared a minimum wage would eventually become the maximum. They contended there were numerous underpaid workers but feared setting of a minimum wage would result in employers paying salaries at this level and keeping others down.

John Noble, president of the District Trades and Labor Council, said if the Bill proved contrary to International Trade Union policy it would not be used. The Minimum Wage Board in the Council would be called to prepare a report, Labor Minister Croll Hepburn,

William Grieves, business agent of the Bricklayers' and Stonemasons' Union, said organized Labor would support the Bill "in principle" was it might become the maximum.

It was explained the Bill was linked with Department of Labor Amendments, when it was brought down in the legislature. Now before the Legislature for Second Reading, the amendments provide for an Industry and Labor Board to administer the Minimum Wage Act and the Apprenticeship Act, to transfer powers from the Labor Department with employer and workers also represented.

Long Overdue Says Croll

Long overdue is the Board which would set the minimum wage for men, launched investigations Dominion-wide, predicted effects of the new regulations would be felt "in a few months."

Apprentices, farm workers and those in domestic service would be excluded from minimum wage provisions. Department officials in the past have said unskilled men workers would likely be governed by the Act, rather than skilled workers, good and choice 7.50 2.00

MAN ALLOWED LIBERTY AFTER BUYING ARTICLE

Discovered in the act of secreting an alarm clock beneath the overcoat in his folds of his overcoat, a well-dressed man, later it was discovered possessed a large roll of bills, was taken upon the management of a local departmental store, to allow him to purchase the article and secrete the plastic article in custody on a charge of shop-lifting, police alleged today.

Confronted by the manager, who had seen the man secrete the article, the act, the alleged shoplifter, broke down and confessed, he be allowed to pay for the article. Meanwhile another store official had telephoned police and a detective, who, it is said, not was dispatched to the scene, however, the man's story apparently softened the managerial heart, and upon payment of the purchase price the man was allowed to go.

Three Measures Approved

Government control of Foreign Exchange is "excluded" and all financial activity will be guided, he said by provisions of the monetary stabilization agreement of last September signed in Washington, Paris and London governments.

The Cabinet members voted approval of measures to bolster the nation's financial position.

1.—A request to the Bank of France to give general authorization for free importation and free trade in gold in the interior (of the country) to become effective Monday, March 8.

2.—Formation of a commission of experts to "assure defense of the franc, the security of commerce and stability of prices."

3.—Creation of "severe instructions" to all government departments to economize with the single reservation of necessary increases in "military salaries", promise of punishment for unjustified increases in prices of necessities of life.

Bank of France in Gold Mart

Details of the projected measures, the Cabinet explained, would allow the Bank of France to enter the gold market, buying and selling at current prices and without identification of sellers.

Restrictions on gold transactions, imposed last December by the 25% devaluation law, thus were nullified and the metal again became an article in over-the-counter transactions.

the Dominion Mayors Association. Mayor Robbins and Mayor Wigle, however, favored, for the sake of clarity, deleting the last Amendment in regard to the 75 per cent basis of contribution and so moved in amendment.

Mayor W. Morrison, Hamilton, said that federal government would be unwilling to relieve municipalities of all responsibility in the matter of relief. "We must recognize that we must share part."

Mayor Wigle said: "Unless there were some control in relief to the municipalities, he said, welfare policies would soon develop into "a Roman holiday."

Mayor Gardiner, Niagara-on-the-Lake, contended that relief, though localized, was not a local problem.

Mayor W. MacBride, Brantford, was emphatic that relief had long since ceased to be a local or provincial problem and was definitely a national one. Despite political hide-a-pandas, he said both Hon. Mackenzie King and Mr. Bennett were very well aware of the facts. "They realize full well that it is a necessity."

Pointing to inequality in the existing system, Mayor MacBride observed that while other cities were receiving $4 per head for direct relief, Brantford was paying $1.50 per head. Other cities, he said, were subsidized and supported 100 per cent at the expense of the rest.

Mayor Wigle said: "It is up to the federal government whether it be Liberal or Conservative to see that we recognize its responsibility its up to the government to assist us not less than 75 per cent," Mayor MacBride concluded.

Municipalities which did not pay their way were subsidized and those who did pay their way were penalized, declared Mayor Morrison, who insisted that the provincial government at least make its relief grants on an equitable basis as between municipalities.

Mayor Wigle and Windsor was not at present receiving 100 per cent support from the government.

After further discussion, the original motion carried.

Some Doctors Criticized

That some doctors are afraid recipients to the hospital for their (the doctors) own convenience was brought out by Mayor Kennedy of Guelph, when discussion on hospitalization by the American Federation of Labor and employee groups in the United States was brought up.

Indicative of the A. F. O. L.'s declaration that the Canadian section of John L. Lewis' followers was in order to fight the C.I.O. shoe workers organization established in New England.

Two A. F. O. L. units responded to President William Green's call to battle. The Maryland State Federation of Labor ordered give support to the United Leather Workers' Union, and the Cleveland central labor body suspended unions affiliated with the C.I.O. Similar action is reported to be in force.

Mayor McArthur, Woodstock, favored co-operation with the doctors. He advised that if a doctor said a patient had to go the hospital, that patient had to go regardless of a Mayor's opinion.

A motion by Mayor Kennedy, seconded by Mayor Stone, Perth, the conference resolved that "whereas hospitalization has become one of the largest items in the municipal budget be it resolved that the provincial government be asked to lay down definite regulations by which the municipal councils may control payments to hospitals and encourage a greater co-operation from the medical profession."

Hospitalization to Province

Resolution two under this subject, moved by Mayor Stanley Lewis, Ottawa, seconded by Alderman T. Linscott, Brantford, read, "Be it resolved that the government be requested to take over the entire costs of hospitalization as the burden is proper one as municipalities have become unbearable." This carried unanimously without discussion.

It was moved by Mayor J. Gardner, Niagara-on-the-Lake, seconded by Mayor Bridel, Tillsonburg, "that the Ontario Mayors Association endorse the principles of the Ontario Hospital Association project as an unemployment relief measure." The carried.

It was moved by Ald. I. Bowman, Kitchener, seconded by Ald. A. T. Brandrick, Owen Sound, "That the resolution be endorsed namely that whereas many of our unemployed are in receipt of municipal and provincial relief and whereas many of our unemployed are in receipt of municipal and provincial relief and whereas many of our unemployed are in receipt of municipal and provincial relief, work out a plan to re-establish these people on small farms as it is being done in the province of Quebec.

Residence For Relief

On motion of Ald. T. Lyle, Brantford, seconded by Mayor Stanley Lewis, Ottawa, it was resolved that residence be one year in any municipality as of January 1st, 1937, and that the residence in any other municipality and obtain direct relief from such municipality.

Ald. Tom Linscott moved, seconded by Mayor Balch, Chatsworth, "that the Provincial and Federal governments be petitioned to consider the development of our natural resources, particularly reforestation, timber and mining as a means of alleviating unemployment; also to establish schools to train unemployed men for work in mining and forestry as a means of earning a living."

UNIONIZATION DRIVE MEETS OPPOSITION

(By the Associated Press)

The unionization drive of the committee for industrial organization encountered mounting opposition today from The Maryland State Federation of Labor and employee groups in the United States and Canada.

Indicative of the A. F. O. L.'s declaration that the Canadian section of John L. Lewis' followers was in order to fight the C.I.O. shoe workers organization established in New England.

DAILY SHORT STORY

Opera First Night

By Hannah Lowe

Mary Holloway settled herself in her seat just as the orchestra began tuning up. It was the opening night of the opera. Ever since childhood Mary Holloway had wanted to be in just once, she was —all dressed up in the Metropolitan Opera house on opening night of the opera.

Mary was not specially musical. But opening night at the opera—well, in her Mid-Western, small-town girlhood, that had been something that nothing else meant. And when she came to her present home in New York—and landed a fairly good job in a magazine office—she had thought of this night as the climax of her first winter in the big fairyland city.

As day had followed day and week had followed week, and months flitted by, Mary had realized that, if she went to the opera, she would pay for her own tickets.

So Mary decided to go by herself. She bought an expensive evening dress. She sent home for the family pearls, and paid to have them restrung. She got slippers, too, to match the dress—with silver trimming. And how excited she was, and how ready to buy an extravagant evening cape, that she almost never wore again. But one of the girls she knew had an aunt who lived a normal life—she wasn't using her evening wrap that night. Mary could have it.

So Mary went to the opera.

There was an empty chair at her side. Just one, and beyond that, a party of half a dozen. She wondered who would fill it.

And when, just before the lights went out, a decidedly good looking and well dressed young man and sadly down beside her into the vacant chair.

The girls' chatter died out as the lights went off and the orchestra leader took his place. And still, the sight of the empty chair kept Mary about her next door neighbor. But not for long.

"I beg your pardon," she heard a pleasant, well-modulated voice in her ear. "I'm sorry—but I dropped my pencil, and it's rolled down under the chair in front of you. If you don't mind, I'll try to get it."

"Oh, let me," whispered Mary, quickly. The music was forgotten. What she had really come to the opera for was the audience. And here was one of the most distinguished members talking to her. She leaned down and felt along the floor for the pencil. Then she heard the whisper again. She bent her face and saw another close to hers. "Here" he said—"here's my pocket flash". And he held it. So tiny beam so that she could see along the floor until she had retrieved the rolling pencil.

They bumped their heads together a bit as they carefully and noiselessly worked back to an upright position. Then the were silent again with the feeling of old friends between them. Mary saw that he was writing in a little notebook. She caught a little. She didn't want him to have a governess—or whatever it was that looked after the rich children and took them boys to a matinee opera. Grown to a man, he still might find attractive a girl who had mortgaged her future to hear—and see—her first opera. But if he was interested in the gloom he was jotting down musical notes, or something—well, Mary didn't want that. For already she wanted the young man next to her to like her.

He did. They spent their intermission together, and at the end of the last act he said rather hesitatingly, "My name is Sqvire—John Sqvire. I suppose you've separated from your family—couldn't get seats together or something—an overflow from one of the home perhaps? But if you're not—you've known me a lifetime and you can leave me well enough to let me take you home and—well, to stop and get something to eat on the way?"

Mary accepted. This was a crazy party anyway. She hadn't thought that one of the leading young New Yorkers would so informally but quite courteously rush her. But she liked him, and she was her most charming self as they stopped at a hotel restaurant for supper.

Over a salad and coffee he told her who he was. "You see, I'm self - I come from the South. I've only fair to tell you that having you here with me, just finished out a dream I've had ever since I was a kid and used to read about the opera. I've just come to New York. Just a few weeks ago. And I was determined to go the Metropolitan on first night this winter. But I haven't met any nice girls. So I decided to go by myself. I've been taking notes on my impressions—of the audience not the music—because I'm writing a story that needs opera local color. But I'm afraid I've made a rather poor subject for you."

Then Mary explained. "I suppose you think I'm Miss Astorbilt off for an old-fashioned evening or something like that? But I'm just a girl from the sticks too with a lifetime dream of going to an opera first night. And I've spent two weeks' salary for my dress and my cloak is borrowed—and that's the end of a girl's tale." She smiled bewitchingly as him for she knew that it didn't matter to him what sort of a girl she was.

"We'll celebrate this anniversary every year in the same way" he had added boldly.

And Mary smiled again.

Synopsis of preceding Instalments:

Heather Aston, now 34, has had the responsibility of rearing six brothers and sisters the youngest of whom, Bobbie, now nearly 17, had cost their mother's life. Heather had started her sacrifices when Bobbie was a year old, telling Bruce Logan, who was leaving England for South Africa, that she could not marry him and doesn't choose, as they affectionately called their pompous but unselfished father, and her children." Caesar has insufficient means to maintain Tangley, the home his father gave him as a wedding present, and reminds his fiancee writing a note, which is never completed. Paul, the oldest brother, has married a wealthy woman who after a year allenated him from his family. Now lately has just married the well-to-do Stephen Miller and left on her honeymoon. Betty's romance recalls Bruce Logan vividly to Heather. Her sister Vilette, who has been travelling with a second-rate theatrical company in South Africa (formerly as a her stage name) writes to announce she is through with the show, will be on her way home when the letter is received, and has met the man, who is returning on the same steamer. Heather goes to Waterloo to meet the boat train but the man drives Vilette up from Southampton. When Heather returns home Vilette introduces him—as Bruce Logan. Then, before going on to London, he makes appointments to be alone with Heather but she avoids intimate talk. When he phones next day that he wants to see her, she goes to a nearby town with her father where he has business.

Bruce was sorry for her, that she all . . . and that was unthinkable more than she could tolerate. Before, "I don't love him any more," she told herself determinedly, and knew it was a lie.

Instalment 5

It was so long since Heather had been out with her father that in spite of her distracted state of mind, she found the experience enjoyable.

Mathews—who had generously lent Caesar the car, was a self-made man with whom Caesar was on queer terms of friendship even though he professed to despise him, and this morning he lorded it over the smart chauffeur, and having made sure that the man could not hear what he criticized his driving.

Loneley was a small country town with a handful of uninteresting shops and a small church, and Heather wandered about while her father transacted his so-called business. He had arranged to meet her later at the one place where it would be possible to lunch.

It was a very hot morning, and Heather felt unaccountably tired. The meeting with Bruce Logan, although she did not realize it, had been a tremendous strain.

He would be at Tangley now with Vilette. Heather had told her that he had rung up and was coming to lunch, and Vilette had looked forward to her exhaustion and leaped out of bed. That was unlike Vilette as a rule, who preferred to lie and admires wailing.

Perhaps at this moment they were lunching together.

"I want to talk to you."

Kind of Bruce to have said that, but then he was always kind. He had been wonderful when their mother had died—wonderful to her and to the children—considering the deed in those days. And she herself . . . little more than a schoolgirl, whose life had seemed to make a leap forward from seventeen to thirty-four—a difficult jump in the dark—alone.

The church-clock chimed the quarter hour. Heather sighed and turned toward the inn where Caesar was already waiting.

The lunch, judging from the menu, appears to be of indifferent quality," he said, and Heather answered, "I don't mind. I'm not hungry."

It was a treat to be feeding out for once, and not to be on the qui vive all the time, watching to see that every one was served, and then helping Priddy to clear the table.

The lunch proved better than Caesar had feared. At any rate, he ate heartily and consumed half a bottle of wine.

"We must give Johnson a tip," Heather reminded him as they went out to the waiting car. She had some money with her, knowing that finance was Caesar's weak point.

He was funny where money was concerned. Sometimes if he had a pound note, he would change it into half-crowns and deposit them in various pockets, finding infinite fun in discovering one at odd moments, and saying in astonishment, "Why, here's half a crown!"

He was just another of her 'children' she thought affectionately as they drove back through the hot afternoon.

"How long does Vilette propose to remain at home?" Caesar asked suddenly.

Heather gave him a quick glance. "I don't know; she hasn't told me." Caesar drew himself up in his grand manner. "She has not told you!" he repeated. "Is my house a hotel that people arrive and leave when it pleases them?"

There was a short silence which Caesar broke in a low voice. "It is one to understand that Vilette has matrimonial designs on Logan?"

Heather managed a laugh. "Isn't it obvious that they have designs on each other?" she asked lightly. She knew that he was looking at her, but she kept her gaze fixed on the winding road ahead.

"If I remember rightly," Caesar said a little diffidently, "there was a time—when your dear mother was with us—when you and Bruce—"

She broke in quickly. "So long ago . . . we were just children. It's all forgotten. I haven't thought of him for years, and I am quite sure he has not thought of me. Please don't say anything to Vilette."

She was infinitely touched when Caesar said, "You have been a wonderful daughter and sister, my dear. Sometimes I wonder if I have behaved selfishly in allowing you to shoulder the burden; it must have been a difficult task for one so young."

"It's been good fun," Heather assured him, though there was an uncertain note in her voice. "Look at the trouble the family is to me! John doing well—"

He interrupted her. "Do you ever think of yourself, Heather?"

She looked at him, then—"Of—myself?"

"Of your future—perhaps how different it might have been if your mother had lived."

She laughed because it hurt her to see Caesar in such a serious mood. "My future will be with you. Perhaps we shall find the house rather big for us when they've all gone, but we might take paying guests or something."

She thought again of Vilette and Bruce. Once, in the long-ago past, she and Bruce had spent a whole summer's day in the woods together. Funny she had so suddenly think of it. They had taken lunch with them, and had had under a great tree with the wood pigeons cooing overhead, and had talked about the future, and of the wonderful things they would do.

No motorcar in those days, but they had trudged the miles home, arm-in-arm, and had been happy as only so big car in the drive when they reached Tangley, and Heather was conscious of a great relief and disappointment. She had not wished to meet Bruce, and yet it hurt to know that he and Vilette were still out together.

"Here comes Priddy," said Caesar. Priddy came from the kitchen. "Is everyones out?" Heather asked.

"All but Miss Vilette—I think she's up in her room. Miss Heather."

"And Mr. Logan?"

"He's gone," Priddy said rather grimly. "Went soon after lunch and took Mr. Bobbie with him."

"Bobbie with upstairs. Bobbie would be in disgrace with Vilette —she wished she had warned him to be more tactful. She knocked on her sister's door. "Vilette, are you there?" There was no answer, she turned the handle and entered, to find Vilette lying on her bed on the bed, smoking furiously. "Isn't it about time you were up and at home," Heather said.

"Stayed at home!" Vilette echoed. "I never had the chance to do anything else. I should like to wring Bobbie's neck," she added viciously.

Heather made no comment, and her sister went on. "All lunch time he pestered Bruce with questions about motors and rubbish of that sort, till at last Bruce simply had to offer to take him for a run in the car, and they just 'eek, that's all."

She tried to laugh, but it was not very successful. "Hardly the way for a love-sick swain to behave, is it?" she asked bitterly.

"Bruce, Bobbie, he's coming back of course—they'll be in to tea. I expect. Don't be so upset, dear." "I'm not upset." Vilette jabbed the stub of a cigarette into the ash tray and lit another.

"I'm so sorry to mind," she said. "But I do. He left a bit the same—but in the least like he was in South Africa or on the boat. He treats me just as if I were you, or some one that didn't count."

Heather winced.

Thankful she asked, "Was the lunch all right? I told Priddy to be very careful."

"Oh, yes, it was all right, I suppose—I didn't eat much—I was too fed-up." She stared up at the ceiling, her pretty face set in hard lines. "I suppose I'm getting paid for, that's what it is," she said. I know I've flirted and—and all that. I was bored to tears—horribly unkind—but it wasn't any use pretending when I didn't care two-pence about him, and now—when I do care—" she stopped, and to Heather's distress she flung down the cigarette and turned her face into the pillows. "I wish I were dead," she said in a stifled voice.

Heather sat down beside her, but somehow, although she longed to comfort, she could find no words, or caresses, and there was a long silence.

"Don't you think you're making yourself unhappy about nothing?" Heather finally asked gently. "I am sure Bruce would not hurt you for anything in the world."

Vilette raised a flushed face. "He doesn't even consider me," she retorted. "Oh, I know! he just drove off with Bobbie and left me standing on the steps looking like an idiot."

Heather checked a little smile. "It won't do any good to be so upset," she said sensibly. "They'll be back directly, and if you let them see that you're angry with them—"

"Angry!" Vilette sat up again. "I'm not angry! I'm miserable! I never had a moment alone with Bruce—and the worst of it all was that he seemed almost because you were not here! I suppose he wanted a chaperon so that he wouldn't be compromised," she added bitterly.

"That's foolish, Vilette," and now Heather took her hand "Don't be silly darling—Treat him as you treat all your other admirers—They would do anything in the world for you, and Bruce—"

She raised her head suddenly, listening. "That's the car," she said.

Heather went to the window just as it turned in at the open gate, with Bobbie at the wheel, and Bruce, looking very serious—

ROLLED IN AGONY THROUGH INDIGESTION

A Nurse's experience

"Nurses know more than ordinary people about indigestion, then why shouldn't I? I wasn't until Nurse D. W., of S...., tried Mandrex Bread. Research found the food lasting relief for severe indigestion.

"I have suffered for years from Indigestion. From a very severe form of Indigestion. Pains in the chest I have called in agony for hours, beat double with pain, yet not daring to move for fear of getting worse.

"My sister persuaded me to try a box of Mandrex Bread Powder. I bought one and I would not have believed that just a single dose would have had so satisfactory an effect. It soothed me at once, and I swallowed it, and gradually all pain went."

Even if your stomach trouble is as bad as this Nurse's you can look for quick relief to Mandrex Bread Powder. Obtain the one with the signature "ALEX. C. MACLEAN" on the bottle. 76c.

New York, March 4 (CP)—Publishers (MacMillan Company) went statistical today concerning Margaret Mitchell's "Gone With the Wind", to mark publication next Tuesday of the 1,000,000th copy of the book and here is what they came up with!

"Gone With the Wind" printed would have required 32 square miles of paper or 1,600 tons.

Eleven tons of ink were used. If spread out on end in a single strip, pages from all printings would extend 92,000 miles or almost 3 3-4 times around the earth at the equator.

"SUFFERED SIX YEARS WITH CONSTIPATION"

"For six years I suffered with constipation and I decided to try ALL-BRAN. I have been eating it once a day for about four years, and it has certainly done the work," Mrs. Herman Futrell (address on request).

Tests prove that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is safe and effective for correcting common constipation.

Within the body, ALL-BRAN absorbs twice its weight in water, and gently urges nature's cleansing and protective action. It also furnishes vitamin B to tone the intestines, and iron for the blood.

Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily, either as a cereal with milk or cream, or in cooked dishes. Three times daily for severe cases. You'll thrill at how far better than habit-forming pills and drugs. ALL-BRAN is sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London.

BRITISH TAXPAYER RESIGNED TO HEAVY TAX

Rearmament Process Step to Disarmament, Is Belief of Government

Government Has Never Hesitated to Call For Necessary Sacrifices

MAY HALT BUILDING

Less Suicidal Way of Ending Fears Is His Hope

(By George Hambleton)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, March 6.—(CP Cable)—The British taxpayer is resigned to the worst but is still looking for the best.

Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, it is now hoped, may be able to meet coming Budget demands without heavy increases in taxation. This is possible for two reasons:

(1)—£60,000,000 ($400,000,000) of borrowed money is to be used to finance the May five year plan.

(2)—Industrial recovery is increasing the yield of existing taxes.

Increases Over Total Estimates
Estimates for Civil and Revenue Departments, with the three defence services, total, approximately £520,000,000. This, exclusive of borrowed money represents an apparent increase over last year's estimates of the expiring year of around £40,000,000.

The apparent increase, however, is partially due to changes made in last year's Budget in regard to the road fund. Then the adjustment is made, the net increase to be raised from taxes drops to about £16,500,000.

Gross expenditure in the financial year 1937-38 for the Navy, Army, Ordnance and Air Forces will be ... (Continued on page 10)

Why the Weather?

By Mayor A. H. Thiessen, Science Student and Meteorologist

Air temperatures depend upon several factors, however:

The air is warmed very slightly by heat radiated from the sun, but it gets its heat mainly by contact with the heated ground. The warmed air rises and allows the cooler air to take its place and so there never atmosphere becomes heated. A dry sandy surface is the hottest one surface is the wood.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, March 6 (CP)—Pressure is high over the Northwest Territories and the great part of the west where it is fair while shallow disturbances are centred over Manitoba and over the Lake Erie region. MISTRESS OF ROBES APPOINTED BY QUEEN

London, March 6 (CP)—The Duchess of Northumberland, widow of the eighth duke and mother of the present unmarried head of the great Percy family, today was appointed mistress of the robes to Queen Elizabeth.

The duchess, who is in India, is expected to return in time for the coronation May 12, when she will walk behind the Queen and her train-bearers, attended by her own page. Her principal duties are to attend the Queen at state functions.

The duchess was married to the eighth duke in 1911 when he returned as governor of Canada after serving a term as aide-de-camp to the Governor General, Earl Grey.

The last holder of the position was the Duchess of Devonshire, daughter of one former Governor-General of Canada—the Marquess of Lansdowne—and wife of another, who was mistress of the robes to Queen Mary for many years.

The position of mistress of the robes is the highest appointment in the queen's household.

To the end of a Queen Regnant—as Queen Victoria was—it is the only office among the household appointments which carries sufficient political flavor to require a change, if it asked for with a change of government.

Proposal Made of Mayors of Ontario at Brantford

The Ontario Mayors' Association unanimously passed a resolution to this effect at the concluding session of their two-day convention here yesterday. The resolution was included in the report of the committee on finance which was presented by Chairman William Morgan, K.C., of Hamilton.

Robbins of Toronto meets the provincial government regarding the provincial government's policy of taking over the full cost of education assuming the municipalities' share of Old Age Pensions and Mothers' Allowances.

Waving a printed copy of the resolution, Mayor Robbins jumped to his feet and told the other mayors that Toronto would not be a party to any such resolution.

Isolation Way Urged by Mail

London, Mar. 6 (CP)—The Rothermere Press renewed its campaign today for a policy of isolation.

The only safe course for Britain, said the Daily Mail, was one of rigorous isolation, cutting free from the kind of "entangling alliances Geneva".

Britain has no concern in whatever happens in Austria, Czechoslovakia, Morocco, Abyssinia, Lithuania, Danzig, Memel or Yugoslavia," the press peer's principal organ asserted.

"They are neither singly nor collectively worth the bones of a British grenadier. A great war over any of them would spell the finish ... (Continued on page 10)

PARTY PRESERVES TODAY DENIED TO DR. A. D. ROBERTS

Premier Hepburn in Scathing Denunciation Reads Member Out of Party

BLACKMAIL CHARGED

Alleged Dr. Roberts Used Position to Obtain Contract

Toronto, March 6.— (CP)—Doors to party councils of political dens were closed today to Dr. A. D. Duncan Roberts, ousted from Liberal ranks at a dramatic session of the legislature.

While party indicated the Sault Ste. Marie member would not be welcomed at the Conservative caucus supported, Dr. Roberts is expected Monday to join Sam Jacobs (C.C.F.), member for Hamilton East, in lonely legislative exile as members of the party caucus scorned.

In cold and calculated terms, Premier Mitchell Hepburn today read Dr. Roberts out of the Liberal Party after accusing him of "blackmail" and of conduct unbecoming a member of the Legislature.

The Sault member was accused of asking for funds from Algoma Steel Company into giving him a job on the company payroll in consideration for the Hepburn-Roberts Iron Ore Bill".

The Bill now before the Legislature would provide a bonus of $1.02 a ton on Canadian ore from which foreign substances have been removed.

In the Legislature Thursday, Dr. Roberts had accused Premier Hepburn of "gross misconduct and autocracy" because announcement of the Hepburn Bill was made through Sir James Dunn, President of Algoma Steel, instead of through the Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Mines.

Hepburn Makes Charges

In answering this, Premier Hepburn angrily charged Dr. Roberts with having betrothed of Algoma Steel's engineer's office at Sault Ste. Marie with patronage matters after the government was forced to move it to Blind River. He also said Dr. Roberts had used his prestige as a member to get a "blackmail" contract for cutting of 140 miles from the Soo and had then farmed out the contract to a non-resident doctor.

Mr. Hepburn read telegram from Sir James Dunn in which he discharged Dr. Roberts had asked for appointment of Dr. Roberts' son to the Steel Company in consideration of his support of the Iron Ore Bill. "I never knew of this matter Monday yesterday." He saw nothing wrong in his suggestion to Sir James Dunn he he named medical officer. The suggestion was made in the interests of other parties and was not understood.

The 34-year-old former Mayor of Sault Ste. Marie pleaded with the Premier to accept his word against that of Sir James Dunn. He said he appreciated Sir Roberts' party discipline was an oral one. There was no contract. It had been promised by the Minister of Mines.

Ingratitude Hurts Premier

It was the ingratitude of it all which stung the Premier, Mr. Hepburn said announcing Dr. Roberts would be moved in the Opposition benches. He would purge the membership of their association with Dr. (Continued on page seven)

Juror Refuses to Vote, Judge MacKay Forced To Order New Trial

Fails to Discuss Case And to Agree With Other Jurors Stating His Mind Already Made up — Precedent For Canadian Courts

Kingston, Ont., March 6.—(CP)—Failure of one juror to discuss the case in the jury room early today forced Mr. Justice Keiller MacKay to dismiss the jury and put the murder trial of Charles Crosby over until the next Assizes.

Crosby, negro convict at Kingston Penitentiary, was on trial for the fatal stabbing of Guard John McCormick at the Penitentiary last July 11.

"I am very sorry," Mr. Justice Mackay said, "that one of our citizens should assume such an attitude, but I am powerless". R. N. Anglin foreman of the jury, told His Lordship one of the jurymen failed to agree and would not even discuss the case, saying his mind was already made up.

The jury has already been taken and others may also," Mr. Justice MacKay continued. "To the seven jurors who gave honest and careful consideration, I express my thanks. To the 12th I have nothing to say but did care to say anything."

C. L. Snyder, Crown Counsel, said he had never come across a case, when one juror failed to discuss the case in the jury room. On that Juror's shoulders would fall the responsibility of thousands of dollars of expense for the trial, Mr. Synder declared.

All evidence was completed early yesterday and the addresses and charges made to the jury at an early hour. Twice the jury foreman returned to tell the court an agreement could not be reached. The jury was discharged after the third attempt to reach an agreement.

Throughout the trial the adjournments interrupted proceedings by Mr. Justice MacKay were brief. The Justice, At different times he maintained judicial calmness while being held against him but Mr. Justice Mackay assur'd him of a fair trial

J. R. MacNicol Declares Unemployment Not Passing Phase

Ottawa, Mar. 6 (CP)—Debate on the budget amendment on unemployment which has pursued a devious or less placid course in the House of Commons since Thursday continued up to the hour of adjournment last night with no certain indication of when the vote might be reached.

A great deal of the ground will be covered again when debate opens on the main motion of Finance Minister Dunning that the House go into committee to consider the budget resolutions.

Montreal, March 6.—(CP)—Agnes Macphail, United Farmers of Ontario-Labor member of Parliament for East York, said the women's group here last night she wished she could be a big province "to join in the fight" for a Quebec franchise for women.

Miss Macphail said that without a vote one isn't a personality, "and nothing at all". She then went on to say that if I was on the province, nothing would stay me until the vote came.

"I don't know how you endure it," she said, adding there was a lot of self-respecting men "unable to assert one's self as a person."

The outspoken Parliamentarian also said "the Monarchial Show" would take place in London, May 12, at Coronation of King George VI was one of the few things in the world which failed to excite her.

Th'd Coronation, she said, wherein the "monarch is the only incident in a long procession of shrinks into insignificance beside the pomp less of the civilization.

Miss Macphail was also told another Women's Group Sweden was interested in ideas and work than we are" she said "though they are not over-careful about their appearance and less interested in dress than women here."

FLOOD CONTROL UNDERTAKING IS URGED BY GOVT.

Flooding on Moira And Other Rivers Mentioned in House

WOULD AID JOBLESS

J. B. MacNicol, M.P. of Toronto Proposes Plan to Aid Unemployment

Flooding in Moira River and in other rivers in Canada became an issue in the House of Commons on Friday when unemployment was being discussed.

Mr. John B. MacNicol (Con. Toronto-Davenport) as reported in the Globe and Mail favored the adoption of a definite national policy by Canada in order to cure peculiarly unemployment with the specific suggestion of several million dollars of expenditure on a flood control program for the Moira, Trent, Thames, Saugeen and other rivers in Ontario with the proposal advanced in today's Globe and Mail that the amount be in the House of Commons by John A. Cross, Toronto (Toronto Davenport).

Unemployment, Mr. MacNicol urged upon the Government, was not simply a passing phase, and it was time that some permanent policy should be evolved to cope with it. Mr. Cowser, particularly, rather dire effects upon Canadian industry, particularly the huge nickel industry; as soon as present world-wide expenditures upon armaments should cease. "Everyone in this House knows," the Davenport member declared, "that the prosperity in the nickel business has been a result largely of the war scare in Europe. That expansion will fall off when the war is over, if it does come."

Dr. Cowser said the broad munitions background to the existing employment situation. Mr. MacNicol strongly urged a policy of spending to end unemployment upon the Government. He had travelled extensively in the States, he told the House and had been greatly impressed by the measures which the President Roosevelt was taking. Particularly the TCC dealing with the Tennessee Valley scheme, both of which he believed capable of adaption to Canadian conditions.

The Moira River at Belleville, the Ganaska River at Port Hope, the Trent River at Galt, the Thames River at London and the Saugeen River at Port Elgin all have annually caused damage which would not only have met, but defrayed by, such a plan.

"I hope other nations will not be unmindful of the determination of the old, proud nation to defend itself, even to the end," Sir Thomas said.

Business Revival Real

Britain's prosperity is not precarious but due to the rearmament period but to a genuine business revival that resulted from the country recovering her position as the leading industrial nation in the world, he affirmed.

Normal Flow of Trade Essential, Says Inskip Stressing Arms Plan

Britain Determined to Defend Self "to Very End"

MUST DEFEND SELVES

Scarcity of Steel Factor in Present Defence Program

LONDON, March 6.—(CP Cable) —The attention of the world was called today to the determination of Britain "to the very end," to defend itself, "even to the very end."

Sir Thomas Inskip, Minister of Defence co-ordination, issued that call last night as he and the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Neville Chamberlain, speaking on different platforms, outlined the effect of the $7,500,000,000 rearmament programme would have on her immediate future.

Inskip suggested erection of new buildings and reconstruction of old ones might well be halted for two or three years, due to shortage of steel, while armaments were being built up.

Sacrifice to Come

Chamberlain, stated he could not say the taxpayers had come to the end of their sacrifices. He referred to diversion of treasury surpluses to defence purposes and "a position of common sense and common humanity" made compulsory by stark economy.

Speaking at Newcastle-on-Tyne, Sir Thomas declared there was no intention of permitting the rearmament program to interfere without control in the normal conduct of trade.

Such interference would be both foolish and disastrous, he declared, urging businessmen to go ahead foreign orders "which are the lifeblood of the nation". Nothing could be more short-sighted than to concentrate attention on the armament program which at the would leave Britain high and dry.

Delay Considered Unhealthy

"But "it would be no bad thing," he added, "if consideration of the construction of buildings should be postponed.

Contractors for the next two or three years would be busy on the government program. At the end of that time, were construction postponed meanwhile, a few of necessitative contracts might result.

Everyone, he said, might feel the folly and wickedness of rearmament. But who could doubt that if Britain remained unarmed, Britain would not only have met, but deserved her fate.

"I hope other nations will not be unmindful of the determination of the old, proud nation to defend itself, even to the end," Sir Thomas said.

TREMORS IN PEACE DURING 125 YEARS STIR DIPLOMACY

New Book Recalls Several Disputes Between British Empire and United State While Boundary Stayed Treaties

NEW YORK (CP)—In a book described in the New York Times as "a contribution of the first order to American diplomatic history" James Morton Callahan tells the story of Canada—American relations since the Revolutionary War.

Under the title "American Foreign Policy in Canadian Relations" Professor Callahan, a native of Indiana in research work at Johns Hopkins University emphasizes that though peace has reigned along the frontier for a century and a quarter, it has not been all "one grand, sweet song."

The first disturbance noted was the fear in Canada, in the years immediately following the peace of 1783, that the fur trade would suffer as settlement of the new American West advanced. Prof. Callahan sketches interestingly the course of the "conflict between the steel trap and the plough."

In 1794, Randolph, U. S. Secretary of State, was seeking "a discreet and penetrating secret agent" who would forward information on special messages from Montreal. Later, in 1854, when a reciprocity treaty was being opposed in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, a United States secret agent with a credit of $5,000 spent more than $50,000 "to moderate the opposition and keep the public united in a right state," of which amount only about $14,000 was reimbursed by a grateful government.

Professor Callahan traces the recurrent outbreak of agitation in the United States for the annexation of Canada. These revived strongly in the war of 1812 but were dampened after several military setbacks had taught the American government it had been "too sanguine" about Americans "destiny". They reached a climax after the Civil War during the Alabama claims controversy with Britain. The United States then "contemplated a policy of annexation of all British North America as compensation for Am-

TRAIN TO CARRY TUG IN PIECES

River Craft Being Built in Quebec for Service in Mackenzie Territory

SOREL, Que. (CP)—Two barge craft of the push-tug type are under construction here for use on the Mackenzie, Athabasca and Slave Rivers, 2,000 miles away in Canada's far north where many of the river bends are so sharp as to be impossible to pull a scow around corners.

Construction of the two "tugs" writes an interesting page for shipbuilding in Canada. Similar craft are in use on the Nile in Egypt. Hitherto river navigation in the Canadian north has been in old type wooden stern wheelers. The new boats will be of the steel twin-screw tunnel type, permitting very shallow draft. The one designed for use on the Athabasca and Slave Rivers draws only 31 inches when loaded.

After an extraordinary portage hauls of a continental, the boats will go into service this summer carrying supplies to the mining camps of the Northwest Territories and bringing back radium concentrates and other ores. This will mark another step in the northern march of civilization. The boats will be equipped with refrigeration chambers, making it possible for the first time to transport fresh meat and dairy products in quantity for regular distribution.

Or welded steel construction, the boats will be assembled here just as they will be launched 2,000 miles away. Workmen will then saw them into 30-foot sections—so that you would cut a cake. Thus they will be shipped on railway cars to railhead waterways and carried by freight and tractor to Fort McMurray.

Twenty-three passengers and a crew of ten will find accommodation on the first "tug" when it goes in. Its service on the Athabasca and Slave Rivers between Fort McMurray and Fitzgerald will begin. The vessel will be 97 feet long and 30 feet broad. It will afford cabin accommodation for twenty passengers and dock facilities for the others. The second boat will ply between Fort Smith and Fort Norman on the Mackenzie River and Great Slave Lake.

Of significance to the north country and to the mining industry of the Dominion is the fact these boats will make it possible to bring out three times the quantity of radium concentrate that can now be transported to railhead. Plans are being constructed for the Northern Transportation Company, the new owned subsidiary of Eldorado Gold Mines Limited, Eldorado radium plant is at Labtee Point on Great Bear Lake.

GIRLS RETRIEVE LOST GOOD NAME

Winnipeg Writer Finds Many Go Astray But Most Fresh Start

WINNIPEG, (CP) —Girls today are sowing their wild oats even as boys do, and staging a come-back to their places as sober and right-ous citizens, declares Beatrice D'Ard in The Free Press.

"Whether through the tendency of modern society, the assistance of social workers or through their own brazenness, it is undeniable that we will girls today can turn their backs on a quick fling and part, and marry happily and well.

"Mrs. Grace Gordon Strange, the juvenile court, estimates that 25 per cent. of the girls who have passed through the court in the past few years have completely reinstated themselves and are either married or doing well in jobs. "We regard that as a very hopeful percentage," the gentlewoman said.

"Never one to condemn those for whom she does work unreservedly, Mrs. Patterson yet admits that the younger girls of today are a tougher proposition than their elder sisters. They are more wilful, more brazen, and intellectually more alert than were those of a few years ago. But they are generally more loyal and courageous in their own way.

"Mrs. Patterson could not quite diagnose the attitude of the younger generation. "Girls of 15, 16 and 14 are very knowing these days. They come into the office with their fingernails, faces all done up, and very self-possessed. Very often they are in the younger sisters of girls who have already gone through the courts, but the latter are never almost more than the older ones did in their early days.

"A greater degree of drinking among girls is one of the factors in juvenile delinquency today, the lady son finds, but there is very little use of drugs among the younger girls.

"That is one of the evils youngsters are fairly free from," she said.

"Thirty-six months' matter. The eternal five drives the young girls to all sorts of lengths to satisfy finery. Petty shop-lifting, particularly at the nearby stores, is common, is a major pastime for a great many girls, and the more daring get away with it. They are so light-fingered they frequently don't get caught.

"Mothers cannot help but know their girls do not come by this finery honestly when they are in poor circumstances. Sometimes they are the victims of racketeers, but more often they are so dominated by the mother that they dare not question. Parents, especially the parents of new Canadians, have a tremendous hold on many of them in the ways of this country, are losing their grip on the family."

"Nor does this state of affairs apply to the new Canadian alone. Girls in every part of the city and boys as well have a way of taking the bit in their teeth and going their own pace these days."

ABERHART'S SITUATION.

The dream of the Social Crediter in Alberta seems almost dissipated after about more than a year of attempts to get the Aberhart plan under way. Today, the emotions of the people are changed from the day they went to the polls and cheerfully elected Mr. Aberhart who foresaw the payment of monthly dividends to every person in the province, man, woman and child. The result has been a disappointment to the people of that province who supported the change of government but it comes as no surprise to those who were not dazzled by the glitter of promised dividends.

The future seems less in the hands of Mr. Aberhart now who threatens to resign and at the same time says that Social Credit is still a force, requiring only opportunity to prove its value in the state.

Many men have proposed Utopias where the evils of the body politic would disappear. In all ages there have been prophets of such eras, such golden ages, but these have not yet come.

The hard-thinking and reasonable man who has worked hard for his living cannot but feel with the leaders of politics that such results as Mr. Aberhart tried to produce are no possibility of realization. To them it seems natural that Alberta like other sections of the country will have to walk the road built on experience and the ideals of government which have proven sound in the past.

In the United States for some time there has been much talk along somewhat similar economic lines as the Aberhart effort but this plan has never been seriously taken up in that country.

WILL BIRTHRATE RESPOND IN ITALY?

While the powers are talking of rearmament and the building up of navies on a peace program of might and energy, Il Duce points to the need of more births. Italy like other lands has a falling birthrate. Mussolini would place heavy burdens on the unmarried and the childless parents. Under the plan heads of large families are to receive preference in employment and wage increases in proportion to the number of children, because on the large families will fall in time of crisis the greater burden of the state such as contributions of men. Salaries will be fixed for families. Loans will be made to promote marriage and insurance provided for young workmen to induce them to marry is contemplated.

No doubt there are some things in the Mussolini plan many would like to see realized—as to rising birthrate—but the dread thought of war somewhere in the future, even distant, as the fates of things yet to be run, must weight upon Italian minds as well as up on the minds of the people of other nationalities. Inducements so far, for the promotion of more births appear to be successful, for the rate of births is falling. That is a general world condition. There is a general belief that the drop in the birthrate has economic causes and not artificial like those of Il Duce cannot prevent the increasing tide.

A growth of population by 17,000,000 in thirteen years is given as the absolute necessity without which Italy cannot continue existence as a great power by 1950, Italians have been told.

With the strain which Italy is enduring to build up the army, efforts which no doubt will lepse for many decades the marks of economic burdens, it seems doubtful if even Mussolini can succeed as where King Canute failed to hold back the sea by a mere wish or order.

The world's greatest developments in invention and science have made possible wasting greater populations than could have existed in other days, but there is no certainty that continued progress along these lines can not be maintained. A gradually diminishing world population has actually been forecast. This is just the opposite of what might have been expected.

Meanwhile we are witnessing the greatest political drama the average men and women of the world have ever seen for the world plays more openly than it did in ancient days when there were no newspapers, no radio, no telegraph, no flying machine, no steamboat. Today the people see the world's leaders manoeuvring on the great checker or chess board of the world. They see history in the making and in this picture Mussolini's prizes for large families will be noted. This is a world where "alive" then is the day when Rome's imperial eagles flew in most corners of the earth.

To make anything very terrible, obscurity seems, in general, to be necessary. When we know the full extent of any danger and can accustom our eyes to it, a great deal of apprehension vanishes.—Edmund Burke.

TO A WIFE IN THE STUDY.

Atop the desk, the cornobs in their rack,
Pitted with charcoal, yellow-lustered twins,
Have trapped your fancy; you display the knack
Of understanding old tobocco tins.

But there concessions stop. The blotter's shade,
The scribbled notes that overrun the pad,
The scissors, lacking barely half a blade,
The scratchy pen—all somehow make you mad.

You tolerate the books but not the taste,
The map I made you never quite endure,
While index fingers don't belong in paste
And clippings do in baskets, you are sure.

Strange, darling, that for every captious minute
I like the study better when you're in it.

THE BIRDS FLY SOUTH WHEN WINTER WINDS BLOW—at least most of them do, although we are told that some species of birds spend the winter in the depths of forests sheltered from the winds and close to food which nourishes and satisfies. Some humans fly, walk or ride south every winter and consider they are beating the weather man, as well as the coal man, and other winter afflictions. However, there are many sporting natures who think so much of winter sports that they stay north for the holidays, coasting and skiing, and oh, what a kick they get out of it. Such a red-blooded back-to-nature individual is Dr. Charles Greene, of New York City, who has just finished an enjoyable winter vacation of two weeks at Salmon Lake in northern Hastings. This gentleman has a summer cottage there and enjoys the fishing and the summer associations. He has made his cottage cosy and habitable for winter use and for two weeks he has been having the time of his life, for winter is not such a fickle jade at Salmon Lake as it is further south and there was plenty of snow and ice and good fishing through the ice. He stayed just long enough to get the monoxide gas of the metropolis out of his system and put on a few pounds of firm flesh from the gorgeous meals of fish and bacon and wheat at occasional Indian might bring in. He motored the entire distance from New York to Salmon Lake and return and in turning his face southward he remarked that he had had a glorious time, was feeling one hundred per cent. better physically and mentally, and his winter vacation just increased his appetite for the summer vacation to come—also at Salmon Lake.

JUST TRY A WINTER VACATION SOMETIME IN THE BUSH. No flies, or heat, or rain to bother. Wood right to keep one's fire going, the hot ole puts on from the food which outdoor people eat for strength and warmth and to satisfy that keen and ample appetite which the great open spaces engender. You eat marvellously food which would not tempt you a thome, and Nature helps with a splendid digestion—you get hard and keen and forget the petty things which annoyed at home and become a part of the great universe that silently acknowledges God in every branch, and blade, and hill, and glade, river and lake.

SOME FOLKS WHO DO NOT BELONG TO ANYTHING IN PARTICULAR are wont to ask cynically what do the service clubs do of any good to anyone but themselves? I generally know that the Rotary Club is doing a wonderful work for crippled children, besides other activities; the Kiwanis Club helps the work of the Victorian Nurses, besides equipping playgrounds for children to escape the perils of the motorized streets, The Kinsmen, a newer club with younger members, have fixed their principal philanthropy on better sight for the children—correcting defects of the eyes in children before they become chronic. Many children suffer from eye defects which can be remedied if taken in time and the Kinsmen of Belleville are to be congratulated on their seeing that these children do not face life handicapped with defective vision when these defects will readily yield to expert treatment. This is a worthy endeavour and the Kinsmen will appreciate information tending to reveal cases which need attention.

JIM BRADDOCK, Champion heavyweight pugilist of the world, says he will stop Joe Louis in the sixth round of their contemplated go in Chicago. That is providing, Jimmy, me boy, that you are there or thereabouts at the time. Sounds like the old ballyhoo for building up million-dollar gates through free advertising.

Parliament Hill Happenings

By Wilfrid Eggleston

Charles L. Bishop, the dean of the resident English correspondents on Parliament Hill, was the bonde acquaintance with Ottawa as a secretary for Wilfrid Laurier says could turn out a rich volume of parliamentary anecdotes if he felt so disposed.

One of "Charley's" earliest political scalps came when he was a boy of ten or eleven. He made a sudden, unexpected call on the boys will do —that he would become a great criminal lawyer. Having read in the press that a bill to abolish flogging was being enacted, he wrote the then Premier, Sir John A. Macdonald, Thompson (later for a brief period in his life dramatic critic of the Toronto Globe) asking him for a copy. Sir John Thompson was evidently interested in the youthful request. He sent the bill with unaccustomed courtesy, that the new Code was not yet available to the public, but that he was sending on his own copy. This duly arrived, was treasured by the aspiring young criminal, and for that matter still is.

Among the scores of yarns O.L.B. relates, one comes to my mind recently. Some years ago a story appeared in one of the Ottawa papers in a series of sensational articles about "Scrutator".

It was during this period that one of the telegraph clerks drew Charley aside with great mystery one afternoon and whispered:

"I say, have you an idea who this fellow Scrutator is?"

x x x x

From the same source comes a couple of stories about Mr. Blake.

The first relates to the period when Midnight was the hour at which the Jewish wit from Montreal had to file his cable. Mr. Blake's constituent sentiments, although within the Liberal fold, and Meighen got up one day to ask the Premier:

"Holding the views that he does, am surprised that my honourable friend does not cross the floor of the House and join us on this side."

Mr. Blake's reply was classic.

Quick as a flash, Sam Jacobs replied: "One at a time, Sir, one at a time."

The other goes back to the days after the fire which burned down the old Parliament Buildings in 1916, and made it necessary to hold all sessions in the Victoria Museum, which had not been built as a legislative chamber and was draughty at times.

One of the members on the Opposition side was complaining bitterly about the chilly air.

P. E. Blake, then Minister of Public Works, evidently a very liberal-minded man, fudging from what followed, and that he was responsible for the heating of the building, and that he had to be could tell the banker was doing a good job.

"The Minister forgets that we are sitting in the cool shades of Opposition," interjected S. W. Jacobs.

"That is the first time that I have heard any suggestion that one side of the Chamber was any cooler than the other," responded the Minister, who had quite missed the point.

Recalling the mild row which developed some time ago over the fact that Dr. Malcolm Grierson (General) had written to an author commending a book, and the use which was being made of the letter by the publisher, I remember an amusing episode in the Parliamentary career of the ex-letter vice-regal tenancies at Rideau Hall.

An advertising man from Toronto succeeded in obtaining permission to publish in full pages in Maple Leaf Excellencies for a well-known brand of soap. The idea was to demonstrate that any use made of the fact was to be in the most discreet and modest fashion.

Picture the consternation of the staff at Rideau Hall when many issues of the widest circulation contained full pages of the most flamboyant advertisements with Their Excellencies and the soap in question.

Under the circumstances a little consultation was necessary. The letters part of value, and actions were accordingly taken to prevent the use of the offending magazines arriving at Government House.

Perhaps Their Excellencies were not habitual readers of the Canadian Parliamentary Review, but I know, the staff managed to keep out of the "soup" for the event.

I don't think I have ever told in this connection the story ascribed to Tom King, now a veteran newspaper correspondent in Ottawa. Recollection, has stuck in my mind for a long time.

Tom accompanied one of the leaders in an election campaign, and in the course of their travels they came to some very out-of-the-way place where the local telegrapher was also the depot agent, expressman, postmaster and general store keeper. He was the general store. He had never handled 'press' in his life.

A speech was delivered there, and a couple of reporters, or so, had hooked on to the extended telegrapher. As Tom tells the story, when he got to the end of a couple of hours later, this dispatch was still coming into the local office at the rate of about ten words a day.

Arthur Meighen was coming down from Toronto on the night train not long ago, and met in the Pullman smoking car Mr. Ernest Lapointe, the Commons.

They proceeded to shake hands, and the member, who is by no means a straight razor, observed that the Conservative party had also employed one of the old-fashioned variety.

"I have a safety razor at home," the former prime minister admitted, "but it's like the pages in some text-ed. "But it's like the pages in some text-ed. "But it's like the pages in some text-ed. "But

Webb Miller, whose favourite hobby is the study of trees and flowers, birds and bees, was declined to have his by-line carried by newspapers all over the world. But he is as a reporter of the horrors of war that he is. In the last line of his book "I Found No Peace" he traces his career over 125,000 miles with 8,000 news stories typed to his credit. Born on a Michigan farm, he began to work on a Chicago paper in the days when Carl Sandburg, Harry Hansen, Floyd Dennis, Lowell Thomas and Ben Hecht were reporters on the morning and evening papers of Chicago. He later started as a foreign correspondent "free-lancing" in turbulent Mexico during the search for the Mexican bandit leader in 1916. Since then he has written of news in France and England, Morocco, India, Ireland and Ethiopia. John Gunther has said of his book, "It is as a straight adventure story that 'I Found No Peace' should be read. Definitely it belongs on the shelf with the other newspaper autobiographies."

The story of a laboratory set up in the African jungles is told by Grace Crile, wife of the noted surgeon, Dr. George Crile, in her book "Skyways To a Jungle Laboratory." This African adventure tells first of the swift journey from London to Tanganyika by air and then of the research work at the laboratory. Dr. Crile has made a study of wild animals "to bring to light some useful information bearing upon diseases suffered by man." With the help of a small but capable staff, all manner of specimens were studied. The work was exacting and dangerous. Throughout the book there is amusing comment on animal neighbours and the photographs taking by members of the party are beautiful.

Herbert Childs tells of forty years of adventure in "the world's last frontier" in his book "El Jimmy, the Outlaw of Alaska." The story of this biography is one Jimmy McGuire who left England at the age of eighteen and lived in Patagonia during the succeeding forty years. He became a horse-breaker but getting into trouble with the authorities, he fled and for years lived with the Indians and married an Indian wife. Childs in his story of El Jimmy, tells the strange tale of Patagonia just after civilization, and the lawless lives of miners and gaug-leaders. Reviewers predict a flood of wild, story-tellers and tred men into El Jimmy's delightful, if strenuous, life in this book.

New and congenial ways of supplementing your present income through spare time activities are suggested by Pauline Cleaver in her book, "Make a Job For Yourself." As well as giving advice, Miss Cleaver describes experiences of many people who have discovered new earning abilities. The author is a well-known counsellor on personal problems both as a lecturer and on radio programs.

Advice to the Lovelorn

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

What Should Be Said In the Matrimonial Deal?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I work fourteen hours a day to my husband's seven, and still he is under the impression that I can lead a life of ease. I get up in the morning at half past six to get the breakfast, do innumerable chores before my lord and master gets it in bed and start.

Then I get the children ready for school and wash their tumbrels which they take with them. After that there is the house to get in order, and it has six rooms and a bath. I do my marketing and attend to any necessary errands. We don't have a car, and these errands have to be attended to by bus.

When I get home I darn, mend and sew, making all the clothes for my two little daughters. Ages six and seven. About 3:30 my children come home from school and they're usually hungry and want something to eat. I'm then sandwiched in and if it's very cold make them hot cocoa. Then I start in to cook the dinner. In summer, there is dishwashing and a general straightening up. Sometimes have a little play time before they go to bed. I don't ask them to help with the dishes, because they're too young.

My husband wouldn't think of lowering his dignity. And while I have a roof over my head, enough to eat and simple clothes to wear, still I can't see where the life of luxury comes in.

Just a Wife.

Some of the best housewives in the world have this delusion, that a wife who cooks, scrubs, washes, irons, mends and sews passes the day in pleasant idleness, about the most difficult trying task is that of reading a novel. They don't mean to be unjust or unkind; they just the masculine point of view of that particular kind of husband.

I'm not handing out any platitudes or palliatives to the hard-worked wife about her thankless lot. In only hoping this may meet the eye of some husbands such as this lady has, and that they'll lend a hand at the dishes and not be too tired to play with the children.

INFORMAL WEDDING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be married in the near future. The wedding will be a small informal one with about forty relatives and close friends of both families.

1. What type of invitation could be sent .... probably one written by my mother to our close relatives and friends. Would you be kind enough to give us an example of what should be written?

2. My sister is to be my only attendant and there will be a best man. What is the order to pop up to the altar?

3. In a small service of this kind, is it appropriate for the girl's father to give her away?

4. The wedding is to take place at eight o'clock in the evening, and if there are invited to the girl's home, what food would be appropriate, besides a wedding cake? There will be about forty guests and it will not be convenient to seat them at a table.

M.

Yes, this is the best form of invitation for a small informal wedding. The invitation written by the mother of the bride-to-be, for whom she is the hostess. Like this:

Dear Mary,

Jane and Tom are to be married, at a small informal wedding, on Tuesday, the first of February, at eight o'clock in the evening, in ..... Church. We want very much to have you and Jack with us for the ceremony at the church, and directly after, at a small gathering of relatives and friends at our house. You will both come won't you? .....It will make us very happy if you do.

Dearest love to you and Jack

Cordially,

When they are given the signal that the procession is ready to start up the aisle, the clergyman, groom and best man enter at the front of the church. The clergyman enters first, then the groom and the best man. If there are to be ushers, they walk first in the procession, two by two. Then comes your sister, your only attendant, walking alone. Then you and your father. you at your father's right.

4. Yes, for any kind of wedding, small or large, formal or informal, in church or in a house, it is appropriate for the bride's father to present her in marriage.

4. The menu may be of the simplest kind: small assorted sandwiches, ice cream and small cakes or the wedding cake, coffee and punch. Or you might add a fruit salad and small hot rolls or biscuits. Or you might serve hot consommé with them sliced meat and salad, then the ice cream, cake, and coffee. Or you might serve chicken salad or lobster salad, or cream mushrooms, or chicken a la King, or lobster Newburg, with small hot rolls or biscuits. The ice cream may be served individual, in the form of wedding bells, hearts, rings, cupids, Cupid's arrows, or fruits and flowers. Accessories may be mints, bonbons, glace nuts, crystallized fruits and orange peel, frosted mint leaves, salted nuts, candied rose petals.

Bon Voyage

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. My husband and I are planning a trip to Bermuda, and as we have never made a sea voyage before, we have a little difficulty as to tipping .... just how much and to whom? As we are in moderate circumstances, this will mean so much. Sunday night dinner to dinner and for evening wear?

A.

1. The amounts one gives for tips depends on so many things ..... one's circumstances, one's inclination, the kind and amount of service one receives .... that, it is difficult to suggest exact amounts. But, in general, for a short cruise, one would give two or three dollars to the chief steward, two dollars to the table steward, two dollars to the cabin steward or stewardess (or one dollar to each, if you have both), a dollar to the bath steward, a dollar to the deck steward, and a dollar to the lounge or library steward if they give you service.

2. Yes, you may appropriately wear a Sunday evening dress to dinner and for evening wear.

Tall Girl is a Problem in The Home

By LISA GRENELLE

MILLICENT SAT slouched in one corner of the sofa looking very, very miserable and not uttering a word. She wasn't even listening to what her boy friend was saying to her. So obvious, indeed, was Millicent's lack of attentiveness and interest that the boy raised a eyebrow and a more appreciative audience, and Millicent was left alone with her pain, or her thoughts, or whatever it was that was absorbing her so.

Millicent, looking about the room gloomily, was measuring everyone's height against her own. She was taller than any of the girls; taller, too, than many of the boys. Why, she'd look silly dancing with any of them, except that tall one over by the mantel. And the others wouldn't want to dance with her. No boy wanted to dance with a girl taller than himself.

Was Frightened

And no boy did—but not because she was so tall. It was because Millicent didn't talk and she didn't dance and she never, never smiled. Besides, when the boys gradually asked Millicent to dance, she convinced if not unwillingly, certainly unenthusiastically; then they stepped all over their feet simply because she was frightened and sure that everyone was looking at her.

Most adolescent girls are upset and dismayed if they are taller than their mothers, but most adolescent boys are dismayed if they are short. A girl must be short, a boy tall; and if they aren't —oh, dear!

But there is a great deal of hope. That is, if the child is blessed with an intelligent, understanding parent.

So if you find your daughter growing and growing, and begin to suspect that she may be unusually tall begin at once to set up your defenses. In the first place, don't dress the poor child so as to accentuate her height. If she is not only tall but skinny, let her wear clothes that add breadth and detract from height. Of course, if she is not only tall but busty, then you have a problem.

Dress Her Simply

The only thing to do with the huge girl is to dress her as simply and inconspicuously as possible, and to teach her not to giggle or attract attention, to subdue her sisters and to be cheerful and responsive. Her morals must be carefully built up.

Point out to your tall daughter all the beautiful tall women on the stage, in books and on the screen. Impress upon her that they "She would be pretty, wouldn't she, if she were only a little taller?" Confidence than any other one thing. Then make your tall daughter realize that slouching does not really make her look tall, but simply less graceful. Let her realize, too, that while height is conspicuous, it can be conspicuous to her advantage as well as to her disadvantage. The beauty of a tall girl is more quickly noticed than the beauty of a short one.

COUNT BEARS as a major trimming for smart dresses. A charming frock of black crepe has the lower part of the skirt embroidered in the new Count Bear chicles. The hip-length fitted bodice has the circles in all-over design.

STRIKING SOUTH we find that net combined with taffeta is a popular mode. Pinkamint pink us used for a dance frock of diagonal-striped net with a very wide bow border of matching taffeta. The taffeta is also used for the jacket effect with flaring cutaway and ripped peplum and an upstanding collar accentuated by a bow.

HIDING AWAY from the sun causes many women to prefer brimmed hats. Mushroom brown is a charming model in dusty pink felt that has a flattering dipping brim and a bandeau of dusty brown with ears of matching felting ribbon for additional height. The dusty brown ribbon is used as a crown band, too.

AT HOME there is a demand for turbans of the Persian type. A new one is of light red velvet draped loose in the front, while another is in dark blue velvet with black antelope draped around the face.

NOT SO STARK and plain are some of the new tennis frocks. An Palm Springs model in fine faconne rayon has a tennis frock in white pique printed in large rose-and-blue dots and circles. The softly-full deep square, is trimmed with bright blue rick-rack braid, as is the hem of the full gored skirt.

STEPPING ASHORE from the cruise ship during the fair pick a pique dress in silk print suit. The twin jacket idea is well exemplified in a suit with jacket in dubonnet shade with chartreuse motifs, the skirt reversing the color scheme. The skirt is pleated from a shirred waist and high collar. The jacket is short, full, puffed sleeves and has an Ascot scarf of the skirt fabric.

Plenty of Rest And Fresh Air Curbs Fatigue

Writer Says Parents Should Help Her to Become Attractive

By HELEN FOLLETT

IT'S NOT only the worker who gets tired; the woman gets tired, too. Having no ambitions, she becomes bored with life and restless. Both types suffer from periods of exhaustion that are followed by beauty woes.

Remember the old rule — eight hours of work, eight hours of play, eight hours of sleep. That is the perfect arrangement. It is the right proportion of activity and relaxation, and there should be no fatigue. Eight hours of work are enough for a healthy person.

Fatigue creates toxins that have a depressing effect upon the spirits. Then what happens? Eyes lose sparkle, skin complexion is gone and steps lag.

Fresh air is an excellent tonic, Light exercise will pull one out of the doldrums. Sometimes reading in bed will set one right with the world and prepare one for refreshing slumber.

Maybe it isn't fair to members of the beauty class to harp on health, when they want to hear about demountable eye lashes and a new coiffure. But beauty is built on health; you can't get away from that fact. No tired crocus ever was an ever wore a beauty crown.

"It would appear from the week of debate that all the Social Credit and C.C.F. members will join Conservatives in voting for the amendment. Those voting against the motion will be under: Hon. Grote Stirling (Yonge-Yale), former Minister of National Revenue; Rev. Thos. L. Church (St. C. MacLeod); John R. MacNicol (Cons., Toronto-Northeast); Hon. Charles Ballantyne (Lib., Marquette); Q. R. Ellis (S. C., Kindersley); H. W. Winker (Lab.-Liagar); Hon. J. Earl Lawson (Cons., York South), former Minister of Railways and Canals; Charles Johnston (Lib., Bow River); Norman Lockyer (Cons., Hamilton); W. G. Fansher (Lib., Rosthern); and Maurice Lamonde (Lib., Labelle).

Farmers "Wise and Tranied"

Highlights of the day's discussion included a heated defence of Premier Canada farmers by Mr. Handell who declared the farmers had been too long depicted as some sort of "Hayseed, hillbilly ignoramuses from the back woods." Farmers were wise and trusted men who had been most instrumental in building up the Dominion of Canada," he declared.

Relief camps are still operating in British Columbia despite the government's claim to have closed them, Mr. Stirling told the House. He defended the camps as set up by the former Conservative government against the criticism they were "antiquartistic in character and slave camps." Canada, declared, had learned from the experience of United States in dealing with unemployment, said Mr. MacNicol, on the result of a recent mile trip through United States during the past month. He made the trip, he said, to see why the people there are dissatisfied with the present administration. Everywhere he found men at work, put to work by the government.

It was time to realize unemployment was not a permanent thing, United States had done so and taking a good deal of it in the present and in the future.

Much of the improvement in industry was the result of action the government could not claim credit for, declared Mr. Bennett, such as steel and iron and steel industries. As soon as the war scare passed that activity would disappear.

Mr. Lawson said every declaration of policy of Prime Minister Mackenzie King had pledged himself to the democratization of industry, to give labor a greater share with capital in the formation of industry, but the government had done nothing to carry out that promise.

"If the Minister of Labor (Hon. Norman Rogers) had given as much attention to carrying out the policies of his leader as he has in interfering with the national employment commission, much more would have been accomplished more for the unemployed," said Mr. Lawson.

Mr. Lawson said the government had promised co-operation in the fight against unemployment and other problems because practically all governments in the country would be in power.

Mr. Wheat Board Criticized

Mr. Bennett criticized the government for continuing the policy of coal subventions, but criticism of the Wheat Board co-operation. It was not generally known, Mr. Johnston said, that farmers never got the top prices for their wheat. They must sell in the fall when prices are low. The government had reaped the benefits of high prices.

Mr. Bennett recalled he had opposed creation of the unemployment commission last year but had greater power to do so now. Conditions were improving but young Canadians in many parts of the country were growing increasingly restless and dissatisfied. A large improvement loan was a worthy piece of legislation, but there was only the man without a job, he added.

Asks Justice For Communists

Mr. Bennett also criticized Conservative leader Bennett's budget amendment was moved with the knowledge that it would be voted down by the government whose measures it was designed to become effective. He was glad, however, that Minister Rogers had not expressed satisfaction with the unemployment situation but had said instead that he was encouraged and confident.

He would not defend, Mr. Bennett said, that he was in accord with all of his political views, but communists were entitled to justice.

"Monetary policies?" suggested Mr. Bennett.

Mr. Tucker agreed but asked the Conservative leader if he, as a "Liberal-Conservative" had been opposed to some policies of the government he supported but had continued to support them, and thought it the best government.

Mr. Bennett observed that he had voted against the new party, and Mr. Tucker replied that it was because he might some day do the same. No government could pass judgment on everything each of its supporters did, he added.

Textile Industry

Again and again Mr. Rosthern clashed with the Conservative leader when he discussed the textile industry. In 29 years the Dominion Textiles had made an average of 9¼ per cent on its investment in common shares, Mr. Tucker said. He suggested it would have been better if the tariff protection had been lowered. The industry would then have sold more, employed more workers and distributed more of the profits among the workers.

Roberts. He read a resolution of confidence in him passed by the Conservative party at Ottawa the previously.

The Premier's memory went back to last session when, he recalled, Mr. Bennett passed censure on W. H. Price, (C-q., Three Rivers) both for allegedly saying Dr. Roberts political favors was willing to sit him any part of the body of Dr. Roberts, and for his alleged action in pre-election pledges and unemployment was increasing.

Mr. Bennett improvement loan was a worthy piece of legislation, but there was only the man without a job, he added.

Asks Justice For Communists

Mr. Bennett also criticized Conservative leader Bennett's budget amendment was moved with the knowledge that it would be voted down by the government whose measures it was designed to become effective. AT THE BELLE

"Bengal Tiger"

Heralded as one of the most thrilling screen dramas, with a unique romance and colorful settings, "Bengal Tiger" which opens here, till will be presented at the Belle today and Monday, matinee daily, with Warren MacLeod, Jane Travis and Warren Hull in the principal roles.

The story and screen play by Roy Chanslor and Kurt Neumann centres about the lives of circus folk both at work before the public under the big top, and in their private dressing tents on their special train during the summer tour and the winter quarters.

It is a real circus thriller, presenting the acts of aerialists, jumpers, riders and animal trainers, with circus scenes on a big side show, set in all the picturesqueness and colorfulness of the big top. In fact the circus acts are perhaps the most thrilling of any sawdust trail who were engaged especially for this picture.

Some of the greatest excitement centre about the cages of the wild animals, where Jane Travis, Bruce MacLane, a tiger tamer, is engaged in a battle for his life with a bengal tiger that has been driven mad by the screeches of the terrified women.

Back on the job with a wooden leg, the animal trainer looks up his former pal, Warren Hull, and his wife, Jane Travis, and his wife, and his wife, and his wife

BELLEVILLE REDMEN WIN ROUND FROM WHITBY

'Honey' Tompkins, C. Jackson Score Goals to Beat Whitby In Thrilling Torrid Game

Belleville Wins Round - by 5-4, The First Game Being Tied

GREAT BACKCHECKING

Every Player For Redmen Instrumental in Fine Victory

"Revenge Is Sweet".

Battling at practically even terms for over one hour and a half, minutes Belleville Redmen's youthful combination of the Jackson brothers scored what proved to be the winning goal and give Belleville a 2 to 1 victory over the Whitby Redwings at the Belleville Arena last night, the clubs having battled to a 2-2 draw in Whitby thus giving the homesters the round by the score of 4 to 4 and advancing the Belleville Redmen into the intermediate semi-finals of the O.H.A. in the "B" series.

Steadily a year ago the Redwings eliminated the Redmen after four torrid struggles, but the Thomas-led Belleville crew made no mistake in 1937 as they defeated the Redwings to a tie at home and then went on to win in a decisive manner. Although the Redwings have never matched the Belleville squad really deserved their honors and victory as they played a speedy and polished hockey and took full advantage of the breaks.

Both Goals By Kid Sine

Belleville's kid line of Tompkins and the Jackson brothers accounted for both goals scored by the homesters while Whitby scored the Redwings' lone tally. There was no score in the initial stanza, with each scoring in the middle frame while the Jackson boys really put on a beautiful brotherly-combination act to score the winning goal and assist in the other victory. The Redmen's kid line proved far more effective as "Tompkins and the Jackson played great hockey going both ways. Ken Watt in the Belleville net was not nothing short of invincible, his saves being sensational at times, even the lone tally registered against him not having been his error, but because of a fine screen pass, who failed to clear, when about abandoned owing to a penalty. Murphy and Ingram played a steady game of the rear gardemen, with Ingram playing the steady hockey and with Murphy being effective with his checking and body-checking game. St. Louis, Burley and Morgan showed sparks, while Bentley added to the victory duo by his fine work with his checking.

Headed by their fiery coach Peg, "horse-shoe" Thurst, the Redwings battled valiantly and at times predominated the play, but were not poor fashion the Belleville defence, as the checks were back constantly. The game was witnessed by some 800 fans, and was probably the fastest and most closely checked game seen at the Belleville Arena this season. The ice was in perfect condition and quite fast under the circumstances, although there was no water being in evidence and the ice became faster as the game progressed. Torrid back-checking by both teams marred the pastime as a clean game was put up by the men in the early stages and then later on by the referee, with the two clubs battling furiously until Belleville hammered the home net and then played caution hockey to go out with. Hurst laboured hard and no blame for the goals can be put on his door, it being the first time this season that the Redwings veteran goalie had been on the losing end, as a master of fact the Redwings having not lost a game before this year.

Brown Works Hard

Brown worked himself into exhaustion for the losers on the defence, his rushes always being dangerous, while Blanchard, Heard, Orr, Ernie Sleighthom and Piper being the most effective for the losers, with Piper also showing outstanding out as stars going both ways. Harper and Nick Sleighthom also proved effective when on the ice, the Redwings showing a fair brand of speed and were doubtless the hardest out but Redmen have had to contend in the two years, and they were in no way disgraced in defeat, although in defeating the Redwings the 1935 intermediate champions and the 1936 finalists, the stocks of the Belleville Redmen are naturally raised to a much higher plane and a nothing short of a senior intermediate final series will now satisfy the fans, as Belleville ought to see only a few hundred patrons at the game, which was without contradiction the fastest 60 minutes of hockey seen in the Belleville Arena this season, the contesting clubs at no time letting up or showing signs of weariness.

The visitors had considerable in weight and also on the experience in the game opened, but St. Louis and Whitton carried the play at the commencement, but there was not a single shot on net for the first few minutes, the opposing players marking their checks and sticking to them throughout. Heard drew the first penalty for dumping Whitton and a change of lines saw the Belleville "kid line" buzz around Hurst like bees around honey, but he stood them off and it was not until the six minute mark, that Watt was forced to make a save, the first one when he successfully beat Piper from close range. Morgan and Murphy and the Redmen applied the pressure, where-upon Brown rifled the puck the length of the ice and Piper broke away. Watt sensing difficulty raced out of the net to meet the rush and batted the rubber out of danger just ahead of the flying Piper to make a fine save. The Jackson lads went in on the play on a 2-1 rush in front of the net and the goal. Tompkins had his red light for a score, but Referee Heard ruled him off sides to the dissatisfaction of the local fans. Brown dumped Whitton and both were in on Watt to be thwarted. The Redwings finished the period strongly.

Penalty For Dumping.

Whitton and Burley were in to test Hurst at the opening of the middle stanza, but the Redwings held the draw and made the pass. Blanchard drifted in from the point and Tompkins returned to retaliate. Heard was given a penalty for dumping W. Jackson and the power was on from the Belleville end Tompkins missing a scoring chance and the Redwings really went to work on Watt to give him a busy session as they assumed the offensive. Brown dumped Tompkins, Tompkins gained the puck behind-the-net, raced up the left boards, leaving the defence flat-footed and passed across to Jackson on Hurst from the left, the stocky youngster in his tracks and rifled the puck past Hurst, who was helpless. It was a beautiful play from the beginning until the puck lodged in the Whitby net, Murphy and Morgan doing the bringing up the rear for the Belleville crew. Tompkins gained the puck behind-the-net to carry the puck in their own zone, but instead of carrying the puck protected with the result that Piper poked the rubber into the clear and then Tompkins, Jackson and Watt scored the equalizer, Belleville still being the aggressors. The period finished strongly.

Brown opened the last stanza with a strong effort to beat Watt, with the Jackson and Tompkins retaliating. Tompkins was given a penalty and a change of lines and on the return Burley drifted in to the blocks and drive. Ingram and Murphy broke up the play and Heard saved as he pokechecked the puck away. Watt was forced to save Bill Jackson gain possession of the puck in front of the net, while brother Clayton went to right wing position to allow Bill the room to go in on top of the unprotected goal, but Watt batted the rubber into the hole for the "million dollar" goal that ultimately gave Belleville victory. Tompkins and Clayton Jackson Thomas used St. Louis and Whitton during different stages during the last of the game when the Redwings loosed fire forwards over the boards in the dying moments of play, but the Redmen were in complete possession of the puck when the timer's horn sounded.

Belleville stopped by the two goalies were rather even, Hurst stopped 24 of 26 and 7 for a total of 31 while Watt stopped 11 of 13 and 5 for a total of 27. What team the Belleville and Whitby clubs will represent in the semi-finals will doubtless be announced in a few days time.

Last night's game was the cleanest and most sportsman-like hockey game seen in Belleville in years, both clubs reserving their efforts for the checking game, rather than paying attention to their feelings, if any. Salutations are due the fans of the two clubs for being humbleness and in victory the Redmen saluted a game, hard fighting and sterling team in the Redwings.

CLIFF MANAHAN'S ALBERTA RINK IS WINNER OF BRIER

Alberta Takes Famous Cup For Second Time in Curling History

GOT JUMP ON WELSH

Experience Player Crucial Part in Curling Final

Toronto, Mar. 6 (CP)—For the second time in its 11-year history, the Macdonald's Brier Tankard, tangible token of Canadian curling supremacy, will be held in the Royal Curling Club of Edmonton this year.

In as disappointing a finale as the Dominion championships ever have witnessed, 48-year-old Cliff Manahan showed Jimmy Welsh of Winnipeg how to curl when they contested Scottish game in a playoff for the Brier title yesterday. The score was 19-7.

Decidedly off the form that won 23 of the 69 games they played this winter, the Manitoba "Kid" rink proved no match for the curling wizardry from Alberta. The 27-year-old skipper admitted: "We were off, he said after the game. "Alberta is a good club and I'll be satisfied the gladiators.

The Port Colborne "Sailors", although they were forced to accept a bye into the Allan Cup play-downs by the Sarnia withdrawal, have been before the Toronto and District Mercantile League, have completed a large number of exhibition games throughout Western Ontario and while not having sustained a single loss. Two outstanding players with the "Sailors" are the former Toronto Marlboro and Eddie, both products of Campbellford. Dave Morrison, former playing "Speed" Morrison the Sailors have a strong defence corps, Bob Cole, also former Grimsby and Niagara Falls star, and Minnett. The starting line-up of Wade, McGowan and Fitzgerald are heralded as speed kings with a world of experience behind them. The former two being members of the Sarnia Imperials of a few years ago, Arnott, a former Western Ontario Junior "A" star, and Langdon and Dilco. The "Sailors" have been picked as one of the leading contenders for the Allan Cup, and that was before the Flyers loomed on the hockey horizon in the Metropolitan area.

Manager Squadron Leader Tommy Lawrence and coach Bert Lisher have come out of their Point Edward series unscathed and are resting up for the initial game with Port Colborne at the Belleville Arena on Monday night, with the usual reasonable prices of admission.

The two clubs' respective numbers of the contesting clubs are:

WING COMMANDER OF TRENTON AIR STATION MAKES STATEMENT

That the players and officials of the R.C.A.F. hockey club appreciate the splendid support given them, particularly during their successful drive for the championship of the intermediate "B" series of the O.H.A. and Ontario Association, is evidenced in a statement issued last night by Wing Commander A. E. Godfrey, R.C.A.F. Station, Trenton, Ont., in which he says that the important game between the R.C.A.F. and Port Colborne could be played on as an artificial ice surface, members of the team and the management realizing that the fine fans and citizens of Belleville, Trenton and district would be disappointed in view of the fact that they have so loyally supported them during their, drive for the championship, right to which they should be played on the Belleville ice."

Although the outlook for colder weather is disappointing, we are going to accept the invitation to play on any soft ice, and although it will be a disappointment to some extent of winning further laurels, we feel that the local public should have the opportunity of seeing the game on their home ice since it has so loyally stood behind us throughout the games of the current season.

In spite of rumors to the contrary, prices of admission will remain at the same level as those of the preceding play-off games."

FLYERS DECIDE TO PLAY SAILORS AT LOCAL ARENA

Port Colborne Will be Opposition on Monday Night

FLYERS ARE READY

Doug And Eddie Runion of Campbellford With The Sailors

The Belleville Arena will definitely be the scene of the first Allan Cup play-down game ever played in the Bay of Quinte area on Monday night when the Port Colborne "Sailors" meet the R.C.A.F. "Flyers" in the first of a best-in-three series with the return game scheduled to be played in Port Colborne next Thursday.

After careful consideration the management of the Belleville Flyers made their decision last evening and announced the game would be played at the Belleville Arena regardless as to the prevailing weather conditions. The ice at the local arena has been remarkably well under the mild weather conditions and providing the mercury does not hover around the freezing point over the week-end a good sheet of ice will be enforced the gladiators.

LUMBER KINGS WIN

Perth, Ont., Mar. 5 (CP)—Pembroke lifted Perth from the defending titleholders, defeated Perth 5-3 here last night in the final game of their two-game, total goal series in the Ottawa and District Junior Hockey semi-finals.

Kings, last year's Memorial Cup semi-finalists, had one of their toughest battles of the season and only the work of their goalie, Alard Leard, kept them defeated.

Football after all isn't the discovery of the English..... Or the Americans. Dagging deep into ancient archive some historian discovered that away back in 420 B.C. Greeks and Romans played what was an infield, bag around a field, when they had finished with the ball carried around the outlines.... And furthermore they had protective helmets, and all the trimmin's.

The goalposts were often thirty feet in height, states the football digger-upper. Forward or lateral passes were barred, except on those days, but the almond-eyed gridders made up for that by having any kinds of kicking, that could be done..... Which can be said of most of the present day squads, whichever way you look at it.....

But Chou's referees had something to say also..... They revelled in every fiercest type of foul which could be called—and were.... Instead of finding the odd five yards, or so, for the Chinese laddies were spurred to greater deeds by an almost equal penalty..... Flowers, fruits, brocade decorations were handed out to the boys in their battle for dear-old "Chou".

Birds also played a big part in the drama of the referees..... which is about the only real modern touch the pre-Christ game had to offer..... The games were keenly contested, and the "Chou" boys, for the most part, passed out to the teams were published. Pretty maidens thrilled to the roar of the warrior-gridders as they gave battle to the "Chou" boys..... Ah Chou —.....While the digger-upper didn't mention it, we, ourselves, can assume that the cheer sections were handed out refreshments of snuff between halves, to add more power to the class yells.....

They tell some funny stories anent the peculiarities of some of the Big Time ball-players..... Take Babe Ruth and his New York Times has a fanful as his fingertips..... Some of the Yankee players have been known to eat their hotel having a quiet game of cards..... Finally, one asked Manager Huggins, "Shall I call the Dodgers arriving in town."

A Yank left-hander reported back to camp in such bad shape the team was in St. Petersburg, but he lifted the food in Atlanta before he left. He was the lad who strolled into the hotel with two cats on a leash..... Ruth has acquired them from a fellow who had trapped them in a ferry stable

Then there was the Great Shires with the ability to play baseball, education and hoofighting proclivities..... Goodell was also an artist of more or less ability..... He drew amazing sketches of his team mates and hung them in the hotel lobby and on the club bulletin boards..... Pelk, one of the subjects offered to black the artist's eye for two cents..... But Goodell declared loftily that he was not in it for the money, and declined the offer.

OXFORD'S CREW HOPE TO STEM RECORD OF CAMBRIDGE WIN-STREAK

By JACK BEATLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, March 6 (CP)—With brawn and experience in their favor Oxford's dark blue crew hope to stem the record Cambridge winning streak in the annual university boat race this year.

The race will be rowed March 26 over the historic Tideway course which has been the scene of 70 yearly battles between Putney Bridge and Mortlake on the Thames.

Cambridge has won the race for the last 13 years. Of the 88 races which have been rowed since the first brush in 1829, Cambridge has 47 victories while Oxford has a total of 40. In 1877 a dramatic race ended in a dead heat.

Oxford has five veterans rowing this year while their rivals have only two in their boat. Canada lost a chance of being represented in the race when Oxford's west-pocket oarsman, Hart Massey, sod formerly a student at Toronto University, was replaced at the tiller by G. J. Mervyn-Smith who has had coaching experience.

United States has a representative in T. N. Hunter, the Cambridge cox, a former Yale student.

Shaping up Well

Trials indicate both eights are shaping up well. Recently Cambridge defeated a three-boat field clipped three seconds off the time which the same crew had covered the distance in 15 minutes, 52 seconds the second best time recorded for the course.

The dark blues meantime have broken two records on the Thames and have equalled a third.

Their best mark was on Wednesday when they rowed from Chiswick Steps to Putney Bridge in 11 minutes 5 seconds, clipped 44 seconds from a record which had stood for 14 years.

With both weight and experience to their advantage, Oxford eights are also given the call on paper. But last year also Oxford crews had a good crew on paper and yet they lost by five lengths. Cambridge has won by open water but by three quarters of a length.

This year's race will be in sharp contrast with the historic race of 1829. Crews wearing canvas trousers, beards and straw hats took part in that race which was won by Oxford. They rowed heavy barge-like boats.

The second race in 1836, won by Cambridge, was rowed over a 4½ mile course from Westminster Bridge to Putney.

Not until 1845 did lightweight boats used in the race cost approximately $45 and the crews adopt the present form of $30 pair for the cumbersome boats which were used in the days of whiskered sights of years ago.

The crews of 108 years ago would probably start at present day training rules. The crews are called at 5 a.m. and the first meal is taken before breakfast of plain food.

Fish and meat are taken brown sugar are important items of diet. Each crew undergoes a special process in which all fat is removed.

Race statistics show Oxford's two outstanding victories were those that started in 1861 and 1890. Oxford held the record for the latter race with a mark of 18 minutes, 19 seconds. Cambridge's best was 1912 when the rival light blue squad won in 20 minutes, three seconds, defeating Oxford by 4 ½ lengths.

DYNAMITERS ANXIOUS TO GET VIEW OF CANADA

London, March 6 (CP)—World hockey champions and winners of 36 of 50 exhibition games, Kimberley Dynamiters, sons of Swiss brothers, Doug and Eddie, the former having played junior hockey in Belleville some five years ago and more recently at Port Colborne, have played numerous exhibition games throughout the province but have not had a chance to meet their opponents like the proverbial ten cent piece. Manager Jack Morrison the Ports have a power ful team, with plenty of reserve substitutes to relieve them. In reserve strength the Dynamiters are not so hot, Pilers, on paper, they having no less than 18 tried and proven performers, several of whom have played senior hockey for a number of years.

In order to reserve all of their strength for Monday the Flyers, who are admirably lay-away from playing so many games on soft heavy ice, will take it easy as much as does their status until game-time Monday, Squadron Leader Tommy Lawrence informed us this morning. "The boys came out of the finals somewhat tired, one for a few minor bruises, and will rest up for the finals," stated Manager Lawrence as he added the Flyers felt the fans of this district were entitled to see an Allan Cup game owing to their sterling support throughout the season, so it's a big time in the old town Monday night.

Some weeks ago we suggested Belleville be represented in the Ontario Juvenile Hockey Association this year, but that community takes no marked interest in its players of tomorrow, the ten and twelve year old boy of the future, and growing boy to become interested in a sport in his early teens and when a firm foundation has been laid and ultimate success attained.

Newsday — when temperatures are so uncertain the community not afforded a chance to see the Flyers in the last act of the picture. Hockey seems to be enjoying a long-awaited boom, and while there is little doubt, but that a little more ice-time, Belleville has afforded the fans throughout the district a championship club, Oshawa sport scribe informs us there are to be two senior O.H.A. teams operate at Bowmanville, Belleville Arena in 1938, one by the R.C.A.F. and the other sponsored by the Consolidated Distilleries at Corbyville and so, as interjected, ICE. We only hope he is right.

In all probability the sport fraternity of Picton and the whole of the Bay of Quinte district, as a matter of fact, can bid fond farewell and adieu to Dave Church, whose antics and odd capers around the baseball lines in the summer as well as his pitching prowess were always appreciated, Instead Dave is to be married in the near future and will doubtless settle down to domestic life and cease to "stalled" about. Ron Church was to baseball in the Bay of Quinte and Lake Shore leagues just what cream is to coffee, the real thing and good Scotch. A fighting ball player whose uncanny knowledge of baseball enabled his intermediates to deny heights a few years ago. In parting with him we congratulate Picton on his new venture and hope his baseball career will be as successful as his athletic ventures of the past.

Lehigh basketball is having a rather tough old row to hoe in Belleville, lovers of lighting fast court tactics not having as yet responded, that is Belleville Y.M.C.A. fans, to the acme of an Allan Cup play-down within the city limits, but today is the realization for on Monday night the Flyers will be seeking victory in the R.C.A.F. "Fliers", intermediate "A" champions of the Ontario championships, look horns at the local ice igloo. The ability and prowess of the Flyers is well known to every hockey fan in the district, the Belleville crew has been the hot bed of our national game for many years, and for many years back. There are those who predict the "Sailors" as one of the better intermediate clubs in the Dominion, so it naturally follows a sterling battle is in store for fans Monday night when they clash with the Fliers.

Belleville and Campbellford fans will be keenly interested in the game, more especially as the latter community numbers two members of the "Sailors" were born and raised in the Ontario County town, Doug and Eddie, the former having played junior hockey in Belleville some five years ago and more recently at Port Colborne. They played numerous exhibition games throughout the province last year, but have not met their opponents like the proverbial ten cent piece. Hats off to the Belleville Redmen. They might have missed their objective last year, but they more than made sure of it in 1937 when they walloped the heralded Whitby Redwings 5 to 1 last night. The most deplorable part of last night's game was the slim attendance. Without fear of contradiction, we say it was the most gruelling and exciting 60 minutes of hockey that has been played in Belleville this season. The two teams turned it on from gong to gong with never a let-up and the stands and boxes missed a really thrilling game. The Redwings were the brush-overs and the Tompkins-Jackson crew in the limelight, the latter in a torrid hockey struggle that kept the fans on their toes.

We have seen goals scored in the Arena that "beggars" belief, effort last night was doubtless the best of the season, but absolutely excepted pieces of hockey gaming as clean cut as a whistle, a work of praise. Ken's efforts last night were beyond the best and in the local history despite the fact we never saw him in action before this season. He made numerous brilliant saves but in fairness to the whole team we add—they all played great hockey and deserved the victory.

When the Redwings went down to defeat last night it marked the second time they had done so this season. The Whitby team played 13 scheduled games in the round robin series, 12 regular and two play-off games in the group, without mutilation or defeat, and although the Oshawa intermediates did play them one tie game in the series. This is the first time the Redwings have been defeated at Scotch. A fighting ball player whose uncanny knowledge of baseball enabled his intermediates to deny heights a few years ago. In parting with him we congratulate Picton on his new venture and hope his baseball career will be as successful as his athletic ventures of the past.

Thousands Flock to Toronto To Witness Honoring of Apps By Paris and Hamilton Fans

Toe Blake of Canadiens Who Played in Hamilton to Receive Gift.

LEAFS COMING

Have Real Chance to Land in Second Spot Over Maroons

By A. E. FULFORD

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Something quite baffling to students of hockey crowd psychology is happening in Toronto today. Thousands of fans from all parts of Ontario are flocking into the city for the game tonight between Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs. More than 4,000 will attend from a score of cities and towns.

That would be understandable enough if the teams were battling in a playoff game or if something hinged on the result, but Canadiens are so far ahead of Toronto in the National League standing that they aren't competitors. Except as it affects Toronto's chances for second place, the game is virtually an exhibition.

Yet 14,000 persons or more will be in Maple Leaf Gardens to see the Flying Frenchmen and the Toronto team that seems to be hitting its best pace after ups and downs all season. The demand for seats is the greatest for a league game since the Gardens was built six years ago.

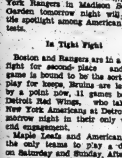
To Honor Syl Apps

Part of the tremendous interest in the game may be explained by the fact citizens of Hamilton and Paris are travelling to Toronto to honor Sylvanus Apps, the great rookie centre, who was born in Paris and played senior amateur hockey last season in Hamilton. Toe Blake, of Canadiens, another former Hamilton player, also will be honored.

But others from Godrich, Stratford, Kitchener, Guelph, Hamilton Brantford, Peterborough, Welland, Lindsay and way stations will be there. The railways are running special trains to accommodate the crowds and more will come by bus. It all forms a striking indication of the interest in professional hockey that exists in small Ontario points.

Refreshed after a week's layoff, Leafs will be in good condition tonight, except for Joseph Bellini, rookie right winger, who is suffering from a thumb injury and stomach flu. His place may be taken by utility man Bill Kendall.

The Canadiens-Leafs contest looms as the most interesting in Canada this week-end but a clash between Boston Bruins and New York Rangers in Madison Square Garden Saturday night will hold the spotlight among American wars tests.



In Tight Fight

Boston and Rangers are in a tight fight for second place and the game is bound to be the sort they play for keeps. Bruins are leading by a point now, 11 games behind Detroit Red Wings, who take on New York Americans at Detroit tomorrow night in their only weekend engagement.

Maple Leafs and Americans are the only teams to play a double on Saturday and Sunday. After the Canadien contest Leafs they go on to Chicago for a Sunday night clash with Hawks. America play Maroons in Montreal tonight.

Conny Smythe, Leaf Manager, was discovered slyly smiling the other day, when Major Fred MacLaughlin of Hawks announced he would play an all-American team against Leafs. The Toronto maestro figured that decision handed him a sure two points.

But the Major has changed his mind since Hawks won three games in a row and still retain a mathematical chance of finishing in the playoffs. He will not introduce the all-American note until his team is definitely out of the running.

MONCTON MAROONS BLASTS BATHURST OUT OF PICTURE

Montreal Royals And Quebec Aces Refuse to go to Calgary

PLAYOFFS ADVANCE

Goodysears And Dominions to Play For Senior "A" O. H. A. Title

(By The Canadian Press)

If Montreal Royals and Quebec Aces would make peace, Eastern Canada's senior hockey parents would be rosy. Refusal of the two clubs to agree to staging Allan cup finals in the west ran been the only hitch so far in the east's race to provide a challenger.

Montreal and Quebec say as far as they're concerned finals at Calgary in April are out—but their strike is not expected to bother the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association much. Last year Hamilton Tigers refused to play a game at Toronto and the C.A.H.A. promptly continued playdowns minus the powerful Tigers.

Otherwise the campaign rolls smoothly in the east. Already New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island have declared champions. Nova Scotia is down to finals and places in the Ottawa district, the Ontario Hockey Association and the Northern Ontario Hockey Association are nicely advanced.

Aces and Royals are finalists in the Montreal group and the survivor will be a strong contender if it does enter playdowns. Aces knocked off McGill's International Intercollegiate champions in playdowns.

Moncton Maroons in

Last night Moncton Maroons retained the Bee Brunswick title by blasting Bathurst 17-4, taking the round 23-7. Maroons will meet Charlottetown Abegwells, Prince Edward Island champions, in the next round and the survivor will play the winner between Berwick and Antigonish, Nova Scotia finalists.

The Ottawa District still presents five teams, two of them intermediate. Cornwall Flyers and Hull Volants are tied at one win each in their best-of-five round. Smith's Falls is marking time after eliminating Hull St. Gerard's; Ottawa Rideaus and Marlie are the intermediates playing off for the right to continue in senior competition.

Sudbury Tigers who played at Wood Mills during the regular schedule, are one game up on Kirkland Lake in N.O.H.A. senior finals. Wood has been strengthened by the addition of six other Sudbury players. Timmins after eliminating Haileybury, meets the winner of the Kirkland Lake-Sudbury series.

Dominions Take Count

Toronto Goodyears and Toronto Dominions will start their round for the O.H.A. senior "A" title next week. Dominions earned their way into finals last night by outclassing Toronto Comets with a 3-1 decision in the third game of semi-finals.

Trenton Flyers, representing the Royal Canadian Air Force won the O.H.A. intermediate "A" crown this week and will play Port Colborne, only senior "B" team in the province, for the right to oppose the senior "A" winners.

SOFTBALL GOOD FOR 1937 BOOM AMATEURS ONLY

Old Time Ball Star Predicts World Series for Young Game But Finds No Place for Pros.

By ED TINGER,
Associated Press Staff Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Softball will not train talent for the baseball majors but the flourishing young pastime will have its own world series—for amateurs only—and will field 11,000,000 players who will pay around $120,000,000 for equipment in 1937.

Take the word of George Sisler, the great old big-time first baseman, now sports goods dealers, who turned to softball and discovered it intriguing—and profitable. He frowns at the mention of professional softball and predicts a retreat from the "small headway" already made by teams which bear the oversize horsehide for profit.

Sisler and boys playing softball in Canada and the United States outnumber the girls three to one, but the women are catching up, Sisler says.

"Softball benefits baseball in a commercial way but does not help baseball in the way of training players. The softball player does not, quite poise, alertness, sportsmanship, and other qualities found in any athletic contest; but his ability to handle the larger, softer ball is of no use in baseball," says Sisler, who ought to know. He named one softball player he graduated to baseball—Al Fisher, St. Louis Cardinal pitcher who will be with Houston of the Texas League this season.

Sisler said softball stimulates general interest in sports and thereby enlarges baseball crowds.

Only minor rule changes are likely for the 1937 season. One proposal would move the pitcher back two and a half feet—to 37½ feet from the batter. The change is designed to produce more hitting.

Total of $120,000,000 seems like a fabulous figure for uniforms and equipment, but considering that 11,000,000 boys and girls—and some pa, pas and mamas—will be out there trying to hit underhand sinkers and curves with a puny sixic nest summer, the total outlay divides up to less than $12 per head.

Sisler made his predictions for the 1937 campaign as 50th president of the American Softball Association and as an optimistic business man who supplies the goods and promotes the game.

A softball world championship series, he says, will be the outgrowth of co-operative negotiations between his association and the American Softball Association headquartering in Chicago. Sisler's group will stage its annual national tournament here next September with approximately 60 teams from each parts of the land on hand.

Sisler, who made first-basing history with the St. Louis Browns and Washington Senators, the fast growing game now has more following and fan participation than the baseball, basketball.

"The softball won't go," he insists. "Softball is a low-priced game, and pay for the players would take away its profit. Softball is semi-rivalling teams but the money is just not there."

Admission prices for softball average a dime, with 25c-35c as tops for championship contests. Baseball's larger admission fees and bigger playing fields would be necessary for profitable pro games. "I don't believe," he says, "that persons sitting as far away as the outfield bleachers would get any kick out of the game—and fields would have to be that big to make it a paying proposition. Furthermore, salaried players would remove the amateur-like features peculiar to the game."

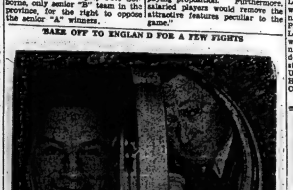
HINDE AND DAUCH DEFEAT AIRMEN IN TRENTON LOOP

Brighton Squad Play a Scoreless Draw With Carrying Place

BOTH FAST GAMES

District Playoffs Attract Large Number of Faithful Fans

Trenton March 6 (Special)—There's no doubt that the Royal Canadian Air Force Flyers are stealing the hockey limelight in this part of the country. But while the Airmen are preparing for a clash with Port Colborne's best this Trenton and district league play-offs are under way. Last night the customers were presented with a twin bill that warranted four star rating and combined all the thrills of a major league championship match. The R.C.A.F. town leaguers failed to uphold their big brothers reputation when they suffered a shut-out at the hands of a classy Hinde and Dauch aggregation, that piled up five goals in three stanzas and prevented a defence, that failed to be penetrated, even when a four man barrage was thrown against it. The score at the close of the first period was one to nothing for the paperman. Carmen Ruttan installed the counter and garnered his second goal in the mid-ice session. Claude Ruttan mustered from the season in the background and stood out as the night's play, netting Gould twice in the "flyers" net in the second frame. Derry opened the final period when he marshalled Jones Hinde and Dauch's fifth and concluding register. The Airmen threw the kitchen sink at time with a quartette of stars that backtracking and defensive tactics of the Dauch men offset the offensive thrusts of the losers.



Carrying Place 0; Brighton 0

The winner of the second contest of the evening couldn't be determined after sixty minutes of regulation play and ten minutes overtime. The affair was one of the hardest fought fixtures on record with Carrying Place and Brighton each displaying a fast wide open brand of hockey. The rival contestans had much to do with the first results. Boldestone especially, saved the day for Brighton on a great number of occasions, when he stopped the Carrying Place sharpshooters, Johnson, Davis and Miller. Capt. Walter Johnson also gave a fine exhibition in the Carrying Place goal and was unable to rubber with the same skill, that won him the distinction of being a most dependable netminder this season. Brighton were a little the better on the play in the first period, while the second session was plenty rough. Carrying Place turned on the pressure in the final canto and did everything else but beat Boldestone guarding the Brighton twine.

Referee Bory Man

Referee Eric McKeeley was about the busiest man on the ice and handed out more than ten penalties. The overtime saw Carrying Place rush the home and tell their neighbors a thing or two as well matched clubs fighting desperately for a win ensued. Here is a verbal picture of the extra men: Goal, W. Bowen; defence, Deuch; Goal, Steenburg; defence, Claude Ruttan and Gordon Bowen; centre, Lobb; wings, Carmen Ruttan and Derry; alternates, Hood, Wells, Finnegan. Carrying Place, R.C.A.F.: Goal, Gould; defence, LaRue and Hennessey; centre, Hill; wings, Baker and Gauthier; alternates, Trepanier, Moore, Carrying Place: Goal, W. Bowen; defence, Lemoire and York; centre, Davis; wings, Johnson and Miller; alternates, Anderson, Drake and Vandervoort. Brighton: Goal, Boldestone; defence, A. Lambert and Dzenski; centre, Thompson; wings, H. Lambert and Smith; alternates, Corbett, Rundell, Keating.

Referees: Bowen and McKeeley.

BRILLIANT PLAYERS IN BADMINTON TOURNEY

In the Dominion badminton championships at Vancouver, B.C., the western contenders in the women's singles event let fly their heavy artillery in the quarter-finals to eliminate all eastern contestants except the defending champion, Mrs. W. Storey has come to the fore with the winning of the Ontario championships held in Ottawa recently.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Biggar and Crawford by Financial Service.

The strength and activity in the industrial market has tended to restrict interest in the gold section, although it would be borne in mind that activity in the various mining camps has considerably more wrenomed with the disappearance of snow. This usually tends to revive interest in the gold mining industry, and it may be mentioned in this connection that there will be more work done on properties and more progress made in the next six months than ever before.

There is only one feature in the mining situation that is adverse, namely the plethora of new offerings daily. This is one of the reasons why the investing public are rather more speculative liquidated their holdings in the mining holdings. There is a limit to the amount of new issues that the public can digest.

New York brokers say that the activity and strength in Wall Street is being reflected in every stock exchange throughout the United States and Canada. Comparatively big markets are being recorded in San Francisco, Chicago, Salt Lake City, Montreal and Toronto.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau intimated this week that no steps were being taken against American traders operating abroad for the primary reason that these traders and their operations had not been located yet. Nothing is known about large scale tax and margin dodgers operating abroad might be likely contained in his remarks. There were no facts or work on hand to indicate that the situation was being studied as part of the inquiry into foreign capital movements.

A revival of interest in the construction stocks is not surprising when it is considered that this is about the only major industry that has not yet participated in the general industrial recovery.

The Brazilian Traction, Light, Heat & Power Co. have been able to show an increase in earnings for ten consecutive months now. These gains have been of the impressive sort and that is the reason why the shares have been moving steadily upwards during the last two months. With regard to dividend payments there are two schools of thought on this matter—one believes that the board of directors will see their way clear to place the shares on a quarterly dividend basis or cents a share while the other group is predicting two payments this year of 50 cents a share each.

Canadian Canners Limited reports earnings for the year to February 28th, has estimated sales of $11,000,000 against $8,483,000 the previous year. Dividends on the 2nd Pfd. are now expected the last payment being made in July, 1935.

Oil Issues Expected to Come to the Fore

The opinion expressed on Bay Street is to the effect that the Western oil issues will come to light again shortly. New attention is turning towards the Turner Valley province and another gusher was brought in to-day and more drilling contracts are expected to have similar information next week. High hopes believe that Alberta will find crude oil in large quantities.

Gaily Clad Entertainers Accept Compromise in Demands

Osaka, Japan, Mar. 6 (AP)—Three hundred gaily-clad geisha girl entertainers in Osaka's cafes—ended their eight-day strike today with reports of their right to form a Geisha Guild.

The striking girls, who spent more than a week of self-immolation in a Buddhist shrine, tentatively accepted a compromise agreement which police had labored to effect throughout the night.

Their principal demand, a Guild of their own, was reported granted.

Osaka's gay amusement quarter immediately plunged into plans for a gala welcome tonight when the entertainers promise their singing, dancing and entertaining for the first business men of Industrial Osaka.

600 MILE WALK IS CONTEMPLATED

Father And Son Plan to Walk 25 to 30 Miles Daily

Ottawa, Mar. 6 (CP)—As a result of a visit to Timmins, Ont., following the recent visit to Ottawa of Denham and Harvey Greer, who came from the Timmins district town by dog-team, Alphonse Cros-sett, 16-year-old son, and Crosset expect to leave sometime next week for Ottawa.

Crosset said he and his son would walk the distance, 600 miles, and plan to travel from 25 to 30 miles a day, depending on the weather.

The Greers have a letter from Joseph A. Bradette, member of parliament for Cochrane, to Mayor J. P. Bartleman of Timmins, and will also seek a letter from Mayor Stanley Lewis of Ottawa. The Greer brothers made the trip to present Prime Minister Mackenzie King with an invitation to attend Timmins' old home week this summer.

DRAFT WEALTH AS WELL AS MEN

Fred Avery, M.L.A., Makes Suggestion at Liberal Meeting

Toronto, March 6 (CP)—There should be conscription of wealth as well as young blood if Canada is to be saved from the fate which overtook the British Empire, Fred Avery, M.L.A., for Lincoln, told a Liberal Club here last night.

Describing members of the Ontario cabinet, Mr. Avery said Premier Hepburn had attributes in civil life somewhat akin to those of Napoleon in the military sphere. He had come to the point in Ontario where "we love the man for what he is."

Hon. Harry Nixon was described as being just as much a rock, Hon. Peter Heenan as a lovable character and Hon. T. B. McQuesten as a staunch Presbyterian who would not compromise.

"So you know what a strong character he has," added Mr. Avery. "Perhaps it is fortunate for the fact that Mr. Heenan is free from guile that certain things are said to have happened. If they did happen to take place, you can bank on it that he was justified."

CONFIDENCE IN PREMIER EXPRESSED BY ASSOC.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., March 6 —(CP)—Confidence in Premier Hepburn and the provincial cabinet was expressed in a statement issued today by President J. C. Shipley, following a meeting last night of the Sault Ste Marie and West Algoma provincial executive the statement reads:

"Liberalism being based on principles of greatest good to greatest number and having perfect confidence in Mr. Hepburn and his government, executive approved of following message wired to Premier March 5:

"The Liberal executive of Sault Ste Marie riding unanimously endorses government action in regard to iron ore bounty in particular and government policy in particular and

600-BED MENTAL HOSPITAL

Port Arthur Chosen as Site, Premier Hepburn Announces

Toronto, March 6 (CP)—Ontario Government has decided on construction of a 600-bed mental hospital at Port Arthur, Premier Mitchell Hepburn announced today. Under consideration as the site of a second new hospital is Fort Stanley, Eglin County Mr. Hepburn said.

A policy on locating mental hospitals on water or within sight of it, outside industrial areas, has been recommended to the Department of Health by experts, said Mr. Hepburn, and this will be followed.

Premier Hepburn commented on reports current at Port Stanley, a hospital would be built there. The reports followed on the heels of an inspection trip made by Mr. Hepburn, accompanied by Hon. Dr. J. S. Faulkner, Minister of Health.

"We've been considering various sites for mental hospitals" he said. "We have definitely decided on Port Arthur as the site for a 600-bed hospital to accommodate patients from Northern Ontario, now in southern institutions. There are 962 patients from the north in the south and they will be brought home."

Friends said she and Vosper became acquainted on the voyage from New York.

Fanny Vosper is Dead.

Peter Whist, a fellow Londoner and friend of Vosper, said he was convinced his friend was dead.

Miss Oxford went to New York three years ago to study dance music girls. She previously had done small film work in London and was a mannequin before she was chosen "Miss Great Britain."

Vosper returned London on the boat train from Plymouth she gave him a farewell embrace at the incident.

"Don't fret friends," she said, "there was no question of a love affair between us. In America the newspapers linked everybody in our cruel times. It was just talk. Mr. Vosper is a much older man than friends."

Police officers reported a passenger on the Paris, whose identity they did not disclose, said he heard a woman's voice say: "If you do not marry me, I will jump overboard. Then Vosper left the cabin.

Vosper's Stage Career Noted.

Hollywood, Mar. 6 (AP) — Frank Vosper, British actor reported missing from the liner Paris en route to Atlantic, has many notable performances to his credit in motion pictures produced in this country.

His career began on the London stage in 1923 and subsequently included Shakespearean roles and a tour of the United States in the leading role of the play "Murder on the Second Floor."

His first entrance into films was made in the leading role of his own drama, "Love from a Stranger," made at Warner Brothers-First National in 1930. Subsequently he appeared in "Rome Express", "Red Ensigns", "Waltzes from Vienna", "Jew Suss", "Dick Turpin", "Sabotage", "Don't Know Too Much", "Open All Night", "Secret Justice", and "Hearts Desire".

spoke at Edinburgh. Economic ruin could result from one month armament, he implied. "I cannot dismiss the hope, we and the nations of Europe will presently find some less suicidal way of ending our fears and suspicions than we endure before we are all ruined by our own efforts to defend ourselves."

He was heavy-hearted over the enormous expenditures entailed as Treasury Chancellor he had laboured for years to build up the country's finances.

Arms 'No Economic Return'

Now he was obliged to divert the resulting surplus to forging weapons of defence "which bring no economic return".

"Preparedness to prepare for further sacrifices. The Government had never hesitated to call upon taxpayers for sacrifices once necessary.

In an address at Taunton the Home Secretary, Sir John Simon, said the defence program was far more likely to provide a basis on which an international limitation of armaments might be built than unilateral disarmament. Parliamentary democracy was on trial, he said. It was in Britain that the fight for democracy had to be fought out.

Leopold Amery, former Colonial Secretary and Conservative member of Parliament in an address at York said that only by peace by consent could only be borne by all partners of the Empire. "A foreign policy that is looked upon with distrust and misgiving by the Dominions is fatal to unity of the Empire", he declared.

YOUNG BRITISH ACTOR MISSING

Another inquiry was likely when the ship reached Le Havre, France.

Vosper disappeared, it was learned, from the upper deck of Plymouth.

Vosper, married, who had been appearing in a New York revue, was 36-year-old actor, known for his George Sanders type of suave, sophisticated, stepped out of her cabin onto the deck and "did not return."

Friends said she and Vosper became acquainted on the voyage from New York.

DR. ROBERTS M.P.P. TO CROSS FLOOR

Will Sit Between Sam Lawrence And James Ballantyne

Toronto, March 6 (CP)—When Dr. J. D. Roberts, Liberal member for Sault Ste. Marie, Monday moves across the floor of the Legislature, he will sit next to the second member of the House in eleven years to switch his political allegiance.

On March 9, 1926, Karl Homuth, elected as a Labor member for South Waterloo, dramatically rose and walked across the floor of the Legislature to sit as a Tory in session. He became a supporter of the Conservative government of Premier G. Ferguson. His move was voluntary.

Dr. Roberts and Angus Dickson, C.C.F. member, will change seats on Monday. Dr. Roberts will then be between Sam Lawrence (C.C.F., Hastings East) and James Ballantyne (Lib., Huron.)

203 Carat Diamond Find Starts Rush

Georgetown, British Guinia, March 6 (CP Cable)—Discovery of a diamond weighing 203 carats, the largest ever found in British Guiana, started a rush today to Peremong in the Mazaruni district 100 miles from here.

Word of the find reached here late last night when a runner arrived over jungle trails. Name of the lucky finder was unknown. The stone was said to be of good quality, although imperfect.

REARMAMENT

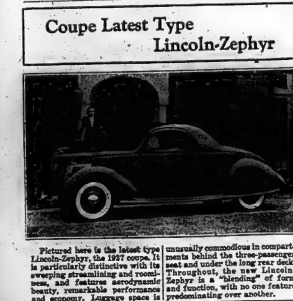
$777,585,000 of which £80,000,000 will be borrowed and £30,000,000 will be raised from taxes.



To Reconcile Rebels'

Chamberlain, speaking at Birmingham last night, declared the first necessity which forced him to discuss a surplus to the "forging of weapons of defence" was to bring in no economic return".

"But," Chamberlain continued, "although I am forced to the conclusion that in the circumstances in which we find ourselves we must press forward with our re-equipment will all the means at our which we are capable, I cannot dismiss the hope that we and the nations of Europe will presently find some less suicidal way of ending our fears and suspicions of one another before we are all ruined by our efforts to defend ourselves."

"Paradoxical as it may seem, I am certain that the process of rearmament is a necessary preliminary to the possibility of general disarmament. The National Government agree unanimously to call on the taxpayer for sacrifices when they were necessary and I am not saying they have come to the end of sacrifices now."

Coupe Latest Type Lincoln-Zephyr

Pictured here is the latest type Lincoln-Zephyr, the 1937 coupe. It is particularly distinctive with its sweeping streamlining and roominess, and features aerodynamic beauty, remarkable performance and economy. Luggage space is unusually commodious in compartments behind the three-passenger seat and under the long rear deck. Throughout, the new Lincoln-Zephyr is a "blending" of form and function, with no one feature predominating over another.

DAILY SHORT STORY
Hard to Tell
By Mary Marsh

It had been a dull executive meeting. Mr. Stewart, the president of the concern was going to Europe, and Mr. Stone of the Chicago office, was coming to take his place at the New York office. The meeting had been called to finish final arrangements which it seemed to Rodney could have been made as well without his presence.

But when the six other executives were making their departure from Mr. Stewart's office, Mr. Stewart stopped Rodney, placed a fatherly hand on the young man's shoulder and asked him to wait.

"There is something I want you to do—something simple, but very important," began Mr. Stewart. "I have the greatest respect for Mr. Stone and know that his coming here may be fraught with many inconveniences and anxieties. "Now," Mr. Stewart hesitated and then plunged ahead. "It's about Miss Drew. It would be a trifle difficult for me, you see. She's an excellent secretary woman, and invaluable, Miss Drew knows so much about the business, we couldn't possibly have her go. She is to be Mr. Stone's secretary. I'm used to her, but Miss Drew is wel, rather—"

"Yes," agreed Blaine, calling to view the snapping black eyes and vigorous, jutting black jaw of Mr. Stewart's secretary. "She is a trifle."

"Quite so. Now I mind it now. Though I most confess she rather upset me at first. And of course, I'd also be because really annoyed at anyone I imagine that she would be a real tartar.

"Just suggest that as Mr. Stone is a stranger, she might treat him with gentleness. We decided before you got to the meeting that some one would better suggest this to her, and for reasons we decided that you would best be the one to do it."

This was the hardest assignment that Blaine had ever had in connection with Mr. Stewart. Rodney had never taken much notice of her before, but now he deliberately studied her face and her carriage when she was not looking. He had made up his mind that the only way to go about it was to become friendly with her, to get her confidence and then to make all honest breast of the matter. He was unfavorably in the usual wedge of an invitation to luncheon, or to supper to make the acquaintances of those who knew Miss Drew socially.

He would meet her after working hours and thus show his finesse. Meantime Mr. Stewart had sailed and Mr. Stone had come to take his place—Mr. Stone, who proved to be a blond young giant who accomplished twice as much as Mr. Stewart. Something, after a few days' hours and the strenuous business methods of Mr. Stone very decidedly softened the edge of Miss Drew's sharp temper. Her dark eyes snapped less fire now and had the very black hair that seemed to typify her high-spirited vagaries seemed to wave more softly to her face.

Three months had passed and it was the eve of Mr. Stewart's return. Rodney Blaine had done his best. He had not taken down on an assignment before, and he had not had his little talk with Miss Drew simply because she had never given him an opportunity.

Rodney sat in the office of the firm to see Mr. Stewart after his return home, and after a very brief discussion of business interests, Mr. Stewart brought up the subject that was apparently uppermost in his mind. "Were you successful in giving Miss Drew her little tip off?"

"Not exactly—" began Rodney.

"Heavens, man," interrupted Mr. Stewart, "you don't mean you let her think Stone entered the way she has been boasting me. Don't explain. I was afraid you wouldn't tell her. Of course, Stone wouldn't stand for her tongue—and how she's left, I'm sorry you let this happen... Miss Drew was without question, one of my greatest business assets."

"But she hasn't left," Blaine explained. Then they were interrupted by the entrance of Mr. Stone, and Rodney Blaine was glad to withdraw.

"There is something I want to ask you," he said. "I didn't want to write it. But a good share of my happiness depends on the answer you give. Is Rodney Blaine serious in his regards for Miss Drew? His seems to follow her about, always seems to be trying to tell her something. I am more than interested in the girl myself. Frankly, I'd ask her to marry me—"

"Marry you?" cooed Stewart, sinking in his chair. "Marry a girl with a temper like that?"

"The best tempered girl in the world," interrupted Mr. Stone. "The point is this: I am a newcomer. I have no right asking Blaine out if he really loves the girl. But what I'm asking you is whether Blaine is in love with her. They don't do a thing but run around so—"

"I guess I told him so," said Stewart smilingly, "But it's all right. He doesn't love her. I'm sorry to have you take her away, but—"

Mr. Stewart never finished the sentence for Mr. Stone had hurried into Miss Drew's office to deliver the words of a long-postponed proposal, which did not come as a surprise, and that did not wait for an answer.

FATALLY SQUEEZED BETWEEN TRUCK, WALL

Galt, Ont, March 5 (CP) —Geo. Elliott, 58, Galt, died in the hospital today after he had suffered fatal injuries when squeezed between the end of a truck and the wall of a house while unloading coke. The accident was caused when the truck skidded on a slight grade, as it was backing over the lawn to a coal chute.

Mr. Elliott had been out of work for four years and this was one of the few odd jobs he had been able to pick up.

SCENE OF STRIKE PEACEFUL TODAY

Rumors of "Counter Attack" Fail to Materialize

Barrie, Ont., March 5—(CP)—Although rumors of a possible "counter attack" by sympathizers were abroad during the night, the situation at Holmes Foundry Company, scene of a battle between strikers and strike breakers Tuesday, was peaceful today. In the Tuesday battle non-strikers succeeded in ejecting more than 75 strikers from the plant and 66 were arrested and held on trespass charges.

Production was resumed at the factory, which manufactures castings for Ford Motor Company early today after a brief cessation ordered when reports were heard of a group of strike sympathizers planned to attempt ousting the workers.

CHINESE PAYS PENALTY

Hamilton, Ont, March 5—(CP)—Peter Lee, 33-year-old Chinese, was sentenced to six months in one year in Ontario Reformatory plus six lashes when convicted today on a charge of assaulting a nine-year-old girl.

Bridgeport, March 5 (AP)—Unidentified men told police tonight that they, who looked like men when he sighted a civilian and twice when a policeman was sighted, should really have credit for the 39 burglaries the confessed.

If the job seemed difficult, she explained, she even let the dog officials through, open apartment windows and carry things down while she watched outside.

Kilnwood, Kan, March 5 (CP) —The band was rehearsing "the Merry Widow Waltz." Ben Thompson, French horn player, tried to start the important part the instrument has in the piece, but got only a squeak.

Thompson called the director, "let me try." Another squeak.

Then they put all pressure to the horn—and out came a moose.

HIGH NOON

"Shut up," she said, "and make yourself busy pouring out some coffee. I'll see about tea—What's the matter with you, you baby? . . . I'm not going to think you don't know anything about men, or how to manage them!"

To Heather's utter dismay Vilette broke into tears. "He doesn't love me," she wept. "Or he wouldn't be so unkind . . . I've never been so miserable in all my life. He wasn't like this at first—it was perfectly heavenly—and then, after I'd told him that my name wasn't really Fermoroy, but that I was just one of an ordinary family, he began to be different. At first I thought it was just my imagination—" Her voice was broken with sobbing. "But it's not—I know it's not . . . Oh, something has changed in him, and I'm so—so utterly wretched."

Heather was terribly distressed, though she could not quite forget that Vilette was a better actress than private life than she was on the stage. After a moment she determinedly drew Vilette's hands down from her tear-wet face.

"Are you really, really so much in love with Bruce?" she asked. "It isn't just a schoolgirl crush? You've had so many——"

Vilette looked her eyes—like stars they were in their setting of long lashes and tears.

"I love him with all my heart and soul," she whispered half shamefully.

Heather shivered, though she smiled as she leaned forward to kiss her sister's wet cheek. "It will all come right," she said confidently. "Dry up and bathe your eyes, and come downstairs. I'll see about tea."

INSTALMENT 6

When Heather went downstairs, still thinking of Vilette's emotionalism, she saw Bruce in the doorway.

"I thought you would be in to lunch," he said. She had begun to move some chairs up to the table where tea was to be served and he went to her assistance.

"I know—Caesar fretted me to go with me to Loseley only after you rang up," Heather replied.

"Couldn't one of the chaps have gone instead?"

"They could—only—well, it's such a treat for me to have a motor drive."

"I will take you any day you like. Don't forget that I have three months leave."

She smiled and shook her head. "I'm afraid you'd drive too quickly for me, Bruce. I'm a nervous creature." It was not true—speed had no terror for her—but it seemed an unfriendly thing to say when he could answer she went on, "Vilette has been lying down. She had such a bad headache, poor child."

He said, absently, "It's the heat, I expect, though she should be used to it after South Africa."

"She was not there very long."

Heather was sorry she spoke so tea, annoyed because her hands felt unsteady. "It was a—a mistake to go her for a little drive this evening," she said. "I think it would do her good."

"Will you come too?"

She looked up quickly, her lips moved to answer, were silent. Bruce was standing close to her, his hand on the back of a chair. If she had drawn up, his eyes steadily regarding her, and as she sought in vain for words to say, he spoke.

"What have I done, Heather?"

She was spared the agony of reply by the whirlwind entrance of Effie and Bobbie.

"How do you know Mr. Logan likes three lumps of sugar?" Effie demanded breathlessly. "He hasn't had tea here before!"

It was Bruce who answered. "I have, many times!" he said with an infant in arms! And seeing that I have known you so long, don't you think you might call me Bruce?"

Effie giggled, "I'd love to," she said ingenuously.

They had nearly finished tea before Vilette came in appearance. She looked very pretty and a shade defiant, but there was no sign of her recent tears.

"I thought you had a headache," Bobbie said unkindly. He had been hoping to further monopolize Bruce. Already the idea of returning with Bruce to South Africa had taken root in Bobbie's adventurous brain.

Vilette ignored him and sat down at the far end of the long table, eyeing the cup and saucer distrustfully, for all the Tangley china was the permanently kind—cheap and serviceable.

"Bruce wondered if you would like to go for a drive this evening," Heather said. "I should, if I were you—it will be cool and the air will do you good."

She was quick to notice the eager way in which her sister's eyes sprang to Logan's face, but he did not return her look as he answered deferentially, "Perhaps we could go somewhere."

Heather's arm jerked suddenly, spilling her tea.

"Careful, child!" Effie said affectionately, and then to Bruce, ingenuously, "Can't there room for us all in the car?"

"Even if there is, you won't go tonight," Heather answered firmly. "You've got to bed early for a change."

"Then don't let Bobbie go either," Effie urged.

"I dont want to go if any women are going," he answered with brotherly candour.

After tea Vilette drew Heather aside. "Did you ask him to take me?" she demanded.

Heather returned her gaze steadily. "Of course I didn't. Oh, Vilette, do be sensible."

Vilette drew a quick breath. "Oh, well, in that case," she said.

Heather went out into the garden where the few neglected plants were drooping for long want of rain. There, under the trees, was Bruce's attempt at building a goldfish pond, which as John had evening had informed the company at dinner, Heather had filled with ferns from the hedges, and which was her favorite spot of all the garden.

Trust the family to speak the unnecessary truth, she thought with a little smile; even Effie had been quick to notice that she had known Bruce like two lumps of sugar in his tea.

Heather felt unspeakably glad that Caesar had not come with them, with his family that he would be likely to speak of them of the old days.

Vilette had always been the wayward, "tiresome" one of the family; the one who had provoked quarrels, and instituted reforms even, in their nursery days; the one who "did not see why" she could not always have her own way; the one whose persistent cry had always been, "But I want it!" and who in the end, generally managed to get it.

She would get it this time, Heather knew—frustration always made Vilette the more determined, but she thought it seemed an unkind twist of fate that decreed it should be her own sister who would finally rob her of the man she loved.

"I do love him." Heather told herself simply, and there was neither pain nor joy in the thought. It was just something that had happened—had always been there, even though for a little while absence had hidden it to sleep.

"Coo-ee" Effie's shrill voice broke the silence, and almost immediately she came into sight, hanging affectionately to Logan's arm.

"Vilette's not coming, she announced. "Vilette's making up her face to go out with Bruce, so we've come to look for you."

"And now I find I've left my cigarettes in the drawing-room," Bruce said in tones of mock tragedy. "You're younger than I am, Effie, will you be so kind as to——"

"What part of the drawing-room?" Effie demanded. She was rapidly becoming this man's devoted slave, and already she was planning how she could be useful to oblige him.

"I don't remember. Have a good look around," he answered and then, with me she was out of sight, he said quietly, "They're safe in my pocket—but I had to find some excuse to get rid of them."

"That was unkind," Heather said quickly. "I'll call her." but he caught her hand, controlling it fast. "No, you'll stay here."

She looked up at him, trying to frown—"Bruce, you mustn't tell me you're grown into a bully?" she said breathlessly. "If there is one thing I thoroughly dislike——"

"Do you dislike me?"

"Of course not—but now look!—we're known each other so long! we——"

"Why do you always avoid me?" "I don't—it's absurd—I—"

"Your father intended to take Vilette this morning."

She stared at him helplessly. "How do you know?"

"He told me—just now."

She smiled, in an effort, her eyes turned away from him. "Well—Vilette was in bed—and anyway, I wanted to go. I asked him to take me."

"I know that too."

She moved her arm restlessly in the grasp of his hand.

"Hate me—because the old fish pond. I—" and now she tried to free herself, but he spoke her name suddenly, with deep emotion:

"Heather!"

She stood very still, all her body limp like the body of a runner who acknowledges defeat, and he said, "I wonder if you know how much I have thought of you since that morning we said good-bye?"

For a stupefied moment something within her seemed to contract like a pain.

"I'm ten years her senior, and—When I left England she was a school girl." He stopped with a sort of helplessness, only to go on again with renewed vigor. "It's absurd, Heather—out of reason. Is this why you have taken so much trouble to avoid me? You were always quixotic—Heather, listen to me—you must know——"

Effie came rushing toward them through the trees. "I can't find them anywhere. I've looked in the car, too. Are you sure you haven't smoked them all? Shall I go down to the shop and get some more?"

"I've found them,"

Double Funeral at Moira Causes Community to Mourn

Church Packed to Capacity With Friends And Relatives

TEARS FLOW FREELY

(By Staff Reporter)

Moira, Ont., March 8—Over the snow-covered hills and dells of this farming community today, the sun flicked sharply against the white of the newly fallen snow a long procession of cars slowly wended its way to a central meeting place. People in all ages of life—on foot, in buggies drawn by faithful plodding horses; in shining new automobile models and in antiquated rumbling models—made the way to the little church of this village.

Led by a common bond of sympathy, with almost all numb from the shock of the first major tragedy to occur in their midst, when death struck swiftly to snatch two of the finest young men of the community in the prime of their life, members of the Moira community as well as those from the surrounding district, Moira and province, packed the little church to its utmost capacity.

LABOR FORCES WAR FOR CONTROL: UNIONS INTENSE

1,250,000 Workers in Textile Industry to Join C. I. O.

VICTORIES CLAIMED

Sit-Down Strike Possible Say United Textile Officials

Chicago, March 8.— (AP)—Open warfare for the right to control of U.S. organized labor gathered in Washington today to intensify unionization campaigns.

Their deliberations presaged a widening in the rift which severed the American Federation of Labor and the committee for industrial organization.

Enrollment of some 1,250,000 workers of the far-flung textile industry under the C.I.O. banner was reported at the opening of John L. Lewis group, whose leaders already claim membership of 500,000 members in several industries.

Elsewhere in the capital President William Green of the A.F. of L. and 50 seasoned organizers mapped plans for enlisting the support of workers in the agricultural, gasoline station, auto, retail and cement industries, and fighting the C.I.O. all along the line.

Sit-Down Strike Forecast

Officials of the United Textile Workers, who claim membership of 70,000 members, considered the possibility of the sit-down strike as a weapon in an impending drive in Southern Cotton Mills and in the woolen and worsted mills of New England.

Green and his aides were expected to study tomorrow the application for the projected unionization of all workers in the oil industry.

C.I.O. leaders claimed several victories over the week-end, including:

1.—The defection of the Aluminum Workers Union's largest unit, at the New Kensington, Pa., plant of the Aluminum Company of America, from the A.F.O.L. ranks.

2.—Recognition of a C.I.O. affiliate as bargaining agent for its members employed at the Brueburn Alloys Steel Co., Pittsburgh, ending a strike of 300 workers.

3.—The Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company's recognition of a C.I.O. affiliate as the bargaining agent for the union's members.

Business Harassed

Meanwhile strikes harassed scores of business and industrial establishments over the country.

At Akron, O., 10,000 employees of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., who were made idle by the closing of the Toledo plant, waited for word on an agreement between company officials and representatives of the United Rubber Workers of America. The Union claimed approximately 7,000 workers in the plant and demanded it be recognized as their bargaining agency.

Strikers at the Bethlehem Steel Corporation's Lebanon (Pennsylvania) plant voted to demand that the C.I.O. be recognized as their bargaining agent. The Bethlehem company institute a minimum wage of $5 a day.

Employees walked out of four plants of the Chevrolet Motor Co., plant at Flint, Mich. The management said the divisions would be closed pending settlement of differences with the United Automobile Workers, the strike began on Saturday, ended temporarily by an agreement that was rumored after the men had worked an hour today.

Hundred Skiers Dot Oak Hills And Carry Away Sun-Burn

Sunday's Sun Warmest of Year And Snow Woos to Sport

TWO MEN'S ACT

Under the most brilliant sun of the winter, and with the impulse of the light coating of snow which covered the countryside, one hundred persons, mostly from Belleville, took to skiing on the hills at Oak Lake on Sunday afternoon.

"One of the most beautiful days we have ever had", commented one of the skiers.

Two men repealed the recent Mussolini skiing act. Like il Duce, whose pictures appeared last week in all newspapers, exercising on the skiis, himself bare from the waist up, the two men defied the sun's rays to beat down upon their chests arms and backs, seeming to relish the Canadian winter sun as much as the Italian evidently did.

Many of the skiers reported that they were sun-burned after an hour or two on the hills.

NEWSPAPER CLAIMS ITALY BROKE PACT BY SENDING TROOPS

London, March 8—(CP—Havas)—Ten thousand Italian troops landed in Spain to join the insurgents on Feb. 28, in "clear violation" of the International agreement upon that date effect Feb. 20, banning dispatches of "volunteers" to either belligerent, the Manchester Guardian said today.

The newspaper claimed the insurgent military leaders are men of "monumental incompetence" who have "greatly exasperated" Chancellor Hitler and Premier Mussolini. It said the troops sent by Italy and Germans fighting for the insurgents "cannot be far short of 60,000."

Paris newspapers likewise said increasing complaints of Italian volunteers—ranging between 50,000 and 25,000 men—had debarked or were about to land in Spain).

PICTURE CUPID WORKS OVERTIME

Successful Teams Must be Able to Get Along Well

Hollywood, Calif., Mar. 8 (AP)—If a romantic motion picture team is to be convincing, the off-the-screen part must like the party of the sec-ond part, Director Leo McCarey says W. S. "one-take" Van Dyke.

The film director, is one of Hollywood's most hardboiled cupids—for purely professional reasons, of course.

"In matching a romantic team," Van Dyke said today, "it is necessary to have people who work smoothly together, who really like one another and attract one another.

Not love, necessarily, not affection that has the slightest impression on their off-the-screen relationship, but enough liking so that they can be husband and a good father; the other half of the team a devoted wife.

But you can assume, said Van Dyke, that the two players are happy if they don't, the audience detects it. Lack of harmony is quickly noticed and considered the friction.

Teams he is credited with creating include Joan Crawford-Clark Gable, William Powell-Myrna Loy and Jeanette MacDonald-Nelson Eddy.

SIT-DOWN STRIKE IN HUDSON PLANT

5,500 of 10,000 Employees Refused to Leave Factory at Noon Hour

Detroit, Mar. 8 (AP)—A sit-down strike affecting one of the 10,000 employees of the Hudson Motor Car Company closed several departments of the plant shortly after noon (E. S. T.) today.

The first indication that the strike had been called came when men in the affected departments refused to leave at the lunch hour.

Conferences of representatives of working conditions have been in progress for several days between A. F. Sharp, Hudson president, and representatives of the United Automobile Workers of America Local Union.

HOUSE MAY DEAL WITH EXPULSION

Two And Possibly Three Mental Hospitals Will be Built

Toronto, March 8—(CP)—Business expedited by three night sessions last week, the Ontario Legislature today may deal with Premier Hepburn's expulsion of Dr. A. Dunc-an Roberts, Sault Ste. Marie Liberal, from the party ranks.

George Henry, Conservative Opposition Leader, said he believed there should be an investigation because of difference in statements made in the House by Premier Hepburn and Dr. Roberts. If the opposition presses this move, the committee on privileges and elections may be constituted or a special committee named.

During the week-end Premier Hepburn spent hours putting the finishing touches to the budget address. The House will hear it Monday. The Premier has announced the government will tackle the problem of overcrowding of hospital beds by building two or possibly three new ones.

Port Arthur has been selected as the site for one and Fort Stanley was considered to have the best claims to get the other. The government plans to build any new mental hospitals near water, following recommendations of health department experts.

The Estimates Committee will hear witnesses Wednesday in connection with road expenditures in Kenora constituency. It was discussion on these expenditures by Mr. Henry that annoyed Hon. Peter Heenan. The Kenora member defied the Speaker, rejected advice of his colleagues and continued interrupting Mr. Henry, finally declaring of his "minister of Lands and Forests, Premier Hepburn called a sudden adjournment. The next day Mr. Heenan apologized to the Speaker and the Heenan-Henry-Hepburn tiff ended with everybody happy.

Both the same room were articles alleged to have been stolen from the Bernstein home, Police later rounded up four other youths for questioning.

Complete is the lad whose romantic account of a holdup a few weeks ago got him into difficulties. Police found after investigation that he had not vanquished armed robbers single-handed as he claimed, but instead was the prowler who attempted to enter a downtown delicatessen. A hatchet that bounced back and hit him on the nose proved his undoing on that occasion.

"Well, don't ever let me see you before me again. I'll give you a three day sentence, dating from the time of your arrest and you had better get out of this city and stay out," warned His Worship, the trio apparently heeding his advice as they were under lookout before the next case was called.

3 CARS INVOLVED IN HIGHWAY CRASH

Alleged Heavy Application of Brakes Brings H.T.A. Charge

Three automobiles were implicated in a motor accident immediately west of Belleville on Highway No. 2, on Saturday, when the sudden application of brakes upon his car by Harvey Brannigan, 20, Bleecker Side Ave., Toronto, resulted in the car skidding across the road and directly in front of him and careening into the path of an approaching automobile, advancing from the opposite direction. Considerable damage resulted, while Miss Ann Gerin, Belleville, sustained a nasty cut on the forehead, the result of flying glass. Miss Gerin was a passenger in Mr. Brannigan's car.

Motorcycle Patrolman Sam Ervins investigated and after interviewing the accident laid a charge of reckless driving against Brannigan. According to information received Wilfred Mallory, R.R. No. 2, Trenton, was operating a Ford truck and highway followed by Mr. Duncan. The latter motorist had accelerated his engine slightly as he was about to pass the Mallory car, but was forced to halt when the latter swung to the approach of a third automobile, advancing in the opposite direction. It was when the sudden application of brakes was made that Mr. Duncan's car skidded, struck the Mallory car in the rear, smashing it into the ditch and careened off to collide into the oncoming automobile driven by Leonard Russell of this city.

Mr. Mallory's car was damaged about the fenders and under-carriage, while a right front wheel and front end damage resulted to Mr. Duncan's car. The other car was damaged in the left front left front fender and running-board.

Motorcycle Patrolman Ervins reported a very light traffic on adjacent highways over the week end, however.

Hide Market Prices Decline About 5 p. c.

A recent war scare which boosted the price of hides in the city owing to the sudden demand for leather by overseas manufacturers had apparently abated this week as indicated by local dealers with a consequent slight drop in prices generally obtained. During the peak of the demand a price climb of about ten per cent. had been registered. This week the drop was estimated in the neighborhood of five per cent.

Ontario hides were reportedly being rushed to Europe to fill the demand for shoes for the marching armies of rearming countries. At the present time the greatest demand is being filled by South American dealers, it was stated locally.

BURGLARS LOOT SIX STORES

Guelph, Ont., March 8.—(CP)—Burglars looted a dozen stores in the village of Drayton last night and got away with goods estimated at more than $400.

They believed by Chief Constables Thomas Wilson to have been non-professionals, forced entry into a Hespeler tobacconist store last night and stole goods valued at about $90.

The Drayton incident was the second of a series of nature within a year. Last June Amy's Men's Furnishings establishment a victim again last night, was looted of goods valued at $1,500.

GIVEN TIME TO PROCURE LAWYER

Gordon Stapley Again Remanded on Charge of Theft

"Have you a lawyer to defend you? We do not want you writing to the other Justices of the Peace complaining you did not have a fair trial like you did before," commanded His Worship Magistrate H. J. Butler, K.C.) as he addressed Gordon Stapley, Belleville youth who appeared before him on two charges of theft in today's local police court. Stapley was charged with the theft of a tire, rear automobile seat and automobile accessories from Arrelia Munns and also of the theft of Dan Trumble's automobile recently.

"We are making arrangements for a lawyer," interrupted a side member of the court. "Well, you had better contact that lawyer right away," suggested His Worship and Plainclothes Constable Fred Isard left the court to contact the lawyer named.

"How do you plead to this charge?" asked Chief Kidd of Stapley. "I want a trial by judge," replied Stapley.

At this point Plainclothes Officer Isard returned to the court room and stated the lawyer in question could not appear in court under the prevailing circumstances.

His Worship then remanded until Friday in order to give the accused an opportunity to procure the services of counsel." concluded His Worship, Stapley being held in custody.

ABERHART TOLD TO STAY ON JOB

(By J. C. Sandeman)

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Edmonton, March 8.—(CP)—Members of the Social Credit League, the political organization behind the Government of Premier William Aberhart, apparently are satisfied with his efforts to establish a new economic order in Alberta.

Judging by letters and resolutions the Premier read to the Edmonton prophetic Bible conference last night, he will be confirmed in office by League members. A week ago he was belittled to date his failure to establish Social Credit in the time-limit set after his victory in the recent election campaign and asked them to advise him whether they wanted him to resign or continue his efforts.

The Premier last night read from letters and resolutions he had received in the week, while admitting it was impossible for many organizations to hold meetings in that time.

The following were samples: "Stay with the post, we are behind you 100 per cent" "Stay with the government, do not let the opposition scare you" "Wishing you the best luck on the debt adjustment, with you 100 per cent."

STRICT DRIVING TESTS FOR CHINA

All Applicants Must Undergo Three Sets of Tests

Nanking, March 8—(CP)—Faced with an alarming increase in traffic accidents due to rapid expansion of China's system of highways and greater use of motor vehicles the national highway traffic commission has stamped strict driving tests on chinese motorists.

The tests were applied after 10 traffic experts, representing 10 great cities and 10 populous provinces, met in Nanking. The experts, summoned by the National economic council under auspices of the highway commission, decided to start a campaign for education of the general public in the need for traine safety.

All applicants for driving licenses must undergo three sets of tests. A medical examination will determine efficiency of sight and hearing; an oral test will snow the applicant's knowledge of traffic rules and elementary mechanism, and a driving test will determine motorist' ability.

The meeting decided to begin a course of instruction in traffic rules in the primary schools. Free pamphlets will be distributed and lectures given.

Hickahs, wheelbarrow and coolie burden traffic still add difficulties to motoring on Chinese roads, as do unskilled bicyclists, children playing in the streets and women with bound feet. In country districts peasants often obstruct traffic and throw stones at passing cars.

LABOR SUPPORTS PRESIDENT'S BILL

Bring Pressure on Congress to Revamp Supreme Court

Washington, March 8—(AP)—U.S. Labor's non-partisan league set out today to bring pressure on Congress in favor of the Roosevelt proposal to revamp the Supreme Court.

"The President has chosen this path—the only path—toward his humanitarian objectives" President George L. Berry told the League's National Committee.

"It is up to those who supported him for re-election to back his fellow him now."

The committee of the League established last year to campaign for Mr. Roosevelt's re-election opened what white house observers hold aides predicted would bring debate on the court program to a new peak.

The president will follow up his Thursday's appeal for enlargement of the Supreme Court—if aged justices do not retire—with a "fireside chat" broadcast to the nation tomorrow. Attorney General Cummings will open Senate hearings on the Court Bill Monday.

On Friday four Senators opposing the program will address a New York mass meeting.

POLICE BLOTTER

Activities were quiet in Belleville over the week-end. Three transients were apprehended when caught in the act of pan handling. They will appear in police court on a subsequent court. This practice of pan handling and molesting peaceful citizens on local streets in search of alms must be brought to a stop", related one police official today, and if, was intimated, that further arrests for these offenders were in the offing.

An automobile driven by George Avery, R.R.No. 3, Belleville, collided with the rear fender of another automobile driven in the same direction, by Miss Phyllis Twiddy, Bellecroft. Fender damage was all that resulted and the matter of damages was amicably settled between the parties. After Twiddy was about to make a U turn at the intersection of Station and Pinnacle while Mr. Avery was following in the wake of the lead car and struck the rear fender.

Peterboro police reported the theft of a 1936 model Chevrolet sedan last night. The vehicle had 1937 Ontario license plate number 13-R-46.

Twenty-four transients were housed at the police station over the week-end, 14 on Saturday night and the remainder last night.

HIS LUMBAGO WENT IN TWO WEEKS

Never Felt Better In His Life

Though he tried many so-called remedies, this man continued to suffer with lumbago for years. It troubled him, in fact, until he found the right remedy, Kruschen Salts. These are his own words:—

"I would like to tell you of the benefit I derived from taking Kruschen Salts. For some years past I have been a sufferer from lumbago. I tried no end of other remedies, but got no relief whatever until one day I saw Kruschen advertised and thought I would give it a trial. I did, and to my surprise the lumbago left me after taking Kruschen for a fortnight. I am now taking it regularly every day and never felt better in my life."—W. E.

Kruschen is a combination of mineral salts, which assist in stimulating your liver, kidneys and digestive tract to healthy, regular activity. If you could see how Kruschen dissolves away uric acid deposits, you would agree that the Kruschen treatment should bring relief in cases of lumbago.

Two Killed as Italian Liner Is Heeled Over

Genoa, Italy, March 8—(AP)—Two persons were fatally injured, it was learned today, when the Italian liner Rex heeled over under the impact of a mountainous wave off Gibraltar during one of the stormiest passages of the Atlantic ever made.

Scores of passengers were injured when the huge wave, described as "a mountain of water" broke over the vessel last Thursday. The list of injured for the crossing totalled more than 90.

A first class passenger of Italian nationality and a member of the crew died later from injuries. The wave was the greatest of a series so high they swept the famed Lido deck of the former blue ribbon holder.

Watching Picture Show

Most of the injured passengers were watching a motion picture in the Grand Salon when the wall of water struck.

The film Ave Maria, had just reached its climax with Santa Mine Giglio singing the Toreador Song when the liner lurched over and the audience was hurled across the floor of the salon.

The Italian passenger suffered an abdominal rupture and died two days later. The seaman, fatally injured, was thrown against a steel chion in another part of the ship and his back bone was broken.

An emergency operation was performed on the seaman during the storm but died. A blood transfusion for a blood transfusion was undertaken to have handicapped the effort.

The Rex docked yesterday after a three-day crossing from New York.

AILMENT AGGRAVATED BY WINNING FORTUNE

Halifax, March 8—(CP)—C. W. Nickle, 63, retired railway man who won $150,000 on an Irish sweepstakes ticket, died here yesterday. He left a widow and Sidney Bulger, winner of the Cambridgeshire stakes last October 23.

A heart ailment, aggravated by the excitement of winning the fortune, caused death.

All Leies wanted to do with the money, he said shortly after the race, was to return with Mrs. Leies to their little cottage at nearby Shefield. He'd had enough travelling on land.

He had been confined to his motel suite here practically since the day he received notice that he had a ticket on Dan Bulger.

Mrs. Susan Leies, Western of North Bay, Ont., is a sister.

PORTSMOUTH PLANNED GREAT EMPIRE AIRPORT

Portsmouth, England, March 8—(CP)—After months of negotiations, the way has been cleared for the erection of plans desired to make Portsmouth a great empire air port, Sir Kingsley Wood announced today, already a naval base, may be one of the world's greatest airports.

City council, after lengthy discussion, accepted a proposal by the docks and airports committee to construct an empire airport at Langston harbor. The estimated cost is $1,200,000 (approximately $6,000,000) towards which the government has agreed to contribute a maximum of $600,000. The project was approved by a majority of two votes, 29 to 27.

REQUEST POST MORTEM

Gananoque, Ont., March 8—Coroner Dr. R. J. Bracken last night requested a post mortem in the case of Oscar Sheets, Alberta died suddenly today, two days after Frank Evans, 45, a co-worker at the rivet-manufacturing plant of Parmenter and Bullock. Both men developed pneumonia. Dr. Bracken refused to sign Sheets' death certificate and conferred with Crown Attorney H. Atkinson, Brockville.

PHYSICIANS FIND BULLET IN BRAIN

Victim Continues at Work For Week And Only "Had a Headache"

Detroit, March 8—(CP)—Thewas he had a small-calibre rifle bullet imbedded in his brain, Albert Ridge, 39, boiler fireman in a Detroit hospital, worked from Monday until Friday of last week it was disclosed today, then sought a doctor's care because he had a headache". Last night Ridge felt well enough to want to leave his hospital cot.

Ridge told doctors the wound was probably traceable to an accident which happened a week ago while he was returning from a Sunday automobile ride. He said his car windows were open and he heard a shot. "I felt sort of stunned for a minute", he said, "and pulled over to the curb; me concerning the shot with the way I felt. In a minute I went on."

Physicians discovered a tiny wound hole, without evidence of blood, in his right temple, partially concealed by hair. X-ray disclosed the bullet.

Doctors said Ridge's case was one in a million. The shot was evidently fired by youthful prowling shooting.

DOUBLE FUNERAL

Filling all available seats, packing the aisles and the vestibule from end to end, crowding every inch of standing space, while a large crowd remained outside unable to gain admission, they stood in reverence, at times approaching awe, as the Rev. Fred Lane of Frankford United Church and Rev. R. H. Herrington of Thomasburg officiated at the first double funeral service held in Moira United Church on Saturday afternoon when Bernard Hartley and Henry Emerson, victims of the tragic accident in which they lost their lives, when the car in which they were riding crashed into a C.N.R. freight locomotive at the Corbyville railroad crossing, and which injured two other Moira men the late Henry Emerson, of the last rites.

"Although the service at the church was scheduled to take place at two o'clock, the church was filled to capacity a half hour before that time.

Inseparable in Death

At tre-twenty, the assembled crowd rose slowly, reverently to its feet. Years flowed unrestrainedly down women's cheeks. Men, endeavored to swallow suspicious lumps, which suddenly appeared in their throats, as the first of the flower-laden caskets moved down the church aisle, to the mournful notes of the dead march. Flowers banked the floor were placed in line at the front of the church. Friends in full line because of the two young men were inseparable in death.

A reverential hush fell over the assemblage. A woman sobbed, hysterical their throats, and stood with bowed heads as the service began. The sweet voices of the choir of Moira United Church, assisted by Mr. George Bilsby, of Belleville, blended in the melody of hymns. Following the service opened. Passages of Scripture were read by the Rev. Mr. Herrington. During the service the anthem "When the Roll is Called up Yonder" was sung by the choir.

In his funeral sermon, beautiful in its very simplicity, the Rev. Fred Lane, pastor of the United Church, Frankford, stressed the point, that in life we do not prepare for death but rather for the life that is to follow.

"We dread death as an enemy, a robber than a joyful messenger, who unlocks the gate of immortality," he said. "Because we do not feel ready to meet this messenger the grave seems so dark and terrifying. The question of preparation has been made."

With seventy years as the normal span of life, the average person does not think about preparation for the life hereafter until nearing that age, the speaker pointed out. "Yet we all humanity must have treasure brought to bear in our second state of being. People continually put off preparedness for the next life, as if it lived that way. But it has been brought home to us that we must be ready always to the young—in fact to all ages of life."

"Life is not preparedness - for its primarily," Mr. Lane continued, "rather I would say people prepared to live life for it is a state of character, character building if we are prepared to live we are prepared to die."

Body Nothing But Temple

"Jesus tells us, that we do not, and cannot know the things of death and life. These will be revealed to us. It is ours to give attention to the life we live—we poor mortals, whereas souls, who are afraid because we cannot see the life, God would like to see people live the way Jesus Christ would have them live."

"We think too much of this body of ours, which is nothing but a temple; a temporary structure to house the soul. These mortal remains upon which we now gaze are but the tempts of the souls, which have gone forth."

"Jesus spoke of God as a father. If we had the faith to think of him as such we would have no fear of that which is death."

We might think of life as a time for preparation for that life which He says is better and in so doing, when the call comes we shall be ready for the final summons and enter a fuller, richer life."

"When you and I come to the portal as these, our young friends have come, the records of the past come to me, 'Does God see aught but the good soul?'"

"Friends," continued Mr. Lane, "I would point you to Jesus Christ who promised to sustain and strengthen us. When we think of these young men taken out in the prime of life, what more can we say."

The sweet comforting notes of "Abide With Me," rang through the little church to end one of the most impressive services ever held in this neighborhood which climaxed the tragedy, which rocked the community to its inner most depths. Again the assemblage stood in reverence as the coffins were moved slowly out of the church to the cemeteries.

Short services were held at the homes of the deceased prior to the service in the church with the Rev. Mr. Lane officiating at the Hertiy home, and the Rev. Mr. Herrington conducting the service at the house of the late Henry Emerson.

A large number of relatives and friends of the deceased journeyed to the Moira and Thomasburg cemeteries, where the bodies of the late Bernard Hertiy and Henry Emerson respectively were laid in their final resting place.

Pall bearers for the late Bernard Hertiy were: Messrs. Ross Leggett, Milton Vandervaker, Donald Holbert, Nelson Welsh, Edward Emerson and Orval Shantz.

Messrs Clarence Mullett, Wallace Anthony, Charles Keichabaugh, Cecil Mumbey, Clayton Vanderwater and Leslie Post bore the casket of the late Henry Emerson.

BOY'S ESCAPADE ABRUPTLY ENDED

Basil Savois, Toronto, Held in Custody For His Parents

Persistent in his efforts to run away from home 13 year old Basil Savois, 163 Sydenham Street, Toronto, was apprehended in Belleville over the week-end, after having escaped from the Children's Shelter in Port Hope, where he was being detained on Friday night last. The whereabouts of the lad were made known to his parents by local police authorities yesterday.

After having been afforded a night's lodging in a local hotel, the Savois lad was found wandering about and when approached by a police officer tried to escape and at first refused to answer questions pertaining to his identity. Later the lad stated his name was Basil Savois and provided a ready, clear check-up. It was following a long distance telephone conversation with the lad's parents that the police became acquainted with the fact he had been placed in Toronto his home since Thursday last.

"Things were too quiet around home so I was just out to see the sights" informed little Basil as he related a story that sounded thrilling as well as exciting for any teenaged boy. He had been apprehended in Fort Hope on Friday and placed in the custody of the Children's Aid Society, later escaping from the Hope County shelter under the cover of darkness. The lad then hitchhiked as far as Belleville on Saturday, where he was provided with a room at a local hotel by a kindly citizen. It was not until Sunday, that he was apprehended by the authorities.

Basil's mother arrived in Belleville at noon today and escorted her wayward boy home. The lad was detained at the police station while in Belleville, his escapade in Port Hope telling them not to take any chances on other institutions of detention in Belleville.

FALLS TO HER DEATH

New York, March 8—(AP)—Hilda Kristina Lascari, noted sculptress, fell to her death yesterday from the 11th floor solarium of a hospital, where for two months she had been receiving treatment for a nervous disorder.

Mrs. Lascari was 51. She won the gold medal of the National Academy of Designs in 1926 with a statue of a nude "girl, called "Awakening".

STIRLING

FORTY-TWO YEARS ON BOARD RECORD OF FRED T. WARD

Resigns at Beginning of Year to Give Younger Men a Chance

SPLENDID SERVICE

Members of Board Gather at His Home And Present Him With Gift

Stirling, March 8 (Special)—Marking the forty-second year of his services on the Stirling Board of Education, Mr. F. T. Ward resigned at the beginning of 1937 from active service on the governing body, which has been indebted to the veteran of Stirling municipal life for nearly half a century, for wise counsel and good sound judgment. Mr. Ward, who is now past his eightieth year, entered the field as candidate for the local Board of Education in the year 1895 and since that time has served continuously. In his recollections of former days prominent men, who have served in directing the affairs of the Stirling institutions of learning include, J. S. Black, Dr. O. W. Faulkner, J. Baldwin, C. W. Scott, T. G. Clute, H. Warren, Morden Bird, Wellington Bird and others. He has expended all his time and knowledge in the service of the Board of Education, rather than in any other branch of the municipal life of the community. Several times friends requested him to resign from the Board and enter the field in other branches of the community life, where it was felt that his position would be of value. He declined however, being satisfied with what he considered an humble office on the School Board.

Makes Way For Younger Men

This year Mr. Ward reluctantly tendered his resignation in favour of some of the younger men of the village, who have been asking for seats regularly for all those years past. Mr. Ward has prized highly the fiftieth anniversary, of the establishment of the Methodist Sunday and is one of the district's eldest citizens. Resignation from public life does not mean inactivity for him, for each day finds him in his office directing the affairs of the well known gents' furnishing store and tailor shop.

On Thursday evening of last week all the members of the present Board of Education called at Mr. Ward's home to personally express their appreciation of his past services and co-operation, and to present him with a gift as a token of esteem. The presentation was made by Mr. R. W. Meiklejohn secretary of the Board and an appropriate address was read by Mr. Lacey, chairman of the Board. The gift was a splendid smoking set in walnut with the initials engraved thereon including a large box of his favorite brand of cigars. Among those present on the occasion were Dr. C. F. Wait, Dr. H. H. Alger, Messrs. Edward Bailey J. S. Morrison, E. Lacey, Wm. Paterson, R. C. Martin, C. F. Linn, Dr. A. E. Carleton, W. Wright, J. B. Belmont and R. W. Meiklejohn.

The Address

Fellow Colleague Mr. Ward:

Back in 1895, when you became member of the Stirling Board of Education, the people of this vicinity and surrounding country unquestionably had the proud fortunate in securing a man of your calibre and mental capabilities to represent them and let it go at that. Looking back on a vista of forty-two years of valuable service, we may realize Sir, that your appointment in 1895 marked an epoch in the life of educational institutions in this district. The sum total of capable persistent service of four and a fifth decades cannot be computed in figures.

We know that you will ever remain interested in this Board and its problems and we are glad, that you are willing to chart and direct moves we might make for construction. Perhaps it is well that we concentre towards the goal we are ever anxious to reach namely, the best opportunities possible for the education in its broadest sense of the word of our girls and boys, young ladies and young men, in order, that they may be able to become leaders and good followers in the affairs of living and fulfilling their destinies.

We shall miss you from our Board meetings but we know you will be with us in thought. Therefore we ask you to accept this gift and while "Lady Nicotine" keeps you company, we hope, that each succeeding smoke ring may be filled with memories of happy members of the past and present and the happiest associations of the future.

Stirling Board of Education,
Chairman E. Lacey.
Secretary-Treasurer,
R. W. Meiklejohn.

THE CORONATION

Millions upon millions of British subjects throughout the world will give much to see the coronation procession of Their Majesties King George Sixth and Queen Elizabeth in May, but while every provision is made for the seating of those from far and near, and while London will be thronged with millions of visitors, yet there is a limit to the number who will witness the great pageant of the crowning of the new king. London could not contain all who would like to be there, great as London is, but the affairs of families and the multitude of duties and inability to take the time to cross the ocean, and the duties of carrying on affairs will keep the vast throng away.

But their hearts will be in London at that time, for in that place will be enacted a rite with all the wealth of what the crowning of a king has come to mean with tradition dating back into days beyond history.

As British subjects of whatever Dominion or as the dwellers in the homeland, those who cannot go will be worthily represented by the leaders of their nations, they will have friends in the historic city; they will read the newspaper accounts with rapt interest and will listen to the broadcast.

This will be the first coronation in history which will be carried to the farthest corners of the earth by broadcast. The late King George Fifth came to the throne before radio was known to the world but during his reign, that monarch, the father of His Gracious Majesty King George Sixth, spoke to his people on various occasions with a depth of feeling which forever linked up broadcasting as a tie between sovereign and peoples of the Empire.

While those who go will witness one of those unforgettable events, those who stay at home for various reasons will not be forgotten. They will by means of radio get as close to the scene as even those within the Abbey where the ceremony takes place.

Yet Canadians may still obtain seats in the official stands along the Coronation procession route but applications must reach Canada House before April 1.

Thus, while the demand for the official seats allotted to United Kingdom groups increases and complaints from all sides that such and such an organization has been neglected, Canada's allocation remains equal to the Canadian demand so far.

Uncovered seats on government stands are selling for $5.50 while covered places cost $5.60. The government is standing a loss on this enterprise. The seats are not being sold to the general public, but are being allotted in batches to various groups, such as ex-service men, the trades unions and the Dominions.

Meanwhile the cost of commercial seats is rising though apparently not as fast as was anticipated. It is rental figures for comfortable windows along the route, with meals, service, etc., that are skyrocketing.

It now appears the early estimate that 19,000 Canadians would attend the Coronation was too high. Steamship bookings and advance accommodation reservations in London indicate not more than 10,000 will witness the pageantry.

It is pointed out a great many who would likely have attended went to the Vimy Pilgrimage last year and are unable to repeat the journey across the Atlantic. Moreover, while Canadian interest and loyalty is unquestioned, it is thought the tremendous Coronation excitement, with accompanying increased costs, has perhaps steered off many of the visitors who would prefer Britain in her natural state.

NO HOUSE DEBATES BROADCAST

Many Canadians no doubt will not be sorry that the government does not think it would be advisable to broadcast the debates of the House.

If debates were shorter and always in the spirit of real oratory and on great themes and issues it might be possible that Canadians would fall into line in favor of some broadcasting. It can be understood that debates, in great crises such as those which existed in the days of the Athens of Demosthenes and the Rome of Cicero, might thrill the people, but because so much of the debating seems mere routine, it is doubtful if debates will be broadcast for a long long time.

Of course, if Rome had had radio in Cicero's day the Roman people would have heard something of supreme oratory. But even the Roman public men must at times have spoken very ordinary words on themes which would not have maintained the public attention.

Canada still has Hansard wherein those who like the fullness of House debates may read to content and it still has the press which has the great power of condensation of addresses to reveal the germ and core of the argument of even the greatest of orators in the Canadian Commons.

REALISM.

Some authors in their search for soles,
Rake in the mire of sinful man,
And bolster up their squalid tales
With decks from out life's garbage can:
Tho' realism be their cry
Thus to reveal Man to himself,
They seem to do their best to try
To vend mere lewdness just for pelf.

All normal folk are quite aware
That morbid natures are perverse:
Neurotic souls are everywhere
Repressing things they'd fain rehearse.
Why tempt the healthy mind of youth
To gloat o'er a voluptuous tale
That ends without truth,
Passions that are beyond the pale?

Contemptuous, decent minds must be,
Of those who pander to the leer
Of sniggering pornography,
That chuckles at a smutty sneer
Life's secret intimacies they
Befoul with cynic verbiage,
And prostitute their pens for pay,
Selling their souls to earn their wage.

Most of us, and alas 'tis true,
Are just poor sinners: few are saints:
Plain human nature's mixed of hue,
A lot of things not free from taints.
So, authors, if the urge you feel
To use your pen like surgeon's knife,
Let not your art alone reveal
The sordid slimy things of Life.

MANY CANADIANS HAVE MADE GOOD IN A BIG WAY IN THE UNITED STATES, and Uncle Sam has cause for gratitude for the contributions in brain and brawn which Jack Canuck has made down through the years from College professors, physicists, business men, etc., to hockey players. Belleville and the Bay of Quinte district have sent many sons and daughters to the United States where they have become distinguished in various pursuits. News has just come from Fort Worth, Texas, of outstanding distinction acquired by a former Madoc boy, Stanley A. Thompson, who has been chosen as "The Most Distinguished Citizen of Fort Worth for 1936." Stan. Thompson is the youngest son of Mrs. Mary Jane Thompson, and the late Archibald Thompson, of Madoc. Stanley Thompson has lived twelve years in Fort Worth, and in that time has become widely known and highly respected. He was honored because of the time and energy he gives to community service with the thought always foremost of advancing the general interests of Fort Worth and, therefore, the happiness, health and wealth of the citizens. At the same time he has not neglected his own business and has been very successful, being rated as a wealthy man. He is associated with the Texas oil industry on a big way and in his spare time officiates as president of the baseball club, president of the T. C. U. Educational Foundation, and of the Southwest Motor Club. He is an officer of the Community Chest, the Y. M. C. A., and the Chamber of Commerce, an active steward in his church and member of many social and civic clubs. Fort Worth newspapers were loud in their approval of the award and lavish in their praises of him as a valuable citizen and distinct asset to the city. And so, Madoc, not satisfied with the honor of being the Old Home Town of Dr. Dafoe, of Quintuplet fame, has another claim to fame in supporting Fort Worth, Texas, with a most distinguished citizen. Seems as if we men folks had to travel far from home to be truly appreciated.

Ain't it the truf.

WHEN YOU'RE FEELING TOPHOLE and just a bit above par, admiring your own goodness, perhaps, or when you're feeling definitely down, depressed and dissatisfied with your own conduct and mode of life and treatment of other people, you may be able to pick up a bit of pep from the old jingle which runs something like this: "There's a little bit of bad in the best of us, and a little bit of good in the worst of us, so it ill behooves the most of us to talk about the rest of us. Which means without being translated that none of us are perfect this side of the pearly gates, and quality not altogether agreeable to those with whom we come in contact, perhaps, and that when we are discussing the frailties and faults of others — perhaps they are doing the same thing about us. So more power to them and may the best tongue win.

PROPOSAL TO BROADCAST THE DOMINION PARLIAMENT DEBATES, if made seriously, was taken at its true worth and laughed out of court — or the House, if you please. Filling the air with that ceaseless drone of consequential and inconsequential barrage of words, — might kill all the birds, cause static, sunspots and cause civil war.

I'm Not a Bum

A man who is pretty much down and out does not like to be called a "bum." There was a gathering in the office here yesterday and he said so. Like many others he had a story to tell. He had been across the continent twice . . . had slept in most of the police stations in Ontario, and a good many outside of this province. He was wearing clothes which people here and there had given him; he was scraping the peice of a meal, and yet he claimed and insisted he was not a bum.

From an inside pocket there came a number of much-worn letters and papers, and in there was a photograph of two men in the uniform of the Canadian army. A finger which was stiff and none too steady pointed at one of the faces and said: "That is the man I enlisted." It was difficult at first to look at the face of the tramp and be sure that the man in uniform was the same person. At the time of enlistment the picture showed a fine-looking young man, well-built, clear eyes and well-squared-up chin. The man who carried with him that picture today does not look like that. In the years between much has gone out of him; he has the appearance of the "road" stamped on him. And yet he says he is not a bum. He says he is just another picture, one of those small snapshots showing a woman standing in front of a white house.

"That," he said, "is my mother in front of a place we used to call home. I don't know who's living there now. I wish you could see better what my mother looked like. It doesn't show good there. And again the soiled and rather shaky finger pointed at the little picture, and the man on the road stated: "As long as I carry that picture I can't be a bum. I look like one and people say I am one, but I'm not a bum."

The transient said he was a painter by trade, but could not find any work. Right now he was thinking of going to some place he had in mind and building a little shack. Why? "Because I want to belong to some place. Yet there was a man who was big and strong and not far removed from being tattooed when he enlisted; he put in a good many years overseas, and today his transient air right, but it is hard to combat his argument that he is not a bum.

METROPOLITAN LIFE BUSINESS SHOWS GROWTH

Insurance in Force Increased —Welfare Work Benefits Policyholders

OTTAWA, March. 8. — Economic conditions on this continent are reflected in the report of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, every fifth person in Canada and the United States being a policyholder in the mutual company — and a general improvement, in business is apparent in the 70th Annual Statement released today. The 28,400,000 policyholders increased their insurance protection in Metropolitan Life by over one billion dollars during 1936, a total of $21,310,075,784 — the largest amount of life insurance ever in force in a company. Policyholders of the Metropolitan and their beneficiaries received in 1936 for the fifth successive year over half a billion dollars — payments to the policies — over one hundred million dollars will be returned to them during 1937 as dividends on their policies — assets increased in 1936 by $270,860,000 to a total of $4,494,701,772 — and satisfactory progress is reported in all departments of the company.

HARRY D. WRIGHT

Second Vice-President and Manager for Canada, Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, who reports increased investments in the Dominion.

Second Vice-President Harry D. Wright, Manager for Canada, addressing Canadian business of the company, stated that, in the interests of the policyholders and their beneficiaries its assets totalled $4,494,701,772 and that life insurance companies in Canada were the last to reduce rates for the protection they then placed him with foster parents. But one Scots lassie interviewed would not cost him $18 a month he decided he was not afraid that as he took the child away, deposited it inside the door of a Home Club, rattled the door so as to call attention, hid himself until he saw the boy taken in and then went away smiling at his cleverness. Later he was traced, and he found himself eventually in fee-

"They look like a flock of swallows saying summer's here" observed my companion. "Or bees swarming to a new hive," I remarked.

Almost indecisively the miniature, yellow carriage of the "Bernina Bahn" had pulled into St. Moritz's station. Not a patch of the Swiss landform was now left. It was just one mass of bronzed, black-haired Italians, all chattering and gesticulating at once.

Everyone carried a large bundle wrapped in a colored shawl. Within lay their working all—for the brief summer months. Slightly detached from the bustling throng stood a small band of musicians, complete with massive and flowing mane. The dark brown of their canvas suit cases and the somber covering of their violins and cellos made striking contrast to the medley of bright scarves and neckerchiefs of their countrymen.

Work, not pleasure, had called this motley crowd from their hotel-house homes to the Alpine coolness. And the illipuian Swiss train, with electric ease, had swung them up and over the lower ramparts of the Bernina range. From the plains of Tirano, already stewardship in the heat of early summer, the highest adhesion railway in Europe had climbed through refrigerator heights at 8000 feet. From olive groves to glaciers, from chestnut blossoms to birch and stalwart pine they had climbed. Now vegetation ceased, giving place to the empty vastness of crag and peak.

Through a gap in the walls of granite that engulfed the tiny track, even Piz Palü, that shapeliest of Swiss peaks, had, for one brief moment, laid the edge of her serulad cloak at their feet. And for short seconds the shimmering and wild plateau that skirts the mirage-like "White Lake," the gay and ready snow plow had been brought into action. Then at length, diving downward, they stood slackening as it circumvented the Morteratsch Glacier at a respectful distance. The train was soon swallowed up by thick pine forests, to emerge triumphantly over the falls of St. Moritz lake.

Pulling at their coats a trifle closer about their ample figures, these warm-blooded children of the Italian Campagna moved slowly up the hill to the village, finding warmth in close proximity in the frosted air of evening.

Suddenly for a second time, a world of bustle and clatter they brought into the stillness of the forests and mountains! Not since the last blanket of snow had silenced all sound from peak to pasture, from ravine to road, had sign or hamult of human voices been heard in the whole Engadine. Even when spring's hot sun had pierced the thick elderdown—unfreezing—torrents and streams; when avalanches pitched headlong with mighty thunderings; or pines, with sighs of relief, had untwined their tresses after winter's icy grip—still only the voice of nature had been heard.

But now, with the first breath of summer held the scene—when pastures already ankle-deep, were scented like a peach harvest from the gold and mauve carpet of passer rhaeticum and campanula pusilla; and when singing streams fell unhampered, ice cold from snow and glacier—came this vivid 'crowd.

Much spring cleaning was needed in San Murezzan's great palaces. For last, another fortnight, whatever happened, the hotel proprietors must be prepared to open their doors wide to the first visitors.

First the great white sheets that had protected the furniture since the April that melted away both snow and guest, must be carefully removed. Then action would be concentrated on the bedding, and mattresses. Each smooth feather-beds piled high on every available sill, balcony, window, and even roofs—for days of sun bathing. Mattresses would be unpicked, and repiled of fine new horsehair stuffing and the original fluffiness recaptured by drawing the atmosphere through machines equipped with rotating spikes.

When the long day's work was over, the beds seated and the last fires stoked for the night, those gay, merry "White Lake" days would gather awhile in the twilight and sing of their homeland, underlined by concertina. For four short months they were to be part of the "season" to the visitor. But they brought into the hotels the atmosphere of the south; a language of poetry not unlike the Romansch spoken in the valleys, and a pageantry of music from their orchestras that would warm-blooded Italians understand best.

A Car Before a Baby

In the heyday of the melodrama, the young mother tearfully abandoned her "chee-ild" on a doorstep and fled, and was never more cast right in the last act, but for Frederick Schue, 25 year-old Chicago lad, the drama of real life did not work out that way. Schue's wife is a unionized and they left him with a seven-months-old baby boy on his hands. An institution cared for the child for a time, then placed the police court.

The police quizzed him about his wife's desertion, and he denied a car. "How," asked the police, "can you afford to run a car and not pay for your baby's keep?" "I don't know," he replied, "I just have to have a car."

There are many people like Mr. Schue in a similar predicament, but they don't abandon their babies, they just don't have babies—and they take cars instead. And after they get the car they take more care of it than they do of their children. They see that it is properly fed and kept clean; is the slightest thing wrong with it they take it to the garage to be looked over and put right. They may suffer from physical ailments themselves and neglect going to a doctor—but the automobile must function perfectly.

CANADIAN PREMIER G REETED AT WASHINGTON

Arriving at Washington to discuss "matters of mutual interest", Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King was greeted by U. S. Secretary of State Cordell Hull. Madoc and District

Madoc—The Women's Missionary Society of St. Peter's Presbyterian Church met at the home of Mrs. Walter Brett on Thursday afternoon with a splendid attendance. The first vice president, Mrs. W. A. Hunter had charge of the meeting in the absence of the president, Mrs. John McCaffrey, through illness. During the business period it was decided to ask each member to donate toward the Expense Fund instead of holding a home cooking sale. The donations are to be left with Mrs. W. Mills. A motion was also passed to send a letter of sympathy to Mrs. McCaffrey. The topic "Work Among the French-Canadians in Montreal and the Chinese in Canada" was given by Miss Mary MacKintosh, assisted by Mrs. Fred Curry, Mrs. Jas. Wyrock and Mrs. M. Allen. Mrs. A. Johnson gave a reading of excerpts from the work of Dr. E. Stanley Jones, "Torches with which mothers may light the world" At the close of the meeting the hostess, assisted by Mrs. T. Rice and Mrs. R. Hook served lunch.

High School Literary

The Madoc High School Literary Society held an open meeting in the school auditorium on Tuesday evening. The program was provided by the members of all forms. Following the opening song "O Canada," John Bristol, acting as chairman, welcomed the visitors. A short business period followed. A pedal duet was given by Kay Parks and Reta Smith, accompanied by Audrey Smith. The school paper was read by Eileen Wilson. A duet by Malcolm Hazzel and Miller Johnston, playing their own accompaniment, was much appreciated.

A reading by Amelia Lahey was followed by the school prophesy, given by Ken Bird. An instrumental solo by Audrey Smith. A two act play "The Red Lamp" brought the evening's program to a close. The story was about a wealthy aristocrat trying to direct the lives of her neice and nephew.

The parts were all well cast but Miss Margaret O'Connell deserves special mention as her acting was of exceptional merit.

The cast:

Matilda Deering, played by Margaret O'Connell.

Allen Deering by Betty Ferguson.

Annie O'Shane by Mary Smith.

Harold Deering by Newton Kincaid.

Mr. Clark by Fred Stewart.

Bill Thorne by Allan Martin.

The play was produced under the direction of Miss E. MacDermid and too much credit can not be given for the excellent manner in which the characters presented their parts.

General Debility Can Be Overcome

Energy Builder Quickly Helps Recovery

Other people have vigor and energy to burn. If you haven't, if you're all run down and tired out at the end of the day seem too much for you, it is probably because your system is terribly low. See what PHOSPHERINE, the great British Tonic, can do for you.

You will very depressed, and my nerves were in a terrible condition," writes Mrs. F. Ray, 40 High St., Tooting, Eng. "What worried me mostly were frequent attacks of dizziness. I started taking PHOSPHERINE. After only a few doses my head became quite clear and my strength steadily returned. I am now feeling fit and well, free from debility, nerves and run-down condition to find new physical and mental energy quickly. It is concentrated nerve nourishment. Start taking PHOSPHERINE now. Almost at once you will feel the difference. Soon you will have new health and energy that you may have demanded of ever before. It is 4 to 6 times as much as the 50c size. 94

SHIELDS ATTACKS LIQUOR POLICY

Toronto, March 8.—(CP)—Rev. Dr. T. T. Shields, Toronto Baptist Minister, told the Ontario Temperance Federation yesterday "lawlessness is hovering over Queen's Park and no matter how strongly any resolution is framed, it will do us no good."

Attacking the Ontario Government for its liquor policy, Dr. Shields said "let us resign from the diplomatic corps and join the army. Votes alone will beat Hepburn. He has no respect whatever for us and I'm afraid the feeling is mutual."

"Prohibition is not the biggest issue of the day to place before our government, but the issue of democracy is," said Rev. Raymond Booth, pastor of Friends Meeting House. "We do not want virtual dictatorship".

The convention unanimously adopted a resolution proposing that an immediate referendum on sale of beer and wine by the glass be demanded and that in event of refusal, a party be formed to campaign for it in the legislature.

Heather gave a little shiver of distaste. "I hate flying. It's so dangerous," she said.

"According to statistics its safer than motoring," Vilette said lightly. "Only you're used to motoring and that makes all the difference. I fear quite a lot of Africa will have to be flown."

"I suppose I'm old-fashioned," Heather admitted.

Vilette frowned. "Why do you keep on saying you're old-fashioned?" she asked irritably. "Any one would think it was something to be proud of. I can't see that there's any need for you to be old-fashioned—I think it's silly. You're too easy going. Sometimes it almost seems as if you like making a martyr of yourself. People will let you, all right, if you want to, but I—" She turned to look at her sister and the words died on her lips.

Heather was staring at her with blank eyes, her face quite colourless, and when she spoke her voice was high-pitched and almost unnatural.

"You think I like making a martyr of myself, as you call it," she said. "Do you think it was ever my choice or a life to stay here and look after all of you? Do you think I've got any happiness out of it—except that I know it was what Mother would have wished me to do? Do you think I haven't wanted to be free and have a good time? Do you think it's been easy to see all my youth slipping away while I washed dishes and darned socks, and nursed you all through measles and the whooping cough. Do you think there haven't been times when I could have run away from the house and banged the door behind me and left you all to do for yourselves, a dozens, hundreds of times, and if I didn't—and I thought I knew it all—it was because there hasn't been any money for me to spend on myself. Father—and I'm not blaming him—and Betty and Effie have always had—not that I regretted it for you—so any of you—but to talk to me like that—"

She pushed back her chair and ran from the room.

Out in the hall she stood for a moment, her hand pressed to her lips, trying hard to control herself. To break down again was unthinkable; twice during the last few days she had given way so utterly that she had been left ill and shaken.

It was absurd to be so upset just because Vilette chose to say unkind, bitter things—Vilette always talked in the same strain and meant very little. She would put it out of her mind—what did it matter? And what was the use of being a coward after so many years?

She came from the kitchen. "The butcher, Miss Heather—" Heather drew a long breath and her tense body relaxed. She arranged about the meal, dusted the drawing-room, put fresh flowers in Cæsar's study, and busied herself until it was lunched and one odd jobs until she felt steady and thoroughly composed and could laugh at herself again.

She went in search of Vilette, but only to find . . disgruntled Effie. "They've gone out," she said sulkily. "Vilette's got a new motor, and has gone to the aerodrome with Bobbie."

Heather looked blank. "Gone with Bobbie?"

"Um!" Effie nodded. "I heard her say she'd give him five shillings if he'd take her over and introduce her to Paddy Jepson, and you know what Bobbie is—he'll do anything for money."

"Are they coming back for lunch, do you think?"

"Shouldn't think so," Effie said grumpily, "I wish we'd never left Africa or else go back to Africa or Timbuctoo or somewhere—the whole way, anyway, then she'd be here. She can't even be content with Bobbie. Just because he's coming today, she's got to hunt up some other man. I hope the old bus breaks down and she has to walk."

"I expect they'll be back to lunch," Heather said, and was quite conscious of a little pang. She wished she had not been so slow to tell Vilette she was sorry for what she said.

But neither Bobbie nor Vilette appeared at lunch. Cæsar grumbled and Effie suddenly became almost affable. "In this morning's paper," he told Heather, "there is an advertisement concerning a William Ashton who went to Australia twenty-seven years ago, and had now died there. A firm of solicitors are advertising for next of kin. My father had a cousin named William Ashton who was a great traveller. I may be he. At any rate I shall write and give particulars. Maybe he died away as he had done, vertisement may lead to."

Heather looked at the study and Effie went out with a girl friend. Heather was not sorry to have the house to herself for a little while; she would change her frock and thoroughly enjoy herself.

She sang to her room dressing when Priddy knocked on the door. "Vilette, Miss," she said in a voice of disapproval.

Heather turned quickly. "Did you let him kiss Vilette was out?"

"He asked for you, Miss Heather."

"Did you say I was in?" and then realising the futility of the question Heather added hurriedly, "I'll come down."

She turned again to the mirror and was startled by her own pallor. She rubbed her cheeks vigorously but without much effect. What had he come? Why wasn't Vilette in—or even Effie—that someone whose presence would save her from this ordeal?

She stood for a time at the top of the stairs peering over the balusters into the empty hall, feeling like a frightened child. When she had crossed the hall to the drawing-room she was infinitely relieved to hear her father's voice in conversation with Bruce. So there was no immediate hurry after all! She walked to the open front door and looked out over the garden, conscious that she was still trembling a little.

She could hear Bruce's voice now, a little ironical in tone.

"Don't you think it is possible to carry sacrifice to the point of absurdity? To rather force it, accept once upon others? I have known cases in point when it merely accounts to quixotism. For instance, to keep an old promise—"

Heather put out a hand to steady herself against the frame of the door, and Bruce went on:

"Only the other day I heard of a woman—little more than a girl really—who had promised on her mother's death-bed never to marry and now, although she has met some decent fellow who wishes to marry her, she considers she is tied to that old promise, given in a moment of emotional distress and which never should have been given at all. Do you mean to say that the girl would not be justified in breaking her word?"

"A promise is a promise," a quiet, declared Heather. "And I can give one's word, one should abide by it, even at the cost of one's own personal happiness. Now with regard to a promise of marriage, I consider such a bond should be sacred and all-binding. It would do away once and for ever with that abomination, breach of promise, and—"

Heather moved abruptly and crossed the hall to the drawing-room. "If you two have settled the affairs of the world, wouldn't you like some tea?" she asked. She shook hands with Bruce. He could hear you in deep conversation, so thought I had better leave you alone. Are you all right? Is the family are all out. I'll tell Priddy to make tea."

But as she spoke Priddy appeared in the doorway with the tray.

"Nice for me," Cæsar said with dignity. "Tea is one of our British customs that is amazed me. The digestion needs time for re-cuperation."

Heather said hurriedly, "Oh, do have a cup of tea dear, or stay and talk to us . . ." but Cæsar was already on his feet. "I think we'll leave you to it," he said, and interrupted nap.

"If you carry they are all out," Heather said again. "I am sure had they known you were coming—"

"I gathered that nothing about it Bruce answered. "But it seems I am more fortunate than I had dared to hope."

Heather laughed. "You sound very formal today," she accused him. "Perhaps it is Cæsar's influence. What was he lecturing about this afternoon?"

She was busy at the tea table, but Bruce was standing near her where she was and took the cup from her hand, setting it down on the table. "Never mind the tea, I want to talk to you."

Heather looked up still, looking straight ahead of her; she was only conscious of a cold detachment—of a faint resentment.

Old promises! . . . sacrifice! . . . Bruce had come there before her eyes, a warning sign which she could not interpret.

It was generous of Bruce, but if only he wouldn't . . . They could have gone on so easily, still liking each other and being good friends, without any allusion to the past—if only he would not seek to blow on its dead fire.

Her face was very quiet and almost without expression when she raised her eyes to his face. "Well? What is it?" she said.

He made a half movement with his hands towards her, then let it fall as he turned impatiently from her. "For years I've found difficult for me," he said. "You were not like this years ago, Heather . . . if you no longer care for me—" He had stopped and she said evenly, "I do care and I always shall—as one of my oldest friends—" and then her voice died away as he had done, and she thought helplessly, "What a trite, common place thing to say one! If it's dead it's of in reality can. I wonder if it sounds like that to him? Oh, I wish he'd go and some one would come."

But Bruce was looking down at her again now, his face was very earnest.

"Don't say that unless it is what you really mean," he said quietly. "We are neither of us children, and I am not asking a schoolgirl question. You know I know that I was to see you again—when Vilette told me that you had been just came back as vividly as if it had been yesterday. I was a fool and a boy. Heather, only longing for the things I could not have, and should meet. I—I'm not very good at expressing what I feel, but I beg of you to believe me when I say that I hoped you would be as glad to see me as I was to see you. I came for you. That drive up from Southampton seemed interminable— I believe I almost counted the miles, and then—when I saw you—"

Heather interrupted him nervously.

Instalment 9

On the edge of a nervous laugh, Heather managed to quickly say Bruce.

"Then you realised that it wasn't yesterday, but sixteen years ago, and that it was all over and in fact apart that it would be impossible to go back and begin again. Bruce, I know—perhaps I felt something like that, too, when you came. I felt a little and too, to think that it's all gone, and that we're grown out of that friendship we thought so wonderful then. But that's life, Bruce, and we can't help it.

"I could have gone with you to South Africa when you went away if I'd felt like that, but I chose to stay here, and that shows that it wasn't meant to be. And now all my roots are here, with the children—and I can't leave them now any more than I could then, even if I wanted to, and I don't. This is my life—here at Tangley—just as yours is out there. I'm sorry if I've hurt you a little but she controlled it. "Let's be friends, shall we? I am glad to see you again, of course I am, but—"

He said brusquely, "All this is your way of telling me that I've been a fool to—that you don't care for me anymore. Ant, then, as she did not speak, "There's never been another woman in my life, Heather. I don't mean that I've constantly thought of you and wished you—in sixteen years one gets over that, I suppose, but now that we're neither of us children I've always thought we should stay together—that it's not too late yet to find happiness, by building it on the old days? I haven't altered, and you—your just the same to me."

She shook her head. "The children can all an old maid."

He made an impatient gesture. "Why must you always quote 'the children'? They've had enough of your life. They'll leave you some day, and then what will you do? Come with me when I go back—let me make you happy; we're still young, Heather."

She moved beyond his reach. "I think that is the children," she said. "Will you have some tea?—I'm afraid it's a little cold now—" She broke off as Vilette and Bobbie precipitated themselves into the room.

"Why—didn't you tell us you were coming?" Bobbie demanded, and Vilette said, "If only we'd known we'd have rung up for you to drive us home instead of cycling all this way in the boiling sun. Why didn't you let me know Bruce?"

"I didn't know myself until the last moment," he said unsmilingly, and then with a effort, "Where have you been, anyway?"

"To the aerodrome — but we couldn't go up, because Bobbie's boy friend Paddy Jepson was busy. But he's taking us on Saturday. Why didn't you tell me how nice he is, Heather?" she demanded of her sister.

"Heather doesn't like Paddy," Bobbie said, cramming a cake into his mouth. "She hates planes."

"Heather's behind the times," Vilette said unkindly, and then to Bruce, "You're going to stay to supper aren't you. Yes, of course you are, I simply refuse to let you go."

"Why don't you put a collar and chain around his neck," Bobbie grinned.

"She may if she likes." Bruce said. "I find I'm developing a liking to be wanted—"

Bobbie upset the tea cozy right over his face. "Oh, spare my blushes!" he protested.

"Doubtful," Vilette said, but she was smiling happily.

Bruce stayed to supper and when eleven o'clock came and he made an attempt to go, it was Bobbie who protested. "Don't go—we've got lots of room."

FRISCO SHAKEN BY EARLY QUAKE

Sharpest Felt Since The Disastrous Quake of 1906

San Francisco, March 8.—(AP)—Residents of the San Francisco bay region were shaken from sleep by an earthquake early today, which knocked articles from shelves in Eastbay cities.

Police at Albany and the Sheriff's office in Martinez said the movement there were the sharpest they had felt since the 1906 San Francisco disaster. The quake started an Albany burglar alarm ringing.

Hercules Logan, night deputy in the Sheriff's office at Martinez, reported the quake shook the Grant-ite Building "like it was nothing". He heard of no damage, however.

Thousands were awakened by the shock which the seismograph station at Fort Funston described as "sharp". Telephones in newspaper offices rang almost continuously for an hour after the quake.

Bottles on liquor store shelves were shaken to the floor and broken in an Albany store. A crowd soon gathered in front waiting for the doors to open in hope of buying the nose of the salvage.

Though the quake was severe in San Francisco, where the telephone company reported hundreds of calls by alarmed residents, Telephone exchanges were so badly swamped that citizens took 15 minutes to get through a call.

John Packard, of the University of California, said the seismograph at Berkely indicated the quake centered within 20, probably 15 miles".

JAPAN PLEDGED TO NEW POLICY

Keystone Will be 'Equality' in Dealing With Continent

Tokyo, March 8 (AP)—Japan disavowed any intention of territorial aggression in China today and pledged herself to a new policy built on a keystone of "equality" in dealing with her great continental neighbor.

Foreign Minister Nagatato Sato said Japan must abandon her superiority complex in order ever to readjust her badly strained relations with China.

On that principle of "a fresh start on the basis of equality," he asserted, he would build the policy of his office which, he declared, has just taken over.

Newspapers throughout the empire displayed Sato's speech under scare headlines as heralding a turning point in Sino-Japanese relations.

"Japan has no territorial ambitions in China," Sato stressed, labelling as "imaginary" any fear Japan harbors a attitude that could manufacture relations with other powers.

Respects Interests

Japan respects China's interests and wishes to shake hands with them economically," he declared.

"That is the only way Japan can expect success.

Japan, he said, might as well recognize China's demands for equality with others.

"We must do something definite," he told the House of Representatives, "to improve our present unsatisfactory relations with China which are highly disadvantageous to both countries."

Sato, who resigned as ambassador to France to accept the foreign affairs post in the compromise cabinet of Senjuro Hayashi, indicated the new policy was dictated by economic necessity.

Aside from the fact that Japan's former policy of infiltration in China has not worked out, Sato said Japan's attitude had created unsatisfactory relations with other world powers.

Had to Quit Work, Says This Talbot Street Lady. Tells How Relief Came When She Used the New Syntona Medicine.

"I was terribly nervous, irritable and felt tired all the time. My joints and muscles ached, I'd get frequent dizzy spells and could not sleep at night.

"I felt so rundown that I had to quit a good. position," said Miss Parker. "I was terribly nervous, irritable and felt tired all the time. My joints and muscles ached, I'd get frequent dizzy spells and could not sleep at night.

After meals I suffered with sour, acid risings and would often get headaches for which there seemed no relief.

"Medicines didn't seem to do me any good until, I started taking Syntona a few weeks ago and since then there has been such a change in the way I feel that I am like a different person. Pains and aches have all gone away, I sleep soundly at night, feel stronger in every way, and have no trouble with head-aches or with my stomach. I have the highest praise for Syntona and recommend it to anyone suffering like I have."

Find out the plain and truthful facts about Syntona. It is now being introduced in Belleville at Dolan's Drug Store.

ENVOYS ARRIVE AT BURGOS TODAY

Britishers Will Inquire Into Condition of Anglo-Spanish Trade

London, March 8—(CP-Havas) — While the non-intervention committee struggled today with the problem of making the proposed Spanish blockade effective, the British Government officially confirmed that two of its representatives had arrived at Burgos, Spanish insurgent capital, to confer with the Government of Generalissimo Franco.

The blockade is scheduled to go into effect next Saturday.

It was officially denied, however, that this contract implied de facto recognition of the Burgos Regime. The envoys are Mr. Leith-Ross, commercial attache of the British Embassy to Spain, now located at Hendaye, France, and Arthur R. Fraser, an official of the Board of Trade, are in Burgos to discuss questions of Anglo-Spanish trade, it was announced.

They went particularly to discuss problems raised by the agreement of clearing operations between the two countries as a result of the civil war.

The Board of Trade let it be known that it considers that trade with Insurgent-held Spanish territory to be "of considerable importance. Efforts were therefore being made to safeguard British interests there to the greatest degree possible pending restoration of normal conditions.

YACHT GROUNDS, RUSSIAN DROWNS

His Secretary Also Believed to Have Lost Her Life

Exmouth, England, March 8 (CP) —Search was carried on today for the body of a woman believed to have drowned with Constantin Zolotoukhin, Russian adventurer, and his secretary, Miss Dawn In Canada, following grounding of his small yacht here yesterday.

The body of Zolotoukhin, better known in Canada as Serge Zolo, and for several years a member of the Montreal Herald staff, was picked up yesterday on the shore of Exe River directly opposite the spot where the yacht Rona was driven ashore.

Woman May be Secretary

His woman companion, named Phyllis, was first believed to have been his wife but later word from Victoria, B.C., was that Mrs. Zolotoukhin had not accompanied her husband when he left Canada recently for England.

The adventurous Russian's wife was said to have remained in Victoria with her mother, Mrs. J. Grace-ley Lang.

Phyllis was believed to have been Zolo's secretary.

When the Rona grounded on the sandy shore, Zolo and his companion apparently took to a small boat. When the boat was found it was full of life preserver and another was nearby, as though it might have slipped from his companion's hand.

Zolo was apparently en route from Dartmouth to Brixham when caught in the storm... He was believed to be the son of a Russian general killed in the 1917 revolution. His autobiography, "Sentenced to Adventure" was published last year in Britain and the United States.

Naturalized in Canada in 1935, he became war correspondent of the Alberta Provincial police and for three years a Hudson's Bay Company clerk at Aklavik, Arctic port in the northern Yukon coast, and at Fort Smith, Northwest Territories.

He reached Canada in 1923 after hitchhiking across Europe in the Great War and the Russian revolution from which he escaped with his mother in 1918.

Records at Ottawa showed he declared the Alberta Provincial police in 1926. A year later he inquired at Victoria as to the possibility of purchasing his discharge but after being informed of the terms he dropped the negotiations.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Seven of a Bengal Lancer"
"Gold is Town"

The Capitol presents today and Tuesday two great outstanding hits of yesteryear's weight back as Revival Shows for the many who missed these thrilling pictures before and the ones who want to see them again. Starting this minute, today, Monday and Tuesday we are going to show two of these revival features. So look for that picture you missed before and want to see. Don't forget every Sunday midnite, Monday and Tuesday, two outstanding revival hits.

The soldiers of the king, not as Kipling sang of them, but as Francis Beeding has described them in his remarkable and colorful picture of warfare and heroism in India as a revival hit No. 1. Produced by Paramount, "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer" features Gary Cooper, Franchot Tone, Richard Cromwell and Sir Guy Standing in the leading roles.

It is a picture replete with the sounds and sights of the mysterious East, as authentic as the Himalayas themselves. Actually thrilling. And, although it has more to offer in the picturesque line than any recent Hollywood offering, "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer" is primarily remarkable for its fine, dramatic story of four great soldiers.

The plot of "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer" revolves about the conflict between Sir Guy Standing—hard-bitten, crusty colonel—and three of his subordinate officers, one of whom is his son.

Their difference come to a head when the son, Richard Cromwell, is carried away by a warring chieftain and disappears in order to pursue because he cannot endanger his regiment. Disregarding the orders Cooper and Tone follow in disguise, are captured and thrown into a dungeon by the rebel. Tortured for information on the whereabouts of the treacherous convoy of ammunition, Cromwell finally breaks down and blurts out the regiment secret.

The chieftain captures the ammunition and prepares to lead a revolution against the British. Cooper and Tone escape but although they realize that they will be deserting the army, feel it their duty to stem the revolution.

But Cooper, fully aware of the danger, goes to the colonel and better in his stern devotion to duty.

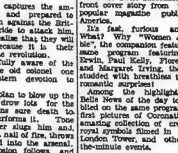
He and Tone plan to blow up the fortress. They draw lots for the job which means certain death for the man who performs it. Tone wins, but Cooper overpowers and racing through a rail of fire, throws a burning torch into the arsenal. A terrific explosion follows and the convoy is saved.

Cooper and Tone contribute the colorful comedy of corpulence and cockiness to the picture. "The Lives o' a Bengal Lancer".

Next on the Capitol's revival hit No. 2 Max West undergoes the strange and eventful transition from a bronco-busting cowboy to the sweetheart of society in South-ampton, while acting her part with her wise-cracking ability.

Max West's adventures in "Goin' to Town", which present her in modern clothes and up-to-date settings, start way back in the Wyoming country when she inherits the money of a lady lawyer, and starts to go after a handsome young Englishman whom she had an eye for some time.

The scene of the Englishman, Paul Cavanagh, leads her to Buenos Aires where the exciting and humorous bone-racing sequence takes place. Then they go back to the States and Southampton, the stronghold of society.



Max West marries a handsome young society man to stalin position. But the efforts of fortune hunters and her jealous wife rivals make things hot for her until Cavanagh returns to the scene to tell her that he had loved her all the time.

In addition to Cavanagh, Ivan Lebedeff, Tito Coral, Monroe Owsley and Marjorie Gateson appear in the supporting cast of "Goin' to Town".

ADMITS ENTERING HOUSE

Windsor, Ont., Mar. 8 (CP)—Returning to his cell early today, Joseph Pariley was surprised to see a young man jump out of a window. He captured the youth but was unable to hold him.

Police later arrested Joseph Dragomir, 17, Windsor, who confessed to being in the house. Dragomir told police that he searched some of the rooms but did not take anything as he was looking for money. He leaped sensative at idly but made supinely through the window, he said, when by". Dr. Robyrta referred to Sir he saw auto lights in the driveway. James Dunn.

OUSTED FROM PARTY

Charging that Dr. A. D. Roberts, Liberal M.P.P. for Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., had been guilty of "unethical behaviour" and had attempted to "blackmail" the Algoma Steel Corporation, Ontario Premier Mitchell Hepburn read his follower out of the Liberal party in a dramatic speech before the House of Commons at Tyronto. Dr. Roberts had accused the Premier of allowing "a private financier to announce public policy while the People's representatives knew nothing about it.

Only One Undecided Berth In Stanley Cup Lineup as N. H. L. Teams Start Last Lap

Toronto Leafs Tie Maroons For Second Place By Win And Tie

AMERKS ARE OUT

Hawks Maintain Mathematical Chance to Oust Boston Bruins

By A. E. FULFORD

Canadian Press Staff Writer

There was only one undecided berth in the Stanley Cup line-up today—13 days from the National Hockey League's schedule end. Five teams are sure of playoffs and the Chicago Black Hawks will have to perform a modern hockey miracle to oust Rangers from the picture.

New York Americans did much to settle things by losing to Montreal Maroons 4-3 Saturday night in Montreal. That put Tommy Dutton's fighting team definitely out of the playoffs and left the only Canadian section fight, the battle between the Maroons and Toronto Maple Leafs for second place.

But Chicago refused to be tossed out this early. They held Leafs to a 3-3 tie in Chicago last night and retained the slimmest possible chance of finishing ahead of Rangers.

If they win their next five games and Rangers lost all theirs Hawks will tie them in points and take the third spot in the American division by a better win average.

Neither Boston Bruins nor Detroit Red Wings can be beaten out of playoff spots. Bruins made sure of getting in by taking a 1-0 decision from Rangers last night and moving the home points up on Lester Patrick's team.

Leafs Even With Maroons

A 3-1 overtime win over Montreal Canadiens in Toronto Saturday night tie its last night out Leafs on even terms with Maroons for second place. Both teams have 43 points but the Montreal team has a big advantage of having six games to play compared to Leafs' five.

Red Wings could have made positive of first place in the American division by beating Americans last night but the New Yorkers took them to a 2-2 draw. The world champs need only one point to make it impossible for Bruins to catch them.

Lorne Carr really defrosted the Wings with goals in the first and second periods. Pete Kelly made it close for a while in the second but Nels Stewart came through with a goal that put the game out of the reach of New Yorkers.

Americs gave everything they had at Montreal in an effort to stay in the fight and the clash provided some of the most thrilling hockey of the week-end.

Maroons had to come from behind to snatch the victory. Starting the third period they trailed 3-1. Harvey Jackson and Sammy Anderson having scored for the New Yorkers and Baldy Northcott for Montreal. Then Gerry Carson, Earl Robinson and Hy Bevans had Americs in front and the best Americs could do was one counter by Sammy Rosenberg—"Ivory" from Kitchener, Ont., Woody Dumart, provided the only goal of the first overtime game, like the American-Maroon game, it was a back-and-forth affair and the heavier Bruins came out of it to better shape.

Dumart's goal came with only a minute and a half of the third period to play.

Jackson Thrilled Fans

Harvey Jackson, thrilled 14,366 fans in the Maple Leaf Gardens tilt with the winning goal against Canadiens. Charlie Conacher and Paul Haynes each had given their teams the premier in the third and the overtime was only two minutes old when Jackson carried on with Jimmy Peters and Syl Apps for the winner. Fowler made it sure with a lone effort shortly after that.

Canadiens not only lost the game but, what was more important to them, the services of "Joe" Blake for the remainder of the season. The left winger broke his right wrist in some unexplained way in the first period. Blake is the second player injury when it happened but it was discovered at the intermission.

The assist Apps got on the Jackson goal gave Brother he picked up in Chicago last night let's him only a point behind Busher Jacks of Detroit, the league leader, who failed to score in the game with Americans.

Apps' assist at Chicago came on Conacher's second period goal, which tied the score at 2-2; Frankie Finnigan had scored his second goal of the season in the first and Pete Palangio had snatched it from Paul Thompson and Turk Broda in the second to set the stage for Conacher's tying counter.

SIMPSONS GAIN 9-POINT LEAD OVER DEACONS

First Semi-Final Junior Cage Tilt a Hard Contest

SCORE IS 25-16

Toronto Team Has Advantage of Weight And Height on Locals

In a rugged-fought, close-checking basketball game the Simpson Avenue Juniors, winners of the Toronto Junior Basketball League and Dominion champions, added another scalp to their belts in Belleville on Saturday night, when they defeated the Belleville Deacon A.C. Juniors, winners of the E.O.A.S.A., on the R.C.I. gymnasium floor by the score of 25 to 16. The Queen City boppers proved no better ball carriers than did the local boys, but the visitors' extra weight and towering height over the smaller Belleville players took their toll and proved the cause of defeat for the locals. This game was the first semi-final game of the O.A.H.A. series, and the return game with points to count to be played in Toronto next Saturday.

Both squads set up a torrid defence throughout the entire game with the excess weight of the visitors being the deciding factor for the locals to hop over, especially in the last half. At the half way mark the visitors stood 10 to 9 in favour of the Queen City cagers with Belleville trailing. The game was full of thrills and fast checking, however, that two players were ruled out of the game by the referee, Homer Townsend fouls called on them, Mc-Callum of Belleville and Ralph Anderson of Toronto, getting the gate for these misdemeanors.

Hole Leads All Marksmen

"Rot Dog" Muir, local defenseman, led all scorers of the night with seven points, two of his baskets being of the sensational nature. Langton and Kilres were the other Belleville players to stick basket for the dual point gain. Devlin, flashy Toronto forward, led his team mates on the offensive with a second half splurge, when he bagged three baskets for six points. McNair, Cochrane and Fountain were the other Toronto scorers in the winning Toronto team. Tom Cochrane and Fountain looked the best of the winners' forwards, while McNair and Muir set up a stellar defence for the winners. Eddie Schreider and Mahr were outstanding both on the defence for the Deacons, with Muir playing great defensive ball. Ralph Anderson's dribbling being a great factor in the local's defence. Coach Langton played good ball with the former standing out going both ways.

FOXBORO TEAM WINS LOOP TITLE IN FOUR GAMES

Defeat Glen Ross 3-2 But Are Overcome Two Goal Lead

PAIR DRAW MAJORS

Third Period Quite Rough But Rafter Handle Situation

Stirling, March 8 (Special)—Foxboro "Hornets" overcame a two goal first period lead in the final game of the play-off series for the championship of the Hastings' County Rural Hockey League and the "Tip-Top Tailors" trophy by fighting series, which was forced into a fourth game by virtue of an overtime tie in the third fixture. Foxboro took the first game and Glen Ross the second. The third game was forced into thirty minutes overtime period in a three-time tie. The wind-up of the series was witnessed in the Stirling Arena before a crowd of well over three hundred fans. Foxboro were superior in the first period batting two counters past Sinfield after eight minutes of play. But the "Hornets" got organized in the middle period and scored the heat to even the score and win going away by 3 to 2.

The Game

Starting the first period, Foxboro found most of their combinations play going their way and they were clicking well, with the result that Brooks and Richard connected for a counter, to be beat Sinfield with Brooks taking a well placed pass from Gordon. This came after eight minutes of play. Robinson and Richard brought in the Foxboro squad on a brilliant lone rush to make it two to nothing. Then the Glen Ross "Hornets" began to steady down and Hagerman displayed with a counter. Glen Ross seemed to let up on their speed a bit, and the last period ended Lee scored on a pass from Hagerman and the crowd voiced their approval of this clever play loudly, and the first period ended with the Foxboro "Hornets" two goals to the good.

Guay was chased for a penalty at the close of the first frame and Foxboro started the middle period with him in the box. Two minutes ticked in from the drop of the puck in an effort to get the equalizer the Glen Ross squad went to work. When Lee sifted right through to Berry on the Foxboro goal tender's left side of the winners' forwards, while McNair and Berry set up a stellar defence for the winners. Eddie Schreider and Mahr were outstanding both on the defence for the Deacons, with Muir playing great defensive ball. Ralph Anderson's dribbling being a great factor in the locals' defence. Coach Langton played good ball with the former standing out going both ways.

Last Period Rough

Glen Ross started the last period with Armstrong in the cooler, and Sinfield in the nets for Foxboro and went into the lead, when Richard, Robinson and Brooks, in the evening on a pass from Hanna. Things began to get rough when Guay and Berry shoulders and fight came into play, and Referee Conley soon straightened out the differences. Glen Ross were in the shade when Richard, Robinson, Hanna and G. Fraser dropped their sticks to spar. Some good combination play netted a number of points in boxing before they were pried apart by the referee and linesmen players. Conley ruled a major to Armstrong and Richard for high sticking and Townsend disagreed. Simms dashed to the dressing room for the rest of the game and Team arrangement was five minutes to Fraser and five minutes to Armstrong, only seven and a half minutes to play. Guay, Berry, Simms, Delaney and Fraser each served time during the last six minutes of play. Glen Ross got forth a brilliant effort to tie the score but Sinfield was equal to the task. So the bell sounded to end the game and a great final game was witnessed by watched teams. In spite of the roughness of the first few minutes of play, Referee Ross Conley had no trouble in keeping the two champions and settled their differences in fine style.

So the Tip Top Tailors' trophy will remain on display in a window of the club rooms of the Foxboro "Hornets" victorious Hastings County Rural Hockey League, who led the way in the championship race from the start throughout the entire season. West Huntingdon, Bethel, Glen Ross and Foxboro were all well represented throughout the season's play, and clean cut fast hockey, the kind that increased their following steadily.

Providence Also Improves Position by Winning Twice

By The Canadian Press

If they continue punching home goals during the International-American Hockey League playoffs as they are doing at present, Syracuse Stars will be hard to stop. Pitted against Springfield Saturday night and made it look easy as they smeared Indians under a 6 to 0 count to boost their 3,000 home fans. Tommy Maple Leafs' farm team built their season mark to 24 wins and nine better than the total of the powerful Philadelphia Ramblers.

The western division pace-setters were the most impressive of the night as Providence Reds and Reds weren't far behind. The Rhode Islanders made it seven straight with no narrow the gap between Indians and themselves for second place. They beat Springfield 7 to 0 and Syracuse 4 to 1.

The best struggle for playoff spots continued, President Maurice Podoloff of the eastern section, announced, with Pittsburgh and Providence engaging in a best-of-three round.

Eagles' Chances Jolted

The Reds' victory left Eagles' fifth place team in a bad way. Pittsburgh Hornets, who meet the first-place team in a best-of-three series and the winner will face the second place squad, appear from a almost identical playoff pattern in the western loop. Although the west coast outfit has only two more games, Cleveland Falcons must end the season with at least the same number of points as the third-place squad in the east group.

All three of the loop's sections have a mathematical chance to share in the extra-money play. Plans are to start the best-of-five series at Springfield's arena this week of April 1 with regular season ends March 21.

Reds' victories were at the expense of Ramblers at the Providence and Springfield 4-1 Sunday. The Providence team took the week end for Indians, Jean Pusie gave the Providence team its slight edge when the latter section leader took the game at Philadelphia with a 7-2 victory.

Falcons, battling against heavy odds for making the playoffs, split a week-end double with Hornets. Pittsburgh 1-0 Saturday but went on to trim New Haven, 5-3 in a Sunday night overtime period. Eagles' chances of contesting for seat group hooms.

Then sensational Sylvanus Apps and Toronto Maple Leafs' aurie moved into the second-last week of the National Hockey League schedule with a scoring point lead to spare again only a point behind Aurie, Apps picked up a couple of assists in Toronto's 3-3 draw with Chicago Black Hawks to keep his lead intact.

"I would like to get into one more series before we meet Gravenhurst to try to do," Manager Thomas suggested to Coach Frank Selke Jr. this wife wistfully replied—"any club would have little trouble downing them." We hope Mr. Hewitt wasn't listening.

Sport Callings

By Ken Colling

M. J. "Mike" Rodden, perennial N.H.L. and O.H.A. referee was chosen as the official to dangle the bell or toot the whistle, as the case may be, for the "first two games of the Allan Cup play-downs between the Port Colborne "Sailors" and the R.C.A.F. "Flyers" commencing at the arena tonight. When Mike Rodden, former sports editor of the old Toronto Globe, arrives at the Belleville Arena on night he will perhaps be the most surprised man in town. Mike got his handle the old game in Belleville, back when Belleville could boast of really good intermediate and junior teams and the games were played at Arnott's Arena on Thurlbill St. Mike has never seen the local ice igloo, insofar as we know, and will doubtless be agreeably surprised when he has his first gander of the modern building.

O—O—O

Although the chances of seeing the Port Colborne team are well known to local fans, for the greater part of the season they have been quite as well recognized down in the section of the province, although the Sailors are said to have a colorful hockey history, they are not known to the livery of the "Sailors" as they are particular as to who they consort with. Should they win the end of the Welland semi, we understand, The Port Colborne club will have a complete roster of players and hockey celebrities from the Welland district, however, to be included on the line-up. The two players to permanently interest Belleville hockey fans, however, will be Jack Ellis, Port Colborne's fleet-footed defence, flipper 3; Morrison 3; Milner 4; Horne 14; Dyer 4; Edwards, Wade 5; McGown 6; Arnold 12; Ellis 5; Ellis 3; Emerald 12; LaRoche 9; E. Runions 13; Reynolds 2; Ellis 7; King 16 and Gallinger 17. The Flyers will line-up in the same positions as were taken by them during the intermediate championship.

O—O—O

Manager Eddie Dumas, of the Belleville Redmen was in conversation with Manager Jack Hewitt, of the O.H.A. over the week end regarding what club and when the Belleville Intermediates would engage in the opening game of the O.H.A. series. It is known Belleville has negotiations pending in Eastern Ontario and has to wait until the next round is completed. Manager Dumas is hoping Kingston and Grimsby or Thorold be drawn as the opponents but the winner is being sent to Montreal to play what they have been awaiting a playoff with, for the past few years. There are five or six clubs still in the intermediate "go" race, but all are hoping to draw Kingston with the exception of Gravenhurst in the Georgian Bay district. The Gravenhurst team is reported to be the strongest opposition in the intermediate ranks. Kingston have already dropped back from the intermediate ranks in 1936 and also added two players to their club for next year's roster.

O—O—O

"I would like to get into one more series before we meet Gravenhurst to try to do," Manager Thomas suggested to Coach Frank Selke Jr. this wife wistfully replied—"any club would have little trouble downing them." We hope Mr. Hewitt wasn't listening.

O—O—O

Maybe Ft. Dumas to cover what the older fellow has to say, but not in when the golden plums to be picked, there are many numerous fleeting around, especially by the capacity houses packed in by the "Sailors" and the R.C.A.F. hockey play-off games, to the effect the Manager of Trenton are contemplating installing a new artificial ice plant in the Trenton Arena in time for the opening of the Trenton next season. Art Norrington, Trenton sports columnist, pertaining to the matter before Trenton interests, stated that the R.C.A.F. club and asked them to sign a two year contract to play their games in that city, but the latter refused stating they would promise to re-instal the ice making plant and equipment removed some years ago. There may be some truth to what Mr. Norrington says, but the owners of the local Arena would be well advised to make public their intentions in the matter before Trenton interests aside suddenly decide to go through with their present brain-child — an artificial ice arena.

NAME OF RACE HORSE IS HARD TO PRONOUNCE

Miami, Fla., March 8.—(CP)—If the name "Pamelob" should jump out of the racing entries as you it down in the program, get a Greek dictionary in the hope of learning how to pronounce it and if it means.

J. W. Parrish, who owns the two-year-old of the ungraceful name, stoked it and each letter in the name is a word. "Words are "put all my eggs in one basket".

The colt is by Pompey out of Pamelody McWiggins and the name is fairly appropriate, for it fairly wiggles with speed when it runs a furlongs.

O—O—

Pamelob was 12th and last in its last start, so maybe you shouldn't had forget about the whole thing.)

HARVARD RULERS FOR SECOND YEAR

Win American College Hockey Title and Finish Second to McGill

(By the Canadian Press)

The International Intercollegiate Hockey League, in its 1936-37 wrestling three titles in the 10-game schedule which was run and ended Saturday night, and the Eastern Canada Amateur Hockey Association champions were rulers of the quadrangular league, emblematic of American collegiate supremacy for the second successive year.

Harvard, scoring their 22nd, victory in the last 23 games, defeated the Montreal Canadiens 8 to 1 and Dartmouth Indians eked out an overtime 4-3 triumph over the last place Princeton sextet. Harvard's victory increased their second place margin over Dartmouth to Toronto to six points.

Generally the league was devoid of upsets although few credited Harvard with the strength to show-down in rolling over Montreal but McGill, who won ten straight, lost a 4-3 decision to Yale in their last Saturday night as they swept their season's record to eight games. Yale, scoring twice in each of the first two periods and once in the third, Dartmouth's victory enabled them to finish ahead of Yale and Princeton, who won only one game. Dave Walsh fired the winner for the Indians less than two minutes from the end of overtime. Princeton had been a threat in the first period but Vezin's wheel out until the third.

STIRLING TEAMS GET EVEN BREAK

High School Wins Over Frankford And Public School Earns Tie

Stirling, March 8 (Special) — A good crowd of students of the local public and High schools and Frankford Public and Continuation schools were on hand at the Stirling Arena on Friday evening for a double bill of exhibition games. The public school teams tied four to four but the Stirling High School defeated Frankford 10-2 in a rather one sided affair. Four brothers were the goal getters for the Frankford team. The tan goals for the Stirling group were divided among Morton, Reid, Jones, Long and Ward. Morton clicked for three; Jones 2, Long 2; Armstrong, Reid and Ward each getting one a piece.

Line-ups:

TORONTO CAGERS DOUBLE WINNERS

Kingston And Cobourg Lose to Lizzies And Mc-Gregor

Toronto, March 8—Elizabeth Playground turned in another magnificent effort on Saturday night in beating Kingston Y.M.C.A. 46 to 32 in the first game of the intermediate A O.A.B.A. semi-finals. The Toronto champions had too much speed and ball-handling for the Limestone squad. They secured a good lead in the first half and hung on in the second despite the desperate efforts of the visitors to cut down the margin. Ossie Kay, diminutive centre player for the Playgrounders, sped his way around the opposing defence for 13 points, Scoly Gone, Culliner and Lanstiz were also prominent. McLaughlin and Young were best for Kingston.

MacGregor Playground practically assured themselves of entering the next round of the intermediate A Provincial playoffs by swamping Cobourg 54 to 14, in the first game of the series. The "Mac" quintet had to do anything wrong especially in the second half when they outscored the visitors 32 to 4. Joe Bodnar was again the shining light for the Playgrounders by accounting for 16 points. Charles Brannigan and Rockwell were also effective. Lucas was best for Cobourg.

OLD and NEW

By George H. Carver.

The Port Colborne hockey flagship breezed into the Belleville harbor today with a confident crew of "Flyers", who expect to capture the honors of the Fleet Flyers, and put an end to their hitherto victorious march to the Allan Cup playdowns....However the Flyers expect to drop a few hockey bombs into the championship aspirations of the visiting seamen and the result should be one of those hockey medleys which one hears about but seldom sees.

o o o

The Winged Warriors have been resting since the strenuous series with the Point Edwarders, and should be in fine fettle for the crucial battles with the highly touted Sailors....Whichever way the decision rests the boys of both squads will know there has been a home race.....It will likely be a nip-and-tuck hockey epic....And one which the fans will rave about for many hockey moons.

o o o

Add Simlies: As much chance as a rookie trying to crash the Yankee line-up.

o o o

Rabby Ron Church, eloquent hurling star for many Picton baseball squads, was given send off the dock of Belleville, the other day into the deep waters of matrimony.... Hailed as one of the most effective hurlers around these parts, Ron led the Picton teams to many a hard fought victory....Fooled the fans and himself a couple of years ago by turning in the best season of his mighty career....Is one of the most showmen in the game, as Belleville, Napanee, Cobourg, Bowmanville and the fans of many other places will testify.

o o o

Church has more baseball behind his ears, than most players have from the neck down.... He pulled a nifty during the hectic Picton-Falconbridge series of 1932 ....Church was on first, with two batters gone....Durnford, Picton catcher was warming his heels on third....Jenny drew a walk and the crowd yelled for Hudgins to get the hit, which would score Durnford and win the game.

o o o

Suddenly the fans gasped as Church started to stroll nonchalantly towards second base.....The Falconbridge catcher whipped the ball in the first baseman....Church galvanized into action..... He sprinted for second and was trapped between that base and first....Back and forth the ball was thrown as the infielders endeavored to tag the Big Train....Suddenly he stopped, stuck out his shoulder and permitted himself to be tagged out. But a few seconds previously Durnford had scuttled for the plate and crossed it with what proved to be the winning run.

o o o

On another occasion when coaching at first base, he yelled to Lefty Francis, Falconbridge pitcher, "Lemme see that ball" and guessing the stands....The hurler thinking it was the coach of his own squad obligingly heaved the pill into the bleachers and two Picton runs crossed the platter.....Sports fans will join in wishing this fine athlete and the new mianus the best of everything down the long trail of life.

o o o

Chiplets....Big Bill Tilden will pick up his greying beard and attempt a comeback along the tennis trails this month when he crosses racquets with Fred Perry.... Bill is in his 44th year, and thinks he will take the Britisher....One of the grandest of the tennis champs, Tilden won about every title there was to win when he was in his heyday....Once had to have a finger amputated....Learned how to stroke all over and came back better than ever....Then there is the wee young thing who whispered to her escort when Ching Johnson's bat fell off during a hockey game, "My, what a waste of advertising space"....In 1935 Chuck Klein hit 4 home run in every ball park in the loop but that of the Pirates.... Last year he combed the ivy, smashing out four round trippers in one game in the pirates' lair.

Fred Perry tennis pro, collects $1,-175 per diem for scaring the pill at Ellsworth Vining....Not much of a "racket" at that....George Sprague, Queen's middle wing, will captain the Tri-color next season....The new skipper comes from a football family, and is a brother of the great Dave Sprague of Ottawa Roughrider fame....Bloomfield and Carrying Place hockey teams are battling for the title in the Wellington and District loop....With the C.P.'s being a week in front over the Canning factory townats.

BACKACHE

is the best way to restore the kidneys to their normal state is to drink plenty of pure water and obtain a small amount of A-nuric, which is dispensed by almost every druggist. Dr. Pierce's A-nuric is backpressure and should be taken after meals. It is much more potent than Buchu. Read the following letter from Mrs. Ethel Lee, of London, Ont., who says: "I am writing to tell some people of the too frequent presence of the kidney secretions. I had tired all the while and often had dizzy spells. Dr. Pierce's A-nuric soon got to the seat of the trouble. The backache was gone, my pictures were cleared and the dizzy spells disappeared. I had more pep, too."

RECENT DECISION MAY RESULT IN FORMATION OF PROFESSIONAL LOOP

London, March 8.—(CP)—Recent decision of the International Ice Hockey Federation to permit players of professional baseball teams may result in the formation of a semi-professional or professional hockey league in London next year.

Some rink managers are strongly in favor of the out-and-out amateur rule, claiming it would be a good thing for the game in England. They also seek to get away from the control by the British Ice Hockey Association which they claim has not kept pace with developments of the game.

British hockey men were somewhat surprised at the warm reception given the suggestion of pro and amateur mingling at the International meeting. The representatives of the several nations to permit mingling in league games but not in Olympic or world tournaments which will remain amateur.

States Fully Probed

F. Vassar Hunter, president of the British Association, said his body has been extremely careful on the question of the amateur status of players.

"No Canadian has been imported by the Association', he said. "Many come to London entirely on their own and hope to improve their position by playing hockey. They all have amateur cards from the Canadian authorities and we refer them to English Clubs.

"All the Canadians here have jobs. Ice hockey could not be played here without their assistance. They are helping greatly in the training of young English players. In a few years' time we shall be represented by an all-British team not lacking in the true sense of the word".

D. Lelio, president of the Federation, said sham amateurism must end. As Canadians were necessary for teaching purposes, particularly in countries where there were only indoor rinks, he suggested local governing bodies should form a branch to deal with professionals and allowed mixed hockey in national but not international tournaments.

PENNANT CHANCES OF NEW YORK GIANTS DEPEND ON TERRY

(By Paul McGeehan)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Havana, March 8.—(AP)—Pennant chances of New York Giants for 1937 hinge on a hinge— Bill Terry's crippled knee.

Unless Young Johnny McCarthy or the Veteran Jimmy Ripple suddenly get hot and start clouting, Terry will have to hobble back on first base to give the Giants that final touch of infield polish and strength they must have to run a winning National League team.

As a whole, the team shapes up stronger than a year ago with pitcher Clydell Castleman back in great shape and Lou Chiozza on third in place of the withered Travis Jackson, but just the same Terry or a player almost as good must be on the job at first base for at least 75 games.

Terry, who once said he'd never play another ball game, secretly is planning to play as much or more than his 79 games of 1936, but chances are he'll be lucky to play 25. So far this season, he has favored his watered knee more than ever. His personal training routine has been centered in pitching, Pyngo hitting and conversation.

McCarthy, a $40,000 Rookie obtained from the New York Yankee farm at Newark, still appears a year or two away from big league specifications. He fields well but his hitting is less than .250. Leslie, always a good hitter, can't field well enough to suit Terry, whose ides of a good ball club is a tight defence and great speed.

Ripple, the first base problem the Giants look better than they did a year ago. Their hitting has been poor against the highly conditioned pitching prey, who held them to an average of six hits for the first three exhibition games, but they have better speed and better balance.

Little Benny's Note Book

Saturday afternoon I was down the cellar by request piling up old newspapers and stuff and pop came down to look at the furnace, saying. Well well, as busy as a beaver, and a very good animal to be busy as.

Well O, pop, I wish I had trained beaver to do this for me, I don't call this any fun, I said, and pop said, Then you should make it fun. The man who can make fun out of work, no matter what kind of work it is, is a happy man, and in times out of 20 a successful man, and the same applies to business.

Well holey smokes, pop, nile, has an anybody have fun piling up these dusty old papers? I said, and he said, The way to have fun doing any kind of work is by trying to do it a little better than its ever been done before. Now for instants you're not injoying yourself because you're piling up those papers in such a haphazard, listless way that even a baby beever would be ashamed of you. Hasn't it occurred to you to try and see how neatly you can pile them instead of how sloppily?

he said.

O, pop how do you mean? I said, and he said, Yes gods its not give you an example, now read and learn.

And he started to pile the papers up as careful as anything, saying, There, look at that pile, it looks as if an artiiect had planned it, in other words I'm taking pride in my work and consequently enjoying it.

But that's only one pile, pop, nobody could do a lot of piles as good as that, I bet, I said, and he said, Dont be silly, quantity and qualily go hand in hand for the master craftsman.

And he did 2 more piles just as good, saying, Hay, by the way, which suppose you be enjoying this work, you or I?

Me, pop, and so I am, I'm enjoying watching you, I said.

The result being I had to make all my own enjoyment for the rest of the job, which I did, feeling lucky, on account of hardly any being left to do.

News ever has been the forerunner of progress. Civilization advanced, industry developed, trade and commerce expanded as facilities for circulating news improved.

When John Bushell published the first Canadian newspaper at Halifax in 1752 the inns and coffee houses of the scattered Canadian settlements were the principal sources of news. There the pioneers foregathered to gossip about personal and community affairs and to discuss the problems of their trades. Anyone unable to attend knew little or nothing of events beyond his immediate environment.

Bushell proposed to print the news and make it available to all. The first issue of his Halifax Gazette was a single sheet of paper printed on both sides. It contained a publisher's foreword, a few items of local interest, some foreign and colonial news. (most of it six months old), and three advertisements.

Modest as the venture was, it expressed an ideal of public service which endured.

Soon newspapers were established in other communities. Constantly this service has been extended until now the daily newspapers of Canada bring to every citizen the latest news of people, events and achievements in all parts of the world.

The first Canadian newspaper had seventy-two subscribers; today in more than two million homes throughout the country at least one daily newspaper is read.

Without this day-to-day record of social, economic and political affairs at home and abroad, progress would be retarded and the welfare of the individual and the nation seriously impaired.

MARKET COMMENT

As a result of world re-armament, it can be taken for granted that the next few years will be very good ones for industry with some quarters asking for a little quieting what will happen after the world has completed its armament race. The Toronto Star asks:—"After armaments—what?" This is a disturbing question. The United Kingdom built up its pre-armament recovery largely on the armament of progress. What will be left to the industries after the huge expenditures on war products, that are largely non-constructive and therefore of economic waste, are over? The national debt and the tax burden will be increased greatly. They are already very heavy. The succeeding economic slump is likely to be severe. The consumer has to pay, if he can. If he cannot pay he cannot, how will he pay?

These are questions that are well worth pondering over. The shortsighted policy must be avoided with the recovery that is immediately in sight, particularly after five years of severe depression. Nevertheless, some profits should be given to what will transpire when the industry of the world goes into the impetus of armament orders.

It is understood that a large shortage has been the process of liquidation by a large insurance company for the little time. This no doubt explains the reason for the inability of the security to move ahead in face of consistent investment buying.

Ore Reserves Up At Macassa

Major portion of development work carried out at Macassa Mines, Kirkland Lake, during the past nine months of 1936, consisted of continuing lateral work and raising on the foot vein, preparing for and sinking a winze to a depth of 415 feet from the 3,000-foot level and crosscutting to the ore on the 3,000, 3,225 and 3,350-foot levels, these being three new levels.

Outstanding result of development work was extension of ore length on the 3,000-foot level to total of 1,410 feet, having an average grade of $17.86 per ton and average width of 6.8 feet. Three minor branch veins were found on the combined good ore and which indicate a wider and more extensive fracturing zone than that of the known portion of the mine. This condition adds greatly to the possibilities of the new levels below the 3,000.

Minerals

Health Service of Canadian Medical Association

When minerals are mentioned people usually think of gold and silver. Fortunately we don't have to eat gold and silver to keep well, but we do need a fair amount of other minerals, especially calcium and iron. We require a great deal of calcium to form our bones and teeth in good condition, and also to keep our body functioning properly. The drinking of plenty of milk, eating of vegetables generously will provide enough calcium. The latter, especially spinach, is a good indication of how well it has been cooked, as overcooking not only destroys the calcium but how intelligently.

To build good red blood requires plenty of iron. Fortunately we have quite a number of common foods that are extremely rich in them, such as whole wheat, spinach, dates, raisins, figs, potatoes, oatmeal and carrots. Other foods have iron, but these are considered the best providers of iron.

We waste a lot of these precious food minerals by throwing them down the sink, for they come out in the liquid in which they are cooked. So be sure to cook vegetables in as little water as you can and save the cooking water for soups or sauce or gravy. If you cook vegetables in milk or cooked in a waterless cooker, so much the better.

A good safe way to make sure of all the minerals is to have cereal, spread as much on milk, cheese and other milk products, then spread on meat, fish and eggs, and spread the other third on fruit and vegetables, so that you get plenty of variety. To some this plan may sound extravagant, but it is only a good investment in family health and happiness. After all, don't try to save money by depriving yourself or your family of the necessary foods.

Questions concerning Health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College Street, Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

NATIVE SLINKS UP IN DARKNESS

Flying Officer Llewellyn Tells of Experience With Bedouin

Lympne, Kent, March 8.—(CP Cable)—Flying Officer David Llewellyn, hampered by bad weather, faulty machinery and physical exhaustion on his several unsuccessful attempts to cover the London-Capetown record, returned to the airport here today recalling still another obstacle during his recent flight.

Forced to land in an African desert miles from any habitation, Llewellyn related, he was approached by a group of friendly Bedouins who at first, however, were one who became offensive and while getting in a little sleep that evening Llewellyn said he was awakened and saw one of the natives attempting to steal his boots.

Llewellyn said he jumped on the native and beat him. The other natives who beat him and sent him away. The Bedouins made off in the desert, Llewellyn intercepted the flier's wristwatch, but Llewellyn said he suspected "it was something more than that."

ACTORS ADVISED ON THEIR CALLING

Told to Stop Being Ladies And Gentlemen For Good of Theatre

New York, March 8 (CP)— If actors would be actors and not gentlemen and revert to the social status they occupied 100 years ago it would work for the betterment of the theatre believes Roger Livesey, English actor who is to be featured in "Storm Over Paley" which opens tonight.

"The best thing that could happen to the theatre," he said in an interview, "would be if actors would revert to the social status they occupied 100 years ago; that is, of rogues, vagabonds and generally suspect individuals, living slightly below travelling bagmen and slightly higher than gypsies horse traders.

The best run of the spoken stage in some 50 years are Livesey said. In those days actors worked hard for their living and "lived for their art." Because of that fact they were not socially eligible for clubs, parties, ballrooms and newspaper interviews."

LABOR M.P.'S HIT AT 'SAVAGERY'

London, March 8 (AP)—Members of the British Parliament today recalled the "savagery" with which, they said, Italian troops in Addis Ababa carried out reprisal against natives suspected of the recent attempt on Marshal Rodolfo Graziani.

Replying for the government to questions, Viscount Cranborne, undersecretary of state for Foreign Affairs, said:

"Although His Majesty's government has not received as yet full information, it has been learned that the attempt was made on Graziani, causing a large number of deaths, and extensive destruction of property."

(Some dispatches in February, following the attempt, said Graziani and several of his aides by bombs thrown into a reception hall by a group of Ethiopians were tried summarily, executed by firing squad, hanged and executed by firing squads.)

Questions are asked.

Three Labor members—Lieut. Y. R. Fletcher, Arthur Henderson and Philip Noel-Baker—asked questions concerning the attempted assassination of Graziani.

"Are the government aware that these reprisals were carried out with the customary equalities of the worst atrocities in Africa?" Fletcher queried. "Are the government in touch with reports," replied Lord Cranborne "and are they aware that the reports have been given out."

Briefly it told how the Italian authorities laid their heads and a certain proportion of those injured were obsolutely innocent of any connection.

"I think it is undoubtedly true there was a state of grave disturbance," the undersecretary said.

PREFERS TO LIVE IN OLDEN DAYS

John D. Rockfeller Jr. Pleads For Unity of All Churches

New York, March 8 (AP) —John D. Rockefeller, Jr., indelibly identified with the Baptist church, said he would prefer to have lived in the days of the stage coach.

"I would prefer to converse with the telephone and the radio," said the 81-year-old philanthropist, "and at rest and concrete lowers New York and the skyscrapers, but by so doing the peace and calm of life at a slower pace would be brought back."

Rockefeller made his views known in an address at nearby Tarrytown, long the home of his father, founder of vast petroleum enterprises. He spoke at one of the churches of the community.

"Despite the many accidental preferences and feelings," he said, "which divide the Christian followers of the past, even if, in so doing, we know not why, we are partly to bear them out."

Recently he recommended a union of all sects as the only means of "preventing the spread of the idols of materialism and crumbling moral standards."

Assembly Division of Chevrolet on Strike

Flint, Mich., Mar. 8 (AP)—A strike in the motor assembly division of the Chevrolet Motor Co. closed four plants this morning, affecting 6,400 men. Eight thousand men continued at work.

The company said the strike was confined to plant number 4 where motors are assembled but that plants 2, 3 and 9 were closed because their operations are dependent upon production in No. 4.

The men did not barricade the plant, the usual procedure in a sit-down strike, but the company announced no attempt would be made to operate the plants or remove parts pending the outcome of negotiations.

Occupants of House Found Unconscious

Toronto, March 8 (CP)—Mr. and Mrs. W. Jones, both in their late 60's, year-old son, David, were in St. Joseph's Hospital recovering from effects of coal gas which rendered them unconscious in their home early today.

Mrs. F. Simpson, a distant relative and close neighbor, called at the Dorman house to get David, who stays with her daily, while both the parents are at work, and found the house full of gas and the three occupants unconscious.

RAP IS GIVEN VON RIBBENTROP

Speech Criticized in Which He Asks For Return to Colonies

By GEORGE RAMBLETON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, March 8 (CP Cable)—Joachim Von Ribbentrop, the German Ambassador to London, received a caustic rebuke today from Commander Reginald Fletcher, Labor member of Parliament, and asked whether representations would be made to the German Government that the British Government did not propose to transfer mandates.

Viscount Cranborne, undersecretary for foreign affairs, replied to Fletcher to Foreign Secretary Eden's statement in the House that the British Government had not considered and were not considering a transfer.

"Is it not the case," Fletcher pursued, "that Ambassadors are accredited for the express purpose of discussing such matters as this with the Government to which they are accredited instead of making speech subject to political speeches and propaganda?

Labor spokesman: "I should say the present procedure is usual."

Labor spokesman cheered.

Lord Cranborne added he had heard a report of the Leipzig Speech but did not think formal action was necessary or desirable.

McINTOSH APPLE WIDELY FAVORED

Last Year's Production in Canada Worth $1,250,000

Ottawa, March 8—(CP)— The McIntosh apple which originated as a chance seedling on the farm of Allan McIntosh in Metcalfe Township, Dundas County, about 1870, is one of Canada's most popular varieties, the Department of Agriculture, reported today. Last year's production in Canada amounted to about 600,000 barrels, worth approximately $1,750,000.

The McIntosh has been widely disseminated and is now grown in nearly all provinces in Canada and many parts of the United States, especially in New York State.

The apple is about three inches in diameter and for several years took first prize at the Royal Show at Windsor, England, as the best for dessert.

The McIntosh is now crested on the site where the original tree stood to commemorate its existence and to mark the spot where the first McIntosh tree grew.

Canada's Claim

Albany, N. Y., March 8—(AP)— Canada can claim no bat yesterday with a claim that the New York State Agriculture Department conceded originated in Canada—the McIntosh, famous New York State apple, originated in Dundas County Ont.

Popular belief, the department said, has previously set the origin "somewhere near the southern shore of Lake Ontario."

A resident of Canada, Ont., wrote that he had the "correct information based on genuine authority."

Original Tree

"The original McIntosh apple tree was on the farm of John McIntosh, a pioneer settler at Dundas, Canada, on the north shore of the St. Lawrence," the Canadian wrote. "The present occupant of the farm is Allan McIntosh, a grandson of John McIntosh, a descendant of the discoverer of the McIntosh apple."

"The original tree stood until a few years ago when a monument was erected by the province to commemorate its existence and mark the exact spot where the first McIntosh tree grew," the writer said.

To all of which the department replied "even if the McIntosh is a Canadian, it has become one of the leading varieties of New York State."

Statement Verified

Ottawa, March 8—(CP)—M. B. Davis of the Horticultural Division, Central Experimental Farms, last night confirmed the statement that the McIntosh apple originated at Dundas, Ont., near Brockville.

He agreed entirely with the statement made by an unnamed Canadian, which was sent in a letter to the New York State Agriculture Department.

STANFORD CUTS OFF SINGLE

Brantford, Ont., March 6 (CP)— Stanford Rubber Co. Ltd., today announced that the single shift now in operation at the plant will be increased to purge the relief roll of single men. The change will be made ahead of the date set in 1936 agreement for the election of relief matters in which it was agreed that there would be no greater opportunities this year to declare a strike by so doing particularly farm work where the single men were given preference now than at the same time a year ago.

TOOK POISON

Stratford, Ont., March 8—(CP)— Edward Kane, 36, life long resident of Stratford, was found dead today in a grove behind the General Hospital. He died from self administered dose of poisoning.

His widow and three young children survive.

VESSEL AFIRE

radio reported.

That position put the vessel almost exactly north of Bilbao, Spain.

The Canadian vessel was 1,000 miles—with serious damage and, in some instances, the loss of the lives of—off Catalonia, on the eastern Mediterranean coast of Spain.

The incidents boded ill for the Spanish government in its struggle by warships of British, France, Germany and Italy, which the international committee considered a conciliation today decided to attempt on March 15.

(The insurgent cruiser Canarias has been especially active in the Bay of Biscay area. Last Thursday, this warship captured the Spanish government steamer Chaldeano, carrying 180 men, women and children from an escort of armed government craft. The Canarias' shells killed two women and children aboard the Caldeano. The rest were interned in Spanish insurgent territory.)

DAILY SHORT STORY

The Leather Masters

By John Nicholas

Kid Rainey and his manager, "Doc" McCorry, heard the muffled pop that sounded like an air rifle shot.

They burst into an adjoining room, their nostrils assailed by the acrid smell of burnt cordite and a little puff of bluish smoke still hovered in the centre of the room. Beneath it on the concrete floor lay a short stogie weighted down with a splotch of flattened lead.

Doc McCorry's keen mind immediately grasped the situation and he ran out of the room into the corridor beneath the stands of the baseball park. His searched its entire length but found no one. Returning to the room he saw Kid Rainey glaring at the paper gripped clumsily in his taped hands.

"What's it say?" Doc inquired. "A lot of nonsense, if you ask me." The kid passed the sheet to his manager.

McCorry squinted his eyes at the scribbling and read:

KID RAYTER LOSE THE SCRAP TONIGHT. THERE'S FIVE MORE SLUGS IN THIS BOD THAT PUMPED DOWN THIS NOTE. TRY ANY TRICKS—SHOOTIN AND YOU'LL GET THEM—ALL DEALT WITH YOUR SIDE.

The note was unsigned. McCorry read it again and cursed angrily. "Two when we had everything set for easy sailing—"

"How much would we lose by throwing the fight, Doc?"

"Fifty grand. This was to be our big day."

The Kid whistled softly. "Too much. We've gotta win."

Doc whirled at him. "But this may kill you. He's some gambler who sank his roll on Crane and he means business. He sneaked into this room, put the paper on the floor and then fired a shot at it to show that he's got a gun with a silencer and that he's not afraid to use it."

He began to pace the room, thinking feverishly.

His finger was a favorite to win the headliner that night by decision. His was matched against a hulking brute long past his prime. The Kid was assured a victory because of his speed and knowledge of boxing. Victory would mean a chance at the title and fifty thousand dollars in side bets cleverly placed.

Someone knocked on the door. He opened it and a redheaded man grinned at him.

"The kid's next on the bill," the man announced.

McCorry nodded his head absently. "Okay Jim, we'll be coming." He turned to the slim boxer behind him, inspected his hands and slapped him on the back.

"All right, Kid let's go. There's ten rounds to this fight. We'll go through with our plans. If I don't figger a way to fool that rat, I'll let you know. Then—then we'll have to drop the fight."

Doc shoved Rainey towards the door and clenched his microphone out of the announcer's hands.

"Ladies and gentlemen," his voice came clearly through the loud speaker, "I know you want a square deal. Fifteen minutes ago someone threatened the Kid's life if he does not throw the fight. We ask everybody to watch the person in front of him. If anyone takes a shot at the Kid, grab him and tear him apart. Are you with us?"

There were a few seconds of dumfounded silence. Then came a deafening cheer.

Doc returned the "mike" and led Rainey to his corner, grinning. "That'll hold him whoever he is."

Kid Rainey came on confidently. He wasted no time, jabbing at the big man—and then dancing nearly out of reach.

Crane, his towering opponent, missed a haymaker and clinched. The Kid unslurred something into his ear and broke away, following the slugged followed and smashed a hard right to the temple that made Rainey totter drunkenly. He spent the rest of that round in desperate retreat.

At the start of the second round the Kid tore out of his corner like a panther. His arms were whirlwinds that forced Crane to cover up and then embrace the Kid in a desperate clinch.

The referee tore them apart and then the Kid rushed his foe. He seemed to have forgotten completely that he was only a boxer.

The crowd was on its feet screaming deliriously. The managers were shouting encouragements that couldn't be heard in the bedlam for the Kid darted Crane with a stinging left that rocked the big man on his feet. Then like a flash the Kid's right swung over in an arc and had "Whitey" stamped on it before it even landed on the point of Crane's jaw. The big man toppled over and hit the canvas with a thud.

The Kid started for the farthest corner slowly. He knew Crane was down to stay even before the referee began to count the fatal ten.

Sprawled in a comfortable chair in their hotel room that night, Doc McCorry gulped a glass of Scotch and grinned at Kid Rainey who was seated opposite him.

"Well, Kid, we made plenty money; guess we're due for a long vacation. Do you know some of our pet phobes were getting as high as nine to one that you wouldn't knock out Crane in the second round?" Doc laughed suddenly.

TARZAN'S QUEST (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

Tarzan was determined now to rescue the black girl from the Kavuru kidnaper. Of course, he might take her by force. No! He did not wish to offend Ydeni's enmity. The white savage might be useful to him when he reached the mysterious village of the Kavuru.

So Tarzan waited, patient as any other beast of prey that watches for the right moment to attack. Darkness was approaching when the Kavuru seized the girl and threw her roughly to the ground. She fought like a young lioness, but Ydeni was fierce and powerful.

He deftly bound her hands behind her back and trussed her legs so tightly she could scarcely move. Terrified, she lay trembling.

"Now," said the kidnaper, "Ydeni can sleep. You had better sleep too. Tomorrow we have a long march. Ydeni will not carry you."

The girl was too frightened to reply. Her captor threw himself on the ground near her. Both lay quiet.

The jungle, too, was quiet except for the roar of a distant lion. But above them, a silent figure moved stealthily closer through the trees.

Baldwin to Retire After Coronation, Report

Earldom is Forecast For Prime Minister By London Newspaper

Baldwin Said to be Looking For Respite From Labors

COMING SHUFFLE

Chamberlain is Seen as Likely Successor as Prime Minister

London, March 8—(CP Cable)—The retirement of Prime Minister Baldwin was forecast for the week after the coronation, by the Daily Telegraph today.

The paper said the Conservative leader would go to the House of Lords and likely receive an Earldom following the precedent of Balfour and Asquith, Ramsay MacDonald, Lord President of the council, is believed certain to retire at the same time, the paper said. His friends do not conceal the fact he is looking forward to a complete respite from official duties although he might decide to continue to be the Labor leader in Commons in the role of an elder statesman.

At the time of the foreshadowed retirements parliament will be about to recess, which, the Telegraph said, would permit the government to make the essential reshuffle in an unhurried manner.

Chamberlain Logical Head

Political writers are generally agreed Neville Chamberlain would be the logical successor to Baldwin. It is predicted Chamberlain, as Premier, would be determined to preserve the national character of the government. Among the first duties of the new Premier would be to preside at the Imperial conference at the end of May.

Taking Chamberlain's succession for granted, political correspondents are at divergence in conjecture for the post of Chancellor of the Exchequer. Sir John Simon and Sir Samuel Hoare appear to be the leading rivals going to the Home Office if Simon, at present Home Secretary is the Treasury. Walter Runciman, President of the Board of Trade and W. S. Morrison, Minister of Agriculture, are also mentioned for the Exchequer post.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Tilleson
Science Service Meteorologist

In contrast with last year, the past winter has been mild throughout the country, and particularly east of the Mississippi River. The condition of warm weather was brought about by the establishment of air pressure. On the average the pressure was very high over the western Atlantic Ocean and low over the West. This arrangement was conducive to drawing warm tropical air northward. The resulting superiority were very low high pressure areas from northern Canada bringing very much cold air masses from the Mackenzie River Basin. Cold waves were therefore scarce.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, March 9 (CP)—Pressure is high over the Northwest Territories, Manitoba, and the United States, while a disturbance of increasing intensity, centred over Lake Superior, is moving eastward to the mouth of the St. Lawrence river, causing rain and snow in the Great Lakes region. Rain or snow has also occurred in many parts of Ontario and Quebec, while in the western provinces the weather has been fair. It is much warmer in the Prairie Provinces and the Pacific coast.

Lake Superior—Fresh north and northwest winds; mostly fair today and Wednesday.

Maritime—Mostly cloudy and cold with snow flurries today. Wednesday: mostly fair and continued cold.

Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta—Mostly fair today and Wednesday; not much change in temperature.

Lower Lakes—Fresh to strong northwest winds; fair and cold today and Wednesday.

SUCCESSION DUTIES LARGEST SINGLE ITEM IN BUDGET RECEIPTS

Toronto, March 8—(CP)—Premier Hepburn told the Ontario Legislature today in his budget address that revenue, largest succession duties, reaching a new peak in the fiscal year ending March 31, made up the largest single item in budget receipts for the year.

A few minutes later he forecast a still higher figure would be reached in the coming fiscal year. Taxes levied on estates in the current year yielded revenues of upwards of $18,000,000, Mr. Hepburn said. This amount included actual collections by June 31 and an estimate of collections for February and March.

For the next fiscal year, succession duties would reach $13,000,000, the premier added. Figures announced by the Premier today compared with collections of about $13,000,000 in the year ended March 31, 1936, and about $5,000,000 in the year ended March 31, 1926.

A number of estates, where fraud or wilful concealment had been practised, were exposed, the Premier said. From more than 30 of these estates amounts were collected varying from $1,000 to more than $1,000,000.

BUILD HOSPITALS GOVT PLANS

New Buildings And Improvements Are Projected

Toronto, March 8 (CP)—The Ontario government plans in the new fiscal year to spend $2,660,000 for additions to government-owned hospitals and on new construction, Premier Hepburn said today in his budget address.

Site for a new building has already been selected at Port Arthur, Mr. Hepburn said the lakehead hospital was designed to care for a population of more than 650 mental patients when homes are in Port Arthur-Fort William.

Erecting as far west as the Manitoba border.

A program of modernizing and enlarging the Ontario Hospital Hospitals at Brockville, Cobourg, Hamilton, Kingston, London, New Toronto, Orillia and Penetanguishene will be carried out.

Construction of new buildings is proposed for Hamilton where public wards, including a new receiving building, will be erected at a cost of $500,000.

A Woodstock construction of two new wards for epileptic patients will be undertaken, as well as other additions, improved equipment and fire-proofing.

Almost all work on hospitals will be done by private contract by which tenders will be invited, the Premier said.

PAY-AS-YOU-GO POLICY SUCCESS, STATES HEPBURN

Premier Budgets For Surplus, He Tells Legislature

REVENUES UP

Province May Not Have to Sell Debentures This Year

Toronto, March 9 (CP)—Ontario's "pay-as-you-go" policy, announced in the 1936 budget speech, has brought results, Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn told the Legislature today in announcing the surplus for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1937, would be $7,347,729.79, the figure being actual for ten months and estimated for the period until March 31.

For the fiscal year beginning April 1, Mr. Hepburn estimated gross ordinary revenue of $94,849,534.39 and gross ordinary expenditure of $87,-501,618.58. The latter includes contributions $9,048,460 for unemployment relief during the period April 1 (estimated for a surplus of $3,362,005.62.

Boosted by succession duties revenues of $15,500, revenue for the fiscal year ending March 31 (ten months actual, two months estimated) reached an all-time high of $92,501,805.81. Original expenditure was set at $77,276,076.79. Unemployment relief took $13,225,000, leaving an interim surplus of $7,-947,729.02.

Premier Congratulates Self

Delivering his third budget address, Premier Hepburn congratulated himself on the accuracy of his figures given last March.

In this address we estimated a deficit of $15,490,607," he said. "When the books were closed the deficit was $13,225,000, a reduction of $153,000. This proves the figures presented in my budget address were reliable and well within the mark.

A balanced budget is the basis of national credit and the bulwark of private credit," the premier said. This ideal was for the Ontario government the pillar of cloud by day and its pillar of fire by night."

Reversed Procedure

Policy of the preceding administration was to borrow many millions for the privileged few, but this administration has reversed that, particularly with the Provincial Income Tax Act and amendments to the Succession Duty Act.

"This government holds to the opinion that the wealth created by the genius of a few should be shared by the people as a whole," the premier said.

The government's policy of increasing the public debt only when necessary for capital purposes was also followed, Mr. Hepburn said.

"The net debt of the province at March 31, 1936, was $151,572,943.94. This has been reduced by $1,572,943.94 to $150,000,000 at March 31, 1937. This is the first reduction in the net debt since 1930.

"Our net debt per capita is $39.50 as compared with $41.50 a year ago. This is the lowest per capita net debt of any province in Canada."

Child Bride Loves Elderly Husband

Umatilla, Fla., March 9 (AP) — Fifteen-year-old Dolly Butler Seales was happy today in the marriage which ends her as the youngest of two girls, one older than herself.

"We are getting along even better than I had expected and I wouldn't go back to my folks for all of them," she said when asked about her marriage Saturday to 60-year-old Reddick Franklin Seales.

Of her elderly husband, the bride-to-schoolgirl bride said, "I love him more than ever. I never did like a young man like I do an old man."

Marriage license, a clerks grave tender, made her the stepmother of six of her husband's children by his first wife. They range in age from 35 to 13, and there are two grandchildren who are 13 and 17.

NET HYDRO DEBT TO THE PROVINCE IS $151,572,943

Total Advances Since 1909 is $207,002,760 And Prepayments $55,429,806

BORROWINGS STUDIED

Financing Plan in 1934 Found Unfavorable Says Premier

Toronto, March 9.— (CP)—Net advances by the province to the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission at March 31 will stand at $151,572,943.94, Premier Mitchell Hepburn told the Legislature today in his Budget address.

In the fiscal year ending March 31, Hydro repayments to the province will be $61,162,306.84. Total advances to the Commission since its constitution in 1909 have been $207,-002,760.30. Repayments have been $55,429,806.42, leaving the net Hydro debt to the province at $151,572,-943.94.

Mr. Hepburn said Hydro in 1926 undertook to place with the Province sinking funds accumulating for debt retirement. Interest was allowed to Hydro on the basis of average yearly cost. A review of the Hydro Financial position at December 31, 1934, indicated the following unfavorable features:

Hydro advances were increasing, making the credit of the Province.

An elaborate book-keeping system was necessary to find the cost of Hydro money.

Sinking fund deposits could not be allocated to previous borrowings.

Two Accounts Used

The province had two accounts, one for Hydro advances and one for Hydro sinking funds, with no feasible way to offset one against the other.

Because of the foregoing factors, no commission and debt provision decided as at October 31, 1934, the final repayments due to Hydro would be distributed over the provincial loans outstanding which were considered giving rise to Hydro repayments.

Allocation was made of all borrowings on Hydro account and Hydro advances then distributed in each fiscal year over the available proceeds on a basis providing for "a gentil retirement of its advances."

The above mentioned procedure Hydro repayments were therefore used in retirement of Hydro's share in the total existing loan maturity."

Mr. Hepburn placed on the records of the house a statement by fiscal years showing advances to and the repayments from the Hydro-Electric Power Commission.

CHATEAU READY FOR THE ARRIVAL OF MRS. SIMPSON

Chateau de Conde is Reportedly Purchased by Duke

HOUSE PARTY

Monl, France, March 9.—(AP)—A large house party at the Chateau-studded Touraine looked forward today to the arrival of Mrs. Wallis Simpson and her Riviera friends, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Rogers.

The Charles E. Bedaux's, where Mrs. Charles E. Bedaux will welcome her guests, are decorated with 10,000 Francs ($420) worth of flowers in preparation. The celebrated visit of the bride-to-be of the Duke of York.

Residents in this little town, approximately ten miles south of Tours, expected that the wedding of the Duke and his fiancee would be celebrated in France.

The comings and goings of delivery trucks and automobiles and the mobilization of many extra servants brought unaccustomed activity to the Chateau where the castle has been deserted at this season for the last ten years.

Tours, France, March 9.—(CP-Havas)—The Chateau de Conde, reportedly purchased by the Duke of Windsor for his bride-to-be owner, was made ready today for the arrival of Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson Cannes.

The wedding of Mrs. Simpson and the Duke of Windsor will be held in the Chateau's small chapel, it was reported.

It was learned that Mrs. Charles E. Bedaux, of the world famous explorer and industrial engineer of New York, recently engaged more than 20 domestic servants. Flowers worth 10,000 francs were said to have been delivered at the Chateau yesterday.

Long Stay Expected

All these facts were interpreted as indicating that the Duke and Duchess will make a long stay here.

Reports that the Duke and King as the permanent home he will make after Mrs. Simpson's divorce becomes final, have been denied at the chateau, a spokesman declaring he knew nothing about it."

Mrs. Simpson meanwhile was en route here by motor with her friends Mr. and Mrs. Herman L. Rogers of New York after visiting their villa Villa Lou Viel at Cannes.

Net Earnings of Railway Increase 203.9 Per Cent Over Last Year

Toronto March 9— (CP)—Financial statement of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1936, which Premier Mitchell Hepburn in his Budget address, showed net earnings of $1,572,943.

Increase over the previous fiscal year, when net earnings of 360,550.47 were reported, is 1,212,393.53 or 336 per cent.

The territory served by the railway has forced steadily ahead and indications for the future are more prosperous times during the 1936-37 year, Mr. Hepburn stated.

"The lumbering business is more active, gold mining is prosperous and improvements while mining—and in particular, gold mining in the area serves—continues to expand to a very marked degree.

In order to handle traffic, the railway commission found it necessary to purchase two modern locomotives, six passenger coaches and 100 freight cars, Mr. Hepburn says returns available in present fiscal year indicate a traffic increase.

Every Municipality in Province Given Grant of Mill on Dollar Of Assessment for General Purposes

Premier Hepburn in Third Budget Address Asks Municipalities to Pass This Grant on to Taxpayers by Reducing Mill Rate—Grant to Cost Province Three Millions

Amusement Tax to be Abolished

License Fees For Commercial Motor Vehicles Will be Reduced 25 Per Cent—Surplus Announced Twelve Times Amount Predicted—Funded Debt Reduced $26,160,855.

Toronto, March 9.— (CP)—An estimated surplus of $7,347,729, 12 times the amount he predicted a year ago, was reported to the Ontario Legislature today for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1937, by Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn in his Budget Speech address.

Ontario's Treasurer as well as its Premier, Mr. Hepburn budgeted a surplus of $1,283,000 for the coming fiscal year and announced subsidies to municipalities will be paid for at least one year. Amusement tax will be abolished, license fees for Commercial Motor Vehicles will be reduced 25 per cent.

In line with the promise in his last Budget speech that "we shall be able to carry the blessings of good government into the homes of the humblest man and woman in this province," the 40-year-old Premier told a crowded legislative chamber:

Deficit Year Ago

"A year ago he reported a deficit of $13,490,000 and Budgeted an estimated surplus of $977,000.

The surplus he announced today as on actual figures for ten months and estimated for February and March.

Gross revenue in the fiscal year ended March 31 reached a record figure of $92,271,909 by March 31, Premier Hepburn said. He had estimated $86,415,540.

For the 1937-38 year he estimated ordinary revenue of $81,063,238 with expenditure, including unemployment relief and administration, of $79,780,432.

12 1-3 Millions For Reliefs

Relief cost Ontario $12,500,000 in the current year and was estimated for next year at $12,000,000, Mr. Hepburn said. These figures compared with relief expenditure of $20,225,000 for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1936.

Interest of the House was focused on the Premier's announcement that municipalities, which had been forfeited to the province the right to collect income taxes, would be paid a grant.

Every city, town, village and township will be paid a sum representing the equivalent of one mill on the dollar of their taxable assessments for, general municipal purposes.

"Such grants are made unconditionally, but it is the hope and belief of the Ontario Government that they shall be passed on to the taxpayers of every municipality in the province in the form of a general municipal tax rate," the Premier declared, because such reduction is precluded," then by avoidance of a corresponding increase in the general tax rate which, but for such grant would have become requisite," Mr. Hepburn explained.

Whether the subsidy could be continued after 1937-38 depended upon the findings of a royal commission to be appointed by the Dominion Government to inquire into the whole system of taxation in Canada, he added. It was estimated this one-year grant to municipalities would cost the province about $3,-000,000.

Revenue Boosted

Revenue in 1936-37 was boosted by collection of more than $18,000,000 in succession duties and the government would continue its policy of reopening estates where fraud was suspected. The Premier forecast the same source, but remain-pindecr of the current year, would produce $17,000,000 in 1937-38.

Reduction of $26,160,855 in the funded debt was announced, bringing the total funded debt to $567,352,096. By March 31, Mr. Hepburn estimated the net debt of the province would be $656,611, 000 or $39,048,095 less than a year ago.

Including loan repayments of $21,-196,800 from the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission, capital receipts for the current year were estimated at $44,431,714.

Three million dollars has been put in the estimates to be faced during beginning April 1, to pay the subsidy.

SMALL BOY MAGAZINE VENDOR GIPS CUSTOMER

"Magazine, Mister?"

It was a plaint, a thin appeal from yet a thinner and smaller young vendor who cried his paper wares along Front street last evening.

"Magazine, Mister?"

Sales were poor, it was evident by the number yet loaded under the shabby little arm.

"Magazine — Help me out? . . . Thanks, mister. . . .

"I'll help you out the next time!" fumed the latest customer three blocks further down the street, who with the aid of a twenty dollar bill, suddenly became conscious through a glimpse at the cover of the newly purchased favorite magazine, he had paid a nickel for one just three weeks old.

AMERICANS TRAVEL FAR FOR SKIING

Looking for snow at the end of Canadian trails is as difficult to find, and as elusive as the mythical pot of gold at the end of the rainbow, at least so think four members of the Ski Club of New York, who passed through the city as an early news item morning in search of ski trails. . . .

"We ran out of snow in our part of the country laughingly stated the attractive young lady, garbed in full skiing dress. "We heard there was lots up in Canada, but so far it seems to be as much as it is in our state. . . .

Four pairs of skis, poles and other winter accoutrements formed the equipment of the skiing sport enthusiasts, who later left for the northern part of the county in their search for snow, and the opportunity to indulge in their favorite winter pastime.

Edgar Rutherford Elected Pres. Contracting Carpenters Of Home Improvement Plan

Group Will Lend Every Assistance to Stimulate Modernization of Home Movement

LOANS AVAILABLE

At a recent meeting of contracting carpenters of the city held in the office of the Chamber of Commerce full details of the Home Improvement Plan, and the basis of obtaining loans were given.

The meeting which named Edgar Rutherford president of the newly organized group was presided over by Mr. J. O. Herity, chairman for the Belleville district and was featured by a discussion of the many general features connected with the privileges extended by the banks and the governments. It was felt that many of the city would take advantage of the modernization of the home, or make improvements of various kinds.

Several contracts have already been let, it was announced at the meeting.

Those present agreed they would use every practical means of stimulating interest and place themselves in a position to explain conditions under which loans are made to those contemplating alterations or extensions to homes.

In the discussion, Chairman J. O. Herity, fully conversant with the many angles of the new plan, explained that such operations as painting, paper hanging, general decorating, the addition of new rooms, the erection of garages on the same property, either in combination or single; the modernization of bath rooms and kitchens, the conversion of unused cellars or attics into playrooms, repairing roofs, foundations and drains and the installation of air conditioning systems was entirely approved by banks and governments.

POLICE BLOTTER

George Holgate, proprietor of the Holgate Motors, Dundas street, reported the loss of a used motor car to local police authorities this morning. Mr. Holgate stated he had a 1937 model Pontiac sedan-coach in his used car sale lot on Dundas street yesterday but the vehicle was missing today.

As the stolen car was equipped with 1936 Ontario licence plates local police authorities have been expecting the report of theft of a set of 1937 Ontario licence plates from this immediate vicinity as a sequel to the theft of Mr. Holgate's automobile. The stolen car had been parked in the same position for some considerable time, Mr. Holgate added. Surrounding municipalities were notified of the theft and their police assistance requested.

The height of so-called impudence and complete disregard for the law was shown by a gang of lawless on the market square last night; when local police apprehended two men in the act of removing wine from a large gallon wine bottle in a parked car. According to information given out the men had left the jar of wine in their automobile parked not many feet from the police station and were attending the hockey game. On the discovery of each period of the game the men would hastily return to their parked car and imbibe over the recess. On their second trip they were detected, however, and were apprehended and escorted to the police station, where the wine was confiscated and later the two men released with instructions to return to their home L.C.L. Apply in Friday's local police court. "And we didn't even see the last period of the game," bewailed one of the men as he left the police station.

Quite a stir was the din of shouting and hilarious noises at the early morning hours of 2oc, local police would not say, but the smallest number of persons attending a party at the police station for a night's lodging thus far this month registered at the police station last night, only eight signing the register. "Maybe they do not like to be disturbed in their slumbers," wrily commented one hurry police man as the cell block was being cleaned up today.

SWERVES TRUCK TRAILER HITS CAR

Driver Trying to Avoid Hitting a Hole in Pavement

Swerving his truck to avoid a large hole in the pavement, a trailer behind struck a passing automobile opposite the Albert College, on West Dundas St. late last night, tearing the lighter vehicle into the ditch and badly damaging it. Although considerable damage resulted no personal injuries were sustained.

Mrs. Jack Murphy, 387 1-2 Front St. was driving her automobile easterly and had just entered the western city limits, being about to pass a large wire transport and trailer, driven by Harold Toms, of Niagara Falls. As Mrs. Murphy started to pass the larger truck, the driver suddenly swerved his tractor in order to avoid a large hole in the pavement, he informed P. C. Thrasher, who investigated. The heavier trailer struck the right side of the automobile breaking the front fender and badly damaging the side of the body to an estimated value of $100.00 damage. Mr. and Mrs. Murphy and one other passenger in the car escaped uninjured, the glass in the car being shatter-proof.

The driver of the truck continued his journey easterly, but will report to local police authorities upon making his return, trip to Niagara Falls. According to reports submitted by investigating Constable Wm. Evans, the truck driver attempted to pass his tractor to avoid striking the hole in the pavement, that the sudden lurch may have been responsible for the heavy trailer swerving still further to the right of driver, in which Mr. Toms was riding.

Free Soil Analysis Given at Seed Fair

Farmers of this district are being asked to take samples of soil on their land and submit them for careful analysis and testing at the Provincial Seed Fair, Quinte District Seed Show being held in this city during the three days of March 17, 18, 19. Actual demonstration of some of these tests which will be conducted by R. J. Bryden, B.S.A., of the department of chemistry, Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, will be made.

Testing of the soil will determine the mineral deficiency, if any, and will reveal proper steps to remedy it through fertilization or other means to its former productiveness.

Directions for obtaining these samples as outlined in the Instruction Pamphlet for Judges of Seed Inspector, W. C. Michael, today, call for three depths of soil from ten to twelve various places on the farm or garden. These should be mixed thoroughly on a blanket or tarpaulin and about half pint sample bagged in a clean cotton bag. A tag should then be attached bearing the owner's name, full address, Lot No. and Concession. If possible, there should then be brought to the Seed Show. The samples should be slightly dried.

No charge is being made for this service, it is pointed out.

FLORISTS' SOCIETY WILL MEET HERE

Plans Formed to Hold Ontario Meeting on April 19

Plans to make the semi-annual convention of the Ontario Branch of the Florist Telegraphy Delivery Association which will be held in the Hotel Quinte on Monday April 19th, one of the most outstanding events of its kind, were formed yesterday at a luncheon held in the Hotel Quinte by members of the Executive of the organization.

Representatives from Toronto, Ottawa, Belleville, Cobourg, Port Hope and other centres were present to hear a brilliant address given by Mr. J. H. Beemer, manager of the Detroit branch of the F.T.D.A. Following the meeting held following the luncheon which was held under the chairmanship of Mr. Arthur J. Frost.

A committee to have charge of arrangements in preparation for the April convention was formed with Miss Dorothy Quick as chairman and Miss Grace Devins of Belleville, as secretary. The convention which is the first of its kind to be held in this city will attract delegates from florist from all parts of the province and other parts of Canada as well as a number of guests from the U.S.A.

Lots on Pinnacle Street Sold by City to J. C. McCarthy

Considerable Discussion is Heard in Council Over Sale

J. HARRIS TO RETIRE

One of the shortest sessions of the City Council this year was conducted on Monday night, the members later being guests of the Belleville Arena at the hockey match. The business before the Council was all transacted before adjournment was called and every member was given the privilege to express his views on any subject under discussion. There was no outstanding matter to deal with and only two by-laws to consider, the land by-law being referred back to the committee for further consideration.

The City Clerk and the Mayor were instructed to sign an agreement with J. C. McCarthy for the sale of two lots on Pinnacle Street, directly behind the lots owned by this resident on Front Street and upon which he intends to erect an up-to-date theatre this coming summer. The price agreed upon was $300, this price being the recommendation of the Property Committee, who also charge of all sales. Alderman Clapp was against the sale of the property, believing it to be worth more. Alderman Baragar stated that an offer of $60 for each lot was made last year and he thinks we would be well advised to sell this property, to secure some revenue in taxes," said Ald. Baragar. "I understand the buyer is going to utilize the building for storage of materials."

Against Sale

Alderman Baldrey—"I can't see this sale."

Alderman Greenlee—"I think a better deal could be made."

Alderman Armstrong—"There are $601.43 arrears of taxes on the property and the local improvement tax is low and if the buyer puts a building on the property there will be increased assessment and a further increase of revenue to the city. I think the council would be well advised to agree to the sale."

Alderman Kennedy—"I would not take the building now on the property if it was offered to me free and if we can get some value out of the property, by all means sell it.

Alderman Clapp—"I think $500 for the property is not too much and I do not want to hold this citizen up but I think we are selling them cheap."

Alderman Baldrey—"We are not holding him up but we should not give him the property."

Alderman Harris—"I am supporting the sale for I am thankful to find an enterprising citizen who is willing to invest his money in this city to make it a success."

There being no further discussion the vote was taken and the recommendation of the Property Committee was carried with Aldermen Baldrey, Clapp and Greenlee voting against.

The motion introduced by Alderman Kennedy to reduce the salary of City Solicitor A. B. Conger, K.C., to $1,200 was defeated after a vote was taken and the yeas and nays called for by the mover of the motion. Those voting against the motion were Aldermen Harris, Cushing, Armstrong, Thompson, Baragar, Clapp, Jennings, Wills and Mayor Arnott, and those supporting the motion, Aldermen Kennedy, Baldrey, Lewis and Greenlee. A motion to have the Mayor take up this question with the Public Utilities Commission was passed and he will report to Council at a subsequent meeting.

Mover Speaks to Motion

Alderman Kennedy in speaking to the motion said—"I am of the same opinion, that taxes are too heavy and there should be a reduction in this part time job. I am surprised to know that the salary was boosted from $1,200 a year to $1,800 in the space of two years."

Alderman Baldrey—"I am going to read from the by-law under which he was employed which states that he is to do all the work for the sum of $1,800 and yet he is paid $200 a year by the Hydro Commission."

Alderman Cushing—"The Hydro salary is a matter between Mr. Conger and the Commission and it is none of our business. Mr. Collins is earning the salary and I am satisfied to the motion."

Alderman Jennings—"After I was informed of what other places were paying City Solicitor on the fee system, I found Belleville was getting their work done at a reasonable figure. His salary on the Commission is none of our affair, and we should not question the Solicitor for that agreement.

Alderman Greenlee—"I think there should be some re-arrangement of the salary as affecting the city and the Commission. This ended the discussion and the vote was called.

Cheese Exhibit Assured

One of the finest exhibitions of cheese ever to be shown in this Province is the aim of the Central Ontario Cheesemakers Association, who received from the city last night a grant of $500 and the use of the Auditorium at the Drill Hall and the Council Chamber for their convention to be held in the coming December. The city will also erect temporary tables in the auditorium, where the cheese exhibit will be placed. The cheesemakers expect there will be some 1,000 exhibits placed from all parts of the Dominion as the competition is Dominion wide this year.

Jesse Harris, caretaker at the City Hall for a number of years, will retire on June 30th. Mr. Harris handed the council his resignation, to take effect on June 30th of this year and the council in recognition of his excellent services authorized three months leave of absence from that date with pay. Mr. Harris has been a faithful employee and most courteous to officials and others, who have occasion to use the building from day to day. The City Hall is always in splendid condition, clean and tidy and when he retires will be missed by the corridors. His health has not been of the best of late and all will wish him many happy years of leisure. The best to will often visit his many friends at the City Hall. The council approved the appointment of Mr. Harris as night caretaker at a salary of $30.00 a week.

Tax Days Authorized

A tag day was granted the Y. M. C. A. on June 5th for Boys' Camp work, while the Salvation Army was also granted the right to hold a tag day, the date having yet to be fixed. A committee of Aldermen Jennings, Armstrong and Greenlee was appointed to look into the collections of arrears in taxes. The City Engineer will be loaned to the Board of Education to make a survey of the four playgrounds of the Public Schools, with the city with a view to alleviating the mud condition. These grounds at certain periods of the year. The City Engineer will make his report to the Board of Education. A committee of the council on the river project to reduce or eliminate the hazards of spring floods will meet Charles A. Cameron, M.P. on Friday next in the City Hall for an informal discussion of matters of mutual interest to the city and the Commission.

One hundred and fifty feet of hose will be purchased for use in the City Hall, the hose now in the building being utterly useless. The lowest tender for the hose was accepted on the recommendation of Alderman Cushing. A communication, to cancel the insurance of the Drill Hall, the Modern Library of the Tourist Camp will be declined and placed according to a recommendation included in the report of Alderman Greenleaf, chairman of Tourist and Publicity.

Alewazon Fixed

In case of accidents to members of the Fire Department, while in execution of their duties are to receive only the allowances granted by the Compensation Board in full of their claims for reimbursation. Ten water pond cans will be purchased from the White Hardware Company at the lowest tendered price. An agreement with Charles Winzen will be signed for the collection of rents on rooms owned by the city. Walter Gibson in the Water Office was granted a $3.00 increase in wages per week, the same to take effect on March 15th. The City Yard will be completed and a committee was appointed to confer with the City Engineer in this respect. A hospital guild scheme has been established and the City Solicitor authorized to draw up a by-law with the sanction of Thurlow Township. This will alleviate a lot of noise now prevalent around this institution.

A report on the recent damage to the boiler in the City Hall was received from the City Solicitor and after being read to the council it was ordered filed. The letter in part follows: "I had not the benefit of examining the property, which was current in December, when the boiler was damaged, but, assuming that it was substantially the same as another policy, then, it is too much for the insurance premium.

The chief engineer for the Engineering Association, Canada Construction Limited states, that the damage was caused by overbearing and shortage of water resulting in the cracking of four sections of the boiler. If the chief engineer who had charge of the boiler, between the chief Engineer's statement, then clearly the insurance carried did not cover damages of the nature which was sustained.

"The members of the special committee, all men of wide practical experience with boilers, have gone into the matter very thoroughly and have prepared a complete and exhaustive report and fortunately the damages, for which the insurance is claimed, is not a considerable time before the boiler would be a chance to make its inspection. Hence it would seem that if the cause of damages as propounded by the Chief Engineer is disputed, it can only be refuted by the positive evidence of the local engineer in charge and further by examined the boiler immediately following the breakdown. If such evidence be not available then the Insurance Company is not liable for the damages."

Ahead Every Day

There had not been in the present fiscal year a day when the actual receipts from revenues did not exceed accumulated estimated expenditures. Gross estimated revenue, forecast in the last budget address at $86,615,840.26, would reach $92,-221,802.51, by March 31.

Outstanding treasury bills at March 31 next will exceed, also by March 31, 1936, they totalled $60,-000,000. During the fiscal year $87,000,000 in treasury bills were sold but $60,500,000 were redeemed.

The interest rates on these bills are less than half of the rates effective in 1932 when the principle of treasury bills left outstanding by the Henry government on July 11, 1934, ended. All treasury bills now are held by the chartered banks and are purchased daily in Canadian funds.

In December last, he announced, the province issued 15-year debentures at three per cent., payable in Canadian funds. Flattering opportunities to borrow in New York and London were rejected. The debentures were sold to a Canadian syndicate for 96.51, the effective interest being 3% per cent. The price was the most favorable obtained by any Canadian province for 15-year bonds for a quarter century.

Rate is 3¼ Per Cent.

Mr. Hepburn recounted details of other bond issues. Money was borrowed for an average rate of 3 6/7 years at about 3½ per cent. The province will not have to go into the money markets again until October or November and "if the financial showing of the province continues to improve this year as it has in the past year, it may not be necessary to sell debentures this year at all."

Total debentures maturing in 1937 will be $34,000,000; in 1938, $30,000,-000; in 1939, $15,000,000; in 1940, $17,000,000, and in 1941, $13,000,-000.

Mr. Hepburn said there has been a growing feeling a period of expansion's coming to be followed by a hardening of money rates. He declared: "Fortunately the present cheap money was here to stay for a time."

Expects No Increase

"Notwithstanding the present unsettled condition of the bond market and the prospects of the British government spending over a short period of years the sum of 7½ billions on armaments, I am inclined to think that in the long run the abundant supplies of gold, the production of which is constantly on the increase, are going to exert a decided influence in keeping rates of interest to approximately the present level," he said.

A cablegram February 4 last said Ontario investment stock quoted in London eight to nine points above par, the premier said, and has proved Ontario's credit has not been destroyed, there.

Kept Within Estimates

The government has endeavoured to keep within estimates, "not a parsimonious reluctance to spend public money whether it is needed or not, but rather the exercise of prudence and good judgment to secure a dollar's worth for every dollar spent."

The government kept strictly within its estimates, said Mr. Hepburn. It was given authority to spend $85,917,863.64 on ordinary account and spend only $84,974,070.78.

He announced cuts in Civil Service salaries had been fully restored.

Announcing a contemplated surplus of $1,947,792.73 on the current fiscal year, he said: "Having budgeted last year for a surplus of $597,985.84, having collected revenue in excess of the amount estimated after paying the cost of unemployment relief and administration, in the sum of $2,000,000, and having property provided for all existing debt by the expenditure of over $900,000, I am able to report a surplus, an honest surplus twelve times as great as contemplated, a total of $1,947,792.73."

Capital receipts for the current fiscal year will amount to $44,431,-714.45, which will be expended on $36,893,318.51. Included will be loan repayments by the Hydro Electric Power Commission of $21,188,-000.36.

Capital expenditures for the fiscal year, ending March 31 next were estimated at $29,030,000.00, refunds to $26,703,821.66 by repayments from the Federal government on unemployment relief work.

Funded Debt Reduced

At March 31, 1935, the funded debt of the province as represented by outstanding debentures, annuities and railway certificates, was $484,113,000.00. Debentures issued during the year brought this to $493,961,256.00. Redemptions during the year $23,269,855.19 were made, leaving the outstanding debentures as at March 31, 1936, at $470,691,-090.31.

This shows a reduction in the funded debt of the province of $36,-107,855.19." he said.

At October 31, 1936, outstanding debentures payable at the option of the holder both as to interest and principal in foreign currencies, totalled $33,000,000. The principal obligations payable in London and New York have been reduced $27,-000,000 and no more have been issued. One exchange for the present fiscal year was estimated at $180,815.41. In the year ending October 31, 1932, it was $1,947,-311.46.

Interest Charges Reduced

In the fiscal year ending October 31, 1934, out of every dollar of net revenue collected, it took 42.62 to meet interest charges. In the present year the cost of interest will be 36 cents out of each dollar.

Present fiscal year will see a reduction of $72,946,926.19 in the gross debt, he said. On March 31, 1936, gross debt was $689,565,513.76. At March 31 next it will be $656,611,-568.57. Gross debt includes advances to the Hydro Commission, Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway and agricultural loans.

Deposit in the Province of Ontario savings offices, a branch of the Province's organization, were $37,-505,429.49 at December 31 last, an increase of more than $5,000,000. There were 25 branches. Individual accounts increased nearly 5,000.

Farm loan accounts in the Agricultural Development Board outstanding at January 31 last were $1,-779,315.11, the number of mortgagors being 18,062, lowest in several years.

Gov't. Holds Mortgages

The Development Board has 526 farms, carried at $2,885,151.91, on its books January 31. During the year 346 farms were taken over, either by quit claim deed or sale proceedings. The board sold 406 farms.

Farms are never repossessed because the mortgagee is in arrears of both interest and principal for four years, with the exception of cases where definite evidence shows the mortgagor is capitally unwilling or damaging the security," the premier said.

Farm loans "amortized totalled 1,000. Original 20-year mortgages have extended 20 to 30 years at 4 per cent.

Mr. Hepburn estimated $31,933,-063.42 would be needed for capital expenditures in the next fiscal year "partly with a view to giving work and also to carry out an extensive program of highway construction and hospital extension."

167 Miles Added to System

During the year 167 miles were added to the provincial highways system. There were 78 construction projects to which the Federal government contributed half the cost.

"In preparing our program for this year safety in construction and maintenance will be emphasized," he said. "Grade separations, both railway and highway, will receive special attention. Constructed generally will be of a much higher standard, wider road surfaces, improved alignment and grades. The policy of building divided pavements on heavily-travelled routes will be continued; in short, every effort will be made to bring our highways to the highest possible standard of safety.

The highway construction program calls for an outlay of $14,987,350 and $7,000,000 of the value of marketable property to every city, incorporated town and township in Ontario," he said.

receive provincial subsidies for roads and bridges. These subsidies have varied from 40 to 50 per cent. but now a uniform 50 per cent. will be paid.

April 1, the government will reduce interest on the drain debentures purchases from 6 per cent. to 4 per cent. It has been five per cent.

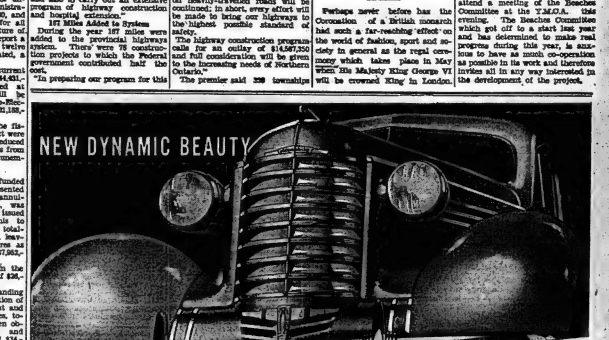
Grants Given by Gov't.

Mr. Hepburn announced the province would pay a sum equivalent to one mill on taxable assessment to every city, town, village and township in Ontario "with the intent that they conduct it as a saving to the taxpayers of every community by a reduction of one mill in the general municipal tax rate or, where from unavoidable causes such reduction is precluded, then by assistance of a one mill increase in the general tax rate which, but for such grant, would have become regulate."

The succession duty office had contributed more than any other department to the fine financial showing, he said. The Conservatives opposed opening up old estates and W. H. Price (Conservative, Russell) financial treasurer, predicted the government would probably live to regret the action if it did. Instead collections reached a peak of $16,000,000.

Gov't Not to Devinde

"That is only the beginning of what we hope to accomplish, for this government will not devinde from its course in fearlessly collecting from those who, under former administrations, have been favored fully and successfully defrauded that Provincial revenue," he declaimed.



The Provincial Income Tax Act, he said, replaced a "disgraceful checkerboard system of municipal income tax, full of inequities, discomities and hardships." Many escaped it, "while under more than fostered anything lost to any municipality through the change and demonstrated its wisdom.

Mr. Hepburn announced the reported improvement in Hydro finances and said the benefits had been passed on to consumers in rate reductions.

"This house will agree that the crowning feature in passing on the gifts of a bounteous Providence to honest surplus is the direct subsidy that will be paid at the rate of one dollar for each dollar of the value of taxable property to every city, incorporated town and township in Ontario," he said.

20 PAY LIFE POLICIES ARE PAID UP IN 14 YEARS

Many people who insured with The Mutual Life of Canada in 1923 expecting to pay 20 annual premiums on their 20 Pay Life policies, and who left their annual dividends to accumulate at interest, have been notified that if they wish to make their policies paid up no further payments will be necessary, and in addition a cash credit will be paid them in 1937. The dividends allotted in the 14 years will take care of all future premiums.

For instance, J. D., who insured in 1923 on the 20 Pay Life plan, would ordinarily make six more deposits of $227.50, a total of $1,365. Now it will not be necessary for him to pay this sum, and instead he will receive $53.55 in cash in 1937 and each dividends each year as long as the policy continues in force.

Of course if he wishes to continue making his annual deposits with the Company for the next six years, he may do so.

If you are interested in a policy in The Mutual Life of Canada may we suggest that you get in touch with your representative listed below, or our Head Office.

NETS FOR AIRPLANES

One of the interesting pieces of news of the past week was the reference to the plan of netting enemy aircraft in the skies high above London, in the event of a war, in which naturally the airplane would play a very large initial part. The wires would be strung across the skies with the use of kites, such as were used in the World War. The wires would be invisible by day or night.

This is one of the strange developments by those who prepare against war. Such a device it is confidently believed could be so used to protect any city from aerial attack, the wires catching in the propellers of the machines.

Many devices have been discussed and this one among them. It is said to have been used a little over Paris about twenty years ago. But what other devices will be brought forth if a conflict should come? The last war produced poison gas and the tank. And the tank with the plane has changed the whole method of warfare very greatly.

THE STONE OF SCONE

One of the chief points of interest in connection with the coronation of His Majesty King George Sixth will be the attention upon the Coronation Chair in which rests the famous stone of Scone.

Tradition plays no small part in the story of this stone, known in Ireland as the Lia-Fail, the stone of Destiny, and is at full sweep in the tracing of the stone to Palestine as it is claimed that Jacob used it for a pillow when he came to rest as he was on his wanderings. Genesis says that the stone pillow was set up by Jacob as a mark or pillar and that after his death his descendants carried it to Egypt as it possessed strange properties and was the emblem of leadership. Moses became famous in Egypt and after his banishment and the descent of the plagues upon Pharaoh and Egypt, a Greek friend of Moses is said to have carried the stone aboard the ship in which he sailed down the Nile. Tradition says it was taken to Lusitania (Portugal) and thence to Tara Hill is Ireland, where the Irish rulers were crowned on it.

In the fifth century the story goes that the stone was taken to Dunstaffnage in Scotland to honor the coronation of Fergus McErc. Three and a half centuries later it was removed to the Abbey of Scone by Kenneth Second. In the reign of Edward the First of England, the stone was carried off to England to grace the coronation of kings at Westminster. An old rhyme says that the Scots must reign "where they this stone shall find."

The stone is gray-brown, flecked with mica, less than a foot thick and two feet long. It is under the woodwork of the seat of the King's chair and is visible from the front. The stone is syenite and it is said that similar syenite is found in Palestine, in the traditional place where Jacob slept.

This stone whose origin is shrouded in mystery and legend is the very stone on which His Majesty King George will be crowned. Why this small block of syenite has come to play so great a part in the ceremony is due of course to the history behind the stone. But why did it become the coronation seat for Scottish kings? Legends says it came from Ireland. If the legend of the Stone of Destiny or Lia-Fail is accepted, whence did it come to Ireland and why did it come to be the seat for the crowning of Irish rulers?

Its legend and its history make it what it is in British tradition, the corner stone of the coronation of all British kings.

THIS CHURCH A SHRINE

The beautiful church of All Hallows, one of the fifty designed by Sir Christopher Wren, the famous architect of St. Paul's, London, is indelibly associated with the name of John Wesley as the church where he preached his first sermon.

Now the church is to be torn down with the authority of the ecclesiastical commission and the sanction of the Privy Council because the upkeep has become too costly and it has been proposed the benefice be combined with that of St. Edmond the King, the New Outlook notes.

But protests have been made by the City Corporation, by the Conference of Learned Socities, by lovers of the work of Wren, the great architect, and by "those to whom every footprint of John Wesley is a sacred shrine."

It is now proposed to sell the site, worth three-quarters of a million dollars and build another All Hallows elsewhere in London diocese. If this step is taken the beautiful fittings of the ancient church will be enshrined in the new.

The secret of a good memory is attention, and attention to a subject depends upon our interest in it. We rarely forget that which has made a deep impression on our minds.—Edwards.

NEW YORK CITY FOLKS MAY NOT BE CRAZY BUT THEY DEVELOP QUEER NOTIONS.

One of the newest aberations is taking cameras to places of public entertainment and shooting the actors and scenes on the stage. John Gielgud, of England, who brought a new and better Hamlet to Broadway and outshone all other stage luminaries, past and present, in "The Melancholy Dane", has returned to England, and comments unfavorably upon the camera practise. "Candid Camera Friends", he calls them (perhaps the word behind the movie is "fiends", but he is too polite to use it.) "New York is a grand place to work," said John Gielgud, interviewed upon his return to London, "but they have got one new habit which I confess I loathe. The latest fashion is to take a miniature camera to the theatre and spend all your time taking snapshots of the performance. It got on my nerves. There were never fewer than four of these camera fiends in the stalls at one time. All the time I was trying a create the atmosphere of ghost scenes at the beginning of the play I would keep hearing the click, click, click, of the cameras. "Hamlet would seem to be rather too old fashioned for beautiful, bright and bounding Broadway, but Broadway not only took one Hamlet to its bosom, but two, for Leslie Howard, another English actor, opened in the same play, shortly after Gielgud and did competition quicken the tempo? Shakespeare fans went to both to see which was the best, and the fever spread until it was "The Thing" to see both Hamlets and talk about the experience forever after. Gielgud said that Howard's Hamlet opening several weeks after his quickened the box office demand and his Broadway success really started after Howard's Hamlet began to stalk the boards at another theatre.

EDGAR ALLAN POE, AUTHOR OF "THE RAVEN"

and other poems which have lived down the years, and the poet's untimely death in Baltimore, Maryland, will be commemorated in the preservation of the house he lived in at Philadelphia. This house was about to be sold for a rooming house when Richard Gimbel, merchant prince and philantrophist stepped in and bought it, to be preserved as a memorial and turned into a museum. Edgar Allan Poe, in addition to "The Raven" and other poems, wrote a number of outstanding novels, mostly mystery stories like 'The Murders of the Rue Morgue', in which he introduced a new and novel character, a big ape who could climb up the side of buildings and gain access to the bedrooms of his victims without difficulty. Wonder is this unique story has not been reproduced in the movies.

EASTER IS CREEPING UP ON US VERY QUIETLY but none the less surely, bent, apparently on taking many men by surprise. The ladies of course, will be ready to join the fashion parade Easter Sunday, although the men may log behind. F'revensoke men, get busy and place your orders at once for spring raiment. Bad times have been left far behind, nothing but good and better times appear ahead, so 'tis time to spruce up, batter-up—if we want to make money we must look like money and many a good worker has been denied a raise in salary because he looked the part. Take a tip, brothers, and take a walk to your clothier's.

TWO YOUNG CROOKS AFTER A HOLD-UP IN NEW YORK CITY, commandeered an auto and told the driver to step on it, or else. He stepped on it, and despite the guns held on him, swung his car into the curb and wheel in one hand, pistol in other, shot one of the crooks off the running board to death in the gutter, and then tumbled the other crook off with serious wounds. He just happened to be a detective, on a busman's holiday, taking a leisurely drive over his beat. It was a bad getaway choice for the crooks, one in the morgue and the other in the hospital.

"THE HOUSE THAT ANN BUILT" AS SHOWN IN MOVIE

Following on its enthusiastic reception in many towns and cities of Ontario, citizens of Belleville will on Wednesday night have the opportunity of seeing "The House That Ann Built", the full length talking motion picture presented by the Canadian Johns' Manville Co., in the auditorium of the Y. M. C.A. beginning at 8 p.m. There is no admission fee.

The situation around which this feature picture revolves is one which confronts most families at one time or another. Mr. and Mrs. Stone, leading characters, must choose between "fixing-up" the old home or building a new one. The lively manner in which they reach their decision, and the romance of their daughter Ann, combine to make a story of unique interest, and one which will appeal to all the members of every family.

More important, perhaps, is the fact that this presentation ties in closely with the efforts of the Dominion Government in sponsoring greater activity in the construction field, both new homes and remodelling. It shows actual examples of the type of remodelling which can be accomplished under the terms of the Dominion Government Home Modernization loans details of which are now available from local bankers.

Along with the motion picture will be several other interesting features and demonstrations, and a very enjoyable evening is promised.

HIGH NOON

By RUBY MAYRES

Bruce glanced at Heather, and she felt forced to add her persuasions.

"Of course he will," Effie decided; she had been allowed to remain up as a special privilege. "I'll help you get the room ready, Heather."

"If it's going to give a lot of trouble—" Bruce protested, but Effie answered that it was a godsend to have a visitor—a really exciting visitor. "We only get such dull people as a rule."

"Is he going to marry Vilette do you think?" Effie demanded interestedly as she followed Heather upstairs. "I wish he wouldn't; he's much too nice. Now if he'd marry Stella—"

Heather was taking fresh sheets from the linen cupboard. "How you're being perfectly absurd," she said calmly. "I don't want to get married—I'm quite happy as I am."

Effie looked at her thoughtfully. "I wonder what we should all do if you did," she said suddenly." It wouldn't really be perfectly awful—." Suddenly she flung her arms round her sister's neck. "Oh, Heather, you won't ever leave us, will you? not at least until we're all married. I should like you to get married then, so that we could all come to the wedding and bring our husbands."

"Here, take these sheets, and stop talking nonsense," was Heather's answer. But Effie's words stayed with her and once again she wondered what she would do if she left life when the family no longer made demands upon her.

When she went downstairs again Vilette and Bruce were alone together. "I think I'll say good night, Heather said; she knew that Vilette would not want her company.

Bruce stood up, "I think I'll follow suit," he said. "I've had a long day—."

Vilette pouted.—bee—Bruce only laughed, and presently Vilette had dispersed to their rooms. It seemed strange, Heather thought, after so many years for her and Bruce to be sleeping under the same roof. In the old days he had so often stayed for week-ends and odd nights that one room had always been kept in readiness for him.

She remembered a night in particular, when he had arrived unexpectedly after every one else was asleep. She had met the boy coming bowling and Bruce—also going to investigate—had met her on the stairs.

It was a terrible night, and still she could still see the yellow shafts which penetrated the undrawn curtains of the landing window, and hear the creak of the old bulkheads beneath the sand as he and she stood for a moment talking in whispers.

"Do you love me, Heather?"

"You know I do."

"I mean look on pretty with your hair over your shoulders."

Her hair had been long in those days—and Bruce remembered that. Bruce had bent a little awkwardly to kiss it before, suddenly shy, and turned and fled back to her room.

Those days of unbridled youth! And now in the high noon of her life, history was trying and repeating itself.

All the evening she had been wondering—could her mind — no—remembered—one moment believing that Bruce still cared for her, and the next assured that only jealousy had prompted his half admission of love, and that he had told her only to see when I go back and let me make you happy?

Even if he still loved her as she loved him, how much better off would they be? She still had all the family—Effie's sudden outburst that evening had told her so concretely.

And then there was Vilette! . . . It seemed at every turn a brother or sister hemmed in her life, barring the way to freedom.

Did she want freedom? Heather looked sharply into her heart and saw all it would mean.

Life with Bruce—supposing he really loved her—going away with him, never to part again.

There would be the long sea voyage—the arrival in a strange country—the joy of making their home together when she would be able to transfer the love and care she had poured out for the family on the family to the man she adored.

Adored! . . . It did not seem too extravagant a word, for if in her glittering she had never loved him she was sleeping across the landing, she loved him now as he could never love more deeply. It was a joy to hear his voice, to feel his kiss, to meet eyes across the room, to answer when he spoke to her, and yet—and yet . . . she remembered that the barriers between them were insurmountable.

"Even if he still loves me," she thought honestly, and once again her heart gave her to be so brave.

Why should he?—she was so ordinary, so quiet—and Vilette! . . . Vilette had looked wonderful when she had rushed into the drawing-room at tea-time, her eyes bright with excitement, her slim body so alive and—young!

Heather sighed and turned back the bedclothes; no use wearing oneself out with useless conjecture.

In the morning there was a letter from Betty—the first she had written since her marriage.

"We are all very busy home," she wrote, "so you may expect to see me quite soon. How are you and Stiff jogging along in the old rut, I suppose. We have had a splendid time—and I think a honey moon should last forever, I have come to the conclusion that marriage is quite a good institution after all. I wish you would desert the fold and follow my example. When I look back on the past years of my supposed career, I sometimes wonder how I ever stood it at all. Talk about monotony! . . . well, I'm out of it at last, Stephen sends his love, and says I am glad you liked her—it was his choice of a wife. I shall be busy home—looking when we get back, and then I mean to look round and see if I can't find you a husband. It's time you had some one to look after you for a change.

Love from Betty."

Heather did not intend to show the letter to the family, but at breakfast time Effie said, "what did Betty say? I saw there was a letter from her. I'll bet she's making the money fly."

Every one looked at Heather, and Caesar remarked that as usual he supposed he was to be kept entirely in the dark.

"I'll show you the letter presently," Heather answered. "I left it upstairs."

"You didn't," Effie broke in. "It's in your overall pocket—I can see it sticking out."

Caesar stretched out a hand. "If you please," he said peremptorily.

For a moment Heather resisted, then with a half shrug she passed the letter across the table. Bruce deliberately began to read aloud, loud, Bobbie to talk about nothing, but silence at once Caesar rapped the table for silence, and adjusting his glasses, prepared to read his daughter's letter aloud.

Instalment 19

"My dear Heather,"—Caesar read aloud from Betty's letter. "How are you all? Still jogging along in the same old rut, I suppose. We have had a wonderful time. I never knew that marriage—I ever about it at all. Talk about monotony! . . . well, I'm out of it at last, Stephen sends his love from Effie.

"Then he shall be busy housebossing when we get back, and then I mean to look round and see if I can't find you a husband. I think you had some one to look after you for a change."

There was a dead silence when he had finished. Bruce was the first to speak to you," she said so quietly Vilette's quick temper flew up in alarm. "Is it true," she continued, "that you and Bruce used to be engaged?"

The hot color flew to Heather's face, but her eyes did not falter. "It is true," she said in a low voice.

Vilette made a gesture of impatience. "Then why didn't you marry Bruce then and . . . Betty told me. She said that if Mother hadn't died, you would have married him and gone with him to South Africa instead of Betty. It was just cruel."

Heather stood up, her eyes on her sister's face. She felt both humiliation and jealousy, and that her lips trembled in spite of the effort she made to control them. "I—I never thought it despair, "It's no use lying—about it, Vilette. I—I still believe me."

Vilette took a quick step forward, her head clenched. "Is it true?" she asked again, and Heather answered quietly, "Yes, it is true. Things didn't tell you because it's all so long ago—because it's all quite forgotten."

There was a moment's silence. Then Vilette turned away quite suddenly. "I don't believe you—I don't believe you've ever been able to forget Bruce, and—and you're trying to keep him away from me!"

Vilette's breath came in little gasps. Heather was deathly pale, but her lips were set with resolution like a child's, as if in an effort to form words which refused to come. Then she moved back a step and shut the door which Vilette had left half open, and standing with her back to it she said very quietly, "I'll be sorry if you say things like that—while your angry. If you'll try to keep calm, Vilette, I will tell you anything you wish to know, but please don't accuse me of—of—"

"Of being a bumbag," Vilette broke in violently. "Well, I do—accuse you of it. I don't know why I've been such a fool as not to guess what has been going on and why Bruce has changed to me. I can see now that it's your influence. You manage us all in your quiet—humble sort of way . . . Have you told him about Betty and about—about the other men I've known? Does stupid love affairs, all of them, that mean nothing. Or have you acted the silent suffering martyr—the one who has been making sacrifices for an ungrateful family? I suppose you saw from the moment I brought him home and you knew that he was rich, and you never be able to get him back by fair means, and so—" She stopped as Heather gave a stifled cry and covered her face with her hands.

The silence fell again until Vilette with a shrug of her shoulders crossed the room and flung the window wide as if she were choking.

CONSTIPATION IS A MISERABLE THING!

It takes the pep right out of you makes you feel tired and irritable—ready to worry over the slightest thing.

Yet it can be corrected in most cases so easily. Common constipation is usually caused by lack of "bulk" in the foods you eat.

Millions of people have learned that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN ends constipation by putting "bulk" back in the diet. With its "bulk," ALL-BRAN absorbs twice its weight in water, forming a soft mass and gently sponging out the system.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN also furnishes vitamin B to tone the intestines, and iron for the blood.

Two tablespoonfuls daily as a cereal with milk or cream, or in recipes, are sufficient. Three times daily in severe cases.

Sold at all grocers—and guaranteed by Kellogg in London.

"Old Stitch"

Wallace Beery stars in one of his most human roles in the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer story, "Old Stitch," on the Belle screen Tonight and Wednesday, matinee and evening.

The story will be remembered from its original appearance in The Saturday Evening Post. The author was Garret Smith. The narrative is an account of the highly amusing adventures of the latest man in town, following his discovery of $100,000 in thousand dollar bills.

Beery, in the title role is at his best. Obviously "Old Stitch" is unable to cash any of the bills. For him to exhibit money in such denominations would be madness. Accordingly, he goes to work in order to impress his fellow townspeople, hoping that it will appear from spending the cash a thousand dollar bill later.

Meanwhile, the bandits who originally had the money, rediscover it in the cache where Old Stitch left it. They virtually kidnap him and in the escape, he manages to wreck their car. Then follows many days of course, and the lovable old character, receives his reward, which is enough for his needs, even for luxuries.

Eric Linden and Cecilia Parker play the parts of Beery in "An Wilderness," are teamed again in the romantic leads. The supporting cast includes Robert McWade, Caroline Perkins, Elizabeth Patterson, Julie Perkins, Delmar Watson, Harry Watson, James Burke, Donald Meek, Grace Hayle.

Women are Trouble."

Women are Trouble," the second feature attraction on the same program, is a newspaper story out of the files of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

In giving the audience the viewpoint on the newspaper, it is headed by the working newspaper craft, and, most appropriately, by a pressed newspaper life without exaggeration.

Stuart Erwin performs an excellent task in his characterization of Mark Casey, a star reporter. Florence Rice, daughter of the headline paper sports authority Granland Rice, portrays a girl reporter on a newspaper men know the type, and Phil Reilly, who "sits in" as city editor, draws a character with whom every reporter is unforgettably familiar.

The picture was produced at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Studios by Lucien Hubbard, not many years ago one of the most efficient newspaper men in the world.

Without fancy-working the story leaves the indelibly clear impression that what we know as newshounds are, in fact, workhorses who keep a lot of people straight when otherwise they might possess clear deeds to city halls and court houses all through the land. The Belle Latest World News flashes will be exhibited on the same program. Performances start daily at 2.30. 7.10 the last complete show at 8.30 P.M. "Old Stitch" starts at 2.40 and 8.30 P.M. "Women are Trouble" starts at 4.00, 7.20, and 9.50 P.M.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Plough and the Stars" and "John the Marines"

The deeply dramatic story of a young Irish girl for whom film and stage are twisted and almost destroyed by the Easter Week "insurrection" of 1916, in Dublin gives Barbara Stanwyck one of the richest roles of her career in "The Plough and The Stars," coming to the Capitol Theatre Wed. as bill No. 1, on a grand double feature show with bit No. 2. "John the Marines."

Supported by Preston Foster in the principal male role, the red-headed star portrays a highly attractive Dublin slum-dweller whose young hungand is torn from her side by his loyalty to "the cause."

The tragic drama that gripped those women whose husbands or lovers, were for an entire week absent in the street, fighting, is reflected in this story of Nora Clitheroe's struggle. A prideful young woman, her attempts to cling to idealism and romance in the Dublin slums had made her an outcast among the poverty ridden neighbors. Thus added pathos is given to her struggle because she had to fight alone, without the consolation of feminine sympathy.

GHOST TALES TOLD AT MINES

Weird Visitations Are Reported in Geraldton District

Geraldton, Ont., March 9 (CP) — Strange stories of ghosts and cffs spred through the Geraldton gold district mining district today.

Employees of Hollinger-Consolidated and Little Long Lac Gold Mines reported weird Sabbath-day happenings although Manager John W. McKenzie of the Hollinger-Consolidated said he could find nothing to substantiate the reports.

Albert Chalman, George Kelso and Clarence Hands, Sankfield miners, crossed the mine property night while at work in the "drift" when they noticed their mine lights and feed because "there was something there."

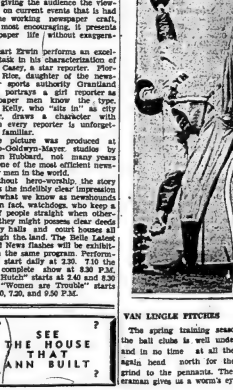
Sure He Saw Something

"I am positive that there was something in the drift last night which certainly looked to me like the ghost of the miner Chalman died yesterday. "Not many people know this story but anyone who has been in the mining game for any length knows that following an appearance like that something is going to happen."

Hands was reticent but Kelson commented:

"I'm sure there is something there all right. People are telling me today that it must have been some gas formation but it was the most human looking formation that I have ever heard tell of."

Reports from the Little Long Lac Mine said men had been startled by the flashing of lights in the drifts.



Light Suddenly Appears

Many miners confirmed the story, declaring either someone was playing a horrible joke or there was something of a supernatural nature. John Little Long Lac miner, who refused to permit use of his name, said he was working on the third level when a light appeared suddenly at the far end where he knew nobody was working. In a few moments the hydraulic air valves were opened, sending a great blast of air through the drift. Seconds later the air was shut off and no one was to be found at the controls.

Manager McKenzie of the Sankfield Mine, who said he had found nothing to substantiate the reports declared all miners worked as usual on company property yesterday. The men reported many miners hesitated to enter the workings in the morning but consented after foremen led the way.

Smell of Paint Indication of Spring

A more material evidence that Spring must be around the corner is evidenced this week in the familiar smell of paint emanating from many private homes and places of business. Paint stores report a slight movement in the realm of paint, oil and turpentine, and with the advent of warmer weather are of the opinion that the regular Spring rush will start earlier this year than heretofore. Interior decorators of the Hotel Quinte and the Army and Navy Club is already under way. Soft colors will predominate this year, is the opinion of a local expert, with people leaning more toward blending shades than those of contrasting effects.

VAN LINGLE PITCHES

The spring training season for the ball clubs is well under way and in no time at all they will be bending north for the long grind to the pennants. The cameraman gives us a worm's eye view of the "bad boy" hurler of Brooklyn Dodgers, Van Lingle Mungo, as he winds up to peg one at a batter during a strenuous training session. In the other picture the St. Louis Cardinal catching staff is seen and the season's duties are already to put one past these three.

Port Colborne "Sailors" Display Speed, Scoring Punch In Defeating Flyers by 4-2

Second Game in Allan Cup Eliminations Played Thursday

TOO MUCH ABILITY

Flyers Missed Many Opportunities in Third Frame

Displaying too much speed, and more scoring punch, the Port Colborne senior "Sailors" took full advantage of their scoring opportunities to defeat the R.C.A.F. "Flyers" 4 to 2 in the first game of the Allan Cup eliminations played before a capacity house of over 2,200 fans at the Belleville arena last night.

Coach Bert Corbeau iced a fast-skating, well-trained team, whose ability to play good hockey going both ways gave them a well-balanced victory played on water-soaked ice, which made consistent combination play difficult and the advancement of the rubber equally so. Operating at top speed the visitors brittles from all parts of the province Coach Corbeau has whipped into the "Sailors" into a near combination, who make the very most of their opportunities, and excel in scoring position.

The Flyers wasted plenty of time and energy across the mid mouth with no receiver in sight, while Coach Randall, on the contrary made the best of their opportunities, and they were never an initial period, that saw Referee Mike Rodden mete out five penalties and for glaring misdemeanors. Even in defeat, however, the Flyers possessed sufficient offensive power to out-shoot the Sailors on net, Brownlee being forced to turn back 29 stops to Gibson's 16. The shots on net by positions Flyers 12-9-8, as it while the Sailors rifled 4-8-4 as Gibson.

Brownlee in the Sailors' net repeatedly stood between his team's rence-lead and victory with his miraculous-like saves, any of which were notable short of international. The Sailors as a team checked fast and hard, and with one or two exceptions were much faster, even in the heavy going, than the Flyers. The former Upper on the defence for the winners, stood out as one of the stars of the game, his blocking being superb, while his rushes were always dangerous and he was rewarded by scoring two goals for the night. Ed Bahan and Bill Arnott played great hockey, with Arnott scoring a splendid praiseworthy and still the most masterful one. Lloyd Gerald, at centre on the second line, was one of the fastest men on the ice, being used by Coach Corbeau, although Wade and Jones, Hamilton were reserves, however, Romiens getting a great reception, when the former Flyer came on the ice. Bob Morrison teamed well with Gerald, playing the "big game" and covered over his team mates with coolness and hockey judgment. Gerald, Morrison and McGowan followed in line, Reynolds and Fitzgerald accounting for remaining two goals for the Sailors.

Flyers Play Well

Frank Lowrey and Ernie McMeeley were the two most outstanding for the Flyers, who tested their first defeat in the O.H.A. series, the night they went down at the hands of the Peterboro club many weeks ago in a game that had no bearing on the group's schedule. Stan Lowrey rings about one as the best bet for the Flyers on the defence while Lalonde's rushes were always a pleasure, the big fellow's shooting was very good also, and he repeatedly missed them golden opportunities. Ernie McMeeley combined in a different story. The Lowrey-Cowley-Ernie McMeeley combination was again the best line to be used by the Lawrence-led aggregation, with Captain Dan playing his best game of the season along with Ernie McMeeley. Cowley looked boring in. Both of these players were literally robbed of what they deserved to be certain goals by the uncanny work of Brownlee. Eric McMeeley was another of the Flyers' alternates, although Louis Lecompte's poise and back-checking came quite frequently as the most opportune time.

The Scoring

Well over 2,000 patrons of the game heard their heads as the R.C.A.F. "Flyers" played the National Anthem. The ice was watercovered but quite hard, resulting in both teams accomplishing the attack wherever possible. The Flyers' first was locked scrupulously guarded, as they continually carried the play in the opening moments of the game. The game had nicely got under way when Cowley and Jack Brownlee turned their effort aside the puck going into the zone. Smith's rush, Smith's the puncher, Hull matched the Flyers' speed in the opening minutes, but without any real-defensive hockey in the second when Richard, scored on the last. period the Black Shirts lay back on the defence, the shot, but Gerald up the ice and waited for the breaks. One came when Bahan got the half nod, when they jumped in for the clinching goal, Jones scored on Richard's pass.

First game of the final series, at last night's game, was a good one, played Wednesday night in Smith's arena, with the Sailors on the ice Saturday night. The survivors was beat stunned up by the Sailors' defence, Bahan, Reynolds and Arnott, Manager of Canadiens, the man who brought Lalonde, Cowley and Flying Frenchmen and one Howie's classes personal friends, "I can't talk about it. It is terrible—a thunderbolt."

Dr. Dr. Hector Forgues, club physician who attended the 34-year-old Canadien star, said the fractured little more than a month ago, had no inkling he felt a pretty afternoon the end was near.

Worry, certainly gave his hockey a setback—led to the breakdown about two weeks ago, Dr. Forgues said. The fractured skull suffered when Morens crumpled to the ice with full skate imbedded in the ice, boards during a game Jan. 28, had been on the mend.

Noticed Sudden Fading

Called when Howie's sight nurse noticed the sudden decline on his face, Dr. Forgues was in attendance at the end. Dazed, he could not speak.

On examination by himself, and a nerve specialist yesterday showed Morens' heart is not affected, Dr. Forgues said. The idol of all French-Canadian hockey fans six nights a week for a year, a test for a little while and never awakened from a deep, regular sleep.

At 34, a veteran's age in hockey, Morens has been at the top of the hockey world and down again. But this season, once more with the Bleu Boys he broke into the limelight with Canadiens in 1923, he started up again.

All—or very nearly all—the old-time speed was in Morens' legs, as he and Canadiens moved ahead at the top of the standing. He seemed "Hurling Howie" once more, blazing through or around the defence, scoring time and little help because Morens, Johnny Gagnon and Aurel Joliat, with whom he formed the greatest of all Flying Frenchmen forward lines.

He played on Stanley Cup winning teams, the Canadiens of 1924, 30 and 31; was awarded the Dr. David Hart trophy as the league's most valuable player three times and made The Canadian Press all-star team twice since they were first compiled in 1931.

Many Times Honored

He tasted all the honors a player could win in the National League. His lasted bitterness, too when after his stamp in 1932-34 Coaches Hart gave him to Chicago Black Hawks. He went to New York Rangers after a rather poor season with Hawks and there also, the "game thing" that brought him to Montreal with Canadiena was missing.

The bitterness was forgotten this winter in the joy of being back with Hart and Canadiens. His dressing room, he also an interviewer shortly after being taken to his home, that he hoped to be able to finish the season "for Cecil and the boys".

Though he knew at the time he was through for the season, Morens never believed he could not come back again next season. "I'll be back. I'll show them the stuff I've got."

In the seasons Canadiens and Morens won championships along the top, he built up a lifetime National League scoring record. This is only recently by Nels Stewart of New York Americans. At his death he had scored 454 goals and 214 assists, points. In 14 years he had scored 200 goals and assisted in 147 for a total of 347 total.

Had Speed Aplenty

Speed and Morens became synonymous in the National League. Coach Newsy Lalonde in Stratford in 1923 and Hart signed him to Canadiens contract after watching him play for Stratford Indians.

It was with—Nationals Morens first named the "Stratford Flash," a name that stayed with him through the years.

A native of Mitchel, Ont., Morens played hockey there until 1917, when he played as a junior with Stratford. Five years later he was with Canadiens, playing centre for a half-season before turning pro.

He is survived by his widow, Mary Grimes Morens, Jr., 10; Donald four, and Marlene; three; brother William of Stratford, a brother, William, Petit Mills, N.Y., and Edward, Detroit, Mich., and Mrs. Bushelfield, Stratford; Mrs. Ina Boyd, Toronto, and Mrs. Jack Shurley, Milwaukee, Wis.

Cornwall, Ont., March 9.—(CP) Hull Volants blanked Cornwall Flyers 3-0 here last night for their third victory in the best of five series and took the Ottawa Senior City Hockey League championship and the right to meet Smith's Falls Mic Mics in the Ottawa and District finals.

Stratford Flash, Howie Morenz Dies Suddenly in His Sleep Following Nervous Breakdown

Swiftness of His Death Leaves Hockey World Speechless

WITH CANADIENS

Sustained Fractured Leg a Month Ago And Worried Over Injury

(By Sydney Gruson, Canadian Press Staff Writer).

Montreal, March 9 (CP) — Howie Morenz, idol of countless fans, is dead. Forever he has lost hockey today, his flashing speed stilled in death, his body lying suddenly to the peerless Howie" of Mo-ri-tz-ki's Canadiens as he slept in his home last night.

A heart attack, brought on by a nervous breakdown took him in the midst of recovery from the leg fracture, that had stopped Montreal's National League comeback.

The swiftness of his death left the hockey world speechless. Its sorrow was best summed up by the words of Frederick Forgues, club physician who attended the 34-year-old Canadien star, that a little more than a month ago the fractured little leg was broken.

BRUINS FIGHTING FOR SECOND PLACE IN U. S. SECTION

Three Games Scheduled With Boston-Detroit Game Standout

RANGERS NEARLY IN

Canadiens - Maroon Game May be Postponed in Montreal

By The Canadian Press

There was only one subject of discussion today amongst hockey fans. The National League stretch drive and the fight for favored places were forgotten in the general sorrow over the sudden death of Howie Morenz.

Three games were scheduled for tonight—in Boston, New York and Montreal—but it is likely that all but the Montreal game will be postponed. Morenz' team, Canadiens, scheduled to meet Montreal Maroons.

Other contests were down for Boston, where Detroit Red Wings and Bruins meet, and New York, where Rangers and American play their last game of the season.

Americans have lost any hope of taking the play title from any side as they are out of the playoffs. So Boston and Detroit have a chance to retain their goal scoring records with an eye to contract-signing time.

Need Only One Point

For Rangers it would mean an opportunity to stage a game of a playoff berth. While it is true they need two points in each of the five games to beat out Chicago it is likely they will be shooting for it from the start as they are definitely out of the picture definitely.

Maple Leafs, Toronto three men from Philadelphia Ramblers for the contest. Clint Smith, Bryan Hextall and Eddie Wares will replace Bill Colville, Lynn Patrick and Bill Cook, all on the ailing list.

When the Detroit tonight in Boston would give Red Wings first place in the American division without any argument. In the four remaining games Bruins could not catch Wings. Detroit Boston team is sure of making the playoffs but will have to fight to be sure of keeping second place from Rangers, whom they lead by three points.

LITTLE LUMBER KINGS AGAIN ON HOCKEY TRAIL

Pembroke, Ont., March 9—(CP) Pembroke's Little Lumber Kings, midget champions—last night entered the Ottawa and District Hockey League playoffs against Rideau. Playing here before 2,500 fans, a local record, Dave Behan's juvenile team won the opener, 4-3.

Rideau scored in the final series, goals to count, will be played Friday night at Pembroke with the return game Monday in Ottawa.

New York, March 9.—(CP)—Interesting conversational pieces on the National Hockey League front:

Paul Thompson, fleet wingman of Chicago Blackhawks, and his brother Percy, Montreal Canadiens, have been offered $50,000 for the all rights on their 3,000 acres of Alberta homestead. Both decided to gamble for a higher offer.

Hail from the "city of the good" went home talking to themselves, but they'll be back again for a return game. The return BASKETBALL game will be played in Toronto next Saturday.

The next six weeks will see considerable interest being put forth in the organizing of baseball and softball leagues in Belleville, district and district. With senior baseball all but buried, George Lee seems to be the first to get things under way, however. It seems the main trouble with junior baseball is the organizing of an adequate grouping of teams each.

Sport Callings

By Ken Colling

Icing a well-coached, fast-skating team the Port Colborne "Sailors" moved into the Belleville Arena last night and for one thing gave the R.C.A.F. "Flyers" a lesson in how to score, goals. On the night's play the Flyers had equally their share of the play, but when it came to scoring goals, when the opportunities presented themselves the Sailors were much too proficient and naturally won the night's honors. Despite the fact the Flyers had nearly twice as many shots on net as did the Sailors, we are thoroughly convinced the the Sailors won and for many well defined reasons. First the Fliers are sadly lacking in reserve strength for such a lengthy and hard grind as the present season brought within their ken last year emerged. Then the Sailors are coached by a veteran hockey player of reputation—Bert Corbeau, former Toronto professional and today a smooth-working team must have a competent coach in order to cope with the opposition as is the case in these higher class play-downs. As a team the Sailors were just about the best fast-footed combination that we have seen in the Belleville Arena for many years and they know what, it's all about.

Johnnie (one-man-gang) Lalonde, who piloted the Flyers to victory in the last period last night and was was forced to retire. How he sustained his injury, we do not quite know, but will doubtless be in the line-up when the Flyers play Hamburne on Thursday night, with the lads all set to go after the scalps of the lot last night Sprained ankle, we believe. Tommy Lawrence received a telegram from the Point Edward Hockey Association, which has been in charge of the Sarnia rink for every season and victory in their series against the Petrolia squad. A very commendable gesture to say the least and Sarnia have had a hard terrid season and brought home the first O.H.A. title ever won by a team in the Sarnia hockey club in this district. They were due to be presented with a feat at the hands of the handsome Mrs. Dan Cowley, Mrs. McNeeley twins, Frank Lowrey and Ernie McMeeley and their wives last night.

Now for that much-disputed goal which Wingy Romiens scored when he put the puck struck the lower bar of the Belleville net and then bounced the goal post and caromed out into the arena. The Flyers' officials all agreed the puck passed the goal line sufficiently to be rated as a goal.

Interspersed with proven veterans and speedy, youthful players, the Port Colborne Sailors are a formidable outfit, but may find the Allan Cup play-downs a bit tougher than they find easier sailing on the Welland Canal next summer. We were very much in favor of Gordon Upper, powerful blonde defenceman of the Sailors, who we believe to be still the splendid playmaker he was when he played with Point Ervard, now starring for Toronto. Bill Arnott, alongside of him, possesses plenty of speed and Ed Bahan, eight Lloyd Fitzgerald, No. 14 to be exact, is a smooth-working centre ice, while Doug. Rumkens failed to impress us as the big-game player we star. The Sailors have the natural ability and knowledge of how to do at the right time, and after all, that's just the difference between a good hockey team and a great one. Port Colborne Arena has a small ice surface, much smaller than the Point Ervard, we understand, but which rather favors the Sailors in that which reminds us that artificial ice last night would have made a better game for Babe Ruth.

Bill Brownlee, who tended goal for the Sailors last night is one of the best goalies in the Flyers. Bill having thwarted the "Allies" many times in former years on occasions. "That man Brownlee always had Indian blood in him," Lou Marsh said when he played against a Flier team," remarked one of the scribes last night. "Lou may be true, but Brownlee gave a better show of Indian blood as an art of beating set pucks last night.

On Saturday night last the Deacon A. C caged a basketball game to the Simpson-Sheppard junior hoopster champions of Canada by the close score of 25 to 24. Bert Corbeau will reforms us the Deacons won the game by the clever basketball work the manipulation of the "galop-ing-major" Bert Corbeau. Hail from the "city of the good" went home talking to themselves, but they'll be back again for a return game. The return BASKETBALL game will be played in Toronto next Saturday.

The next six weeks will see considerable interest being put forth in the organizing of baseball and softball leagues in Belleville, district and district. With senior baseball all but buried, George Lee seems to be the first to get things under way, however. It seems the main trouble with junior baseball is the organizing of an adequate grouping of teams each.

In order to provide the much-needed league competition throughout the year, which has been the downfall of local junior clubs for some years past in Belleville,

One week from next Sunday, or next Monday to be exact, is the final day for "ioginl" baseball players to get their names in order, as the case may be. For instance, Cliff "Pop" Bennett, who broke into the C.O.H.L. ranks in no small manner with the Belleville seniors in 1936, took up residence in Napanee yesterday and immediately signed with the Napanee A. C. in th C.O.B.L. next season. Bennett is the only Belleville player to be added to the Wait Gray-Tommy Twomey Pointer being the, initial one, followed by Art Beatrell, Wilbur Ellis and Bill Gilmour. Dean Furel was added to Ernie Mitchell's roster last week and Bennett forsaking the Quinte City ranks, may add Ellis to Napanee's ensemble. BASEBALL. It is a fine state of affairs when Belleville is left behind and with the proud record on the diamond that it has held up for its tents of baseball and boy scouts while about it Trenton, Napanee, Picton and Brighton are all city has been proven to the highest degree in the recent following of the "Pirates" in Belleville. CHIPS from the SPORT BLOCK

By George M. Carver.

The battle flags flew high on the Fort Colborne hockey flagship last evening..... Four broadsides the quick firing nautical hockeyists fired at all the staggering Flyer citadel as the red jerseyed speedsters from the town with only half a main street, unscathed a burst of finished shining in a hectic third period which sent the Flyers down to their first defeat in the Allan Cup elimination series.....

O—O—O

The battle had all the trimmings that appeals to the average hockey fan..... And three thousand excited humans cheered and jeered as the squads let go with everything they had in their respective bags of hockey tricks..... There was no quarter asked nor any given on the part of both teams..... At times the lads bit each other with everything but the rafters and the goalposts..... The seasoned veterans of the Ports, Wade, Fitzgerald, and the perennial "Goozy" McGowan, exHamilton Tiger, interlarded bursts of speed at times, that had the excitement reaching for the hysmidal.....

O—O—O

The Ports iced a smooth working team, which had loads of speed, plenty of hockey brain, finish around the nets, and what it takes when the going gets rough, plus the ability to take it..... And to hand it out.... The prize boner of the evening occurred, when Fitzgerald with a deft movement of his skate lowered Lalonde gently but firmly to the wee ice-surface..... But Fitz made the mistake of pulling the trick squarely beneath the nose of one Mike Rodden, who is the big wife for the boys during the celebration.....

O—O—O

Senor Miguel, whose hair gets whiter with every game, refereed a game well in hand at all times..... In the first period Mike bolster more thinks than he does Flyer hikers on a public holiday..... He called the game close to the vest by feel, and although the crowd resented at times some of the whistleblowing, the Blue and White were the least perturbed..... The seasoned veteran of many a hectic hockey battle still knows what to do..... He backs up from no one and stands for no arguments.....

O—O—O

In all fairness to the Flyers it must be said, that Dame Fortune or Lady Luck deserted them on occasions, when a little more of the horseshoe psychology would have resulted in goals..... On two or three occasions the Ports net looked as big as the end of the rink..... Flyers streaked all around it, but the rubber rolled everywhere but over that thin blue line..... Flyer speedsters dashed in on the goalies with no one but the goalie to beat, but the shot rolled right off and was smothered under a flying cloud of sticks, pads and padding.....

O—O—O

Fans roared their disapproval, when Rodden swarded a goal which to the unsighted eye of spectators appeared to hit the post and bounce out..... Rodden there are no goals as if the rubber had struck the lower bar a few inches inside the post, then bounced..... A crowd of Campbellford fans came down to cheer the home boys, two of the hometown boys with the Force to victory..... They apparently know their Senior "B" hockey. Doug-las, at times unleashing the old speed, did not produce the brand of hockey which the Flyer sports writers credited him a year ago.....

O—O—O

Chips..... The lady fan, who perched in Rolling Landslide Row. Her howls of dismay, when Red Reynolds unceremoniously stepped into her favorite Flyer..... Her yells of glee, when Red charged Lalonde placing him in a sitting position, and flying through the air with the greatest of ease, himself.. "Red" calls, and he's there with it were..... The rinkwide pases of the Port front line, which culminated in their first two goals..... The hush of disappointment, which fell over the crowd as the winners skimmed home two quick markers in the final stanza..... The fine efforts of the Flyer twins..... And the never-give-up spirit, which featured their desperate third period attempts to pull the game out of the fire..... The next game will be played on Thursday in the home harbor of the Ballots..... And a fighting Flyer crew with their backs to the wall will give all they have got to put the series on a fifty-fifty basis.....

TWEED ADVANCES TO FINAL ROUND IN COUNTY LOOP

Defeat Madoc at Home by 10-6 Count, Take Round Easily

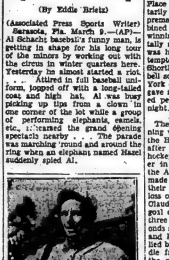
Madoc, Mar. 9 (Special)— For the first time in five years Madoc will not be in the finals of the Central Hastings League as the result of a 10-6 pounding in its[illegible] and game of the home and[illegible] series at the Madoc Arena on Monday night. Tweed taking the round by the score of 13-9. Over 800 fans from all over the surrounding country jammed the rink to witness the fastest game pf hockey seen here in some years. Down goal after the first game in Tweed, the visitors put on the pressure as soon as the play commenced.

Madoc seemed lost at the speed of the Tweed team and within ten minutes were down three goals. The visitors were then forced back to their own end and as the result of a trip Madoc was awarded a penalty shot. Emmery taking the shot, sank one home so quickly the goalie was completely fooled. The homesters continued and soon had another. Then they went to pieces and Tweed ran in four quick goals to make the period score 7-2.

While Nickle was given very poor protection by the defence and the forwards were not back checking, yet he was away off his usual game and some were scored that on his past performances might not have been. In the second go, Madoc held their own and each team ran in three, making the score 10-3. The last frame saw Madoc presently hard but phenomenal work by Thompson kept them to one counter. Whytock missed about three chances to score and both Caverly and Akey should have bolged the twine. Pve Tweed Thompson in the nets was outstanding as he made several miraculous saves. He was aided by the star of the game, Tunmon and Moffatt-Joe also turned in stellar games. Emmery played a good game for Madoc and he scored twice on his penalty shot. Don Whytock was back on defence having been out of the game for over a month. "Bouncer" Holway of Belleville refereed an excellent game and handed out six penalties, two going to Tweed and two to Madoc.

Tweed—Goal, Thompson; defence, Tip Tunmon and Jack Tunmon; centre, Long; wings, McGuire and Counsyls; subs, A. Leal; Pressey, F. Leal and G. Gerald.

Madoc—Goal, Nickle; defence, Whytock and Emmery; centre, Smith; wings, Akey and Alexander; subs, Keshar, Cherry; Wellman, Hallstone and Wert.



Sports Roundup

(By Eddie Brietz)

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Sarasota, Fla., March 9.—(AP)—Al Simmons, veteran outfielder, is getting in shape for his long tour of the minors by working out with the circus in winter quarters here. Yesterday he almost started a riot.

Attired in full baseball uniform, lopped off with a long-tailed coat, and high hat, Al was busy picking up tips from a clown in one corner of the lot while a group of performing elephants, eamels, [illegible] trained the grand opening spectacle nearby ..... The parade was marching 'round and around the ring when an elephant named Hazel suddenly spied Al.

ALL-ROUND PLAYER

Dominick J. Ryba is listed as a pitcher with the St. Louis Cardinals, but this versatile young man has been known to catch, pitch, play in the infield and in the outfield—all in the same game. He is shown here at the Card's training camp at Daytona Beach, Fla., with some of the equipment he'll need if he decides to repeat the stunt.

CARRYING PLACE AND 'PAPERMEN' ARE VICTORIOUS

Hinde And Dauch Easily Win Over R. C. A. F., Brighton Loses

Trenton, March 9. —(Special)— Two well matched teams met for the second time in the play-downs of the Trenton hockey league when Carrying Place and Brighton clashed in the first contest of the evening last night. A good crowd was on hand despite the main attraction on at Belleville between the R.C.A.F., and Port Colborne. The fans saw a steady skating team overcome a two goal lead in the final period and emerge victorious with a 4 to 3 victory. Carrying Place looked a little the best in the first period and the line of Davis Miller and Johnson featured a short passing play that had their rivals guessing. Vince Utronki, a veteran of many hockey wars was displaying real form for the visitors in the goal and gave Bowen plenty of trouble in the Carrying Place nets. After seventeen minutes of real hard hockey Johnson took a neat pass from Anderson, close in on Bolderstone to put Carrying Place on the score sheet. The canto ended with Skating of Brighton being sent to the cooler for one minute. The second frame opened with a bang. Brighton criticized, collaked and outscored their rivals in this hectic session. After one minute of play Bush scored on Bowen from the side, with a shot that fairly caught the right hand corner. Immediately Thompson marshalled one by Bowen on a pass from Mr. Lambert. A. Lambert was waved to the penalty box for roughing and Carrying Place launched a ganging attack that got no-place.

Utronki, of Brighton, counted one of the prettiest goals of the evening on a solo effort pulling Bowen out of the nets and netting the rubber-securely in the twine behind him. A free-for-all stopped the fireworks for two minutes. The third started when a spectator knocked off A. Lambert's hat while he was skating alongside the boards. Lambert jumped over the boards to hail the affray and found he had his hands full until help arrived. When play resumed Davis and Mr. Lambert were penalized for roughing. The stanza ended with both aggregations a man short, and Brighton leading Carrying Place 3-1. Mckinnon went to the penalty box in the first of the final twenty minutes and while Brighton were shorthanded Carrying Place supplied the pressure. Davis wiggled through alone to backhand a goal by Bolderstone. Davis took a trip to the cooler for a short time and on coming on the ice made a spectacular rush that resulted in Miller lifting the lone disc into the net; tying the score. Carrying Place supporters went wild moments later when Davis, on a solo expedition, Anderson and Johnson combined to register Carrying Place's winning mark. Miller threatened to rally again and goalie Bolderstone was his only stop when he attempted to stop the flying puck. Brighton will be here next week to bell sounded to conclude the game. York on the Carrying Place defence gave a fine performance and worked perfectly with his wingmen, all night.

Hinde and Dauch Win

The second exhibition of the evening was a hard fought affair with the Hinde and Dauch winning 4-1 after sixty minutes. of clean fast hockey. The papermen were strongest in every department but that the Airmen lacked in strength they made up with steadiness although their ranks were weakened by the loss of several outstanding men. Claude Rattan garnered his first goal of the night on a lone rush three minutes and fifty-five seconds after the period opened. Hinde and Dauch's second point was tallied by Carman Ruttan in the middle frame and Lott registered for the papermen from a scramble. Naish's net guarding was spectacular and saved the Airmen a worse defeat. Hewson, sturdy Airforce defenceman sent Hood and Bowen of the papermen squad heavily to ice as the canto ended. Claude Rattan collected his second goal on a solo effort, shortly after the final session commenced. Trepanier and Coughlin of the R. C. A. F., were brilliant and kept Skenburg in Dauchmen goal busy. Finally Coughlin's efforts were rewarded when he drove a perfect drive into the frame. Derry and Claude Rattan of Hinde and Dauch, were the only players to spend time in the penalty box, during the game.

Teams were—Carrying Place—goal, W. Bowen; defence, York, Anderson; centre, Davis; wings, Miller, Johnson, alternates—Vanderveort, Drake, Brighton —goal, Bolderstone; defence, A. Lambert, Utronki; centre, Thompson; wings, Bush, N. Lambert; alternates, Mckinnon, Keating, Curbeck, Chase, Rundell.

Hinde and Dauch, —goal, Steenburg; defence, G. Bowen, Claude Ruttan; centre, Lott; wings —Derry, Carmen Ruttan; alternates, Hood, Pittman, Wells. R.C.F. —goal, Naish; defence, Hewson, Gauthier; centre, Trepanier; wings, Moore, Coughlin, alternates, Tarsdia. Referees Walter Bowen and W. O'Malley.

MORENZ STARRED FOR CANADIENS IN MANY YEARS

Played His First And Last N.H.L. Game With Aurel Joliat

BRILLIANT PLAYER

Gave His Best at All Times And Adored by Younger Fans of Dominion

Montreal, March 9 (CP)—When Howie Morenz played his first game of big league hockey for Montreal Canadiens in the fall of 1923 the little black-eyed figure of Aurel Joliat sped along beside him left wing.

When the masterly Morenz played his last game of hockey in Montreal, Jan. 26 the same diminutive Joliat, in his 15th National League season, starred on the same line, completing their unique hockey partnership.

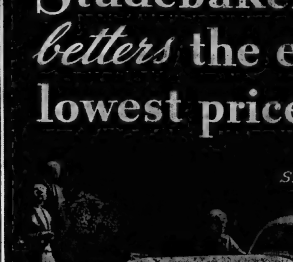
Now Joliat is the only active player of the team that once so often formed the four teams in the N.H.L. into a three-cornered affair. Joliat was a veteran of a season's campaigning when Howie Morenz joined him. Morenz and Billy Boucher into a line, that paraded Canadiens' colors together in their first season together.

Those were the days of nine or 10 man teams and a four-club league —Canadiens, Ottawa Senators, Toronto St. Patrick's and Hamilton Tigers. Sadder Morenz, Joliat and Boucher then were a dozen others in the league, that season whose names will never be forgotten among hockey men.

Venina a Real Pal

George Vezina, one of the greatest netminders of all time, would have won the goalkeeping trophy, that year if there had been a trophy as there is now for goalkeeping. the Chicoutimi cucumber's memory, only 46 goals got by Vezina in 24 French-Canadian in 24 games.

Vezina, Canadian defence before him were Sprague Cleghorn and Georges Vezina, Odie Cleghorn dyed Mantha, Matz and Headley were others on the Habitant club which finished second in the league, then beat Ottawa in the playoff and took the Stanley Cup in series with Vancouver and Calgary at Montreal. Mantha is still active in the sense, trying a comeback with Boston Bruins. But the others are all gone from the game playing scene —Vezina dead like Morenz, Jack Darragh, the gallant Ottawa flying winger, and Goldie Prodgers who played with Jamaica.



A Great Team

The team that captured Ottawa to first place in the regular schedule was a great one. Clint Benedict was the goal and Georges Vezina, Boucher and Lionel Hitchman formed the defence. Up forward they had Cy Denneny—the league's leading scorer with 22 goals—Punch Broadbent, Frank Nelghbor, Darragh, Spiff Campbell and Harry Helman.

Babe Dye, now an N.H.L. referee, played for St. Patrick's with Jack Adams, Manager of Detroit Red Wings, Reg Noble, Bert Corbeau, Red Stuart Ty Arbour and Tom Holway. Hamilton had Billy Burch, Red and Shorty Green, Ken Randall, Mickey Roach, Ed. Bouchard and Jess Spring.

BRAWN AND EXPERIENCE TO FAVOR OXFORD CREW IN HISTORIC BOAT RACE WITH CAMBRIDGE

The dark blue crew of Oxford university are training hard for their historic race with Cambridge to be rowed on March 24. With brawn and experience in the favor they hope to stem the great winning streak set by Cambridge for so many years. The dark blues are seen here as they pull hard on their oars during a practice run on the river Isis. Canada lost an excellent opportunity to be represented in this race when the diminutive cox, Hart Massey, son of the high commissioner, Hon. Vincent Massey, and formerly a student at Upper Canada College, was replaced by G. J. P. Merrifield. The Ottawa finished the schedule with 32 points to Canadiens' 26 but in the two-game total-goal play-off for the league title Canadiens won out 5-3 on the round. Then they played Vancouver and Calgary defeating the coast league champions 5-3 in two games and the Prairie 8 champs 5-1 on the round.

Morenz scored 13 goals and 3 assists in the 24 league games that season, giving the first indication of the hockey greatness that was to be his later.

Hazel has been with the circus 33 years and is old enough to know better. She has seen some strange sights around the Big Top, apparently nothing quite like Schaich.

She broke from the line, hurdled the edge of the improvised ring and headed for the barn with five keepers in hot pursuit. They finally headed her down with hobbles and chains and tried to coax her back in line, but it was no good until Al Ringling lured the wild animal house to finish his act with lions, tigers and leopards (all securely caged) as an audience.

MARKET COMMENT

The local market was a buoyant affair on the morning yesterday with a number of strong spots scattered throughout the list. Consolidated Smelters was out of the outstanding feature, moving up to within striking distance of 100, or the equivalent of 500 for the old stock.

"The rise in Consolidated Smelters is well warranted. The company's earnings have increased very appreciably as a result of the appreciable advance in lead and zinc prices, and like the copper price for gold, "Smelters" it is understood is working at full capacity to cope with the demand.

It is interesting to point out that the low for lead was 1.8 cents a pound to which compared with 5.1 cents a pound in 1929 and the present figure of 7.5 cents. Similarly the low for zinc in 1932 was 2.1 cents as against 5.6 cents at the end of 1929 and 7.5 cents a pound at the present time. Consolidated Smelters earnings at the present time are placed in the neighborhood of $7.00 a share or $35.00 on the old stock—the highest in the company's history.

Dominion Gold Output

During the month of February production was $70,045 from 2,288 tons, an average of $31.30 per ton. This compares with $75,250 in January from 3,391 tons, an average of $22.39 per ton.

Utilities

While utilities are showing nothing constructive on the tape, everything considered they are remarkable than in some time. Obviously, power shortage is a well-intentioned, strengthening technical position, and, despite the known handicap of inferiority of its political situation, are selling on a reasonable price-to-earnings ratio.

On The Street

A report is in circulation to the effect that the Ventures Limited will hold a good-sized block of International Petroleum to a well-known Canadian investment house. The fact that the Asbestos Corp. recently changed its name to Mcdill Leaf Mill is concrete evidence the company is getting out of the timber that increased business.... Proposed refunding of Canada Northern's preferred will effect a saving equivalent to 20 cents a share on the common stock.

Cleveland, Mar. 9 (AP)—World demand for scrap iron is draining the automobile graveyards of discarded engines, railroad car wheels and metal pulpits from United States junk yards and sending prices up and up, Joseph F. Frogatt, editor of Daily Metal Trade, said today.

"The scrap iron and steel situation is bolder than a poker," he said. "It's so scarce that you can hardly get it. It is the most valuable scrap iron fall is waging the dog."

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, March 9—(CP)— The western oil gulls got a terrific shake down in the early session and the low prices showing at mid-day were the lowest since 1935. Some of the junior mining list a moderate rally. Base Metals was the most interesting sector and the golds about balanced losses and gains.

Oakes Ex. Calgary-Edmonton dropped 40 to 50 cents each in the early trade about half the loss has been recovered in active afternoon buying. Dalhousie, Calmont, Footballs, Home Yellow and the senior issues made corresponding recoveries.

In the golds Pickle Crow stood out on the down side, sagging to 7.15 and Lake Shore, Kirkland, O'Brien, Red Lake Gold Shore and Pioneer were heavy.

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS

Toronto, March 9—(CP)—Sugarish and lower at mid-day, the industrial listings displayed an irregular trading in the early afternoon with the oils, metals and steels getting attention. Consolidated Smelters had a two point advance and the market for international Nickel was steady.

The Canadian Car and Foundry issue was active and more than a point up each and Pen-Rexberry and Steel of Canada did better. Supplement stocks were dragging. Walkers common was a strong spot in the liquor group and C.P.R. and B.A. and Canadian lost some ground.

WALL STREET

New York, March 9—(AP)— Despite chilling effects of growing strikes throughout the United States, buyers seemed to selected stocks in today's market.

Steels, mines, oils, rails and specialties pushed up fractions to 2 points.

Commodities Stores, Dome Mines and McIntyre gained small fractions among Canadian shares, while Sirrus Mercer, International Nickel and Distillers Corp.-Seagrams were a shade down. Canadian Pacific ruled even. On the curb, Lake Shore yielded a trifle. Mercantile funds were unchanged at par.

Convertible bonds improved. Cotton futures jumped more than $1 a bale. Grains did better. The French franc was supported in foreign exchange transactions.

Shares of Stee-Sheffield ran up 2 points at last, to top its 13-point leap yesterday, and the high priced Homestead mining gained as much. Advances of 4 or so were recorded for Howe Sound, Union Pacific, American Can, Deere and Allied Chemical.

AMUSEMENT TAX TO BE ABOLISHED

"Nuisance Taxes Should be Abolished Wherever Possible"

Toronto, March 9 (CP)—Tax-free Amusements, not Ontario, is Ontario since Great War days, will soon become a reality, Premier Hepburn announced today in his Budget speech. Theatre admission taxes and lowered by various governments since its inception, will be abolished.

Theatre patrons paid the great bulk of the $1,200,000 in taxes the province will collect this fiscal year, Mr. Hepburn said. Theatre fans and dance patrons have paid their share. Parties where euchre, bridge and dances are held in halls where proceeds did not go to charity, also have been subject to the tax.

The abolition of this tax will be of immense benefit to the citizens of the power economic crisis has cause next to per cent of the amusement tax is collected from 25 cents admissions, the Premier pointed out. Then, Mr. Hepburn told the House.

"Nuisance taxes are a relic of the past and should be discarded wherever possible."

This tax will be the first to go out in an enviable position in competing with other provinces for new industries ing such an important factor in our economic life.

"During the last three years, amusement tax receipts have been increased by 50 per cent, and the increase in amusement tax tickets held "for relief purposes" pointed out Premier Hepburn.

He also announced a reduction in the rate of interest on the province's debt from 4 per cent to 3½ per cent. This will save $1,000,000 annually.

EARTH TREMORS FELT IN ONTARIO

Sleeping Citizens of Woodstock Aroused by Distinct Shocks

(By the Canadian Press)

Earth tremors which struck parts of the United States reached into Ontario early today. The tremors, only slightly felt, were reported at Woodstock, St. Thomas, London, Dundas, Kitchener, Windsor and Chatham.

The tremors were felt about 12:45 a.m. in the six Ontario cities. St. Thomas reported the heavier jolting distinct.

Rocking buildings awakened residents in cities near Detroit while in Indianapolis the disturbance lasted about 10 seconds. Shocks were felt at Lexington, Ky., and Louisville and faintly in the Chicago area. It was the second shock felt in the mid-western states in the last week.

Woodstock Disturbed

Two distinct earth tremors disturbed sleeping Woodstock citizens and alarmed those who had not already retired for the night. The shocks were not heavy enough to cause any reported damage.

Minor earth tremors were felt in many western Ontario points and parts of Michigan, according to reports reaching Windsor.

A resident of the western section of Windsor reported beds in his home trembled. A desk he was working at shook. He said the quakes were only slight, but distinctly felt. Detroit and suburbs also felt the tremors.

Chatham residents said the shock was felt most in a telephone building. Telephone operators reports said the tremors were felt but slightly.

Two perceptible earth tremors were felt at Kitchener.

'HAM AND EGGS' ADDRESS THEME

Mr. J. Bone Speaks at Y's Men's Club Meeting

Y's Men's Club

"And so" said Mr. Allison Bone, addressing the Y's Men's Club at their weekly supper, "I choose for my topic this evening 'Ham and Eggs.'"

"Ham and Eggs" is a very common dish, continued Mr. Bone, "and so I am going to ask my topic to bring out what I am trying to get at. Now, apparently young men and in your struggle for a future you must get a start in life and let it go, so as not to become an ordinary Ham-and-Egger and let it go at that. Don't stay in the easier way."

Mr. Bone firmly convinced that a young man should not let anything stand in his way to conclude to write to the newspaper expounding your ideas and giving the political forces and giving your suggestions on their doings and their bills. We have the privilege to give our true legislation unless this is done, and we have no one to blame but ourselves. God is in ourselves and part of ourselves. Let us thankful we should pay a great deal of attention to Him, and He will lead us. We have not the thought of love for our fellow men. Though we may be natural enemies and such things but we all should strive to greater relationship. We should strive to have this greater love for our fellows and in so doing we shall find that what we will become better men both physically and mentally and we will not be just Ham-and-Eggers."

Gordon Moffat expressed the thanks of the club to Mr. Bone for his interesting address. Votes of thanks, while Lorne MacDougall introduced the speaker, were also given.

President Jack Wilson announced that the dance which was to be given by the Y's Men. They are as follows: Mr., Jack Carter, 1st prize; Mrs. Jack Carter, 2nd prize; Mr. and Mr. Alfred Dudley, 3rd prize.

Mr. Wilson announced the forthcoming hard, give something for the benefit of the Boy Scouts. Mr. Wilson announced several more dances and have viewed numerous floor shows and is certain that something of the sort will be given soon.

Sergt.-at arms Geo. Pauley, song leader Dawson Boyd, Fred Johnson, Lorne Belleville were appointed to carry out the duties of his own selection.

PENSIONS OFF APRIL 1ST

Toronto, March 9 (CP)—Municipalities will be relieved from contributing to cost of Old Age Pensions, Premier Hepburn announced today. Beginning April 1—not last Jan. 1, as previously announced—Premier Hepburn said today in his Budget speech. Province will pay pensions.

Mr. Hepburn said it was hoped the Province was without Legislative authority to make payments for January, February and March and that municipalities would contribute. Agreement could not come into effect before April 1.

$12,767,250 HIGHWAY OUTLAY

Toronto, March 9—(CP)—Ontario budgetted for $12,767,250.00 capital expenditures on Highways in the fiscal year beginning April 1 in the estimates tabled today by Premier Hepburn. Construction work on main highways will take $2,580,000 of the amount and another $2,580,000 will be spent on secondary trunk roads and unorganized territory roads. This latter sum will largely go to the mining areas of Northern Ontario.

EDUCATION AT ARMAMENT

Handicaps of Life Removed by Education

"What am I? What did I come from? Whither am I going?" were three interesting steps up which Belleville Rotarians were led Monday at the weekly meeting to a consideration of the value and purpose of education. The speaker was P. G. MacLaurin, Principal of Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School. Life in its various phases was described by the speaker in his very interesting manner and the bearing of education on life for good. True education removes the handicaps of life imposed by birth or environment and is the gateway to a better more useful life in every respect. Cost of education does not matter, for whether we like it or not the cost is there, if not spent on education it will be spent on armament.

History illuminates what happens when the masses are kept from education and the money otherwise expended upon education the less enlightened are to be expended upon armament.

Teachers should strive to understand the viewpoint of youth and harmonize their approach with that of his best to others. Education levels the handicaps of life and opens the door to opportunity by many who would otherwise be slaves of an industrial environment. There should be no poor people, said the speaker, nor any lack of education, if we fulfill its true mission as expounded in the gospel of give and take.

Mr. MacLaurin's address was very interesting although possibly evoking and Rotary appreciation was voiced by Fred Deacon and President Joe Shortt. J. A. McPee introduced the speaker.

SUBSIDY

ing fiscal year, there will be paid, by way of grant to every city, town, village and township of the province, a sum equivalent to one mill on the dollar of the equalized assessment. Rateable assessments for general municipal purposes. Such grants are made unconditional in the original intention and with the intent they shall be expended for the taxpayers of every community by a reduction of the mill in the rate levied upon rateable tax rate, or, where from unavoidable cause such reduction is not decided, then by the payment of a cash sum increase in the general tax rate equivalent to the grant, would have become requisite.

Benefit All Citizens

"By means of these grants to municipalities the government believes that it can benefit all citizens—the municipalities, the ratepayers, and through them, other taxpayers.

"Whether a continuance of such grants will be made as will be possible in future years is a matter which will be considered and passed upon the findings and recommendations of the Rowell Commission which is to be appointed by the present government shortly which it is expected will conduct an inquiry into the whole system of taxation with a view to a more equitable thorough revision on an economic basis and to report to the government with full regard to the tax paying capacity of the various forms of wealth to taxes properly collectible by the Dominion by the province and by the municipality.

$3,000,000 Amount

"The estimated cost of this subsidy has been included in the estimates for the current fiscal year, and it is expected it will amount, in round figures, to the sum of three million dollars.

"The government agree the crowning feature in passing on the fruits of a balanced budget and an increased revenue is a direct subsidy that will be paid as the rate of one mill on the dollar to every municipality in Ontario."

COMPULSORY VOTING IS TURNED DOWN

Ottawa March 9.— (CP)—Compulsory voting and manner of conducting elections were unanimously voted down by the House of Commons committee on the elections and franchise act.

Vote was taken without discussion additional to that at the committee's meeting when the bill was studied.

It was felt that the compulsory feature was not acceptable to the Canadian climate, that the increased cost of the proposal unwieldy, complicated by the comparatively small increase in votes polled in countries where it is now in operation.

The "grait" made between some provinces in the payment of printers, in the printing of voters' lists, and the failure to set up a definite tariff of fees set under the election act, Jules Castongeay, chief, electoral officer advised.

DAILY SHORT STORY

The Flowers Made from Waste

By Leete Stone

There were five children in the family younger than Amarita. Toni and Luigi sold newspapers; Rosa, eighteen, was shipping clerk for an importer, and, counting his every time, earned a fair wage. That left Angelina and the bambino.

Angelina's bead had been crooked since her fall from the fire escape. She couldn't play with the other children.

Amarita was stilled in the art of taking bits of pink cambric green muslin, and dahlias wire and from them fashioning a beautiful rose. Her earnings were good, like Nitsky; but then there are six mouths, not counting a mother's, it calls for calculation to keep the cupboard well stocked with macaroni and milk for the bambino; not to mention rent and clothes. But then Amarita was a clever calculator.

When hot weather came, Amarita of the flower factory knew that pale Angelina needed fresh air and green country. But there seemed no way to manage it. The doctor's bills for the days Angelina's back hurt were usually high.

As a very substitute for fields of clover Amarita decided to bring her small crippled sister some factory flowers to look at.

The problem lay in collecting enough waste bits of material from the factory floor, and from the big workers' girls spoiled pieces and cuttings were thrown, to make Angelina's flowers. So Amarita went earlier every morning to the factory and stayed later because she couldn't take them during pay hours to work on her surprise for Angelina.

Amarita had to be very careful that Cesare, the handsome young foreman with the flashing black eyes, did not see her salvaging her scraps. He might not understand. Shy Zoe Ann Sapling whenever Cesare looked at her because his eyes seemed to say beautiful things.

Snatched moments here and there finally bore fruit in a marvelous lily, a wreath of mealaguard flowers that grew fantastically under Amarita's artful touch.

Sedulously Amarita took pains to hide the wreath from Cesare's dark eyes. Giulia worked at her table, had quarreled with her brother Nikola and was all bitterness and Sicilian hate. And Giulia had seen Cesare look at Amarita with his soul in his eyes.

At last the wreath was finished and needed only an inch of wire to fasten its ends securely. Amarita was so intent on accomplishing this last touch that she didn't see Cesare the foreman stride quickly to her table in answer to the beckoning hand of Giulia, she of the wicked tongue.

Giulia's dark head bent close to Cesare with a whisper.

"She steals materials," she nodded toward Amarita who had just tied the wire which welded the wreath, and slipped the token in the pocket of her apron. "Ask her to show you what is in her pocket," the jealous girl added.

Cesare's face grew dark. Stock pilfering was a serious offense.

"What have you in your pocket?" he said, stepping behind Amarita's chair.

"It—it's nothing," she gasped, "only something I—that is—I've made it all outside." Circular hours made it of waste clippings and odd goods. A little wreath—not really flowers—just a toy for my little sister. She's sick. She's never never seen real flowers growing. Truly—I made it all in spare. . . ." Amarita winked back the tears. Giulia must not see her cry.

"Let me see it!" Cesare's voice was soft now, and in his eyes dwelt understanding.

He looked long at the little wreath of riotous colors. Some girls in the shop littered; still Cesare regarded the wreath quizzically as he lay it on his palm.

"You did this all yourself? Out of waste materials?"

"Every bit of it. I know it's foolish —not the flowers that grow; but Angelina won't know the difference."

"Go on working," said Cesare, "and I will return with Miss Lane."

Cesare stepped out of the shop and into the private office of the owner of the factory. He laid the strange looking wreath on the top of the mahogany desk, under the eyes of the stern chief who sat there.

"What do you think of that, sir?" "Hmm! Modernistic! Queer but attractive!" Then, more enthusiastically, "by Jove, it'll sell! believe it's a hit for this season's hats. Where did you get it? Who designed it?"

Cesare smiled. He told the tale of Amarita—of a surreptitious task of love done with bits of waste.

"Waste!" cried the chief. "Where's that girl? Raise her wage at once and have her teach the others how to make these. We've got the novelty of the season! Get busy!"

That night as Amarita neared the factory corner on her way home Cesare, who had been waiting, stepped forth with all the savoire-faire of a Latin cavalier and tendered her arm. Waiting he spoke to Amarita of the dreams that lived in his eyes when he looked at her.

Soon there was a wedding. Angelina went to the country and looked at real flowers that grew and played in sunny fields of clover.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma lost her pocketbook again today, being the 2nd one she lost lately, and pop was mad as anything, sayins. Yes gods, how is it possible? One time, yes, anything mite happen to anybody once, although I've pursued the evening tenor of my way for nearly 48 years now without once having lost my pocketbook, in fact without even finding it necessary to carry one, teh twice, yes gods twice in a couple of months, well all I can say is to repeat what I said before, how is it possible? he said.

If it hadn't been possible I wouldn't of done it, so set your mind at rest on that score, ma said. Yes mam think you've perfectly wonderful and marvelous besides you dont lose as many things as we women, but there's a perfectly natural explanation for it only naturally you haven't half the common sense to see it, she said, and pop said, I'll be very much surprised if this discussion doesn't end up by proving that I'm the one that lost the pocketbook.

Wal at all, that's just my point, ma said. There's no reason why a man should ever lose a pocketbook or anything else, you're automatically protected against such things through no credit of your own, but women are different. It's a perpetual wonder to me why we don't lose more than we do she said, and pop said, We're automatically protected because we have a little natural concentration, in other words we keep our wits about us, I suppose that's what you're implying.

Nothing so flattering, dont have any false delusions, ma said, and pop said, Then in Pete's name what is the confounded misterious reason that men come home with all their possessions while women come home flustered and minus?

Because you live pockets and we dont, ma said.

Being a good sport.

VISITS ROOSEVELT

Prime Minister William Lyon Mackenzie King is shown ABOVE on the steps of the White House at Washington, where he was the overnight guest of President Roosevelt. It is understood Mr. King will take the president's views to London next May when the Imperial conference convenes.

TANKER HOOKS AFTER COLLISION WITH COBAN LIN ER; 80 RESCUED

Outbound from San Francisco to the Orient, the passenger laden liner President Coolidge collided with the tanker Frank Buck in a fog, crop far off the Golden Gate. The tanker took a sharp list and the crew of 40, uninjured by the crash, were rescued and taken aboard the liner. A lifeboat packed with the refugees is pictured (top RIGHT) pulling alongside the Coolidge. The tanker is shown BELOW, decks awash, as it vanished in the fog. Coastguards reported it would go to the bottom. The bow of the President Coolidge was so badly crushed as shown top LEFT, that the liner returned to port. No passengers were hurt.

MAKES TURN ABOUT

This is not the famous statue of Liberty that stands in New York harbor, but a copy in Paris. Here workmen are shown busy at the task of making the statue face the other way, due to the Paris exposition, which is to open in May. JAILED FOR PLOTTING AGAINST SOVIET GOVERNMENT

Alexie Rykoff

Nikolai Bykharin

Here are two more once prominent Bolsheviks who face "liquidation" as Dictator Josef Stalin's purge of dissident elements advances another step. On the LEFT is former Soviet Premier Alexie Rykoff. On the RIGHT, Nikolai Bykharin, former editor of the government newspaper Isvestia. Expulsion from the Communist party recently ended their political lives, and these veteran Bolsheviks who helped Lenin lead the revolution of 1917 are now in prison awaiting trial for their lives for allegedly conspiring to overthrow the Stalin regime.

MOVIE ACTOR DISAPPEARS FROM BEAUTY WINNER'S CABIN

Frank Vosper, British actor and playwright who disappeared from the liner Paris during a farewell party in the cabin of pretty Muriel Oxford, "Miss Great Britain" last year, jumped overboard in a fit of jealousy, according to Ernest Hemingway, famous author and former Toronto newspaperman now on his way to Spain. Hemingway was a member of the party held the last night of the ocean voyage. Peter Willes, room-mate of the actor, confirmed the newspaperman's contention the actor went out a cabin window but thought the window had been mistaken for one leading to a companionway. Above are recent photographs of Miss Muriel Oxford and Frank Vosper. Waterlogs being kept along the southeast shore of England in hopes that the body will be washed ashore.

FRENCH STEAMER REPORTED BOMBED BY PLANE

Coastal Ship Escapes With Very Slight Damage Off Coast of Spain

Attack Reported About 110 Miles ; at Sea.

NO PASSENGERS ABOARD

Report is Wirelessed to Marseille by Djbel Antar.

Marseille, France, Mar. 10 (AP)—The 3,217-ton French coastwise steamer Djbel Antar reported by wireless she had been bombed by an airplane at 9 a.m. today, about 110 miles at sea off the Balearic Isles.

The vessel which said its position was approximately opposite Barcelona on the eastern coast of Spain, suffered only slight damage. No one was injured, the report said, and there were no passengers aboard.

HOSIERY TRADE DECIDES ON STANDARD STOCKING

Washington, March 10 (AP)—Milady's problem of making her stockings meet her garters appeared today to be headed toward quick oblivion.

Unhung on this vexing issue, the United States Government and the hosiery trade have decided on a uniform standard for future hose.

The decision—to mean the stocking—makers must shape their socks on the extra-short and extra-long legged women. The production of special models will continue.

It does mean that when an average-legged woman just sails for "stockings" she won't come home with a silken affair reaching from socks to hose that resembles stirrups.

The standard was drawn jointly with the Government and the hosiery industry, which decided to take the strain off stocking and garter.

The magic length is 30 inches from the heel end of the foot to garter anchorage.

10,000 BUS MEN OUT

Glasgow, March 10—(AP) — A strike of more than 10,000 bus company employees today tied up highway traffic in virtually every section of Scotland.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen, Science Service Meteorologist

Weather diaries! Much has been learned from them, and more during our early history from diaries and letters. Organized weather records and observations in the United States were not undertaken until the 19th century. Jefferson and Madison, two noted early weather observers, performed a great service for Virginia by keeping parallel weather records for five years from 1773 to 1777. Others at Monticello and Madison at Williamsburg. In England Gilbert White, the famous Selborne parson, recorded his weather for 20 years. He might have been the first to enter the weather conditions each day and describe their effects.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, March 10 (CP)—Pressure is high from the Northwest Territories to southeastward across Manitoba to Lake Superior, and low from the Great Lakes and relatively low over the Gulf of St. Lawrence and Labrador. Fresh to strong west winds and moderate to fresh west over Ontario and Quebec with light snow flurries in many parts. Local rain or snow have also occurred in the Maritime provinces. It is mild in the extreme east over Manitoba and Eastern Ontario, but has become colder in further west.

Lake Superior—Partly cloudy and cold. Thursday partly cloudy with stationary or a little higher temperature; moderate westerly winds.

Manitoba—Partly cloudy and cold. Thursday unsettled and slightly warmer in a little higher temperature.

Saskatchewan and Alberta — Mostly fair and cold. Thursday unsettled and change in temperature.

SPINELESS PUPPETS NOT TO BE APPOINTED-PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT

Washington, March 10—(AP)—President Roosevelt put on record today a blunt declaration that he would not appoint to the United States Supreme Court "spineless puppets" who would decide specific cases as he wished.

"No President fit for his office would appoint to the Senate of honorable men fit for their office would confirm, that kind of appointee to the Supreme Court," he declared last night.

He asserted, however, in his second appeal for enactment of his reorganization program that he would choose Justices "who will act as Justices and not as legislators."

"If that can be called 'packing the court,' he said, 'then I say that I and with me the vast majority of the American people favor doing just that thing—now."

Mr. Roosevelt spoke in a nationwide broadcast on the subject of Senate hearings on his program.

CHILD SUCCUMBS TO BURNS, SMOKE

Windsor Child Burned, Half Suffocated, Taken From Home

Windsor, Ont., March 10—(CP) —Three-year-old Peter, one of two children of Mr. and Mrs. Flory Chubb, burned and partially suffocated when fire broke out in their flat over a store here yesterday, died in hospital today. Hospital attendants said death was due to shock, severe burns about the thighs and hands and dense smoke in which he drew his last breath.

Peter and Billie, four, were rescued in an unconscious condition after being found huddled together in the living room by 17-year-old Dauzlen LaJeunesse, a grocer's delivery boy. Peter is reported to recover although both swallowed great quantities of smoke as I were placed in an oxygen tent on admittance to hospital.

The fire broke out in a small storage room near the kitchen of the flat. Cause undetermined as yet.

Shopping. Fire department inspectors are convinced the blaze started from the matches. Billie also suffered burns but not as serious as her brother.

When LaJeunesse located the two still forms he handed them through a window to E. R. Renaud, a dairy company employee, while the mother ran back by firemen from entering the smoke-filled flat.

GOV'T TAKES INITIATIVE TO OPEN NEGOTIATIONS

OTTAWA, March 10.—(CP)—Apparently anticipating the result of the Railway Unions' wage-restoration strike vote, to be completed March 18, the Dominion Government has already taken the initiative toward reopening negotiations between the railways and railway employees.

At the invitation of the government, S. J. Hungerford, President of the Canadian National Railway, and Edward Beatty, President of the Canadian Pacific Railway, yesterday conferred with Minister of Labor, Hon. Norman Lapointe, Acting Prime Minister, Transport Minister Howe and Labor Minister Rogers.

Invitation has also been forwarded to the joint committee of the 17 Standard Railroad Unions to meet the Government at their earliest convenience. It is fully expected in Government circles this will result in a joint railway conference some day this week.

It had been generally indicated up to the last few days that no move would be made from any direction for a renewal of negotiations between the railways and union until after the result of the strike vote was known.

Government officials took the view that the government would not likely intervene until that time, and then only if neither party made any approach to the other for a further conference.

YIELDING SLOWLY TO REBEL DRIVE ON MADRID FRONT

Insurgent Army Believed to Contain Italian Troops

MANY TANKS USED

Reported General Franco is in Charge of Italians in Spain

Madrid, Mar. 10 (AP)—Reinforced government troops were reported by their commanders to be yielding slowly today to an army of "15,000 Italians and Spaniards" driving southwest towards Madrid through Guadalajara province.

Dispatches from the field dogcredly to their positions along the Aragon highway against terrific insurgent attack, in two days of bloody combat of the new front, were reported withstanding the attacks.

They battled against heavily armored, mechanized infantry using many tanks, supported by artillery and seen in this war—machine guns mounted on the backs of Spanish motorcycles.

Government commanders expressed belief General Francisco Franco, insurgent commander, now had disclosed his strategy in the first phase of a long-expected offensive against the beleaguered capital.

General Jose Miaja, government commander-in-chief, hastily appointed to meet the onslaught on at least three sides of the Madrid and Guadalajara fronts.

Activities In South.

Besides the developing advance through Guadalajara province from the northeast, insurgent forces were active in the Jarama valley front, southeast of Madrid, where they attempted to aid another yesterday after a terrific four-hour bombardment.

On the third side of the besieged city, the government pocketed "nut-cracker" close-in, El Pardo, north of the city, a claim was believed to be the hull before the storm.

No point in the triangle was there any apparent effort to take Madrid by storm, although on one of the defenders have successfully repulsed during the more than four months' siege.

Rome, Mar. 10 (AP)—The General Staff reported in a communique an Italian division of the insurgent army attacking Madrid from the northeast, was identified today as one of the heroes of the conquest of Ethiopia.

Although authorities would not state his present whereabouts, well informed sources believed he was in Spain.

WHEAT POLICY OF GOV'T DEFENDED

W. H. Moore Votes With Opposition on Want of Confidence Motion

Ottawa, March 10 (CP)—William Henry Moore, Liberal member for the constituency of East Ontario, economist and one time chairman of the Canadian Wheat Board, scheduled to speak in the Budget debate today and may tell the House why he voted yesterday in favor of an amendment that if carried would have meant the resignation of the Government he supports.

At the invitation from the solid Liberal opposition to Conservative Leader R. B. Bennett's want of confidence amendment on the Budget, defeated 143 to 97, the highlight of yesterday's sitting of the House. Another feature was the defence of the Government's wheat policy by Agriculture Minister Gardiner when debate opened on the main Budget motion.

Mr. Bennett's amendment regretted that "the Government has taken no effective measures to deal with the serious and unemployment." It was supported by all Conservatives, C.C.F. and Social Credit members and by Mr. Moore. Against it were all the Liberals except Mr. Moore and A. W. Neil (Ind. Conser.-Alberta).

The "boiling" of a party member on a question of policy or opinion might not cause a great sensation in Parliament but the vote of a Government supporter on a motion aimed at the very life of that Government is more rare and Mr. Moore's action in so aligning with considerable interest. He did not speak on the amendment.

Cat O' Nine Tails Industry Still Persists in 'East Side'

Rescue of Old Leather Worker Discloses That "Cat" Making is Still Practiced—Story of "Whip" Man Told

New York, Mar. 10 (AP) — Rescue of a 70-year-old leather worker from death by gas fumes disclosed today that the manufacture of cats-o'-nine-tails—the whips whose history dates back to the earliest days of piracy on the high seas—continues as a small industry on New York's crowded lower east side.

Benjamin Schwartz, who except for the visit of a neighbor woman would have been a victim of gas from his own unlighted stove, makes the whips and sells them to hawkers who peddle them to truckers and husbands of the crowded tenement section.

Originally a Rumanian cobbler, Schwartz has been making the multi thonged whips in his dingy shop for fifteen years. Seemingly there has been no change in methods of child —or wife—discipline in that period, because business is still as good as it ever was.

Surrounded by babies and very little children, Schwartz said, at the light model, with eight thin strips of leather bound to a wooden handle. A more popular size is the second with five bands of heavier leather.

The third size—his daughters explained it was generally used by husbands to keep their wives "in line"—was heavier and stronger than the other two. But, he said, it cost more.

The "whip man" is a familiar figure in east side streets, strolling along with a cross of the cats-o'-nine-tails over his shoulder, calling out to Jewish housewives, "Fisil cats a stocking!" or "Eve cents a little whip".

MAR CANTABRICO A PRIZE OF WAR

Armament Cargo of $2,700,000 Salvaged by The Insurgents

Arcachon, France, March 10 — (AP)—The munitions transport Mar Cantabrico was reported today to have been captured by insurgents and conveyed as a prize of war to an insurgent port by the submarine C-3 after her $2,700,000 cargo of American-made munitions.

First reported in Spanish waters, the Mar Cantabrico was reported today to have been sighted off Arcachon and conveyed as a prize of war to an insurgent port by the submarine C-3 after her $2,700,000 cargo of American-made munitions.

First reported in Spanish waters, the Bay of Biscay Monday, when she attempted to slip past the insurgent blockade, the mystery vessel was said to have been able to leave the scene of ambush under her own power with the shell-ignited blaze in her No. 2 hold under control.

A boarding party from the insurgent cruiser Canarias, Maritime dispatches from Burgos said, took possession, and identified today as one of the heroes of the conquest of Ethiopia.

Although authorities would not state his present whereabouts, well informed sources believed he was in Spain.

ROOSEVELT 'KING!' COLLEGIANS CRY

New York, March 10 (AP)—The approach of spring released campus energies today and the "Roosevelt for Pope" movement spread from Yale to Princeton and Columbia.

A group of Yale students inaugurated the movement, heralded by several "whereases" to crown President Roosevelt "Imperial" and rename Washington, D.C., "Roosevelt City."

An editorial written for the "Daily Princetonian" called the "Yale's latest contribution to the college-satire-that-swept-the-nation department" and quoted the former Governor Alfred M. Landon of Kansas as "pretender to the throne."

Pretender Nominated

A design for a "royal shield" as approved by the Yale Club, reads "15 thornless cactus on an Electoral blue field, six rampant, nine couchant, one of which can be killed—they the last nine being plowed under."

But the pretender the Yale symbolic suggested a shield designed as a wilted sunflower on a gray background.

The Princeton chapter of the "Roosevelt-for-King" movement adopted a constitution, then dispatched telegrams to the President, to Postmaster-General James Farley, and to Miss Eleanor Roosevelt.

The telegram to the President requested "passes for the coronation."

1,200 IRISHMEN FIGHTING IN SPAIN

Estimates Say 1,000 Are Fighting on Side of Insurgents

By JOSEPH DENNIGEN
Canadian Press Correspondent

Dublin, March 10.—(CP)— About 1,200 Irishmen are fighting in Spain, according to estimates made here by Irish anti-communists, and on the non-intervention pact, to which the Irish Free State is a party.

Nearly 1,000 are engaged with the insurgent forces in the neighborhood of Cocceres under General Eoin O'Duffy, the leader of the pro-Catholic Irish Fascist party. The others are operating with the government armies under Frank Ryan, a former Republican journalist who abandoned the Irish Republican Army to head a new organization of Communist tendencies known as the Republican Congress.

Some Were Boys

O'Duffy's followers are in the main young countrymen, a few just out of school, who believe they are fighting for the Catholic cause. There is a sprinkling of hardy adventurers, but most have never seen service during the Great War or in the Irish civil war in 1922. They are specialists in guerilla warfare.

Some 650 members of the Irish brigade left Dublin by train and by a German troopship which crept into Galway Bay early one morning last December. Five others traveled from Liverpool to Lisbon as "students" on a holiday.

700 Recruits Return

The German vessel was expected to take a further contingent of 700 from Passage East, on the Waterford coast, about a week ago but at the last minute the recruits had to return to their homes disappointed after a very slight sea with the cold and rain without food. The ship failed to arrive for reasons which has not yet been explained.

Steen's small force with the Madrid government is composed mainly of "forgotten men" of Left Wing sympathies drawn from Dublin's Northern Ireland and the Free State jails. Many of them have been killed in action and three others have been wounded.

21st Baby Born

Jamestown, N.Y., March 10 (AP) — Mrs. Gerdina Cornelia Hoekstra decided her 21st baby today and remarked:

"People ought to pay more attention to things like that and not so much to making money."

Mrs. Johnson, who was married when she was 21, is the 21-year-old wife of David Johnson, an Akeley, Minn., farmer. She was born in Crystal, a six-pound girl, in a hospital here yesterday.

PLAN TO RESCUE FREIGHTER

St. John's Nfld., March 10.—(CP Cable)—The Newfoundland Government steamer Sagona left here today to go to the assistance of the Halifax freighter Delia, abandoned by her crew off Brook Point in Trepassey Bay.

30 EXPLOSIONS IN BURNING HOLD ENDANGER BOSTON

Entire Waterfront is Threatened by Blaze in Freight

CHEMICALS AFIRE

Heat So Intense Danish Vessel Begins to Fall Apart

Boston, Mar. 10 (AP)—A fierce blaze aboard the nitrate and sugar laden freighter Lalla—marked by a series of explosions—finally was brought under control today after an active struggle by sea and land firefighters to avert a menace to the Boston waterfront.

So hot was the blaze as the burning nitrate poured out a column of acrid black smoke that portions of the ship's forward plates buckled and bulged. Even so, the inner decks fire forward part of the vessel was transformed into a blackened hulk to be watched.

All Aboard Escape.

Risking another and more serious explosion, four tugs finally managed to get lines about high in the aft the ship into midstream, thereby checking the danger of flames spreading to the crowded waterfront.

Longshoremen who had been unloading the vessel reported that everyone on board had escaped.

Fire in the burning freighter Lalla today pierced the waterfront and became the first to feel the full explosive force of the blaze that swept the vessel.

Three general alarms were sounded as flames shot high in the air.

The 4,000-ton freighter arrived from Chilean and Cuban ports yesterday and had just begun to discharge 3,000 tons of nitrate and sugar when the fire broke out.

Also in the vessel's holds was a large quantity of nitrate of soda and bags containing firearm said.

Soon after the fire started the ship, from amidships forward, was enveloped in flames.

Vessels Towed Away.

Tugs first to arrive at the scene towed other vessels in the vicinity to safety.

Heavy columns of acrid black and yellow smoke rose high in the air from the forward end of the boat. Observers saw a possible menace to rail and traffic in the fire's threat over the Chelsea bridge, little more than 100 yards from the dock.

One of the fire boats, after moving away, swung back into position and poured streams of water on the stricken vessel.

So intense was the heat of the burning nitrate that the vessel appeared literally to fall apart. Plates buckled and pulled free of rivets.

Danish Vessel Is Heard.

Explosions followed in rapid succession until Commissioner Hurley had counted more than 30.

Meanwhile, the Danish wrung back into range with its water guns as preared only to add to the confusion. For, as the fire encountered the burning nitrates, flames shot from the ship's funnels three times the lightening pigs and about one hundred feet above the funnels. Cows, horses and a wagon were removed, the Lalla being partly covered by insurance. A barn owned by owned by Harry Alexander was saved with difficulty.

Abandon Negotiations With Canada is Opinion Held by Sir H. Gullett

Cabinet Refuses to Accept Proposal And Gullett Retires

SWORN TO SECRECY

Hon. W. D. Euler Left Canberra Recently For Canada

Canberra, Mar. 10 (CP) — Sir Henry Gullett, Minister of Trade, resigned from the Australian Cabinet today following differences of opinion with his colleagues over the question of trade negotiations with Canada.

Sir Henry expressed the view the cabinet should abandon negotiations with the Dominion, which he deemed unsatisfactory, and suggested there should be a diversion of Australia's import trade from Canada to foreign countries willing to negotiate trade treaties with Australia.

Four Damage to Trade.

The cabinet refused to accept this proposal on the grounds it would damage empire trade. Sir Henry then announced his resignation.

The minister's action created a position of tension in the Commonwealth. At first it was announced he had resigned for "personal reasons", and the cabinet members said they were sworn to secrecy.

Sir Henry's resignation followed by less than a week the departure from Canberra of Hon. W. D. Euler, Canadian Minister of Trade and Commerce, who conducted negotiations extending over more than a month with the resigned minister.

Hinted Resignation.

At the time of Mr. Euler's sailing he was understood that the main objectives of the negotiators had not been achieved and that only minor concessions had been granted both wars.

Press representatives of the sister Dominions encountered difficulties arising from the fact that trade between the two countries was so disproportionate that if the new agreements were to bring to Canada by balance it would have to incorporate concessions to Australia out of all proportion to the new concessions Canada might receive.

Abolition of Amusement Tax Praised by All Sportsmen

(By The Canadian Press)

Motorists, theatre goers and municipal officials welcomed the Ontario Budget today with its lower motor license, removal of amusement tax and the subsidy of one mill in reliable assessment for all municipalities.

Saving of the municipalities through the one mill subsidy is the big feature of the Budget, brought down in the Legislature yesterday by Premier Mitchell Hepburn. Transfer of the tax represents municipalities to the government cut into finances in some cases but the one mill subsidy promises to wipe out any losses.

Ottawa would receive $196,000; 13 other Carleton County Municipalities by about $13,000. Toronto $880,000; London $81,918; Guelph $14,000; Galt $11,100; St. Thomas officials watched $24,165; Windsor $85,000; North Bay $9,000; Woodstock $7,457.

Mayor R. K. Servis of Galt, said: "It looks as though the Government is going out of their way to try to play the game with municipalities in the matter of refunds in lieu of the municipal income tax which the government collects."

City Treasurer W. C. Miller of St. Thomas described the step as in the right direction. Outlook of appeals made by municipalities for relief from the taxation burden.

Property Owners Helped

Woodstock might find it possible to reduce the present rate of 42½ to 35.8 mills, Mayor W. M. MacArthur said.

"It certainly is a step in the right direction." Mayor William Morrison of Hamilton said. "Property owners will be helped out considerably by the government's decision."

He added it was unlikely the subsidy would be distributed among the citizens in the form of a cut in the taxes. The Mayor explained no allowance for Old-Age Pensions or Mothers' Allowances was made in the Budget at the end of the year as the amount depended on provincial grants but no funds will be lain war chest for a rainy day.

"Next year will be a bad year because of obsolete payments fall due," he added. "We may, if the Government permits, use part of the $164,165 to eliminate the possibility of an increase in taxes in 1938."

Mayor T. F. Kingsmill and other London officials had little comment, preferring to await learning they would have in giving indicators full study.

Renewal Boost to Sport

Alderman Percy Bengough of Windsor considered the Amusement Tax removal as a boon to amateur sport and said:

"Abolition of the amusement tax next June will be an amazing spurt in this district from oblivion." he added. "It is a dead issue, 'previous tax' and declared everyone would be glad to see it go.

HIPPEASTRUM PLANT ATTRACTS ATTENTION

A beautiful "Hippeastrum" plant at the home of Mrs. H. Varley, 146 Toronto Street, is attracting much interest and admiration. An American hothouse plant of the lily family, related to the Amaryllis, it has one large stalk. At present three blossoms, somewhat like orchids across, are in bloom with a fourth yet to open. The hothouse flower, rare in shade, have cold enjoyment, giving them an unusual appearance.

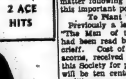
Demorestville Barn Destroyed by Fire

Awakened by the red glow of flames and the crackling of burning timbers, at an early hour, Sunday morning, Alex Anderson, farmer residing at Demorestville, rushed outside to discover his barn a blazing inferno.



Fire of unknown origin totally destroyed the building. The farmer had gained much benefit that salvage of cattle, farm machinery and other chattels was impossible. Livings had thrown off by the flames. Upon the approach of neighbors who rushed to the scene following the alarm, Fire hoses quite head of cattle and farm machinery were destroyed by the flames. The loss is partly covered by insurance, it is stated.

Mr. Anderson who attended a hockey game in Belleville Monday evening is at a loss to understand the origin of the fire.

'I Supported Lot Sale,' Says Ald. Greenleaf

Ald. Greenleaf, who was in last evening's issue reported as opposing the sale of lots on Pinnacle street to Mr. J. C. McCarthy, has complained that the statement is the opposite as given in the report of meeting of council held on Monday.

He thinks out that when he was in the city council some years ago, Mr. McCarthy had dealings with the council about the property on Front street and that the conveyance of that deal had proven so satisfactory that he (the alderman) could do nothing but support the present plan to sell lots to him, especially in view of the fact that would immediately begin to bring in revenue to the city, which he thought justified and warranted the sale. He therefore he supported the sale of the lots to Mr. McCarthy who is planning to erect a theatre.

'Quinte Bay Beaches' Name Chosen for the New City Waterfront Improvement Area

Plans Are Completed to Further Civic Beach Project

LANDSCAPE GROUNDS

Two score of the city's most prominent businessmen pledged themselves to progress last evening at one of the most successful of the luncheon meetings yet held in the interests of civic advancement.

Further papers and plans for which application will be made to Ottawa for grants were shown for now known "Quinte Bay Beaches on Belleville, Inc." under which name work is to be sought, took further steps in perhaps the largest and most far-reaching project of civic undertakings in recent years. The incorporation of the waterfront into what is expected to be one of the best bathing beaches, beautiful spots and recreation centres in the province. It is that section of the Bay of Quinte from the east side of the government dock.

Plans, tentative and tentatively developed for the past two years, the project received its greatest consideration last night at the bi-weekly meeting held in the Y.M.C.A., with the actual naming of the beach site and the filing of papers of incorporation. It is expected that the membership to the new organization is invited within the next few weeks. Hundreds of prominent citizens will be enrolled to aid the growing movement of waterfront beautification.

Presided over by President Moncrieff, the gathering last evening was featured by the naming of several new committees, the chairmen, the naming of the beach itself with the suitable title taken from many that had been advanced, and the hearing of reports of the various committees.

To Eliminate Mosquitos

Elimination of the mosquito nuisance, as one of the first progressive steps this spring will be aided by the entomological department at Ottawa. Within the next few weeks experts of the department will visit Belleville and inspect the beach location for the purpose of advising best remedial measures, it was stated by Mr. Gro. Whitart of the local Dominion Entomological service, and chairman of this committee.

Further governmental assistance will be asked in filling the exact location of the high water line on the bay shore, it was stated by Maurice Callaghan, chairman of the Property Committee, who advised the meeting that a request had been made to the government for the services of an engineer and surveyor.

Whether school children of the city will be given an opportunity of assisting in landscape work on the beach location through small subscriptions for trees will decide upon action of the Landscape Committee, appointed to act in the matter following some discussion of this important point.

Trees for Royal Oak

Previously a letter received from "The Men of the Forty Society" had been read by President Moncrieff. Cost of the "Forty Oak" saplings, received from England by this Society for planting in Canada will be ten cents for each seed. Seedlings were quoted at 25 cents. Distribution of these will be made just one month before Coronation.

The question is" pointed our President Moncrieff, "whether we should give the children of the city a chance to buy these themselves, and assist in the planting. About one hundred trees, grown, preferably from seedlings, will be needed to plant the beach section we have in mind".

Support to this suggestion was given by Wm. A. Watson, architect, whose voluntary offer of drawing plans for the complete site has been accepted.

"If Belleville children were given this chance to buy the trees, and the cost would be very small, when they grow up they will be able to say 'we planted trees in honor our King who crowned", he explained.

"The suggestion was previously made that Remembrance Day the city be given the chance to buy their own tree, plant it, and then have their name plate on it, showing ownership", supplied Mr. George Finch, vice-president.

On the motion of Mr. P. C. MacLaurin seconded by Mr. Scott, the matter will be left in the hands of the Landscape Committee, with power to act.

Membership in the newly incorporated organization at a cost of twenty-five cents each will be asked, it was decided. A committee consisting G. W. Procker, David Martin and J. B. Findlay will be charged with this important campaign.

Carnival Planned

Carnival week during the third week in June, will be known as "Coronation Week in Belleville". Services of a high grade carnival company that has been tentatively secured and during the week special attractions will be held on the beach site in order to acquaint as many local district and city residents as possible of its potentialities. The matter of a sailing and power boat regatta in the bay was left in the hands of Maurice Callaghan, president of the South End Yacht Club and Alex Mackie, Geo. Asselstine, for investigation.

Regular meetings of the organization in future will be held on the evening of every second Tuesday in the month.

List of suggested names for the beach which was given was intended: Sagonacka; Seabeach; Greenview; Starbeach; Quinte Bay Beaches; Banks and Beaches; River Banks; Belleville Beaches; Quinte Inc.

Papers of incorporation which will ask that the title of "Quinte Bay Beaches, Belleville, Inc." be registered were signed by President Moncrieff; G. A. Preston, K. C.; G. Wickerson; T. E. Sullifan, K. D. Arnott; M. Callaghan; Harry Smith; Geo. Finch; Laurie Lewis; David Fleming and Mark Vanner.

Two Men are Gored By Frightened Cow

Maddened through fright while being unloaded from a truck at Campbellford yesterday, a cow owned by Sam Corrie caused two men of the village who attempted to capture the animal after it had escaped custody.

Attempting to head off the animal, Donald Olen, of the Rutherford Dairy was thrown a distance of six feet to the air from the cow's horns. Only severe bruises were suffered.

Attacked with a club, the cow followed up its assault upon John Younger who nearly escaped injuring, although also badly bruised when thrown to the ground.

Further injuries to the two men were averted when Samuel Corrie, owner of the animal managed to grab it by the horns in true rodeo style, throwing it to the ground.

Dr. R. Stuart attended the injured men.

MONKS AT HUNGER STRIKE

Cairo, March 10 (AP)—Defiant Coptic monks in an Assiut Desert cloister threatened today to add a hunger strike to their "sit down" if police try to take the monastery by force.

They decided they were, for the most part, too old and feeble to offer physical resistance.

The monks have been on an entrenched strike for two months in protest against an unpopular abbot and curtailment of their social privileges.

Frigid Temperatures Grip City and District

Frozen radiators and plumbing, nipped ears and noses and chilled spirits on the part of shivering residents who crawled from warm beds in the early hours of the morning today to adjust heating systems in local homes followed in the wake of another midnight of winter which gripped the district late last night and early this morning.

Perfidious March whose pseudo-lamb-like nature has been exploited lulled residents into a sense of false security with warm breezes and clear days, revealed its true, icy, blustery character, sending temperatures to a low point of just four above zero this morning.

For a second time this year ice formed on the Moira this morning, spreading its thin surface from the eastern shore almost from the car bridge almost to the lower bridge.

During the later hours of the day, however, bright sunshine again sent thermometers climbing to more favorable levels, although the inhibiting overcast weather of earlier days this week was definitely minus.

Women's Christian Association Completes Fifty-Seventh Year of Welfare Activity

Mrs. Van Blaklee is Elected President For Coming Year

REPORTS PRESENTED

Members of the Women's Christian Association at the fifty seventh annual meeting of the organization held in the City Hall yesterday afternoon heard detailed and interesting reports of the many activities which compose the extensive program of good works carried on with such devotion by this community-wide group. The meeting over which Mrs. Van Blaklee presided was opened by prayer by Rev. A. G. Sinclair, of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church.

A review of the year's work was given by the recording secretary, Mrs. R. N. Hurst, in her annual report which was as follows:

Report of Recording Secretary of Women's Christian Association 1937

This year, I have the honour to present the (57th) fifty-seventh annual report of the Women's Christian Association. All the departments have functioned in their usual capable manner and the success of these is gratifying.

First, we wish to welcome our new President, Mrs. Blaklee, who has so kindly consented to take the office. We know she will have the good wishes and co-operation of all the members.

The Home for the Aged is supervised under the directing of the board, with Mrs. Purdy at the able chairman, and their work shows very satisfactory results.

The city council and W.C.A. are very fortunate in having Miss Lynch as chairman of the Indigent Committee and we know that her duties are considerably heavy due to the present conditions.

The W.C.A. is proud in the ownership of the Hospital, and, while it has no power of management, it is deeply interested in that organization. The financial reports presented at each monthly meeting are very gratifying. To the members of the Board of Governors appointed by the W.C.A. we extend a vote of thanks for the faithful execution of their duties.

The W.C.A. is also grateful to the members of the Advisory Board for valuable assistance in making decisions and offering advice wherever called upon to do so.

During the past year, death has claimed several persons interested in the association, Miss Kelso, always a kind and generous friend to the Inmates of the Home; Dr. Connor, Mr. Tannahill, Mrs. A. Symons, Mrs. John Lewis, one of the founders and a president in the W.C.A. and Mrs. Bell, president since 1933, an ardent worker in the Association and among the poor for many years.

Last September, when our former President, Mrs. Bell, left Belleville to reside with her sister, a token of her esteem was presented to her in the form of a pin, the shape of the W.C.A. crest and a letter given with it, which it was moved that I should read in this report.

Letter to Mrs. Bell

September 21, 1936.

Dear Mrs. Bell:

We, your co-workers in the Women's Christian Association, do not feel that we can let you depart from our midst without expressing to you the sense of irreparable loss we sustain.

For fifty-two years you have been very closely identified with the various activities of the Association and have been so while heartsilly devoted to its service in connection with Hospital, Home for the Aged and the unfortunate and indigent of our city. Your magnificent devotion and untiring zeal has brought untold comfort, relief and happiness to many less fortunate citizens.

Your loving zeal in the work, your intense love for your fellowmen, your fine talent, your beautiful Christian life and harmonious manner has endeared you to each one of us in a way that will not be forgotten and will inspire us to sacrifice in service to carry on the work you helped to build and which has been so dear to your heart.

We cannot let you go without showing to you in a tangible form, our true love for you so we ask you to wear this pin as a symbol of your lovable and loyal work in our Association. With it goes the assurance that you will ever live in our memories as a faithful coworker and a loving friend.

In the years to come, which we hope will be many, may He support you all day long till the shades of earthly and evening comes, then in His mercy may He give you peace at the last and a holy rest.

The W.C.A. is a civic organization and undenominational and carries on a very important and useful work in the city. Every organization should have at least one representative at every meeting and we ask for the interest, prayers and co-operation of all.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

Louise Hurst.

Mrs. A. E. Purdy, chairman of the Board of the Home for the Aged, read the report of the Home for the preceding year:

Annual Report of Belleville House For The Aged 1936

Owing to the splendid co-operation of the board of MANagement, and the efficiency of the matron, the Belleville Home for the Aged has just completed a very satisfactory year.

In 1936 thirteen people were admitted to the Home, eight transferred to other institutions, and one died. At present there are twelve male, three female, fifteen inmates in all.

In August the Home was painted on the outside, considerable interior decorating done, and a new heating system installed in the men's reading room. The Home at present is in first class condition and should need no further expenditure in the near future, so the Board were able to reduce the amount of their city requisition from 1,300 to 1,000 dollars.

Our appreciation is extended to all who have kindly remembered the inmates with gifts and entertainment, particularly the St. John Chapter of the I.O.D.E. which for many years has remembered each inmate weekly, and at Christmas; also the Girl Guides, and the O.C.L.T.

To the doctors of the city who have given their time and services in caring for the inmates at the Home, and the Clergy who have held services during the year, we express our gratitude.

The members of the Board sincerely mourn the passing of our dearly loved president, Mrs. R. J. Bell, and sympathy is extended to Mrs. Walker by her present illness.

This report is respectfully submitted,

R. M. Purdy, Chairman,
Board of Management Belleville Home for the Aged.

Miss H. Lynch, chairman of the Indigent Committee reported that her committee had met before Christmas and she gave an account of the disposal of the Corby bequest. Through the co-operation of churches and service clubs, 216 hampers were distributed at Christmas time, with 24 extra through the Corby order, and one hundred and twenty five families received fuel at Christmas and after, from the Corby fund. One hundred and twenty one calls were answered during the year and thirty four cents were used from the Emergency Fund. During the year 626 yards of cotton, 297 yards of print, 367 1-2 yards of flannelette were given out. Sheeting is not covered by the relief orders. Miss Lynch also reported that the civic relief committee has about one hundred less families registered than for last year, a considerable improvement.

At the meeting yesterday the members felt keenly the loss of two active members, Mrs. R. J. Bell and Mrs. H. Walker. News of the latter's death yesterday came to all with sincere regret and it was decided to send a letter of sympathy to the members of her family.

THE HOPE IN PEACE

Expenditures "which bring no economic return," such as the huge program which Britain has undertaken for defence and protection of nations from being overrun by an aggressive power, contain the hope, according to Sir John Simon, that the defence program was far more likely to provide a basis on which an international limitation of armaments might be obtained, than unilateral disarmament.

If such expenditures would only go to the extreme of provoking war, the outlook would be most dark, with the most powerful nation in the world going the limit in the way of armament building. Something of what she is doing has been rendered necessary by the delay in rearming as a result of the tireless efforts towards disarmament, in which Britain was the leading figure.

This much may be said that it can safely be trusted that the might which Britain is assembling will not be used for the low purpose of aggression or of beating all opinion in the world into conformity with her will, but for the object of making herself safe in case there should be trouble. She must make herself safe, not only for her own good but for the world.

Representatives of some nations have been saying and doing things, which seem very much as if directed to war. Now Britain endured this until she saw that there was one way she could answer that vow-ted spirit which has sprung up—to overdo them at their own game in building.

None regret what they call the necessity of security guarantee which requires so vast outlays more than the British people for they realize what a mighty impetus outlays of such staggering character as are to be expended could give to social betterment if directed in this other way.

Yet it is a defence effort, a peace effort. If it brings about a turn to disarmament, it will have been worth while though it will place staggering obligations upon the people and cause delays in programs what might have been accomplished and must yet be accomplished before the full fruition of British civilization is reached.

DRINKING DRIVER

St. Thomas Times-Journal referring to the condition of drivers of motorcars points out that drivers charged with being intoxicated in charge of a car try to prove that they were not intoxicated, adding that it resolves itself into the old question, 'When is a man drunk?"

But in the mind of the Times-Journal this is really not the question for it leaves out those who are possible cause of influence of an intoxicant. The paper points out that the quarter-drunk person, the half-drunk, and the three-quarter drunk person behind the wheel of cars are far more dangerous than the dead drunken person who is wholly incapable.

There may be some truth of prophecy in the statement of the St. Thomas newspaper that the legislature may find it necessary to change the law, which is intended to send to jail those who drive cars while drunk to cover those who drive cars after they have been drinking. The paper goes so far as to say "It may even be necessary to go the limit and rule as Chief Draper of Toronto, once suggested that one drink makes a man or woman incapable of driving a car. The war will soon be waged against the drinking as well as the drunk driver."

It seems strange that persons who know they are going to drive will take a drink or more, when they know from experience that the exhilaration of liquor may create a false confidence or sense of security in the drivers.

The newspaper is the greatest educator of the century. There is no force compared to it. It is book, platform, forum, all in one. And there is not an interest—religious, literary, commercial, scientific, agricultural, or mechanical—that is not withing its grasp. All our churches, and schools, and colleges, and asylums, and art galleries, feel the quaking of the printing press.—Talmage.

The meek are not those who are never at all angry, for such are insensible; but those who feeling anger, control it, and are angry only when they ought to be. Meekness excludes revenge, irritability, morbid sensitiveness, but not self-defence, or a quiet and steady maintenance of right.—Theophylact.

There is a remembrance of the dead, to which we turn even from the charms of the living. These we would not exchange for the song of pleasure or the bursts of revelry.—Washington Irving.

The memory has as many moods as the temper, and shifts its scenery like a diorama. —George Eliot.

AFTER RAIN

During a storm, the meadow grows dishevelled,
The blades of plants are freighted down with snails
That like to leave unsightly, watery trails;
And grass that stood up straight is suddenly leveled
And dreamily occupied by worms that slide
In glutinous joy from each stone's underside.

All things that normally like the earth's interiors
Crawl out to take advantage of the damp:
The moles extend soft noses through the barriers
Of dripping moss; the sun-baked ledge, grown limp
With rain, evokes the shy, recessive lizard;
The tidiest countryside is turned hophazard.

Sunlight, proceeding in a quiet manner,
Restores to order all the drooping plants:
Each grass blade shoots up regal as a banner,
Unfit for cold and clammy habitants.

The earth grown tidy in the sun, and firm,
Dries up the glimmering substance of the worm,
And errant moles turn suddenly around
And plunge to moister countries underground.

TORONTO CLAIMS THE LEAD IN HOME IMPROVEMENT LOANS with 398 loans totalling $149,544. Toronto was slow starting but is certainly making up for lost time, and now that the Queen City has something to brag about she will try to keep ahead, but other communities on a population per capita basis will give Toronto a run for the money, and Belleville expects to be right in the running all the way after the local committee is completed and functioning. Across Canada 4,377 home improvement loans have been recorded up to February 13, amounting to $1,675,398. Ontario after a slow start has made up lost time and now has more than double the loans of any other province, with 1,609 loans totalling $584,449... Quebec has taken out 748 loans, amounting to $387,264, and British Columbia is third with 584 loans, totalling $198,159... When people fully realize the merits of the Home Improvement Plan with its low rate of interest and freedom from red tape of any kind, there will be a rush to take advantage of what give a wonderful impetus to industry, especially in the building trades, give much needed employment and place a large sum of money in circulation, from the government estimate of $50,000,000 to the more sanguine estimate of those who have studied every angle of the plan and the possible urge it will give to private capital, to $200,000,000. In any event the Home Improvement Plan is bound to make for a more prosperous and happy community and a stronger and more prosperous nation.

PERENNIAL DISCUSSION AS TO WHETHER THERE IS TOO MUCH FREE EDUCATION made available to poor and rich had a picturesque tilt Monday when Principal P. C. MacLaurin of the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School, told a gathering of Rotarians that it was no use complaining about the cost of higher education. If the money was not spent upon education it would be spent upon armament. History reveals that in countries where no provision was made for the education of the masses, the wealth of the nation went into war materials. If education will cure the war fever humanity cannot get too much of it. Mr. MacLaurin visualizes an ideal existence where there are no very rich nor very poor, where opportunities for advancement are equal and each would be for all and all for each.

THERE IS NO DEATH, LIFE GOES ON FOREVER in one guise or-other, a Belleville audience was told recently by a speaker who had earnestly studied the great mystery called life and arrived at the conclusion that what we call life, energy, soul or whatever it is which animates the material body, goes on forever, is not halted by the death of the body but lives on in animal or plant life, or some other form. Very interesting but may we most humbly suggest the warning that when folks get delving too deeply into this question of life it requires very sound and deep mentality to retain the necessary mental balance and remain sane.

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

MARCH 10TH, 1917

A very successful drama entitled "The Great Catastrophe" was given in the Tabernacle Sunday School rooms last evening under the auspices of the Apex Club and was witnessed by a large and appreciative audience.

Mr. A. E. Baldwin, who has been the efficient caretaker of the Y.M.C.A. building for the past four years, has resigned in order to enlist with the 254th Battalion.

Ex-Mayor Harry McIntosh passed away today. He served as alderman from Sanderson Ward for six consecutive years and in the year 1898 he was elected to the office of Mayor. He had reached the age of 77 years. By all citizens he was highly esteemed.

30 YEARS AGO

March 18th, 1907

Dr. Oliver Dupuis of this city is visiting friends at Roseneath.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Backus left today for Western Canada where they may reside.

Mr. A. F. Orchard, Cedar Street left today to take up residence at Toronto.

Mr. Cyril Good left today for Toronto where he intends to locate.

Mr. Frank Lally and Mr. Joseph Lally, who have been home on a brief visit, have returned, the former to Fargo, N.D., and the latter to Minneapolis, Minn.

Messrs. John and James Hanley of Port Arthur, Ont., formerly of Belleville, are spending a few days in the city.

Mr. Robert L. Curry of Toronto formerly of Belleville, is visiting friends in the city. He will leave shortly for Edmonton.

40 YEARS AGO

March 19th, 1897

Mr. W. S. Martin, of Stirling, was in the city today.

General Manager C. M. Hays of the G.T.R., passed west this morning in his private car on No. three.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Sprung left today for New York City.

At three o'clock this morning Officer P. Hayes was upon his rounds and while trying back doors and windows, discovered smoke issuing from a window in Haines and Lockett's wholesale and retail boot and shoe store. He sent in an alarm at once and the firemen responded promptly. They had some difficulty at first in getting at the flames as the fire had originated in the wholesale department on the second floor, an awkward place to get at. It was some time before the water made a perceptible impression on the flames which spread in all directions. The fire ascended to the roof and in the wholesale section a large stock of footwear was completely destroyed. The supports to the roof were soon burned and the roof fell in at four o'clock. The rear end of the retail department on the first floor and the stock therein was almost a total loss. The trunk department escaped the flames. Herbel Hall with furniture is a total loss. The offices of W. J. Diamond, barrister, and J. W. Butterfield, situated in the front of the building on the second floor, were badly damaged. The stock in the drygoods store of Sinclair & Catrow was damaged considerably by water and smoke. The origin of the fire is a mystery.

50 YEARS AGO

March 19th, 1887

Awnings, veils and freckles announce the arrival of spring.

Robins and crows have made their appearance in the city and district.

The union Sunday School convention at Foxboro yesterday was a great success. The Rev. John Learoyd, the Rev. M. W. Maclean, the Rev. Amos Campbell, Mr. William Johnson and Mr. A. C. Northrup of this city were in attendance.

Messrs. Harris and Walton have completed their contract with the city for repairing the old meat market. The building is now ready for the painters. There are five meat stalls and two are already leased, one to R. B. Bennett, and one to William Britton.

Mr. W. W. Pearce of Marmora, was a visitor in the city today.

Stray Bits

A GENTLEMAN PASSES—

A gentleman has just passed on. He was kind and courteous, respectful to his superiors and indulgent to those who were his inferiors. He had courage without bluster and pride without vaunting.

He was a loyal friend and devoted companion.

He never picked a quarrel nor fled from a fight.

He loved little children and delighted in their enjoyment.

He was generous and never critical.

He was full of the joy of living. His name was Fred and he lived on a sheep dog, eleven years old.

He lived happily, died serenely and left a volume of satisfying memories.

NAMING THE BABY—

A Cleburne, Texas, daddy named Ford, has named his latest son V-8, which puts him one, or maybe two up on Philip Washer and his mates of Niagara Falls, New York, who seven cars ago named their offspring Lindberg Airplane. This slapping of warped names on helpless babies is widespread and seems to be growing at about the rate of one or more a day. In Harrison, N.Y., Pasquale Antonetti did his best to perpetuate the memory of the nation wide jay codes of the fairs by calling his son, Depression Tantorelli. In the Bronx, N.Y., Joseph Jacobson in 1929 marked the slack years by calling his daughter Worms Depression. In England, regionally, the name Philadelphia, appears in popular favor. Other place names in that country and scattered through North America are Pearl Harbor, Lucky Starr, Pearl Willow, Gethlo Lamb, and—honest to goodness—Silly Death. In a social settlement in Cleveland alone, social workers there engaged in a check up found such genuine names as Marietta Pickle, Etta Bird, Eric Canal Johnson and Pictorial Review Bailey.

MYSTERY JOB—

An old railway employee who retired after many years service was interviewed by the local reporter who upon hearing that the veteran had been employed as a watchman for forty years, inquired: "What's a wheel tapper?"

"Well", replied the old man, "I had a hammer on a long handle, and I used to hit the wheels of the trains".

"Yes," pressed the reporter, "I've seen that done. But what's the use of it?"

The ex-railwayman scratched his head thoughtfully, and then answered "Mister, I'm darned if I know".

LIFE TIME JOB—

A similar story concerned a newspaper office of The Times, London. When Lord Northcliffe took over The Times he wanted to know who everyone was and what they did. One day he met on the stairs an old man and asked him his job.

"To tell the truth, milord, I don't rightly know",

Northcliffe, somewhat taken aback, began to examine him.

"How long have you been on The Times?"

"All my life, milord"

"And yet you don't know what your job is? Who appointed you?"

"My father."

"Your father. What was his job?"

"The same, milord."

Ultimately it transpired that at the time of the Battle of Waterloo The Times wanted to send a correspondent to the Continent in a hurry. There was, however, no money in the office, and all the market value of the small newspaper missed the story. It was decided in future a special cashier should always be on the spot with sufficient funds to meet such a possible emergency. The thousand task had fallen on the shoulders of the story's grandfather. The job had been handed on from father to son.

A CANADIAN ABROAD—

A Canadian was standing on the corner of 47th Street and Broadway when he stopped a customer about noon. Said customer was wearing a conductor's uniform and had high boots. He selected a newspaper, handed the boy a coin accepted the change and turned away.

The newsboy took a closer look at the coin and let out a yell.

"Hey! Wait a minute, mister," he shouted. "This is a Canadian dime you gave me."

The customer shrugged.

"I know," was the reply. "I'm a Canadian".

HORTICULTURISTS HEAR REPORT OF ANNUAL MEETING

Rev. R. H. Nicholson Addresses Regular Meeting

Tweed—A meeting of a number of Tweed horticulturists was held on Friday in the Union Church parlours. There was an attendance of about fifty. The meeting was presided over by Mr. S. H. Conner, president of the Tweed Horticultural Society, who welcomed those present.

A report of the proceedings of the annual Ontario Horticultural Society Convention held recently in Toronto was given by Rev. R. H. Nicholson, delegate of the Tweed Horticultural Society. The attendance was upwards of 600, the largest on record. A number of men present from various Garden Clubs of the United States. The average number of Garden Clubs, in the sister of the Union where they have been organized, is only 37; while in Ontario there are 354 horticultural societies.

This year, said Mr. Nicholson, tree-planting will be the main underlying idea in the various societies. "Coronation Year" is to be the inducement to get societies to plant trees. Trees, one of the things, are of the greatest organizations of his kind in the world, is distributing 10,000 scions to the various societies of the province. The scions were collected in the Royal Forest (the Tweed) near Windsor, England, and a specimen of this Monarchial Oak seedling will be sent free of charge to each horticultural society, on application to the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission has been secured in the matter of the trimming of trees by local Hydro employees, and now according to their decision, no tree can be trimmed without the consent or personal consent of the owner of the property affected.

An effort is to be made this year to encourage garden competitions among the Society members in the communities where horticultural societies have been organized.

Rev. Nicholson had been chosen as one of the speakers to deliver an address at the Provincial Convention on the subject, "How May a Horticultural Society Best Serve Its Community." This address was one of the best which he had heard in the course of his report, Mr. Nicholson gave a summary of what was said on that occasion.

"We should regard membership in a Horticultural Society as a great privilege. We are united with earnest men and women of highest character, who love beauty and who are seeking a richer, fuller life for themselves and others. A McDonald Society should be aimed with civic pride, and with a determination to make in their particular community, an example which will be beautiful, tranquillizing and uplifting. Three ways in which a community may be served are by inspiration, education and demonstration.

A society should inspire a love for beauty and love of wild flowers, trees and ornamental shrubs and trees. A single flowering shrub is known to transform an entire community. Two or three examples of this were given. In Wilkie a few years ago, Mr. J. G. Frost was inspired by what flower-growing had done to transform a weed-bed into the beautiful Wilkie Park into a flower garden, bringing inspiration in turn to others and enjoyment to all passers-by.

If you fascinate a man with the garden virus, he will never get over its effects, and it will carry him through good and bad weather for some times. The love of flowers and the beauties of our homes and streets will inevitably lead to other improvements.

The Horticultural Society should always be an educational institution. It should give needed information regarding the growing of flowers, planting of shrubs and trees, and the beautifying of homes, parks, streets and grounds around public buildings. This can be secured by illustrated lectures, by newspaper articles, by the reading of horticultural journals, by flower shows and by juvenile instruction.

This excellent address was followed by a set of slides.

The meeting was opened with "The Maple Leaf Forever." Musical numbers were: Piano Solo: "Ian O'Shanter"—Enid Connor; Vocal Solo, (by request) "Mother Machree"—Gerden—Mrs. H. A. Crier.

At the conclusion, tea was served by the directors of the Society.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere movement doesn't relieve you. It takes the liver to get at the cause. You need something that will make the liver do its duty. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin was made for that purpose. It is a vegetable laxative that makes the liver do its duty. Ask your druggist for Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and take as directed. Then if you don't feel like a million dollars, return the bottle to the druggist and get your money back. Don't suffer another day from constipation, biliousness or sick headache. WORLD'S BIGGEST DIAMOND (In Replica) ON DISPLAY

The famous Cullinan I, world's largest diamond, which is set in the sceptre of His Majesty King George VI, is on display (in replica) at McPeet's, local jewellers.

The story of the Cullinan is one of the most fascinating in the entire history of Diamonds.

On January Afternoon in 1905, Fred Wells, a surface manager at Premiere Mine No. 2, strolled out for a casual tour of inspection; twenty minutes later he came scampering like a madman, carrying in his two hands the biggest diamond crystal ever seen. Walking along an embankment his glance had caught the gleam of the sun on a shining object high up on the mine face. Only half believing what he saw he clambered to the spot and tried to loosen the dirt-embedded stone; his pocket-knife spill—but at last the monster stone came loose from its age-old bed. Then the crystal was placed on the scale, the indicator swung to 3,106 carats, 1½ pound and three-quarter avoirdupois! Three times the size of any diamond that had been discovered.

This great find brought a reward of $10,000 to Mr. Wells and world-wide publicity. The Premier and the Chairman of the Premier Company, Mr. Thomas H. Cullinan, gave the magnificent stone as a wedding gift the owners decided to send it to London they entrusted it to ordinary registered mail. At the request of King Edward VII the stone was taken to Buckingham Palace soon after its arrival. The King remarked at his first sight of the stone, it should have kicked it aside as a lump of glass if I had seen it in the road." That was before the diamond had been cut and polished.

Later the crystal was separated into 9 fragments. Wrgt on the largest piece, Cullinan I, confined for seven months. When finished, the pear-shaped gem weighed 516½ carats, it was 2 1-4 inches long and the maximum breadth was 1 3-4 inches. All the diamonds of the Cullinan series are fine-blue and of the very finest blue-white water.

The largest, Cullinan I, sometimes called the "Great Star of the East," is the chief ornament in the bandle of the Royal sceptre, which plays an historic part in the Coronation ceremonies.

Stomach Upsets, Dizzy?

IF you're troubled with stomach disturbances, and have no appetite, there's nothing better than Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery! Mrs. John Blackmore, 5 Victoria St., Stratford, Ont., said: Some years ago my health failed. I had weak and dizzy spells, would feel faint, and had an all-gone feeling most of the time, my digestion was poor and I was constipated. A neighbour recommended Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Anti-Bilious Pellets. I got a bottle of each and in a few days I felt better. My appetite returned, my digestion improved and in very short time I was well again. Send for Dr. Pierce's free 1000-page book, Sec.

"You needn't trouble to act for our driving away, just before Henry Mathews' car turned in at the gate. Heather liked Henry Mathews even though he had always considered him "a rough diamond" and Vilette said she was "a bounder." Bobbie liked him too, and so did John.

Mathews looked at Heather as he came up the door. "You're lost your color, my dear," he said in his kindly voice. "Not weather too much for you? Or the family? Which is it?"

Heather's pale cheeks flushed a little. "I think it's the heat," she said quickly, and then again, "It's kind of you to come for Cae—for Philip. Thank you very much."

"It's not too much to do." Mathews answered bluntly. "What's the use of a car if you can't take your friends about in it?" He looked again at Heather. "You want a breath of the sea air," he said in his own downright way.

Caesar answered for her. "We all unfortunately, want a great many things which is impossible to obtain, but I am hoping for good news —" and he launched into a long account of the advertisement which he had answered for the relations of one William Aston.

Heather smiled at Mathews and heaved a little wearily against the open door. "I'm afraid it sounds too good to be true," she said when Caesar had finished.

"Too much like a fairy story, eh?" Mathews asked. "Well, shall we be getting along?"

He took Heather's hand in his, and she thought suddenly, "I like you—you're real! . . . You would never be mixed up any things to hurt people—terribly."

Her eyes softened as she looked at him He was not really and attractive person—he was big and bulky. With close-cropped sandy hair and rather a red face. His clothes were generally too loud, and at the moment he was wearing an enormous diamond pin in his tie (a bookmaker's pin, as Caesar had once remarked) but Heather saw only his kind eyes.

"Do you like peaches?" he asked suddenly. "I've got some that are a peach, I tell you!" he said, "I've got too many of them. The maids have been serving them up at least three times in the morning." And then with an old-fashioned salute he climbed back into the car, and drove away with Caesar.

Heather went back to the empty house.

It was at breakfast the following morning that Bobbie announced, "Vilette and I are going to a dance."

"Whose dance is it?" Heather asked. "And when did you get the invitation?" She wanted to add, "And why is Vilette going with you?" but she knew that they didn't get on?"

"It wasn't an invitation," Bobbie answered, not a printed one. It's a dance at the Acro Club—Paddy Jepson asked me yesterday—and he asked me to bring Vilette."

"I suppose she's been making eyes at him," Effie said. "I expect she asked him to ask her."

"No, she didn't!" Bobbie retorted.

Effie ignored the interruption. "She's always got to have some man hanging round. If Bruce had stayed last night she'd have been satisfied with him, I suppose."

"You haven't got a dress suit, Bobbie," Heather said in a troubled voice.

"I know that," he grumbled. "But it won't matter—it's not a grand affair, but it won't be too bad. And Jepson's going to come for me with his car."

Heather made no comment. She did not particularly care for Paddy Jepson, even though she was honest enough to realize that perhaps she was a little jealous of Bobbie's affection and admiration for him. He was the reckless type of man, afraid of nothing, determined to get the best out of life. A very fine pilot, exceedingly popular wherever he went. "The best chap in the world," so Bobbie declared.

"I have your blue suit pressed," she said as she rose from the table.

When she had gone, Effie said, "If you ask me, I think Heather loves it!"

Bobbie raised his eyes quickly. "I'm not!" he said, and there was discomfort in his voice, and marked hurt.

"She looks ill," Effie insisted. "You're always as blind as a bat, but what about Vilette? I think we should like to know, if anything happened to Heather. I was thinking only last night what a rotten life she's had. Never any fun—no one to make a fuss of her—ever! I should go mad if I had to live the life she does."

"Heather's all right," Bobbie repeated with the same uncomfortable note in his voice, and marched out of the room.

Effie took a lump of sugar, cracked it between her teeth and sat staring before her with very serious eyes. Heather had had a hard life, no matter what any one said. Heather never had had any real mother. Heather did all of the mending and a great deal of the cooking; it was all wrong. Effie told herself with a new and surprising sense of responsibility: something ought to be done about it. She was a little surprised to find that tears were actually trickling down her cheeks as she wiped them hastily away and took another lump of sugar for comfort.

Something certainly ought to be done about Heather—but what?

There was nobody to whom she could talk about it, or ask for advice. Effie ran a critical eye over the family and Bobbie's acquaintance—and dismissed him with a mental shrug. There was Stephen Miller, hopeless—but what could she be interested because Heather had such a dull time, she was looking ill and tired? Another tear trickled down Effie's cheek.

Then there was Brucie Logan—but he belonged to Vilette! Or didn't he? Effie was a shrewd little person, and sometimes she saw a great deal more than people imagined. She was not particularly fond of Vilette, and she did not consider her nearly good enough for Brucie. Vilette had already had so many love affairs; she calmly skimmed all the men who came her way, which Effie considered very unfair, but she realized that Vilette was not going to Brucie too easy a conquest.

Brucie was kind and understanding—you could tell that by the expression of his eyes—by the tone of his voice—by the way he always waiting to do anything to help people. He was the sort that Bruce would understand if she told him how concerned she was about Heather's future.

The only difficulty would be to get him alone . . . Vilette would never allow that if she were in the house. Then Effie's face cleared a little.

Effie's eyes brightened; perhaps he would agree to come down, or to meet her somewhere? Her heart beats quickened at the idea it thought.

Effie heard some one at the open front door. It was Henry Mathews with a large basket of peaches under his arm. "I say, Miss Heather, is home?" he asked

"Yes, she is," Effie said, took him to the drawing-room, and went in search of her sister. "A boy-friend to see you," she announced pleasantly.

Heather turned quickly from her task of arranging the flowers. "Who is it?" she asked with such sharp anxiety that Effie looked at her for a moment before replying. "It's only Mr. Mathews — he's brought some peaches."

"I hope you don't mind my overhearing," Heather said in a voice almost of relief, "but I thought it was Vilette."

"It seems to me you're always busy," he answered. "You're a wonderful woman, my dear—I've brought the peaches."

"It's so kind of you—and what beauties!"

"Plenty more where they came from," Mathews said cheerfully. "Plenty of everything at my place —keen enough for an old bachelor like me," he laughed. "What's to become of it beats me, unless you'll take some of it off my hands."

"Oh, but I couldn't," Heather said. "We don't need them."

He broke in. "I'll tell my cook to send some down. Glad to get rid of it, I promise you."

BRITISH COLUMBIA FARMERS FORCIBLY BLOCK CHINESE POTATO GROWERS

While farmers, incensed at continued attacks of Chinese potato growers upon the British Columbia agricultural industry, took strong action by picketing all bridges leading to Vancouver. "They shall not pass," was their motto as they stopped all trucks bearing alleged "bootleg" potatoes—action not bearing official tags of the marketing board. There was only one clash, however, when a truck driver was stopped by a policeman who was wounded with a knife allegedly drawn by a Chinese whose truck had been stopped for official inspection. CLAIM MADRID IMPERILLED BY SINKING OF AMERICAN ARMS CARGO

Madrid's defences may be materially weakened, according to observers following sinking of the Spanish loyalist freighter Mar Cantabrico in the Bay of Biscay by the rebel cruiser, Canarius. The freighter was carrying $2,700,000 worth of American and Mexican arms, and in a dramatic sailing from New York, just escaping the American neutrality law on January 8. When pursued by the rebel cruiser the Mar Cantabrico sent SOS signals under the name of a British boat, and four British destroyers rushed to the scene. The arms ship which was also flying a British flag was reported sunk after the crew and several passengers had been taken aboard the Canarius. Other reports, still unverified, say the Mar Cantabrico was able, however, to make port safely. Home and School Club Hears Talk on Nutrition

The Home and School Club of Queen Alexandra School met recently in the auditorium. The first item was one of the Red Cross Nutrition Course. The president, Mrs. W. R. Pinkle, was in the chair and the secretary, Mrs. Ullsperger, read the minutes of the last meeting. Mrs. Pinkle introduced the speaker of the afternoon, Miss M. S. McCready. Miss Mrs. Bateman and Miss Clara Coleman were the collaborators their services for the remaining eight lessons, which will be held each Tuesday at 2.30 in the school, beginning on March 16. Anyone interested in the Red Cross Work in relation to health is welcome to attend these classes.

Yesterday's lesson stressed the importance of good eating habits in adults if they wish to prevent the degenerative disturbances so common to the middle aged folk. It was explained by Miss Mccready that healthy body tissue can only be built up and maintained by feeding them the same good foods as we feed infants and children.

The particular food demonstrated yesterday was whole grain porridge made of whole wheat with added unwashed bran and wheat germ. The high iron and vitamin B content was stressed. To meet the demand of high tension and high speed of modern living, it is absolutely necessary that we get more of the protective foods into our diet. One that is sadly overlooked is the whole grain cereals.

Mrs. Bateman served food to eaten in the form of white flour products, and was advocated as a definitely non-fattening food, composed largely of water but extremely useful because of the cellulose with it. Adults get far too little milk in their diet.

During the afternoon a piano solo by Eleanor Jones was greatly enjoyed. Mrs. Bird gave a report of the sewing committee.

H. W. DILLNUTT IS RE-ELECTED

Horticultural Society Holds Annual Meeting And Reports Progress

Henry W. Dillnutt was re-elected to the office of president of the Belleville Horticultural Society at the annual meeting of the Association Wednesday night in the City Hall. The society also went on record as in favour of resuming municipal flower gardens, though on a smaller scale in order to create more local interest among lovers of flowers and plants in the immediate vicinity of Belleville and also to dispense with, for the coming year, their annual exhibition of flowers and plants.

"Our flower exhibitions of the larger scale have not been patronized too greatly in the past. I suggest that we forego our annual exhibitions and confine our activities to our city and immediate surrounding districts with the competition of the novice, amateur and open classes with cash prizes being awarded this year," stated Mr. A. R. Symons when the motion was accepted. The smaller displays or exhibitions will result in points being awarded for the best in the grand prizes, on the point basis, Silverdinning Cup will be awarded with a larger show at the end of the three years. Mr. Symons also suggested a government lecturer be approached and brought to Belleville for the purpose of information regarding the proper planting and cultivating of flowers and plants. Secretary John Watson agreed with the suggestion and undertook to procure the necessary speaker in a few days. Clark, a government lecturer on the subject, the matter was voted in favour of.

The election of officers, committees, etc., of the Belleville Horticultural Society resulted as follows:

President—H. W. Dillnutt.

1st Vice-Pres.—A. R. Symons.

2nd Vice-Pres.—Geo. Clarke.

Sec.-Treas.—J. Watson.

Directors—C. Wright, Mrs. R. R. Gross, D. W. Adams, Mrs. H. Revell, J. B. Pinder, Mrs. H. W. H. Fairfield and Mrs. Geo. Bonisteel.

Planting Committee—A. R. Symons, J. B. Pinday, H. F. Farrell, D. Farrell, Jas. Bonisteel.

Prize Committee—Dave Farrell, Mrs. Harry C. J. Hagerman.

Show Committee—The President as chairman, the executive as a whole, Dave Farrell, Alderman W. Harvey, Geo. Clarke, Mrs. H. W. Dillnutt and Geo. Bonisteel.

Further announcements of the activities of the Belleville Horticultural Society will be made following subsequent meetings of the organization to be held in the near future, especially pertaining to the Flower Show in Belleville of an expert government lecturer.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE CAPITOL

"The Plough and the Stars" and "Stolen Heaven"

"The Plough and the Stars" screen drama of the Irish "uprising" of 1916, starring Barbara Stanwyck and Preston Foster, achievements of Hollywood's picture makers. The compelling power of its story which brought out the best work of fiction, brilliance of its performers, richness of production and beauty of photography are high enough to all concerned with its filming.

Dramatizing the effect of the street fighting on the tenements of Dublin, the story focuses most sharply on a young combatant and his wife, whose lives and love are tortured and almost destroyed in the ordeal.

The emotional force which Barbara Stanwyck brings to the role who is featured in support, pack into the picture passion, its restrained ardor and beauty of their romantic scenes, make their performances in this screen version of Sean O'Casey's Irish play masterpiece stand as the greatest of their respective careers.

Preston Foster as John Ford, who has dove-tailed his drama elements as faithfully as he did in "The Informer," which won him the Academy award for direction in 1935, for the most of the scenes is eased by rousing comedy relief. "The Plough and the Stars" perfectly balanced entertainment.

Deserving particular note in the cast are members of the famous Dublin Abbey Theatre who make their screen debut in this their homeland, which they have played many times on the stage. The Plough and the Stars" having been first presented at the Abbey, thrilling at crowds and moving emotional drama. Barry Fitzgerald, Denis O'Dea, Eileen Crowe, Arthur Shields, and F. J. McCormick are a most welcome addition to the cast of screen personalities. Una O'Connor, also featured in the cast, and M. Kerrigan, Bonita Granville, (the real in "These Three," who proves her versatility in the dramatic role), Erin O'Brien-Moore and Helen Gilmore complete the cast of prominent parts.

"Join the Marines"

If anyone should be on the brink of leaving for the countries the June Travis-Paul Kelly picture, "Join the Marines," should certainly be the deciding factor. For this latest offering from the up-and-coming Republic studios portrays the stirring Uncle Sam's fighting boys in their glamorous role.

"Join the Marines" is shown as all No. 2 on this grand double bill with "Stolen Heaven," and those who and if there is one young man of enlistment age left in Belleville at the end of that time, this reviewer will be surprised.

Paul Kelly is excellent in the leading male role, with attractive June Travis sharing the honors. They keep picture alive and moving from first to final sequence, in which a well known Olympic champion swimmer puts his talents to the thrilling and unique climax.

To review the plot would spoil the enjoyment of all those who take their enjoyment undiluted. Suffice it to say, that in the brief hour's entertainment there are thrills galore. Action can be quoted, airplanes to be landed in the tracks, love waste, wild business to be tossed, plus the usual mad hilarity that accompanies the marines, wherever they go.

Reginald Denny and Sterling Holloway, in their supporting roles, are good for plenty of laughs, while Warren Hymer, Dorothy Frail and Peter Lorre complete the troupe.

AT THE ELLIS

"Maid of Salem"

The famous witchcraft scare of 1692, which broke out in Salem, Massachusetts, and resulted in the hanging of nineteen persons and the pressing to death, horror and fear in its wake, is the basis of "Maid of Salem", a gripping romance with Claudette Colbert and Fred MacMurray coming to the Belle tomorrow and Friday, matinee daily. Besides being an excellent romance and an outstanding production in every way, the film is important for the forthright manner in which it explains the outbreak and shows how it was fanned into flame mostly through the imaginations of hysterical and overwrought women and persecution mania.

Miss Colbert, as the Maid of Salem, is the ward of Louise Dresser . . . charming, sweet, and believing. Beside her is Lynn Bari who is featured in support, pack into the picture passion, its restrained ardor and beauty of their romantic scenes, make their performances in this screen version of Sean O'Casey's Irish play masterpiece stand as the greatest of their respective careers.

Miss Bari is the daughter of a friend. It is love at first sight for both. No one but the friend knows that Miss Bari is a witch and when killed MacMurray is taken prisoner by the Indians, who sell him captive to Virginia.

The witchcraft scare suddenly breaks out. Hysterical women accuse their friend of bewitching them. Susceptible children are taken with strange ailments, all of which are attributed to the devil; many innocent women are borne to the gallows and hanged.

When Miss Colbert protests at the hanging which sweeps the colony, she, too, is accused of being in league with the devil. Children tell of her devil handling abilities. Others report that she was seen with a tall, dark stranger who must have been the devil because nobody knew him. Even her own uncle names the man she is condemned to die.

The handsome Virginian returns just in time. His presence and his personality prove to the people that the utter folly of their witchcraft delusions dies as spontaneously as it began.

Included in the elaborate cast of the picture which should find a place on everybody's "must" list, are Virginia Gilmore, Edmund Gwenn, Gale Sondergaard, E. Alyn Warren, Donnie Granville, Virginia Weidler, Beulah Bondi, Donald Meek and a score of others. The film was directed and produced by Frank Lloyd, who directed "Mutiny on the Bounty" and "Cavalcade". "The Sea Hawk" and other epics of stirring films. It is a lavish and beautiful picture which should find a

A very funny Multiple-reel Comedy, concerning "Double Trouble" and "Quaint Quebec", a beautiful Kodachrome in technicolor will be exhibited on the same programme. Performances start daily at 2.20, 7.10 and 9.15. "Maid of Salem" starts 3.00, 7.40 and 9.45 p.m.

Smart Entertainment

Smart screen entertainment is promised Belleville and vicinity fans when "Double Trouble" comes to the Regent theatre for a three days' engagement, starting today. Jane Frazee are appearing in "Old Barnaby," a rollicking comedy, abounding in comedy, romance and dramatic excitement.

Breathless with thrills and romantic surprises is "Women Are Trouble", featuring Stuart Erwin, Florence Rice and Paul Kelly, announced as the companion feature. A very interesting newsreel completes the programme of Friday and entertainment. The last complete show begins at 8.30 p.m.

PALACE COOK AND PALACE CONSTABLE WED

This happy couple couldn't look sappier if they were actually born to be man and wife. They are Police Constable Wate, who does duty at Buckingham palace, and Frances Mary Ellen Jean Chapman cook - housekeeper at St. James' palace. They were pictured as they left Caxton Hall after their marriage recently.

935 VISITS MADE BY THE V. O. N.

Miss Soutar Explains to New Members The Duties of Society

A marked increase in the number or visits and patients ministered to by the Victorian Order of Nurses was seen in Belleville during the first two months of the current year, according to the reports submitted to the bi-monthly meeting of the V.O.N. held at the home last night, with Mrs. Tyrie Holland in charge. A total of 935 visits were made in the months of January and February, 403 in the former and 532 in the latter month, according to the reports submitted by Miss B. Soutar, V.O.N. nurse in charge.

Last night's meeting also saw a number of new members on hand including Alderman Wm. Harvey, representing the city. The newly appointed members to the board—Mrs. Holland, Ed James, Thos. Runton and H. B. Fetterly were also introduced and committee members for the coming year named.

In making her report Miss Soutar stressed the increased visits and cases being attended by her and miss Webster, "For the benefit of our new Board Members who may not understand the variety and types of visits the V.O.N. organization of giving would like to tabulate them tonight and then report in the future reports, to guide them in more detail. My reason for suggesting this is, that new Board Members may know and the other members better informed. The public are going to ask me what the V.O.N. actually do as you would naturally want to tell the public so that you have got to know what you are selling and it's the nurse's job to interpret our program of activities to you.

Be Good Agents

You see I want you all to be good agents for the V.O.N. because we know we have something that every home should know about and in time of illness the this knowledge by sending for us when they need us, not have regrets as one mother did two weeks ago when her little boy died. She paid us the greatest compliment, but the saddest tribute . . . "Nurse, if we had only known you sooner, I believe our little boy would not have died," The little lad was seriously ill with pneumonia and the disease was well established when the doctor first visited. Loving hands in the home gave the best care possible but burning pneumonia requires more experience and skill than the fondest mother can give if she hasn't this special training the V.O.N. can give. When this mother saw her little boy slipping somebody suggested the V.O.N. The family trusted the boy at home and they did not think they could afford a full time trained nurse but the V.O.N. seemed the solution—but it was too late—However that is not always the result attributable to the V.O.N. for their final effort, but we have our regrets, because we know, that this dreaded disease, pneumonia, which so often follows colds and influenza can be cured if the doctor and the nurse arrive on the scene in time —so what I want to emphasize are these points—

1. That we visit all types of homes—the well-to-do as well as the poor, and nurse all types of cases.

2. That anyone needing our service can have it—day or night.

3. That in case where a full time trained nurse is not needed or in homes where the expense of a full time nurse cannot be met, then the V.O.N. will gladly visit if she is called.

4. That the fee depends on the circumstances of the family—the usual fee being one dollar, but in cases of financial embarrassment a reduced fee be levied.

5. That we can reduce the cost of sickness. Help by present complications—so call us early.

"Briefly our work can be tabulated—1, Confinement Work; 2, Medical service; 3, Communicable Disease; 4, Bathing and baby office work." was the substance of Miss Soutar's report.

The committee appointed last night were as follows— Public Health, Dr. Mayes and Mrs. Robertson; Publicity and sewing — Mrs. Foley, Mrs. Bowsell; Mrs. Tilley and Mrs. Brown; Hospital—Mrs. Wardner; Mrs. Lent; Mrs. Boyd and Mrs. Woodley.

Possible for Maroons, Bruins To Finish First in Sections But Not Likely to Try Stunt Effort Might Burn Teams Out Before the Playoffs Start

HAWKS ELIMINATED

Impressive Tribute Paid to Morenz at Three Centres

By A. E. FULFORD
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Possibility still exists that Montreal Maroons and Boston Bruins may finish first in the two National Hockey League divisions but it is likely they will try, no such foolish trick. The effort would be almost certain to burn them out of all real chances in the playoffs.

Both teams are in better position now than at some time. Yet Maroons would have to win at least one of their remaining games and to beat out Montreal Canadiens even if the Habitants lose completely, Bruins would be forced to count out victories in all their four games. As the case stands now Bruins are sure Detroit stayed put.

So far Maroons and Bruins it will be strictly a race for second place now. Bruins beating Hawks 4-1 and Maroons broke away from a tie with Toronto Maple Leafs through only superficial. The decision in that little battle may be made Thursday, when Leafs and Maroons meet in Montreal.

Boston's defeat of the Red Wings permitted them to hold their comfortable lead by two points over New York Rangers, who won 7-5 from New York Americans in their final game of the season. The playoff issue was washing the last Chicago Black Hawks 4-1.

Tribute Paid to Morenz

In Montreal, New York and Boston, impressive tributes was paid to Howie Morenz, the Canadian hockey star who died Monday night. While crowds and players stood at attention, lights were dimmed and buglers sounded Taps. Representatives of every club will be present when his funeral is held Thursday from the Montreal Forum.

The tribute was striking in Montreal where everyone in the crowded Forum observed a two-minute silence. Manager Cecil Hart had told the players he believed Morenz would have liked them to win the game and make sure of first place.
